NOTHING LIKE IT EVER HAPPENED HERE BEFORE

AT THE PUBLIC'S MERCY

Weather conditions interferes with our customers. We have received several telegrams from our customers asking us to continue our sale, as they could not get here on account of the roads and weather being so bad, so we have concluded to continue our sale for ten days more to please our customers and positively no longer.

Beginning Saturday, January 19th, For Ten Days Only

THE SIDLE MERCANTILE CO.'S

Great Sacrifice Sale of The Hub Clothiers.

"A Tremendous Undertaking"—Cohen Bros. being compelled to raise a large sum of money in ten days have engaged the Sidle Mercantile Co. of Baltimore, Md., the world's greatest sale conductors and bargain givers, to conduct sale upon their stock of high-class seasonable goods at the very beginning of the fall-winter period and at the greatest slaughtering of prices ever heard of in Manassas. Nothing like it ever happened here before. Weather conditions and over-purchasing interferred with Cohen Bros. calculations and finds them with a much too large stock and bills coming due. These goods must be turned into cash at once, and to accomplish this the Sidle Mercantile Co. have slashed prices right and left—cost and value have not been considered—nothing reserved—everything included—so do not delay. The crowds will be large and the buying spirited. Goods will move fast and stock be rapidly reduced. We know whereof we speak and advise prompt attendance and early buying for best selections. Don't forget sale opens Saturday, January 19th, at 9 a. m., sharp, for positively only ten days, at Cohen Bros. Big Store, Manassas, Va.

PHYSICIAN TO JOHN WILKES BOOTH.

Life of Dr. Samuel A. Mudd.

From book review in Richmond Times-Dispatch. Edited by Miss Nettie Mudd. Published by Neale Co., of New York.

This book contains the letters written from Dr. Mudd's prison, Dry Tortugas Island, where Dr. Mudd was confined through injustice for an alleged conspiracy in the assassination of President Lincoln. [illegible] Mudd, who died in Washington, D. C., in 1906, [illegible] than as some of the prominent Federal officers at the time admitted, of his innocence of any complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln. At the time of the assassination of President Lincoln a large number of men in power were supposed to place the responsibility of it on one [illegible] people as a whole. A deep-seated determination was spread out that victims must be offered up for sacrifice. One of these victims was Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, whose sufferings to satisfy demands born of prejudice and passion are set forth in this volume by his daughter.

After his assassination of Lincoln, John Wilkes Booth, in company with David E. Herold, escaped from Washington and reached the residence of Dr. Mudd, in Charles county, Md., about 4 o'clock in the morning after he left the national capital. Neither Dr. Mudd nor any member of his family knew who Booth was. Dr. Mudd set a bone in Booth's leg which he had broken jumping from the President's box to the stage. Afterwards Booth left Dr. Mudd's house and crossed the Potomac river into Virginia.

After Booth's death, Dr. Mudd was tried by the Military Commission, meeting June 30, 1865, and sentenced to be confined for life at hard labor in the Albany penitentiary. Subsequently his place of imprisonment was changed from Albany to Fort Jefferson, on Dry Tortugas Island, Florida. Within a few days after his sentence had been passed, Dr. Mudd was on his way to Dry Tortugas, where he remained a prisoner until March 8, 1869, when he was pardoned by President Johnson and permitted to return to his home and family in Maryland. He died January 10, 1883, and was buried in St. Mary's Cemetary of Bryantown Church, where he first met Booth. He was in the fiftieth year of his age at the time of his death.

His daughter, in editing the story of his life, has simply presented facts, without argument or deduction, except those made by General Ewing in defense of Dr. Mudd before the Military Commission. Otherwise, Miss Mudd cites for mother's statement, the statement of Edward Spangler, one of the alleged conspirators, who was imprisoned at Fort Jefferson for nearly five years; the statement of Dr. Mudd, made while he was in prison, but not published for the first time, Dr. Mudd's letters, written during the period of his incarceration, and also other letters relating to the alleged conspiracy. Having marshaled her facts in order, Miss Mudd leaves them without comment to an impartial public.

Dr. Mudd's letters probably more than anything else, reveal his real nature and sound the depths of his sufferings caused anxiety for his wife and little children, and the bitterness caused in his nature by his long continued and what appeared to him his most unjust imprisonment.

When he was first arrested he believed he would soon be restored to his family, and did not consider his situation serious. He wrote encouragingly to his wife, and expressed the hope of soon being at home again. Even when he was declared guilty by a military tribunal, and sent to the most desolate place of imprisonment within the limits of the United States—Dry Tortugas—he showed true heroism, and bade his wife not give up hope, but to take care of the little ones. In a letter written on Christmas day, 1865, he says: "What have I done to bring so much trouble upon myself and family. The answer from my inmost heart—nothing."

He made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from prison in the latter part of the year 1865. After that the rigors of his confinement were increased. During the year 1867 yellow fever scourged the island of Dry Tortugas, and nearly every man of the garrison being helpless from fever, Dr. Mudd could have easily escaped. He preferred instead, to remain and give his medical services to his suffering fellow creatures. This was in October of 1867. In December it seems almost incredulous to note that he was still in chains and required to do menial labor.

After years of vain waiting and hope deferred, a mass condition of public opinion, and influence brought to bear upon the authorities, to whom were given many proofs of Dr. Mudd's innocence of the charges against him, brought about the prisoner's release. Now, after more than forty years, his daughter presents the story of his life to the public, feeling that the time has surely come when her father's name should be cleared from the shadow of the accusation resting on it.

The book is not only most interesting, but contains a great deal that has not been hitherto published, and that bears upon an important era in American history.

Teachers' Salaries.

From Collier's Weekly.

Teachers, even more than congressmen, deserve higher salaries. It is a material age. The man who fashions the walls of a house is held to a higher test of skill, and is paid better for his work, than he who molds the mind of a child. Bricklayers in San Francisco get $8.00 per day; Harriet Jones, teacher school in Luzerne county, Pa., for the same sum per week, and is given employment only nine months in the year. Masons in Calgary, Canada, get $5.40 a day, or $140 a month; Lawrence Amos, teacher, school in East Brandywine township, Pa., for $40 a month. Many teachers are paid less than hod-carriers.

College professors are worse off, in proportion, than teachers. The average salary paid to professors in Columbia is $3,746.85, to adjunct professors, men between thirty and forty, with a dozen years of service to the credit, $2,100.00. Such salaries are little less than enough to support decently a wife and five children.

In every community one person should have a position of [illegible] emolument equal to that of the ablest professional man. [illegible] Teachers [illegible] Professors [illegible]

—On Tuesday night last No. 28, from the Manassas branch, struck a black man on the track near the Fairview avenue crossing and pitched him over on another track where he was subsequently ground to pieces by a passing freight train. His head and body were so badly cut up that when found the next morning identification was impossible. It is believed, however, to have been Tobe Watson, who is missing. The pieces were simply gathered up, boxed and buried.

—The death of Joseph Godfrey, noticed in last week's JOURNAL, marks the passing away of a gallant Confederate soldier and one of the links of history in the community, as he died at the age of seventy-four, in his father's home, where he was born, and to which home he was devotedly attached. He bore the badge of honorable service in the empty sleeve made so in one of the grim battles near Lynchburg. The home, where another brother now lies ill, has been in the family for over one hundred years.

The Burglars Again.

On Monday night last a burglar entered Mr. W. R. Smitten's house near the Episcopal church, but was frightened away.

He effected an entrance by boring through the kitchen door and turning the night latch. A servant heard him boring, but thought it was a rat, but immediately after her "rat" stopped she heard a stealthy footstep on the stair-way and by the dimly burning light she saw a black hat crows rising to view. She did not wait for any remarks, but bounded out of bed with a scream of terror.

By the time Mr. Smitten could reach the stairway with his gun the culprit had departed.

What a pity he did not administer an allopathic dose of cold lead into the crown of that black hat!

About the same hour Mr. S. Devers heard his dog in a row on the first floor, but thinking it was a dog and cat "mix up" he paid little attention to it. The next morning he discovered his own clothes scattered about the floor &c., and the lamp in Miss Irene Devers's room put out and other evidences of a general search over the house by some one looking for valuables.

The same night Mrs. Marr awoke shortly after midnight and detecting the odor of chloroform, looked about the bed and found a garment saturated with it lying near her face. She got up and looked about the room and locked the door. It is presumed some one had been through the house.

Only a few nights before some one tried to open Mr. Robert Goods's door, but was frightened away.

We do not believe in shooting ordinarily, but a man is justifiable in puncturing a burglar in defense of his household, and we hope the next fellow that tries it, will get duly "plugged."

Anson M. Bangs.

The lowest bidders on the great Panama canal contract were Oliver & Bangs, the name of Anson M. Bangs sounds familiar to Prince William people. He was the gentleman who purchased the 4,000 acres at Quantico and established Potomac city and got the charter for the Potomac and Manassas Railroad. He had many projects in view, among them the building of a through line of railroad from Potomac city to the Ohio river, which he claimed was the shortest route between the Atlantic seaboard and the valley of the [illegible] The results of the enterprise [illegible] the gentlemen [illegible] Old and Yellow, with [illegible] it was [illegible] Washington [illegible] Bangs [illegible] rather [illegible]

A FRATERNAL SOCIAL.

Secret Societies Sup, Speak and Smile.

The five secret societies of the town, the Junions, Masons, Odd Fellows, Maccabees and the Legion, participated in a social last Wednesday night. There were about seventy five present.

Oysters, coffee and celery were served in abundance and this part of the programme was generally admitted to be very satisfactory. But what a pitiable affair it least would be with at dainty fingers to do the seasoning.

About nine o'clock Mr. J. B. T. Thornton, toast master, called the meeting from the elements of the inner man to his mental craft free of cares and other mental food and he pointly suggested that Mr. C. A. Sinclair give some light on the subject of "Odd Fellows and Little Fellows," which very pleasantly recalled to many present the fact that they had taken several degrees in one of these entertaining organizations. This seemed to have been the password of the meeting as Messrs Round, Nicol and Metz were called upon to vouch for the new Roosevelt password.

Mr. Robert A. Hutchison was next called upon and he paid tribute to "Our Better Halves Detained at Home," in his felicitous jibes and personal pleasantries.

Rev. Mr. Dorey followed in a short speech on the spirit of the organizations and purposes connected with fraternal work.

It was then discovered that Mr. Round was glad to be "round" and he proceeded to round up some new features of school questions disclosed by remarkable increases in attendance at some of the schools. He perpetrated the chief hit of the evening.

He was followed by Mr. Shaw, a member of the Protective Legion, who discussed the benevolent aims and objects of organizations.

Mr. Thos. H. Lion was then introduced. He gave, in a brief speech, a history of the movement which resulted in the new and handsome masonic temple, a tribute to its chief benefactor, the late Robert Portner, and the enterprising gentlemen, who had carried forward the work to its completion.

Rev. Mr. Clark was then introduced and he sang a beautiful solo.

Judge C. E. Nicol was then introduced—an aspirant for two high offices at the same time, and likely, in the course of events, to be duly installed in both—made a most entertaining speech and was generously applauded. His references to the late Robert Portner were especially fitting and appropriate.

Dr. Hamner closed with a brief speech on lines of general interest and welfare and the fraternal social closed with benedictions.

Much credit is due the active committees, who in so short a time, succeeded in making such an enjoyable occasion.

Thanks are due Mr. Wilson Wenrich for a full programme on his splendid gramophone, and the two ladies, modestly in the background, superintending the cuisine, and to Mr. Thornton, who is the happiest of toastmasters.

Mr. J. Wilbur Latham's House Burned.

Mr. J. Wilbur Latham's handsome home, near Calverton, was burned on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Latham and the children were absent at the time. About eleven o'clock a servant had started the kitchen fire and had gone out. Shortly after Mr. Latham's mother-in-law, who was in charge of the home, heard a roaring and cracking of the fire and went to the kitchen to find the wood box burning and the kitchen walls aflame. She made an effort to extinguish the fire but found it was beyond her control. Going to the front hall, she rang an alarm call, which brought several neighbors, but the fire was beyond control, when they arrived. They succeeded, however, in saving some of the furniture, but the family lost all their clothing.

There was an insurance of $5,000 on the dwelling and $1,000 on the contents, which however, does not cover Mr. Latham's loss.

Letter of Appreciation.

President Daniel C. Gilmar of Baltimore writes the following note of congratulation to Mr. Round:

DEAR MR. ROUND: I am much gratified by your remembrance and I thank you for your speech upon general Lee. It is certain most remarkable that a Northern soldier, standing near the historic battlefield, should make such a suggestion as that which is contained in your address. I wish that more might be such a monument to the [illegible]

Notes from Nokesville.

The many friends of Capt. R. H. Hood will regret to learn that this estimable gentleman has been confined to his home with a severe case of grip for the past two weeks, and up to this writing, with little improvement in his condition.

A few days ago, Mrs. L. H. Hood, his daughter-in-law, was taken with a severe cold and a few days later her husband contracted a severe cold as the result of exposure to severe and inclement weather in a drive to Rustyn and he, also, is confined to his bed.

Mr. Frank Smith and Miss Edith Wood, sister of Mrs. Jos. Herring of this place, were quietly married Tuesday morning at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. S. H. Flory. Frank, in entering the matrimonial state, has sprung a surprise upon his many friends of the community. Being an old maid he will doubtless know how to nurse a invalid husband if he should get caught in the reef of domestic disaster.

Mr. Harry Patrick of Waterloo, Iowa, who has been on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Cecil Smith, for the past two months, left here Tuesday night for Hagerstown, Md. Mr. Smith is an expert machinist and has secured a position with the Pope Automobile Manufacturing Company at that place. About ten days ago, while in a mere youth, he was the victim, while visiting at Mr. Smith's, of some of his early experimental mechanism. He procured a piece of gas pipe and converted it into a miniature cannon with disastrous results, when it was loaded and fired off. The incident was recorded in the local columns of THE JOURNAL at the time.

"Major," the handsome pea fowl who for a great number of years has been a prominent figure upon the lawns at White Hall, was found dead in the poultry yard on Tuesday morning. His death is attributed to cholera. "Major" was raised by Mrs. L. A. Marsteller and she gives his age as seventeen years. His title was acquired by his stately bearing and his commanding appearance while on "dress parade."

The cold snap of the past few days has started the ice gathering and Mr. W. R. Free, Jr., is filling his ice house with a nice quality of ice, measuring from three to five inches in thickness. This fact will be hailed with delight by Mr. Free's customers, who are looking forward with pleasure to the season of soft drinks from the old familiar refrigerator.

Mr. L. A. Marsteller slipped upon some ice upon his plantation on Monday and was painfully injured in a fall. He is reported as being somewhat better.

Miss Beatrice Linstrong, the popular teacher of Nokesville school, reports a good attendance of scholars, notwithstanding the severity of the weather and condition of the roads.

Mr. H. J. Jones, who has been confined to his home by an acute attack of rheumatism for the past two weeks, is very much better.

Mrs. W. R. Free, Sr., who has had a severe attack of grip is able to be out again.

WHITE HALL.

Letter From Occoquan.

The protracted meeting began Sunday night with a large and attentive congregation. We hope much good will be done, as our church needs a revival. All are welcome.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Miss Ella Ennis, who has been so ill for the past two weeks, is no better.

Miss Martha Thompson, who is making her home in Prince William with relatives, is the guest of Mrs. J. B. Beach. She will remain until after the meeting. We are delighted to have her with us again.

We are glad to know that our minister, Rev. Charles Lynch and family, are able to be out again, after such a long period of sickness.

It is rumored the Bell Telephone Co. will be established in our village by spring. We are glad to learn it, for phones are a great convenience.

Mrs. Capt. Davis gave a dinner in honor of her daughter's sixteenth birthday Monday, January 28. Refreshments were served in the evening to a large number of guests.

Mr. H. H. Carter, wife and sister were guests of their parents on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lynn gave a dance in honor of Mrs. Jennie Latham last Friday evening at their hall on Mill street. Dancing was indulged in until a late hour. All report a good time.

Mrs. Harry Soloman is slightly improved at this writing, but has been reported quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Davis entertained a small card party in honor of their friend, Miss Anna Slack, who expects to make a protracted visit to her aunt, Mrs. L. A. Oliver, Kasmore, Va., to resume her musical studies. Among those present were Mrs. Emma J. Spencer, Miss Rowena Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Starke-weather, Miss Mabelle P. Arrington, Miss Mamie Davis, Miss Ida Allen, Miss Anna Slack, Dr. Hornbaker, Messrs Vernon Greene, F. B. Morgan, J. Lemry. Music, finch and euchre were features of the evening, after which a delightful menu was served.

Mr. J. B. Bowman has accepted a position at Richmond, Va. He will be greatly missed socially.

Mr. Leith St. Clair, who is attending George Washington Medical College, was in town Sunday.

Mr. Henry Parker of Alexandria was the guest of Miss Lillian Hammill Sunday last.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

The Question in a Nutshell.

Can we afford to tear up good sidewalks to make better ones? Is it not better to spend the money now in hand macadamizing our streets for about three blocks in the business section of our town? Engineers tell us the best way is to put about 16 to 20 feet of stone through the center of our streets to begin with; leaving a strip out to the sidewalks to be put down when more money is available. Our property owners have shown a good spirit in the matter of paying taxes and we feel sure they will return to his home in Haymarket.

Mrs. McAll of New York is visiting her father, Mr. Burwell, who has been ill at his home, "Brindale."

Mr. Hugh S. Thompson of New York paid a short visit to Haymarket last week.

$3,000 in Gems Restored.

After having been regarded as lost ever since November, a package containing $3,000 worth of gems, the property of Mrs. Joseph Ewing, wife of a New York wool merchant, has just been restored to the owner by the officials of the Southern Railroad.

The Ewings, who were staying at Hot Springs, Va., decided to leave for Charlottesville, N. C., November 28. Their luggage was placed on the train, but because of a delay on the part of Mrs. Ewing the party missed the train. The train was later wrecked at Lynchburg, and Mrs. Ewing took it for granted that her jewels had been lost in the burning of the baggage car.

Frederick M. Curtis, a furniture manufacturer, of Jamestown, N. Y., saw two negroes pilfering the wrecked express, and compelled them to drop several pieces of baggage, among which was the jewel case belong to Mrs. Ewing.

Mr. Curtis, immediately took the package to the office of the Southern Railroad. Some time later the news of Mrs. Ewing's loss reached the Southern officials, and they started an investigation, with the result that the long lost valuables were restored.

A Habit to Be Encouraged.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of anxiety and care. Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of perfect security. Sold by S. D. Thompson.

Pinching for the Peg.

While the proprietor and clerk at the merchantile establishment of Messrs W. R. Free, Jr. & Co. of Nokesville were busily engaged on Tuesday night last, a youth entered the store, and slyly proceeded to make secret punches at the patent scheme punch board, which sat upon the counter.

In his endeavor to punch out a gold or silver watch, which would entitle him to a gold watch, he scattered several pegs upon the counter before he was discovered by a customer, and exposed to one of the clerks. Before the clerk could acquaint the proprietor, the young culprit had made his escape from the store. Mr. Free went in quest of the wayward youth, overtaking him at the passenger depot, where he was accosted by this misdeed and threatened with arrest. The young man at first denied his guilt but when sergeant Bradly was ordered by Mayor McCarthy to take the young man into custody he agreed to settle for the pegs, amounting in the aggregate to one dollar and eighty-five cents.

Whipping Post to Stay.

The Delaware legislature has voted to continue the whipping post and public floggings for prisoners convicted of theft, felonious assault, house breaking and arson.

The senate committee reporting on the bill abolishing the whipping post said:

"We do not say that the public whipping post is not an extreme punishment, particularly in winter time, but we do say that the whipping post is a fearful thing to crooks, yegg men and safe blowers, for they pass Delaware by so long as she lays the cat upon the culprits' backs."

ARBUCKLES' ARIOSA COFFEE

SAVE THEIR AMBITION AND THE POWER THAT TURNED THE WILDERNESS INTO THE GREATEST RICHEST COUNTRY THE SUN SHINES UPON

"For over thirty years," writes a gentleman in Los Angeles, "I have used Arbuckles' Coffee. Many times my family has tried other coffee only to come back to our old reliable, unchangeable Arbuckles. No other coffee has this uniform never failing aroma. I care not at what price. I have often wished I could tell you this." Many other people have the same opinion. Arbuckles' is the fine roasted packaged coffee, and its sales exceed all the others put together. That it costs you less is due simply to our coffee business being so much greater than any competitors, in fact, it is larger than the three next largest firms in the world combined. We naturally can and actually do give better coffee in ARIOSA than anyone else can give for the price; Being the standard article it is sold at the narrowest margin of profit.

Some grocers will try to sell you instead loose coffee which the roaster is ashamed to sell in a package. Seeing his name.

SOLD IN SEALED PACKAGES ONLY FOR YOUR PROTECTION

Don't take it, neither the looks nor the price induce you to try something else. The easier where you buy Arbuckles' ARIOSA, or what you pay for it, it's the same old uniform Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee.

If your grocer will not supply, write to ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City.

ADVANCE STYLES IN

SPRING DRESS GOODS

WASH GOODS AND WOOL FABRICS.

PROBABLY LOWER NOW IN PRICE THAN LATER. IF THE RISE in price of raw materials continues, as from all indications it probably will, the quotations on these yard goods may not hold good later in the season. That's one strong reason for buying now.

ANOTHER REASON lies in the fact that many patterns are brought out early in the season, and when the supply is exhausted are not duplicated.

STILL ANOTHER is that by buying early you can get suits and dresses made up in the dressmaker's dull season and have them ready to wear when wanted.

IN THE LIST below are pretty new fancies for early spring and summer wear:

NEW GRAY WOOL SUITINGS, especially suitable for tailor made costumes; in plaids, checks and stripes. Prices range a yard from ..... 49c to $1.50

BLACK AND WHITE WOOL CHECKS, and in blue and white also, very popular at present. Prices range a yard ..... 39c to $1.50

VOILES, in gray, tan and blue, prices range a yard from ..... 75c to $1.50

PANAMA SUITINGS, in all the leading shades, prices range a yard from ... 49c to $1.50

CREAM WOOL GOODS—Serges, a yard, 49c to $1.50; Voiles, a yard, 75c to $1.00; Panamas, a yard, 49c to $1.50.

Roosevelt's Tribute to Gen. Lee

At the elaborate celebration of the the 100th anniversary of Gen. R. E. Lee, held at the New Willard Hotel, in Washington, Jan. 19, 1907, the following letter from President Roosevelt was read:

"The White House,
"Washington, Jan. 16, 1907.

"To the Hon Hilary A. Herbert, chairman; Chief Justice Seth Shepard, Gen. Marcus J. Wright, Judge Charles B. Howry, Mr. William A. Gordon, Mr. Thomas Nelson Page, President Edwin Alderman, Mr. Joseph Wilmer and others of the committee of arrangements for the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

"Gentlemen:—I regret that it is not in my power to be with you at your celebration. I join with you in honoring the life and career of that great soldier and high-minded citizen whose fame is now a matter of pride to all our countrymen. Terrible though the destruction of the civil war was, awful though it was that such a conflict should occur between brothers, it is yet a matter for gratitude on the part of all Americans that this, along with contests of like magnitude, should have left to both sides as a priceless heritage the memory of the mighty men and the glorious deeds that the iron days brought forth:

"The courage and steadfast endurance, the lofty fealty to the right as it was given to each man to see the right, whether he wore the gray or whether he wore the blue, now make the memories of the valiant feats, alike to those who served under Grant and those who served under Lee, precious to all good Americans.

"Gen. Lee has left us the memory not merely of his extraordinary skill as a General, his dauntless courage and high leadership in campaigns and battles but also of that serene greatness of soul characteristic of those who most readily recognize the obligations of civic duty. Once the war was over he instantly undertook the task of healing and binding up the wounds of his countrymen. In the true spirit of those who feel malice toward none and charity toward all, in that spirit which from the throes of the civil war brought forth the real and indissoluble Union of to day. It was eminently fitting that this great man, this war-worn veteran of a mighty struggle, who, at its close, simply and quietly undertook his duty as a plain every day citizen, bent only upon helping his people in the paths of peace and tranquility, should turn his attention toward educational work, toward bringing up in fit fashion the younger generation, the sons of those who had proved their faith by their endeavor in the heroic days.

"There is no need to dwell on Gen. Lee's record as a soldier. The son of Light Horse Harry Lee of the revolution, he came naturally by his aptitude for arms and command. His campaigns put him in the foremost rank of the great captains of all time. But his signal valor and address in war are no more remarkable than the spirit in which he turned to the work of peace once the war was over. The circumstances were such that most men, even of high character, felt bitter and vindictive or depressed and spiritless, but Gen. Lee's heroic temper was not warped, nor his great soul cast down. He stood that hardest of all strains, the strain of bearing himself well through the gray evening of failure, and, therefore, out of what seemed failure, he helped to build the wonderful and mighty triumph of our national life, in which all our countrymen, North and South, share. Immediately after the close of hostilities he announced, with clearsightedness which at that time few in deed of any section possessed that the interest of the Southern states were the same as those of the United States; that the prosperity of the South would rise or fall with the welfare of the whole country, and that the duty of its citizens appeared too plain to admit of doubt. He urged that all should unite in honest effort to obliterate the efforts of war, and restore the blessings of peace; that they should remain in the country, strive for harmony and good feeling, and devote their abilities to the interests of their people and the healing of dissensions.

"To every one who applied to him this was the advice he gave. Although absolutely without means, he refused all offers of pecuniary aid, also positions of emolument, although many such, at a high salary, were offered him. The choice lay to go abroad saying that he could only advise others to do what he was engaged in some useful work. This statement brought him the offer of the presidency of Washington College, a little institution in Lexington, which he has grown out of a modest foundation so known as Liberty Hall Academy. Washington had endowed this academy with 100th shares of stock that had been given him by the state of Virginia, which he had accepted only on condition that he might with them endow some educational institution.

"To the institution which Washington helped to found in such a spirit, Lee, in the same fine spirit, gave his services. He accepted the position of president at a salary of $1,500 a year, in order, as he stated, that he might do some good to the youth of the South. He applied himself to his new work with the same singleness of mind which he showed in leading the army of Northern Virginia.

"All the time by word and deed he was striving for the restoration of real peace, of real harmony, never uttering a word of bitterness nor allowing a word of bitterness uttered in his presence to go unchecked. From the close of the war to the time of his death all his great powers were devoted to two objects; to the reconciliation of all his countrymen with one another, and to fitting the youth of the South for the duties of a lofty and broad-minded citizenship.

"Such is the career that you gather to honor, and I hope that you will take advantage of the tooth anniversary of Gen. Lee's birth by appealing to all our people, in every section of this country, to commemorate his life and deeds by the establishment, at some great representative educational institution of the South, of a permanent memorial that will serve the youth of the coming years, as he, in the closing years of his life, served those who so sorely needed what he so freely gave. Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:—We are soon to adopt the McCaskey Account Register System for keeping our accounts. While this system is new to us, it has been successful operation for a number of years among the leading merchants of the country who are unanimous in their endorsement of the same.

This New System will give you an itemized bill with each purchase as well as the total amount of your account at the time of the purchase, which you will readily see, prevents the possibility of any difference between you and us as to the condition of your account. We will have no record of which you do not have an exact copy, inasmuch as all charges will be made in duplicate.

To secure your hearty co-operation in operating this system, we will furnish you a "miniature register" in the shape of a sales slip holder especially devised to hold our sales slips, which under this system means so much to you. You will kindly request of us that this holder be delivered to you when the first purchase is made after the system has been installed. We beg to assure you that the fact of your total indebtedness to us, appearing on each sales slip, has no personal application to you or to any other customer, but is merely a part of the successful operation of this New System.

We thank you for past favors and hope by careful attention to your wants and by strict adherence to honorable business methods, to merit a continuance of your trade.

Yours very truly,
