DISTRICT HOME IS CRITICIZED

Believed Complaint Groundless But Supervisors Appoint Investigating Committee.

Complaints having reached the Board of Supervisors that inmates of the District Home were not properly cared for in point of nourishment and cleanliness, the Board of Supervisors took steps at Tuesday's meeting to get first hand information by appointing an investigating committee.

In appointing the committee, James R. Larkin, chairman of the Board, said:

"It is the desire of the Board that inmates of the District Home receive the best possible attention consistent with the means available." The committee named consists of James R. Larkin, Rolfe Robertson, Mrs. Emily Round, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Richard S. Hynson, and Mrs. C. E. Nash, and it will make a personal inspection of conditions at the Home and make such recommendations to the Board of Supervisors as to it may seem best. The report will be made in duplicate one copy for the Board and one for the Board of the District Home.

Other Complaint Groundless.
This is the second complaint against conditions at the District Home which the Board has received this year. The first one which was made some two months ago brought about an investigation of conditions and at that time it was found that the Home was admirably managed, the food was well prepared and nutritious, there was no evidence of a lack of cleanliness, and the inmates were all loud in their praise of the treatment received by them from the Home management. The complainant, who was invited by the Supervisors to make an inspection with them, failed to put in an appearance on the date set.

SCOTTISH RITE REUNION ENDS

Ceremonies Conclude on Friday Night With Huge Banquet Served By Eastern Stars of Alexandria.

(Special to The Journal.)
Alexandria, Oct. 23—The Scottish Rite Masonic fall reunion came to a close in this city on Friday night with an elaborate banquet at Armory Hall, which was gayly decorated with flags and lights streaming from one end of the hall to the other.

Over 500 Present.
Over 500 Masons were guests at the banquet, which was served by the Mary Washington Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of this city. Members of the Supreme Council of the Southern Jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masonry also took part in the program.

Wenrich, Presides.
Charles C. Wenrich, 32 degree, K.C. C.H., venerable master of Washington Memorial Lodge of Perfection, presided and introduced Robert S. Crump, 33 degree, the toastmaster. In his opening remarks Mr. Wenrich said the Scottish Rite bodies of the Valley of Alexandria welcomed the many brothers to the reunion. He said Virginia Consistory was indebted to Baltimore, Richmond and Washington Scottish Rite degree teams for the conferring of the various degrees. He thanked the ladies for assisting in serving the banquet that "destroyed the pangs of hunger." He then presented Toastmaster Robert S. Crump, sovereign grand inspector-general of Virginia.

Representative Woodrum Talks.
Rep. Cliff Woodrum, 33 degree, of Roanoke, said it was an honor to attend the ceremonies and he expressed fraternal greetings to the brothers present from those of the Valley of Roanoke. He said he was impressed with the delightful spirit of the occasion and congratulated the class of candidates. His topic for the address was "Only Thyself." He spoke on the principles of the Scottish Rite and said Masonry was a Christian order from the first to the 33rd degree and dedicated itself to the highest principles of religion.

Two members of the newly initiated class of candidates made short talks. Musical selections were rendered by the Baltimore quartet, and W. G. Adherhold sang one number. Music was furnished by Myer Goldman's Orchestra. Rev. Edgar Carpenter, pastor of Grace Episcopal Church, pronounced benediction. Before closing, Toastmaster Crump presented the local committee that made possible the success of the reunion. J. E. Shinn was chairman of the banquet committee and arranged for the beautiful decorations in the hall. An excellent menu was served. One of the surprises was known as "a Mason's Pride." This proved to be ice cream moulded in the form of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple.

Many of the newly initiated class of candidates were from Prince William County and a large number of local Scottish Rite Masons attended the banquet.

KILL THE FLY MEETING ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Sanitation Meeting in Manassas High School Tomorrow Afternoon. Dr. Hill Will Speak.

That the fly killed now will prevent many deaths is known to many of the people interested in health and sanitation in the county, but there are many folks who know little about the fly extermination campaign.

Tomorrow, Friday, at 2:30 p. m., in the Manassas High School Auditorium Dr. Hill will speak on "The Filthy Fly", in an effort to arouse interest in the nation-wide sanitation campaign now being waged.

In speaking of the fly campaign yesterday, Miss Ruby Ryman, county nurse, said "the fly is causing many unnecessary deaths each year among our people in Prince William County. There were eight deaths from tuberculosis and two from typhoid fever last year. Eleven white and nine colored children died under one year of age in the county. We have no way of estimating how many were made ill by the filthy fly."

Every citizen who has the welfare of the county at heart should attend tomorrow's meeting. Seven hundred and thirty-five thousand children die annually in the country from the spreading of disease by the fly. Children's lives are valuable, so let us all attend the meeting and learn more of the methods to adopt for the extermination of the fly pest.

Alexandria And Washington Kiwanians Here Today For The Birthday Party

EDWIN F. HILL, LIEUT. GOVERNOR, HERE

Five years ago today a group of officials from the Washington and Alexandria Kiwanis Clubs, together with Merle E. Towner, of Baltimore, then District governor of Kiwanis, came to Manassas to present a charter and install the first officers of Manassas Kiwanis.

Tonight, Manassas Kiwanis will duly celebrate its Fifth Anniversary, and members of the Alexandria and Washington clubs, headed by Edwin F. Hill, lieutenant governor of the district, are here for the purpose of properly marking the birthday, and will put on a program which will have for its chief aim, "celebration."

Ratliff Conceived Idea.
The organization of the Kiwanis Club here is due to the interest of G. Raymond Ratliff, who conceived the idea of having such a club in Manassas, brought the Alexandria Club here for a booster meeting on October 24, 1924, and so convinced the District governor of the wide-awake spirit of Manassas citizens that a charter was granted and officers installed on December 4, 1924.

First Officers.
The first officers of the club were: G. Raymond Ratliff, president; Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, vice president; James E. Bradford, secretary; Harry P. Davis, treasurer, and T. E. Didlake, trustee.

The present officers include T. E. Didlake, president; Robert A. Hutchison, vice president; Frank G. Sigman, secretary; Arthur S. Boatwright, treasurer, and Fred R. Hynson, trustee. The board of directors has for its membership the officers and Harry P. Davis, M. M. Ellis, A. A. Hooff, Richard S. Hynson, C. R. C. Johnson, G. Raymond Ratliff, and B. Lynn Robertson.

Club Helps County.
During each succeeding year the spirit of friendliness among the business and professional men has increased largely as a result of the activities of the Kiwanis organization. The club has accomplished much in bringing about a spirit of better understanding and a closer spirit of cooperation between the merchants and business men of the community and the farmers of Prince William County.

Among some of the outstanding achievements of Kiwanis has been the annual distribution of Christmas baskets to unfortunates; the care of crippled children, under the leadership of Dr. E. H. Marsteller; serving of luncheons during winter months in schools; treatment of throats of children in Georgetown Hospital; assisted in getting a new school building in Manassas; work on good roads; active in town manager movement; brought about employment of county nurse; interested in public health; and numerous other things for the good of Prince William County.

ART EXHIBIT PLANNED FOR EDUCATIONAL HELP

An educational art exhibit will be given at the Manassas High School beginning on Thursday, October 30, and continuing through November 1, during the hours from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., each day.

The exhibit is loaned to schools, Parent-Teacher associations, Woman's Clubs, and other responsible organizations, by an art company whose aim is to develop a love of good pictures and to further the cause of Art. Mrs. Stewart McBryde is the local committee on the exhibit and the school and art company are fortunate in having this artist direct the hanging of the pictures.

The exhibit is threefold in purpose: First—To develop a love of beauty through the intelligent use of good pictures and to further the cause of Art. Second—To assist in community upbuilding and to foster interest in school affairs. Third—To raise funds for the permanent decoration of school buildings. The money from the sale of tickets will be used to purchase good pictures for the high school.

The fund is to perpetuate the memory of the late Lewis Z. Morris, well known Richmond banker and civic leader, who died last week. A bronze tablet recording the gift will be placed in McGuire Hall, the building for which Mr. Morris worked so effectively when it was projected and whose interest was a strong factor in its materialization.

Interest from the fund, according to the announcement, will be available for loans to worthy students in the several schools of the college.

Gift To Public Schools.

Fredericksburg, Oct. 24.—Public schools in Stafford and King George Counties, already the fortunate recipients of several gifts, have had another added to the list, according to T. Benton Gayle, superintendent for both counties. The sum this time comes from a man whose name is kept secret and consists of $3,000 of which $1,000 is for the completion of the addition to the school at Stafford, and $2,000 for the addition of two rooms to the school at King George. The donations will relieve crowded conditions at both schools.

John Lee Pratt, of General Motors Corporation, New York, and owner of the Sherwood Forest estate, in Stafford County, awards $100 each to the five-highest pupils in each county in the seventh grade, every year, and the same to the highest in the first grade of high school, making a total to all scholars of $2,000 a year given by Mr. Pratt. Thirty pupils in the school divisions are now receiving assistance through Mr. Pratt's gifts.

work, especially in the obtaining of rights-of-ways for the highway.

The Shenandoah County board of supervisors has invited the supervisors of Rockingham, Augusta and Frederick Counties to meet with them here on November 15, for the purpose of aiding in the speeding up of the Valley Pike project. While no acceptances have as yet been received those sponsoring the proposal expect all of the boards to co-operate in the movement. The Shenandoah board, and other agencies in that county, have been active in assisting the state highway commission since the pike widening project was started near New Market more than a year ago.

THINGS OF THE SOIL

The Manassas Journal's Complete Agricultural Service

By DAN VAN GORDER

Questions of lawns, gardens and general farming are discussed in this department each week. Readers of The Manassas Journal are invited to use this new column for the answer to their question and the solution of their problems. Address all inquiries to The Manassas Journal Information Bureau, Van Gorder News Service, Manassas, Virginia.

BETTER THINGS FOR THE TABLE

Visits to a score or more county and state fairs this fall have revealed an astonishing public interest in the more important phase of farm life, the dining table. Of course, rural people have for many years maintained the reputation of living on a better quality of food, and even a better quantity, than urban residents, despite the nation-wide political cries of the necessity of farm relief for the tillers of the soil. Whether this reputation was established on fact or not is not pertinent here. The truth remains that food exhibits at many eastern and mid-western agricultural fairs this year indicate that rural residents are alive to the benefits derived from the latest methods of canning and preserving fruits and vegetables for the farm dining table.

On display at these fairs were arrays of canned foods surpassing those to be found in the farmer's cellar two decades ago as far as the present day modes of transportation excel the days of the horse and buggy. Not only was variety of food seen, but the excellence of food value conservation was apparent in the methods of canning. Rhubarb, asparagus, cauliflower, spinach, and scores of other vegetables were seen, vegetables whose benefit for table use were deemed at an end when the maturing season was past a few year's age. Now prepared by methods that transferred their succulence and nutritive values to the dining table until the next season's crop is arrived, these exhibits revealed a new era of farm independence, a progressive trend that will be translated into a higher standard of health among rural people.

It is within the remembrance of many now living, who were born on the farm or in small rural villages and towns, that the winter months were a period when few if any green vegetables were included in the family bill of fare. Lettuce, kale, spinach, asparagus, cauliflower, cabbage and summer foods. The result has been, so scientists have declared, that defective teeth, stunted physiques, poor bones, and general defects of body development follow in the wake of deficient diets. Many school children have learned the health maximum of "at least one green vegetable a day. Extension workers have carried similar messages into the homes of the nation. Perhaps these food exhibits at these fairs are first fruit of this new appreciation of better foods for the families of those who produce all food.

Which leads to the practical purpose of these observations. There are few home owners but who can have home grown green vegetables far into the winter months. Nature can be aided in thwarting enough of the freezing weather to provide plenty of supplementing vegetables for the tables during the late weeks of fall and early winter.

Use of coldframes will enable the gardeners to grow excellent lettuce, radishes, and if space permits, several other vegetables. Where electric power is cheap many Norwegians gardeners overcome the short summer season by producing vegetables in cold-frame beds heated by electricity. But where there is so much sunshine and no extremely cold spells until mid-winter, the grower will find the cold-frame a fine substitute for greenhouse production of valuable food supplies for home use.

So extensive has been the adaptation of green vegetables for winter eatings that many vegetable growers are adding greenhouses to supplement their spring and summer production. Where there is enough city population within marketing distance, this usually proves a profitable venture. In fact is a large field for expansion in greenhouse vegetable growing in proximity to many and medium sized urban centers.

But novices and amateurs cannot suddenly embark into greenhouse vegetable growing without gaining some knowledge of the many requirements for this special line of business. Soil conditions, fertilizing, moisture control, seed varieties, cultural practices, insect and disease conditions, all require a different system of management and policy than is found in outdoor growing. We receive many inquiries from successful vegetable growers regarding the possible profits in adding winter greenhouse production to their business. We believe that the awakened public knowledge to the food values and health benefits of generous green vegetable diets during the winter months has made possible a profitable business in greenhouse production. In fact, there are scores of opportunities near our large consuming centers that justify immediate investment along this line. But we believe caution and experience should precede large investments for this purpose.

But there is no mistaking the demands of the general public appetite. Fresh vegetables are now a twelve month necessity. And the progressive and wide-awake grower will find a profitable business in supplying this demand which is sure to increase. With the increased interest in fresh vegetables plus increased varieties for the consumers' tables the future not only promises better time for the growers, but healthier diets for the great consuming public.

WHOLESONE THINGS HAPPENING.

Destruction of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill—for the bewilderment of the administration forces in Congress and their desperate floundering around to try to save something from the wreck, means that the measure as it was conceived by the Republican leaders who sought this way of paying off campaign debts has failed—is one of the most wholesome things that has happened at the Capital for a long time.

The insolence of the pretense that farm relief was the object of the tariff, which was planned to put an additional burden of more than $700,000,000 a year on the consuming public of the United States, has been thoroughly exposed. Not only is the defeat of the worst of the attempted extortions forecasted, but the additional punishment is inflicted on the powers of privilege of having the meretricious flexible provision stricken out. The power this conferred on the President was departure from one of the highest principles of democratic government and was only obtained by the representation that it was an emergency measure compelled by the crash in foreign exchange following the war, and was procured with the implicit promise that it should not be prolonged beyond the duration of that emergency. Originally represented as being particularly intended to enable the President to cut down rates at which the country demurred, the power of the President to change duties has been exercised almost entirely toward increasing those duties.

There was no excuse for a general tariff revision at this session of Congress. According to the figures of the Department of Commerce, of which Mr. Hoover himself was the head during the period of the survey, the big corporations were making greater profits than at any time in their history. They might well have been content with the bounties they were getting under the Fordney-McCumber bill, but the opportunity for another raid afforded by the calling of the special session was too great for greedy corporations to overlook, and they charged down on Congress, where a complacent administration eagerly attempted to give them everything they asked.

Apart from the satisfaction of correcting an economic blunder, which resulted in placing in the hands of the Chief Executive a political weapon too great to be entrusted to any single man, — for it gives the President power of life and death over the country's industries—the elimination of the flexible tariff brings a comforting glow for the retribution it visits on the exploiters of the people. Their cupidity caused them to over-reach themselves. Had they dreamed that forcing a tariff fight at this time would have resulted in the loss of this process of building a superstructure on the high rates they never would have ventured on this buccaneering cruise.

It is unthinkable that the Democrats and those Senate Republicans who have stood with them in the fight so far should ever permit the restoration of the flexible tariff. Though the pressure that will be brought on individual Senators by authors of special duties on the products of their individual States will be enormous, it appears that this time the old, nefarious system of logrolling and trading will break down. Feelers are already being extended by the hurried administration in this direction. But, as the Baltimore Sun recently put it, "the Democrats and the Insurgents should put away all Machiavellian schemes. In any negotiations with the Republicans, they should insist upon the elimination of the extortionate industrial schedules. If denied that, they should drive, as they have driven up to this time, head-on against the gigantic fraud. What they have done so far is proof of what they can do."

GREATEST THING IN LIFE.

What is it? To stick around? To be useful? To do one's duty? Yes, first and foremost to those who are dependent on you—your immediate family. It is not their fault that you are related to them. Your duty to them performed, you may develop yourself as an individual. Your personality, your individuality are next in importance.

Is it not a national sense highly important that we formulate a national philosophy founded on the efficient individual and service for the masses? The concept of Americans by the Europeans, that we are a nation of men and women who are mere dollar-chasers, is a mistaken one. We have amassed the most dollars because we have made wealth a by-product of principle, not putting dollar-worship first.

The principle of service, better service, more service, has become the greatest thing in life with American industrial leaders.

Men who have made millions are generally plain and common as old shoes.

WHY WALLOW IN MUD?

In progressive localities the farmer no longer wallows in mud, or over gravel, when he comes to town to sell produce or to see a movie. Feeder roads with low cost waterproof wearing surfaces of oils or asphaltic materials are rapidly replacing the cow trails.

The telephone, the radio and the automobile have done much to "civilize" rural America, and now good roads are finishing the job.

Press Comment

The American "Gallus". Something should be done about suspenders, says the New York Herald Tribune. It is disillusioning to realize that the age which has perfected the steam riveter, the airplane, the thermos bottle and the zipper, and beautified the icebox, the umbrella, the filling station, the female stocking and the male knickerbocker, has done but little for that cardinal necessity of male attire, the old-fashioned suspender.

If only the manufacturers would take this matter to heart, men not only could but would take off their coats and show their suspenders as proudly as they flaunt their neckties. And that would be the beginning of a sartorial revolution which would mark an epoch in the history of American manners.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 27, 1929.

The International Sunday School Lesson for October 27 is "Some Teachings of the Bible: The Christian View of Recreation"—Mark 2:18-28; John 10:10.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

It is a cheap and easy pastime to criticize the Puritans, who were better men than most of their critics. Yet they did not fall short of a full sense of the place of pleasure in life. Their stern piety was a reaction against prevalent frivolity that was largely sinful and shameful. And if one of life must be emphasized above another, by all means let it be the rugged integrities, the essential qualities of character. Certainly this present generation is in no peril from puritanism; even though cartoonists and paragraphers love to portray religion and reform in Puritan garbs.

Religion is more than repression. The Christian is no mere doer-without. A cardinal principal of His teaching was expressed by Christ in the Golden Text of this Lesson, "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." Not soul-starvation, but soul riches, were prescribed for His friends by the Master. Dreary, clouded, unhappy lives have simply failed to understand the Christian program. The wonder and glory of the religion of Jesus is that it is an experience of joy under all conditions.

A Bridge-Brained Generation. Life is well lived when it is symmetrical. Every real personality covets both size and proportion and balance. Lop-sidedness and littleness are both dreaded by spirits who are eager to achieve the best. Christianity definitely makes for this. It is an inward state of peace and joy, as well as an outward expression of human relationship. The intelligently Christian person has large and varied interests. Millions have been saved from soul starvation by their study of the Bible and by the practice of definite Christian duties. For the Christian has a brain as well as a body, and a spirit to dominate both.

A few evenings ago, at a stimulating social gathering of a group of young married people, college graduates who have already achieved personalities and prosperity, I heard one business man say, "I like to play an occasional game of bridge, but I can't stand for the way so many people are giving all their spare time to it. Most social gatherings turn at once into bridge parties, as if in confession that they have no resource for entertainment in themselves. I think the present fashion is an insult to people's brains. Have we forgotten how to talk? Are there no common interests for educated men and women aside from cards? Don't they know how to play?"

According to the Wall Street Journal. A start in this direction was made last week when the Katy Flyer, the M-K-T's crack train, had a broken piston valve on the engine near Temple, Tex. The engineer coasted until he came to a garage, stopped his train, had the valve repaired at a cost of 75 cents, and pulled out 30 minutes late.

Don't Argue.

Cincinnati Enquirer—The only thing as hard to win as fame and fortune is an argument with the "dearest little woman in the world."

Perennial.

Detroit Free Press—Now comes the season for the annual debate over the variable date of Indian summer.

Too Wise to Admit It.

Kansas City Star—Women simply don't wear old silk stockings. At any rate, we never heard of a woman tearing a silk stocking that wasn't brand new.

Come On, Science!

Buffalo News—Every year science enables us to get there quicker. Now if it will only provide something to do when we get there.

Prehistoric Relic.

Richmond Times-Dispatch—Where is the old-fashioned farmer who thought Congress really was being convened in extra session to give him some sort of relief? He would be a discovery fit for a museum.

Chilly Blues.

Louisville Courier-Journal—Blue ice cream is said to be in the process of preparation for the market. This should go well with a certain type of jazz music.

Frankly I am disgusted with this bridge-brained mood.

That remark was made in the midst of an evening full of pleasant chat and laughter, discriminating discussion of people and books and things, the exchange of clever jest and repartee and the reading aloud from Isaac Walton's "Complete Angler", and from the poems of Sidney Lanier. There was no pious talk; yet eyes flashed with appreciation, and glances of understanding were exchanged, as the profound spiritual significance of Lanier's "Clover" and "Ballad of Trees and the Master" were being read. Those young people knew themselves to be spiritual beings. There was religion in their social relaxation.

The Art of Going Apart

An out-of-doors man was the Master. Out Christ was not the anemic figure of the stained glass windows, limbed frequenter of the open roads, the sea and the hills. Crowds of the common folks found Him congenial; and rough fishermen accepted Him as leader of their grouse.

Busy with high thoughts, deep philosophy and many-faceted ministry, Jesus yet insisted upon times apart from work and people. He taught His friends to go apart and rest awhile. He believed in what we call recreation. Doubtless, He spent many an hour alone in a boat, with a fishing-line in His hand, on the emerald surface of the Lake; musing upon the meaning of the events which had been enacted upon the hills which surrounded Him.

It should be the philosophy and practice of the normal person, a real element in his religious life, to get away periodically from his ordinary engrossment. Thus only can he "loaf and invite his soul". A better sense of perspective would both ease and improve our daily work. It is the fret of overstrain, the tyranny of petty tasks, that puts wrinkles into our faces and tenses the tissues of our hearts. Anybody who is too busy for relaxation is busier than he has any right to be.

This theme is especially congenial to me at the moment, for I have been up amidst the beautiful lakes of Ontario, fishing and resting. Everybody should follow the form of recreation that suits him best; but for me the apostolic art of fishing is recreation for mind and body. "A feller isn't thinkin, mean Out fishin'; His thoughts are mostly good and clean Out fishin'. He does not knock his fellow-men, Or harbor any grudges then; A feller's at his finest when Out fishin'.

"A feller's glad to be a friend, Out fishin'. A helpin' hand he'll always lend Out fishin'. The brotherhood of rod and line An' sky and stream is always fine; Men come real close to God's design Out fishin'. "A feller isn't plotting schemes, Out fishin'; He's only busy with his dreams Out fishin'. His livery is a coat of tan, His creed—to do the best he can; A feller's always mostly man, Out fishin'."

Test of Real Recreation

There be those whose idea of a vacation is a new wardrobe and a fashionable hotel and a round of motion pictures and dances and card practice. Such are beyond the comprehension of this simple mind. I cannot think of recreation except in its aloneness; of quiet contemplation of nature; of the beauty of hills and waters and trees; of leisurely aloneness; of quiet contemplation of the large meaning of things.

In the Christian view, recreation must re-create, and not dissipate. It must be addition, and not subtraction. In its compass should be included, not only physical relaxation and exercise, but also the fertilizing of the spiritual nature.

A Christian should return from every period of recreation on better terms with God. All of life—our world and our times—means something to us, and we should mean something to it. Real recreation puts us into truer relation to this larger environment; and quickens the sense of the significance of self and of surroundings. The holiness of wholeness is made clear by our rest times apart from the daily grind.

Both purpose and peace are recreation rewards. God never meant life to be only a burden, a task, a trial. There is no more dangerous heresy abroad in religious circles than the notion that anything you enjoy is sinful. All of Scriptures is attuned to the note of joy. How can one rejoice in the Lord who does not also rejoice in the life which the Lord lends? The ascetic view, which in the early Christian centuries filled the deserts and the hills with the cells of hermits, is not, the Bible view. God, who took pleasure in His first creation, is surely pleased with all the re-creation which enriches man and honors Him.

CHUCKLES

Maybe So.

"You are charged with selling adulterated milk," said the Judge.

"So I understand, your Honor," said the milkman. "I plead not guilty."

"But the testimony shows that your milk is 25 per cent water," said the Judge.

"That it must be highgrade milk," returned the milkman. "If your Honor will look up the word milk in your dictionary, you will find that it consists of from 80 to 90 per cent water. I should have sold it for cream."—Exchange.

Naturally Interested.

Mr. Meeker had crawled under the bed when he heard the burglar. He held his breath and waited. Then, after a long pause, he felt some one trying to crawl in beside him.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of my father, C. T. Gallahan, who died October 26, 1928.

Home is sad, oh God, how lonely, Lonely every night and day. It is not bright like it used to be Before my dear father went away.

I often sit and wonder What you would think and say, If you only knew the changes That have happened since you went away.

By his loving daughter LIZZIE.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear husband, C. T. Gallahan, who passed away October 26, one year ago.

What is home without a husband? All things the world may send; When we have lost our husband, We have lost our dearest friend.

He wore a crown of patience, Through the years he struggled on. Those hands that rest forever Were the hands that made our home.

I often sit and think of you. When I am all alone; For memory is the only friend, That grief can call its own.

The golden gates were opened, A gentle voice said, come! And with farewell unspoken, He calmly entered home. Gone, but not forgotten.

By his loving wife, MRS. C. T. GALLAHAN.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear father, C. T. Gallahan, of Dumfries, Va., who passed away October 26, one year ago.

Oh, could I open wide the grave, And see your dear face once more, And hear your voice, is all I crave, As in the days of yore.

The bloom of life was in his cheeks, And the bright glow in his eyes. None knew he so soon would change Or would so quickly die.

Once the music of his voice Made our happy hearts rejoice. And his bright and smiling face, Was the sunshine of our place,

The flowers laid upon his grave, May wither and decay, But sweeter thoughts of memory, Within our hearts shall stay.

By his loving daughter, MATTIE.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of Robert Junior Payne, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Payne, who departed this life three months ago.

How we miss the little footsteps, Of the one we loved so dear. Often we listen for his coming, Feeling sure that he is near.

How we miss his sweet smile, How dear was his curly hair. Now his little body, Lies in a heavenly bed.

No one knows the silent heartache, Only those that love can tell. Of the grief that is borne in silence, For the one we loved so dear.

Written by the one who loved him dearly EULA MILLER.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Birtie Jarman, who departed this life one year ago, October 28, 1928.

Not dead to those who loved her, Not lost; but gone before. She lives with us in memory, And will, forever more.

In our hearts her memory lingers, Sweetly, tenderly, fond and true; There is not a day, dear mother, That we do not think of you.

Her loving sons, Robert and James Jarman, and her grandchildren.

OUTDOOR ADVERTISING GETS SPECIAL ATTENTION. State Chamber of Commerce Will Hear Reports in January On Means of Preserving Natural Beauty.

Richmond, Oct. 25.—How to preserve Virginia's natural scenery and regulate billboards and other advertising media, is the subject of a special report to be presented in January at the annual membership meeting of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, by the chamber's special beautification committee, headed by Alexander W. Weddell, of Richmond.

For more than a year the committee has studied ways to solve the problem of outdoor advertising which mars the beauty of nature. Chairman Weddell's committee includes J. Scott Parrish, Richmond; G. Cleveland and Wright, Table listing property owners and values for Occoquan District, categorized by White and Colored.

Petersburg; C. Page Waller, Alexandria, and Major LeRoy Hodges, managing director of the state chamber.

Major Hodges says the touring trade is becoming larger each year in Virginia, and that a billboard-scarred and advertising-plastered Virginia is hardly in keeping with the ideals, traditions and culture of the Old Dominion.

ANDREWS GIVES EIGHT REASONS

A Foremost Anti-Smith Leader Last Year, Andrews Tells Why He Is Supporting Pollard.

In a new statement, W. L. Andrews, of Roanoke, former state senator and last year one of the foremost leaders of the movement to defeat Alfred E. Smith, National Democratic nominee for the presidency, gives eight reasons why he is supporting the State Democratic ticket and John Garland Pollard, for Governor.

Noting that in opposing Governor Smith last year he announced that he was not deserting the Democratic party, but was heartily in sympathy with the Democratic party save for its presidential candidate.

"I am supporting the state ticket for the following reasons," Mr. Andrews said:

- 1. The Democratic party is the party of achievement.
2. Virginia's progressive record under that party for the past decade has surpassed that of any other state.
3. To now change party administration would create uncertainty and distrust, at home and abroad, because it is conceded that the Democratic party will undoubtedly control both branches of the General Assembly for the next four years and a division of party in the legislative and administrative departments would work such discord as to set back our wonderful progress for years.
4. To transfer the administrative department of our state government to the fusion ticket, new asking support, if successful, could only mean to put in office many not in sympathy with the present progressive program of the state.
5. I am satisfied that if the fusion ticket won in 1929, it would find itself dominated by the 'hidden hand' until 1933, and then those, heretofore known as Democrats in connection with the fusion ticket, would pass into the discard or be graciously permitted to support a dominant Republican ticket.

"6. I am not apprehensive that the Democratic party will refuse in 1932 to profit by the verdict of 1928.
7. Because Pollard and Price did not agree with me on the national ticket is not to me a reasonable or justifiable excuse for deserting my party.
8. While I have no quarrel with nor criticism of those who refuse to think and vote as I do, but cheerfully accord them the rights that I ask for myself, I cannot arrive at any other conclusion than that victory for the 1929 state Democratic ticket means more for Virginia than could possibly be obtained otherwise; nor do I expect defeat for the Democratic party next November. It will win."

SENATOR COPELAND MAKES INTERESTING HEALTH TALKS. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, United States Senator from New York and former Health Commissioner of New York City, well known as one of the foremost authorities on public health, will deliver his fourth of a series of six addresses over W. R. C., Tuesday, noon, October 29.

Senator Copeland will speak from his office in the Senate Office Building. His address will be broadcast over the National Broadcasting Red Network of 47 stations through the courtesy of the General Electric Company and sponsored locally by their distributor, the National Electrical Supply Company, of Washington, D. C., and their local dealer, Metz's Radio Service. The remaining two addresses by Senator Copeland will be delivered at noon on the succeeding Tuesdays.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL PLANS

Will Attract World Wide Interest In February, 1932. Anniversary Will Be Held In Washington.

Richmond, Oct. 23.—While the next meeting date of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission has not been set, plans for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth are formulating which will attract world-wide interest in February, 1932, during weeks of demonstration at the Nation's Capital, as the hostess city extends welcome to her countrymen honoring the memory of the Founder of the Republic. The observance will be monumental and the most ambitious program ever staged in honor of an individual, according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

Personnel Includes President.

The commission's personnel includes the President of the United States, the Hon. Herbert Hoover; the president of the Senate, Hon. Charles Curtis, of Kansas; the speaker of the House, Hon. Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, ex officio commissioners; U. S. Senators Simeon D. Fess, Ohio, vice chairman; Arthur Capper, Kansas; Carter Glass, Virginia; U. S. Representatives Hon. Willis C. Hawley, Oregon; John C. Tillson, Conn.; John M. Garner, Texas; Joseph W. Burns, Tenn.; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Mary Sherman, Colorado; Henry Ford, Michigan; Hanford McNider, Iowa; C. Bascom Sloop, Washington, D. C.; Wallace McCamant, Oregon; Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, (historian), Mass.; Bernard M. Baruch, N. Y.; William Tyler Page, Maryland, executive secretary.

In a popular revival of interest in the Founder of the Nation, the commission has undertaken to make this country "Washington-minded." It has arranged a program to emphasize historic, spiritual and patriotic elements of the times.

Permanent Memorials.

Proposed plans include permanent memorials for the Father of His Country, the first being the Mt. Vernon Boulevard, dedication of which will be a highlight of the celebration. Extending from the foot of Memorial Bridge, Columbia Island, for 15 1/2 miles along the Potomac River, it will fittingly connect Washington's home with the Capital, the city he founded. The 13 Original States have been invited to place State tablets and architectural treatment determined by the State with the approval of the Highway Department and the Fine Arts Commission, within a mile allocated to each commonwealth. Topography here lends itself to superior park facilities. The boulevard through historic Virginia will be 200 feet wide and its initial cost, 4 1/2 million dollars.

Celebration Nation-wide.

To make the event nation-wide, each State, through its own commission, will celebrate. Every place visited by Washington and each town and county bearing his name will make special effort to properly celebrate. Schools will present programs and the commission has recommended that schools be supplied with an acceptable portrait of Washington, States Senator from New York and former Health Commissioner of New York City, well known as one of the foremost authorities on public health, will deliver his fourth of a series of six addresses over W. R. C., Tuesday, noon, October 29.

A pageant will be given depicting the progress of this National during the most prolific period of the march of mankind, 1732-1932. The climax of the celebration properly will take place in the Capital City when the greatest influx of visitors ever seen here will do homage to Washington and before leaving will motor down the wonderful boulevard to Mt. Vernon, the shrine on the banks of the Potomac.

R. WALTON MOORE CALLS ANDERSON

Says Virginia Not Governmental Plague Spot Anderson Constantly Declares It.

Representative R. Walton Moore, in his Clarendon speech last week declared emphatically that he is not an organization man, that he does not belong to any "ring" and, pointing out the advances made by the state under recent Democratic administrations, he said he is supporting John Garland Pollard because his main concern is the prosperity and happiness of the people of Virginia.

Speaking last week with Dr. Pollard and others Representative Moore denounced the reference to himself by Colonel Henry W. Anderson in a radio address several days ago. Asked for some amplification of his remarks Mr. Moore made the following statement:

Colonel Anderson has complained of Governor Byrd for criticizing him for the reason that the Colonel is not now a candidate for office. Nevertheless, with characteristic egotism, he seems to think it entirely permissible for himself to do what he condemns in the Governor. Following his rebuke of the Governor, he very freely criticized others who are not now candidates for office. In a recent address he spoke of Senator Glass, Representative Montague, Mr. Pollard and myself as having ceased to be "liberals" since we "have accepted office under the patronage of the ring, and have become silent upon its iniquities."

Not Organization Man.

So far as concerns me, this statement is a bald misrepresentation. I was elected to Congress in 1919 and have been reelected from time to time, not through the agency of any organization, but by the support of a large majority of the Democrats and many of the Republicans of the Eighth District, to all of whom I am very grateful. I have always occupied a liberal attitude.

In 1925, in the midst of my period of service, I openly opposed Mr. Byrd for the Governorship nomination, although he was assumed to have the backing of most of our party leaders, and I did so, not from any dislike of him, but for fear he would not be sufficiently independent and progressive in devising and enforcing policies which I believed important to the welfare of the state. He was elected, and now as he nears the end of his term, realizing that my fear was groundless, I rejoice in the governmental improvements which have been brought about, and the great advance the state has made during his administration, and this is said not as an intimate friend of Governor Byrd, who asks or expects any favor of him, but as a citizen whose main concern is the prosperity and happiness of the people of Virginia.

Iniquities Imaginary.

With respect to the alleged "iniquities" about which for several years more has been heard from Colonel

Anderson than from any living man, I am silent, for the reason that they are imaginary, although of course I am not foolish enough to think that any government is ever so perfect that it cannot be made better, and I confidently expect other improvements and a further advance under Mr. Pollard.

If I believed Virginia to be the governmental plague spot Colonel Anderson constantly declares it to be, I would be ashamed instead of deeply proud of the state. I would leave Virginia if I concurred in his opinion that it is the worst governed community in this hemisphere and in event of selecting a new home, I certainly should not select some Republican state where there have been so many real iniquities about which we never hear anything from Colonel Anderson.

The plain implication of Colonel Anderson's statement, which I have quoted is, that it is possible to control individuals by giving them office. Undoubtedly this some times happens. But also it frequently happens that a man is filled with intense bitterness and becomes hardly less than a common scold because his ambition for office is disappointed, and those who know how often Colonel Anderson has been an unsuccessful aspirant for State and Federal office since his conversion, are at liberty to make any application to him of this remark they may think justified.

RELATIVE OF MACDONALD IS CITIZEN OF ORANGE

Orange, Oct. 23.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who last week left the United States, after a 12 days' goodwill trip, is a close relative of M. E. Hempstead of near Orange.

The British statesman's grandmother and Mr. Hempstead's grandfather, Captain John Gilyear, were brother and sister.

Mr. Hempstead says "the Premier is making a fine job of the biggest position on God's earth," and that if he (Hempstead) had of stayed in Scotland, he might have gotten somewhere, too." As it is, he lives 10 miles from the President's fishing camp, on one of the best farms in Virginia with an accredited herd of Hereford cattle.

MOORE PROPOSES MONUMENT MARKING MONROE BIRTHPLACE

Washington, Oct. 24.—Expenditure of $10,000 for purchase and erection of a monument at Port Conway, King George County, Virginia, for marking the birthplace of President James Monroe would be authorized under a bill introduced last Thursday by Representative Moore.

He also introduced a bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to expend $10,000 for a monument in Orange County, Virginia, to mark the birthplace of President Zachary Taylor.

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made... dark, stuffy factories... warm, dingy shops and windows... where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and spit on the ends! What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

MONEY

"If I just had the money"

HOW OFTEN you have said this! And how often you have heard others say it! And how many opportunities you have missed by NOT having ready money!

All these things should start you to thinking how foolish it is to go on spending your money as fast as you get it; and not have a Savings Account to draw on in case of emergency or investment opportunity.

SWAVELY DOWNS RANDOLPH-MACON

Locals Score Second Victory of Season. R.-M. Academy Proves Worthy Foe.

Despite the fact that the Swavely gridsters met with a defeat at the hands of the St. Christopher team on Saturday, October 12, they rallied to victory in their most recent game. On the home field last Saturday the local boys took over the Randolph-Macon Academy aggregation to the tune of 6-0 in a hard-fought battle.

For three periods neither team gained appreciable ground. The R.-M. A. group was favored throughout this period, and it looked like a loss for Swavely. However, when the last quarter opened the Swavely boys took on new life and the heavy opponents had a difficult task in holding the line.

The hurdling of "Whiz" Cheatham, and the dashing plunges of Carter kept the visitors busy until Collins, of Swavely, passed to Dabney for a touchdown. Both ends of this play were carried admirably. The goal kick did not score and Swavely was unable to make further progress.

The line-ups and summary follow:

Swavely	Pos.	R.-M. A.
McAvoy	L. E.	Hall
Shilson	L. T.	Scherer
Capo	L. G.	Herr
Carr	C.	Lambie
Pfleher	R. G.	Gude
Young	R. T.	Compton
Kesl, capt.	R. E.	Marche
Collins	Q. B.	Beall
Dabney	L. H.	Bourns
Benben	R. H.	Cover
Moore	F. B.	Bowler, capt.

Substitutions: Swavely—Allen for Pfeher, Cheatham for Moore, Carter for Kesl, Potter for Dabney. Randolph-Macon—Johnson for Cover, Werea for Herr, Brant for Marche.

Time of quarters—Ten and twelve minutes. Referee—Early. Umpire—Shalloo. Head linesman—Adams; assistant, Jack Ratcliffe, Lafayette.

MANASSAS HIGH WINS SOCCER GAME

Opened Home Season Friday With Win Over Occoquan. Ambrose, Vetter and Dodson Star.

By BEVERLY MITCHELL.

Manassas High School won a long, hard-fought soccer game from Occoquan High by 2 to 0 on Friday, October 18.

There were many substitutions on the Manassas team before a winning combination was found.

During the whole first half the ball was in the local team's end a large part of the time; indeed the M. H. S. backs were fighting in the shadow of their own goal posts. Fine teamwork and a good fighting spirit were shown at this critical time. Vetter was particularly effective.

Second Half Tells.

When the second half opened, it was a different story. With a fast traveling attack the boys in Orange tried for goal after goal. However, the visitors, showing a sturdy defense, kept off the score until the last quarter when T. Kite put the ball through the posts and Ambrose put away any doubt by giving the ball a farewell kick.

By this victory, Manassas has won all its games so far this year, beating College Heights, 6 to 0.
