D. C. SCHOOL WORK PROGRAM FEATURE

Kiwanis Ladies Nights Proves Interesting.

Of all the annual ladies' nights which the Kiwanis Club of Manassas has staged, perhaps the one held last Friday night was generally judged as the best. To the program committee of that evening goes the highest honors.

T. E. Didlake as toastmaster introduced the various speakers on the program in due style and with great decorum.

The stage of the high school auditorium was beautifully decorated with an electrically lighted Christmas tree and various lighting effects were handled by Pro. Peters. The musical program included all of the club sponsors, namely Mrs. Bob Smith, Mrs. Stewart Slaybaugh and Mrs. Will Leachman, Mrs. Slaybaugh giving two excellent solos while the other ladies acted as accompanists.

Another pleasant feature by a local artist included a violin solo by Miss Jo Miller of the local faculty, which was very heartily encored.

At the beginning of the banquet which was served by the home economics class of the high school, Col. Robert Hutchison made one of the best short talks that has ever graced the boards of the club. His references to the gentler sex were couched in the most feeling and pleasant expressions.

Secretary Frank Sigman read a lengthy paper, comprising a summary of reports from the various committees, probably one of the most complete reports that has ever been submitted to the club.

President Bynum Hinton, of the Washington Club, stated that he was battling for Ed Hill who had been ill for the past week or ten days. Mr. Hinton explained something of the activities of the Weightman school and how it had been started and maintained through the activities of the Washington Club.

He called on Mrs. Beulah Drake, principal of the school, to give some detailed information of the work. This she did in a very simple and direct fashion, giving a summary of the many things that are done and the benefits which accrue to the underprivileged children of Washington through the school which has been in existence since 1929.

Little Miss Mildred Petrey of the sixth grade was then called to the stage. Mildred, although is supported by two crutches, is remarkably active and very much unaffected by appearance in public. Mr. Hinton explained after she had finished that both of the young ladies whom he brought with him had made a strong appeal by their natural characteristic at both District and International Kiwanis meetings.

Mildred made a beautiful little speech telling about the founding of the school and how the students are taught and entertained. She was quite profuse in her expressions of appreciation for what the Washington Club had done for other children as well as herself.

Miss Grace Vitality, who though several years older than Mildred, is no larger in stature, came to the piano and sang two solos, with an encore. Considering her youth, she has a most remarkable soprano voice.

Ray Ratcliffe then ascended the stage and presented beautiful little gifts on the part of the club to their sponsors, Mrs. May Smith, Mrs. Stewart Slaybaugh and Mrs. Will Leachman.

Fred Hynson brought in his section of the program at this time by awarding a series of door prizes to a number of the ladies who were present, having called on the Misses Parrish to draw names which had been furnished by those present. The fortunate ones were Mrs. Dudley Martin, Miss Rose Ratcliffe, Mrs. Ernest Trusler, Mrs. Ben Jacobson, Mrs. William Lloyd, Miss Nancy Lynn, Miss Mary Currell Pattie, Mrs. Hunton Tiffany, Miss Nancy Parrish and Miss Shirley Hynson.

Fred also included in his presentations, boxes of candy to the little guests who had so sweetly performed on the program.

In closing the meeting, Mr. Didlake paid compliments to all present for the success of the meeting and in so doing, pinned a new oratorical designation on O. D. whom he termed "wizard." More echoes of that were looked for at this week's meeting which was scheduled to be held on Wednesday evening of this week instead of the regular Friday date.

Those present and their guests included the following:

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Coker, Miss

This Christmas distribution is greater than in recent years, covering territory all the way from Cherry Hill to Waterfall.

Mr. Sadd and members of his committee have candy, toys and gifts all prepared for delivery this evening. Mr. Edgar Rohr has acted unofficially in connection with the work of the committee and has been very helpful in the preparation of gifts.

Mr. Swart moved from Loudoun county to Prince William county when a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Swart; three sisters and one brother, Sam, who passed away five years ago.

Hamilton was an honest upright man in every respect, a very disreputable citizen, who will be missed by the entire community. He was a farmer and carpenter.

While one committee worked on plans for the dance, another committee decorated and fixed a box for the White Christmas presents. MARRIAGE RECORD

December 19—Walter Fairfax of Lorton and Evelyn Wheaton of Manassas.

LESS LIQUOR ADVERTISING

State Tightens Regulations on ABC Displays.

A drastic regulation banning all forms of alcoholic beverage advertising except in newspapers, magazines and over the radio, was being drafted by the State Liquor Board today for promulgation at an undetermined date.

The regulation will eliminate roadside and all other outdoor advertisements of liquors, wines and beer; wine shop and confectionary signs pertaining to the beverages, placards indoors, window displays and other forms of advertising commonly used in hundreds of licensed establishments throughout the State.

The board was sending out notice of its intention to abolish these forms of advertising to both licensees and firms from which it purchases its stock. The notice said:

"You are advised that the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is preparing regulations to abolish all advertising of alcoholic beverages through the means of outdoor signs, billboards of every nature whatsoever, signs upon buildings indicating that alcoholic beverage may be purchased therein, window displays and interior signs, posters or placards.

"This information is passed on to you for your guidance."

A spokesman said the action was in line with the board's policy of attempting to avoid any "encouragement" toward drink, either of any specific brands or alcoholic beverages in general.

He said the regulation did not pertain to newspaper, magazines and the radio, because those mediums involved questions of interstate commerce over which the State board had no control.

CAR INSURANCE RATES REVISED IN VIRGINIA

The Virginia Corporation Commission announced today a revision of automobile insurance rates, effective February 1, which provides increases for protection against bodily injury throughout the state but leaves the rate for property damage at the same level.

M. O. Stout, of the Bureau of Insurance, said that Richmond motorists would be required to pay approximately 13 per cent more under the new schedule for insurance against bodily injury, but that Norfolk would receive an approximately 10 per cent reduction for the same type of coverage on private passenger cars. Norfolk commercial rates were increased slightly.

Although the Richmond increase was the highest in the state, the commission ordered an increase in all territories for this type of insurance.

The rate increase for commercial vehicles was proportionately higher than for private passenger vehicles, officials said, with Norfolk included in the territories which will pay the higher charges.

LIONEL BARRYMORE AS ANDREW JACKSON WEARS NEW FOREHEAD, NOSE AND CHIN!

Discussed beyond recognition, Lionel Barrymore walked onto "The Gorgeous Hussy" set for the role in which he will be seen at the Pitts Theatre next week.

That entrance, Jack Dawn said, marked the end of "make-up" as the stage and screen have always known it, and introduced something entirely new, "character creation."

Dawn is the make-up chief of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in charge of a department of more than two dozen experts. On Lionel Barrymore's face literally lay his masterpiece, the result of several years intensive work. The achievement is said to mark the greatest advance in the art of make-up since the beginning of the theatre.

Barrymore was made up as Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States. The Barrymore features were gone and in their place was the lifelike face of "Old Hickory." To the observer it was uncanny.

"I can't tell too much about it," Dawn said, until my patents are cleared. I have two pending now.

"The face"—and he indicated Barrymore—"is practically a mask. Neither the forehead, the nose nor the chin is his own. It is the formula for this substance which has finally made character creation really possible."

Barrymore had rehearsed his first scene, a close-up in which he uttered several lines to Joan Crawford, and now they were ready to "shoot."

Lights were turned up, cameras and sound equipment started turning, and he began speaking, emotionally, in accordance with the mood of the dialogue.

A close scrutiny of his face from a distance of only five feet failed to show where his own features ended and the others began. Every twitch of the skin and nuance of expression registered.

Now I'll show how it's done," Dawn said. Five minutes later, in a compact building in a far corner of the lot, several men were seen bending over boiling cauldrons. A few were painting wooden masks, some were treating wigs and dyes.

On a workbench lay an upturned plaster cast, recognizably of Lionel Barrymore. "Now watch," Dawn said. From queerly shaped containers he extracted what appeared to be pieces of dead rubber. They fitted the forehead, nose, chin and ears. A gray wig was fitted over the skull.

"Make-up is now a combination of sculpturing and painting," Dawn said. "Here is an example of the sculpturing, and now"—picking up a handful of brushes—"the painting."

With lightning strokes, drawing from many tiny jars, he completed the head of Andrew Jackson.

"That's what I mean by character creation," he said.

Dawn believes that his innovation will open vast fields for both actors and producers.

"Barrymore's face is distinctly featured—it's a face one would never forget. In fact, the Barrymore profile is so definite that more pains are required to obliterate it than would be necessary with almost anyone else," Dawn said.

"Thus, from the make-up point of view, if he can look like Andrew Jackson for 'The Gorgeous Hussy' it will be something I shall be proud of."

Andrew Jackson is only one of many historical characters in "The Gorgeous Hussy." There are Martin Van Buren, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, John Randolph and many others. For the most of these Dawn's models were the oil painting reproduced in the large tome entitled, "The White House Gallery of the Official Portraits of the Presidents."

CHRISTMAS

By Inno McGill

The Christ Child smiles in His Crib today.

May He Smile on you!
When He seeks a home in loving hearts,

May He come to you!
All His gifts of love and perfect peace

May He bring to you!
And the blessing of His Baby Hands
May He give to you!

This is the birthday of our God, our King. From His crude throne in a lovely cave on the hillside comes the angelic message—"Glory to God in the highest and peace on earth to men of good will." The charm of the new-born Christ calls us once more to Bethlehem. By the crib of the Infant Savior we become as children in spirit. We adore the Christ in the abject helplessness of His infancy.

The sweet innocence of the Virgin Mother; the loveliness of the Divine Babe cradled in her arms; dumb animals nearby; lowly shepherds kneeling in humble adoration—this is a scene that grips the soul of every Christian today. And this hallowed scene tells us that God has been made man that man may be lifted up to God.

Only divine love could accomplish such a mystery. The Babe in the manger of a stable at Bethlehem is king of heaven and earth; ruler of the universe, and we are His children, His brothers.

Since that day of the Savior's birth, 1936 years have passed. Kingdoms and principalities have been created; only to sink into oblivion like the men who formed them. Men of influence and wealth have, like their palatial homes, disappeared from earth; many of them leaving no record of their existence. But, today, throughout the world, Christians unite in paying homage to the Holy Family of Nazareth, who made Poverty holy in their humble home. That Family has become the inspiration for hearts in all Christian homes.

May Christmas renew our faith in the Christ Child and rekindle for Him our love. May He, on this sacred day, bless us with His gifts of peace and love.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

KEEP a jar of chopped Brazil nuts in a cool dry place on your pantry shelf. Mixed with sugar and spice they make an excellent topping for the busy day cake. With the following nut topping no frosting is necessary. Mix one cup chopped Brazil nuts with one tablespoon granulated sugar, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and one-quarter teaspoon ground allspice and nutmeg mixed. Sprinkle over cake batter before baking. This amount is sufficient topping for cake baked in a nine-inch square pan.

Department and five and dime stores are featuring an amazing little nut cracker especially designed to remove the shell of the Brazil nut. Controlled pressure of the nut cracker handle guarantees removal of the toughest Brazil nut shell without breaking or impairing the nut meat.

BURNS TRUNDLE

The Virginia newspaper fraternity suffered the loss of one of its most genial, capable and efficient members in the death early yesterday morning in a Danville hospital of Harry Burns Trundle, president of the Register Publishing Company, publishers of the Danville Register and The Bee, and a former president of the Virginia Press Association.

Burns Trundle was one of the best known newspaper men in Virginia. Born in Frederick, Md., he went to Danville thirty-six years ago as manager of the two newspapers owned by the late Rorer A. James, Fifth District representative in Congress and chairman of the Democratic party in Virginia.

On the death of the former Congressman, his newspaper business was taken over by his son, Robert A. James, Jr., and Mr. Trundle continued in active charge of the papers until 1926, when he bought the Manassas Journal from the late Dan Lewis and went to manage that paper at the Prince William County seat.

He remained there, however, less than a year and then sold the paper back to Mr. Lewis and returned to his former connection in Danville. Except for this brief interlude, he was in active charge of the Danville papers for the entire thirty-six-year period, during which time they developed into one of the finest newspaper properties in the State.

Trundle was one of the active members of the Virginia Press Association in the days when the organization had hard sledding because of the lack of real interest shown by member newspapers. He was an excellent speaker, possessing a fund of rich humor which delighted audiences and made him a welcome guest on any occasion. He was a good friend, husband and father, an excellent citizen, and one of the most popular and beloved men in the State.—NORTHERN VIRGINIA DAILY.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I should like very much, through the medium of your valued paper, to speak to as many of the Combs' families of Prince William, Stafford, Fauquier and Spotsylvania, as I possibly can, on a subject which, I am sure, should be of very great interest to each and every one of them.

As my mother was a Combs of Virginia, I naturally take a very great interest in that old family, especially, as my investigations, not only here in America, but while living in England as well, has thoroughly convinced me that the said Combs' were among the earliest settlers of the Old Dominion. It has been said that wherever in this world one meets up with a Combs, he has met one who is related to every other Combs in the Universe. I should be very thankful, therefore, to hear from anyone of the Combs' clan who may happen to see this letter; and if such person has any information concerning his remote ancestors, I should be happy to have him send it to me. He should also let me know into what family the Combs' closest to him became related by marriage.

I should be especially happy to hear from the descendants of Seth Combs of Stafford Store, who died about 1886, and of William Combs of either Prince William or Fauquier, who died in the early nineties of the last century. This latter Combs and old Doctor Smoot were said to be inseparable companions. There was another brother, Bolivar Combs (my maternal grandfather), who lost his life at the Battle of Fredericksburg in 1862.

A copy of my proposed forthcoming book, "The Combs' of Virginia," will be sent gratis to anyone of the Combs' clan, or to anyone related to the Combs', who can send me any data bearing on The Combs' of Virginia.

Very truly yours,
Edwin M. Stanley.

Editor,

During the past few weeks I have read a great deal about the former King Edward, Eighth, of England. Much of it mush and lots of it gush.

To me, Rudyard Kipling's lines seem to fit in—that Edward gave up a throne for a rag and a bone and a hank of hair. It appears Edward has been chasing this dame for about three years although she was the lawful wife of one of his subjects. As Prince of Wales this did not attract the same amount of attention as it did after he became King. Then she obtained a divorce from her British husband. Evidently, at the instigation of the King, the situation became tense and church and state both made a move to remove the undesirable situation that confronted the nation, a situation that seemed to hark back to Henry Eighth who took what he fancied.

Being of the same breed and the same churches as the English, I can realize the church and state did not relish their King bringing the throne into disrepute by marriage to one that was twice divorced and the second one a little shady in its nature.

In the old days things very frequently were given nick-names such as Edward the Confessor, Richard the Lion Hearted, etc. This modern Edward, to my mind, should be given the name of "Edward the Simp."

"Of the old festivals, that of Christmas awakens the strongest and most heart-felt associations . . . It is a beautiful arrangement, also, derived from days of yore, that this festival, which commemorates the announcement of the religion of peace and love, has been made the season for gathering together of family connexions, and drawing closer again those bands of kindred hearts, which the cares and pleasures sorrows of the world are continually operating to cast loose; of calling back the children of a family, who have launched forth in life, and wandered widely asunder, once more to assemble about the paternal hearth, that rallying-place of the affections, there to grow young and loving again among the endearing mementos of childhood."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Pierce and their daughter, Georgie, and their son, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pierce, all of Occoquan, spent the week end with Mrs. Thomas Pierce's parents at Castleton, Va.

Mrs. Sydney Manson of Occoquan left for Baton Rouge, La., to join her husband who has a position there in the Government service.

Miss Doris Bubb of Occoquan is home from State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, spending the Christmas holidays with her parents.

Mr. John Morrison is home and spending the holidays with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Morrison, Occoquan.

Mr. Thomas F. Joyce, jr., is home from school and spending the holidays with his parents at Occoquan.

Miss Evelyn Herring is home from Teachers College, Fredericksburg, and spending the holidays with her parents at Featherstone Farms, near Woodbridge.

Captain and Mrs. Thomas F. Joyce, Occoquan, entertained at a dinner party Sunday afternoon; their guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George E. McNeil and their daughters, Miss Ann and Miss Helen, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Barnes, all of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McP. Janney of Occoquan.

The Bethel Home Demonstration Club held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Shaeffer, Woodbridge, with eight members present. Plans for the coming year were discussed. These plans were made at an Executive meeting held on Nov. 10, at the home of the Chairman, Mrs. Petelet. Christmas suggestions were demonstrated. Refreshments were served. There will be a sewing machine clinic held at the next meeting.

The toy matinee held at the Lyric Theatre at Occoquan was a huge success. The neighborhood responded as they never have done before. More toys were gotten together than any of the oldest inhabitants have ever before seen in Occoquan. The children of the neighborhood who could not otherwise have toys for Christmas will be able to enjoy them. Most thanks is due Mrs. Harvey Janney who was the sponsor of this arrangement, as well picture for the occasion. The spirit of Christmas showed wonderfully on this occasion. These presents and toys, as well as Christmas baskets for their parents will be delivered by the good ladies to the various needy families before Christmas day.

As has been their annual custom for a number of years, the Woman's Auxiliary of Pohick Church have sent Christmas stockings and other gifts to the poor children of the Mountain Missions. Mrs. Ben Nevitt who takes charge of sending of these Christmas presents each year is happy to say that everybody have responded more generously this year than ever before. Many poor children of these missions will be happy on receipt of their presents, who might otherwise have a very dull Christmas. It is good to see how the community ladies and the church ladies have worked to bring the spirit of Christmas to homes that otherwise might not have much to make them happy or be thankful for.

Miss Virginia Shanklin and Miss Irene McMahon left for South Carolina to spend the Christmas holidays with Miss McMahon's parents.

Miss Louise Renaldi of Alexandria spent the week end with Miss Mildred Hornbaker of Lorton.

Be sure to keep Friday evening, January 8, open so you will be sure not to miss the big dance of the holiday season, The Alumni Dance at Occoquan District High School. Good music and good company. You will enjoy it we know.

JANE WITHERS AT PITTS' THEATRE

Kicking shins, hurling tomatoes, busting windows and raising the roof in general, Jane Withers takes time out from her wild pranks to play a half-pint Robin Hood of lower New York in "Pepper," her new Twentieth Century-Fox picture which opens next week at the Pitts' Theatre.

With Irvin S. Cobb and Slim Summerville as her hilarious henchmen, "Ginger" Jane goes on a riotous rampage in her new hit that promises to eclipse even the merriest of the mischievous miss' previous triumphs.

The film opens in a wild rush of excitement and comedy as Jane leads her "gang" through the streets, celebrating the Fourth of July by creating havoc in the neighborhood.

The fun ceases abruptly when Jane comes upon a family being evicted from the tenement flat and she sends the other kids out to raise the eleven dollars necessary to pay the rent.

When they fall short of their goal by five dollars, Jane decides to get the money from Irvin S. Cobb, a dyspeptic millionaire. Threatening Cobb with an overripe tomato, Jane blackmails him for the money.

Amused at Jane's impish antics, Cobb takes her to Coney Island and later they visit Jane's home where Cobb meets Slim Summerville, her uncle and guardian.

Much against Cobb's will, his daughter has announced her intention of marrying a millionaire. Summerville notices a picture of the engaged couple in a newspaper, and reveals that he has met the baron somewhere before—and that the baron is a fake.

Cobb offers Jane and Slim five thousand dollars if they can expose the baron and prove him an imposter. How Jane does so, with the help of her crowd of ragamuffins, provides a riotous climax to the hilarious film.

Two songs are featured in "Pepper," with Jane singing one and also collaborating with Cobb and Summerville in a hilarious rendition of "The Song of the Coyotes."

James Tinling directed the film, with John Stone associate producer. Dean Jagger, Murial Robert, Ivan Lebedeff, Maurice Cass and Romaine Calender are also included in the cast.

KNOCK! KNOCK! WHO'S THERE? ANANIAS AND THE 40 THIEVES

Victor McLaglen, star of Universal's "The Magnificent Brute," now at the Pitts' Theatre.

One day, so runs the legend, while Vic was Provost Marshall, an elephant escaped. Nobody could catch it and Vic, head of the Military Police, went out to capture it himself. He thought he had it cornered in an ancient courtyard, made of adobe brick.

Now this elephant was a very special animal. Some ambitious person had carved the Lord's Prayer on the head of the elephant, in raised letters. Such a carving on the head of a pin has been done too often to stir much interest. But on the head of an elephant—that is, to say the least, colossal.

Instead of cornering the beast, Vic was cornered by the two ton elephant. The animal thrust his head against Vic's tremendous chest and pressed. After a long struggle, McLaglen freed himself and managed to chain the pachyderm. As a mark of the struggle, Vic found the imprint of the raised letters deeply imbedded in his chest.

Everybody knows how solid, sturdy and steel-like McLaglen is. When he described his adventure with the elephant, so runs the tale, friends found that the letters, crushed powerfully into Vic's frame, had been jammed right through Vic, into the adobe wall as well; coming out in reversed letters on the opposite side of the wall.

Now Vic wanted to get rid of the strange impress that marked him. He tried every way imaginable, but to no avail. Finally he struck on this method—he placed his back against the reverse side of the wall, where the raised letters were, and thrust and pressed with all his tremendous strength. Slowly, but surely, he drove the letters out of his flesh, so that no trace remained.

One version of this unusual tale has it that a printer, who lived near the courtyard and witnessed the entire happening, came running to McLaglen, just as he was about to remove the imprint from his flesh.

"Stop! Wait!" the printer cried. "There's an error here! Somebody made this line read, 'Give us this day our daily bread.' You'll have to pull—or push—another proof!"

And Victor pushed the printer in the face with a pile driving right. That, say the tellers of Fancy Tales, was the origin of the phrase, "Knock! Knock!"

DUMFRIES AND VICINITY

The M. E. Church held its annual Christmas entertainment Wednesday night with the kiddies as the chief performers. The audience was amused at the talent our youngsters poses.

Mr. Alvin Austin, who has been attending a Western Union School in New Jersey, is home now, having completed his course with credit.

Clinton Abel, jr., is home for the holidays and apparently enjoying his home town after his four months of college life.

All the children of school age are enjoying to the "limit" their holidays and Christmas toys.

We hear that Mrs. Mooney is slowly gaining a little strength. We all join her family and intimate friends in wishing her a recovery that is as speedy as possible.

Mrs. Ella Keys is having ill health at the present time and has been with her daughters, Mrs. Shumate and Mrs. Cato. Everyone wishes her good health as quickly as possible.

Our Young Peoples Society is looking forward to their holiday party and the exchange of comic gifts for which they have prepared.

We think through the effort of societies and individuals that all of our less fortunate families have been cared for and that they had a "Happy Christmas." We hope that the New Year brings conditions that will enable them to be independent.

Mrs. Allen Lloyd of Triangle gave a luncheon Wednesday evening for a few of her friends. The guests were Mrs. Lester Abel, Mrs. Nil Smith, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. William Martin and Mrs. Manul Abel.

Mrs. E. T. Kelley entertained the bridge club in her home Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Northrup of Triangle left Sunday to spend Xmas with their son in Cleveland.

Mrs. Purvis of Quantico motored to Charlottesville Friday and returned with her son, George, who is attending college there.
