CATHOLIC HOME COMING AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

The home coming at All Saints was a pleasant affair. Several of the former priests were on hand, as well as several visiting priests, to assist Father Jim in celebrating.

Mr. Farquhar resided. Father O'Connell, of Richmond gave a history of the work in the church. His remarks were interspersed with considerable humor that brought many smiles and laughs.

The home coming was very apropos of the splendid improvements made on both the interior and exterior of the holy edifice with the past two months.

Following a brief religious service, the ladies of the Catholic Women's club served bounteous refreshments that the warm afternoon made extra delicious.

A number of friends of the congregation were in evidence as well as some of Father Jim's former parishioners nearer Washington. There was a wealth of good will present and all hands had a mighty nice time.

SPECIAL FEATURES

"Under The 4-H Flag," a talking picture dramatization of the famous 4-H novel by that name will be a special feature of the program. This picture is more than a dramatization of 4-H ideals and 4-H life. It has its mystery and conflicts; a rapid fire baseball game and plenty of excitement. There is a sinister gang which menaces the well-being of the farm family around which the drama is built. The excitement leading to the capture of the gang and subsequent triumph of the leading characters in great International Livestock Show combine to produce a smashing climax.

VIRGINIA LIVESTOCK TOPS 96 MILLION

Virginia is comparatively free of Bovine tuberculosis and is recognized as an accredited area, thus finding easier sale for its dairy cows, but a larger appropriation is needed for use in retests for the disease, according to the annual report of the division of animal industry released by the State Department of Agriculture. Ten per cent fewer cattle were tested for tuberculosis because of lack of funds, the report indicated, adding that the total value of livestock on Virginia farms was estimated at $96,246,000, including horses, mules, hogs, cattle, milk cows and stock sheep.

CLUB SENDS DELEGATES TO BALTIMORE

Hugh Mitchell, secretary of the Virginia Retailers Association, pinch hit as a program speaker last Friday evening while the committee was sparring as to the originality of some portions of the said program.

Hugh has a very hearty and infectious laugh which he used very frequently during the course of the evening.

AUDIENCE THRILLED BY ZANE GREY'S 'HERITAGE'

Gun play, fierce fighting, ruthless treachery and tender romance—all expertly interwoven by Zane Grey—comes to the screen of the Pitt's Theatre next Wednesday, October 18 when "Heritage of the Desert" had its local premiere. Harry Sherman, producer of the Hopalong Cassidy series for Paramount, produced the Zane Grey western classic, putting the hallmark of quality on "Heritage of the Desert."

The other reasons why this western is so successfully translated from the original to the screen are: the direction by Ltsley Selander, veteran and western director, and the unusual all-star casts whose realistic interpretations lift "Heritage of the Desert" from the rank of the run-of-the-mill westerns. Filmgoers will readily recognize such Hollywood luminaries as Donald Woods, Evelyn Venable, Russell Hayden, Robert Barrat, Sidney Toler and C. Henry Gordon.

The film unfolds the fortunes of an eastern sophisticate, who weary of his soft, easy life, goes west to search for adventure and fortune. He gets a good measure of both, and more, when he encounters a lovely damsel of the desert who saves his life.

The tenderfoot is almost murdered by his treacherous representative when along comes a kindly, pious rancher who saves his life from an agonizing death in a quicksand pit. The rancher's daughter nurse him through the crisis. Not much time is wasted. For before long, the tenderfoot discovers he's fallen in love with his benefactress. A jealous cowhand tries to make things tough for the stranger but only succeeds in ruining his own chances.

The romance is adroitly subordinated to the wild, lusty action thus making "Heritage of the Desert" not only pleasing film fare to the ladies but also very acceptable to men. "Heritage of the Desert" is by far one of Harry Sherman's best productions. Lesley Selander's direction is top-notch.

MORE THAN EVER

"THE QUALITY CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD"

THE WORLD AROUND US

By
O. J. Schuster

"TELL THE TRUTH AND SHAME THE DEVIL." That might well be made the great objective of all men and women throughout the world who seek universal peace and enlightenment. The flood of deceptive propaganda that today assails our ears and our eyes is as great a scourge in the world as war itself. It is stupid as well as vile, stupid because the truth will emerge as soon as the crisis is over and put to shame those who betrayed it by their lying.

PROPAGANDA SHIFTS THE "BIG DEVIL" idea from one nation to another to achieve its selfish ends. From 1917 to 1930 Russia was the terrible BOGY BEAST the propagandists used to frighten the children of the world, old children as well as young. Eight years ago the propagandists shifted him to Japan because the Jap was interfering in China and grabbing some of the commercial interests and exploiting privileges of the Western World. Four years ago the propagandists again moved their "Big Devil" effigy to new territory, this time to Italy because she was beginning her raid on Ethiopia and thus checking the imperialistic aims of Britain and France. Mussolini was then the big boy with terrible horns and cloven feet. A year ago the propagandists began painting Hitler as even a more terrifying "Devil" than Mussolini, the Jap, or Stalin. Already there are signs that the Russian Bear will soon be shifted once more into the role of "Big Devil."

THIS DEVIL-MAKING BUSINESS is as stupid as it is vile. Its chief result will be to expose the propagandists, no matter which nation or nations they represent, to the withering contempt of mankind, for truth will prevail again as soon as the crisis has passed. Has Western civilization degenerated to the point where organized lying has become a cancerous growth? May the people of the world not expect the rulers of the great nations to attain the moral stature of Hallie Salassie at the time when Mussolini's soldiers deprived him of his throne and drove him into exile? In the hour of disaster this ex-king of Ethiopia could plead in behalf of truth and sincerity by saying:

"Let us try to mitigate the inherent horrors of war by being frank and honest and giving our enemies credit where credit is due."

SOME CREDIT IS SURELY DUE the people of every nation and every race. To seek the good in other nations and their way of life and cultivate that good is the only road to world peace and universal brotherhood. It is far better to study Russia's social order as impersonally as the scientist studies a new theory—like the Einstein Theory of Relativity, for instance. We may not like the theory, but our dislike of it will not prevent its acceptance if it stands the tests of truth. It is rejected it will not be because we dislike it but because it does not fit in with reality. Americans generally dislike Russia's form of government and refuse to study it in a spirit of tolerance. The wiser course would be to study it with care, look for whatever good there may be in it, and then try to adapt that good to the needs of our own way of life—for there is room for improvement in our government. We shall be grateful to any reader who will submit to us tangible and reliable proof that we are mistaken in believing.

1. That during the 22 years of its existence the present government of Russia has adhered strictly to a policy of peace and used force only to repel actual invasion of their territory.

2. That during this short period of 22 years Russia's peasants and workers have been transformed from illiterate semi-slaves to well educated and buoyant citizens of their state.

3. That under the despotic rule of the Czars education in Russia was too expensive for all youths except those of the nobility and the sons of a few other families, while today education from primary thru college and university is absolutely free to both the youths and adults in Russia.

4. That 22 years ago there was no first grade engineer or other technician in Russia who had arisen from the ranks of peasants or laborers, but today a million Russian youths whose parents were poor farmers or laborers are experts in industry, engineering, business management, or are skilled scientists, educators, artists, composers, musicians, etc.

These cookies are to delight your Bridge Club and the family too, they're new and different. Crisp, tender, golden brown cookies, and when you bite in to one—surprise! There's a rich bit of semi-sweet chocolate and a taste of walnut in that bite, and the next and the next. A perfect flavor combination!

Lifting Them All at the New York Fair

Massed Parachute Jump Thrills Midway Visitors

At 10:30 each evening, Commander James H. Strong gives the signal and at that moment all eleven of his gaily-colored, giant parachutes, each with its two passengers, starts the 250-foot ascent for the thrilling massed parachute jump that is a nightly feature of the Amusement Area. Thousands of spectators crowd around regularly to watch this unusual sight, and bet on which chute will reach the bottom first, as there is a slight variation in the rate of descent, due to wind and weather conditions and the weight of the passengers.

To the trained eye of Commander Strong, Annapolis graduate and inventor of this sensational ride which is one of the big hits of the New York World's Fair, the sight of the plummeting parachutes has an element of the truly foreboding in it. For the World of Tomorrow may well display mass parachute jumps of a far grimmer nature than those of the Midway. "Modern warfare certainly will provide an opportunity for effective use of the parachute for surprise attacks behind enemy lines by whole squads of armed men," predicted Commander Strong today. "In fact, the Germans have already demonstrated the value of this type of fighting in Poland, where they transported over a thousand men long distances by plane, unloaded them in chutes, and reorganized them on the ground as a mobile fighting unit within eight minutes after they reached the earth!"

"The Russians have also been going in for mass parachute training in a big way. Don't under any circumstances underestimate the value of the parachute under the new conditions of modern warfare," the Commander concluded.

HITLER REVEALS HIMSELF

Those who have the patience to peruse the lengthy harangue of Adolph Hitler before the German Reichstag last week, may find therein much material upon which to build a clearer conception of the nature of the abnormal personality which has arisen from obscurity to his present notorious position in world affairs, and whose peculiar mentality and unparalleled opportunity has created such a fearful menace to the peace and security of the world.

"When I have expressed my ideas," Der Fuehrer shouted vehemently, "I am prepared to appear as a coward or a finished man. I can afford to run that risk, because the judgment passed upon me by history will not be written by miserable scribblers, but is established by my life's work. My prestige is sufficient for me to allow myself such an attitude, because the question of whether my following thoughts are actually dictated by fear or desperation will in any case be settled by the future course of events."

A "finished man" may mean in the German language a male of perfect attainment, but the English speaking world will not need to judge Herr Hitler as "coward or finished man." We readily grant that he is both, and agree heartily with his observation that the judgment passed upon him by history will indeed be established by his life's work.

Certainly no statesman, if so dignified a term may be applied to the German Fuehrer, in modern times has such a record of perfidy and broken promises.

and it is upon his deeds, not his words, that outraged humanity has drawn the sword against him. It is futile for Hitler to talk of peace. He is not declaring war on England and France. On his record of perfidy, war is being waged upon him and nothing that he can say can possibly obscure what he has done and is attempting to do. A leadership which permits a nation to utterly disregard its treaties and solemn pledges, and to use the threat of force, and force itself, to destroy the sovereignty and independence of other states, becomes a menace to the security of all liberty-loving peoples. Hence Hitler has made his last war threat. This war is not of his making and will not be of his ending. The mighty power of France and of the British Empire has accepted his challenge, and it is more than likely that Herr Hitler's allusions to "fear and desperation" result from his measure of the deliberate and mighty power behind the determination to insure that he is indeed a "finished man".

PRESIDENT AND MOTORS

The slowness of Presidents of the United States to take up automobiles in the place of horse-drawn carriages during the early part of this century is the subject of an amusing article which will appear next Sunday in The Star.

McKinley was the first President to ride in an automobile, and he expressed the opinion afterward that gasoline-driven vehicles would never be a success. Harding was the first President to bring his private car to the White House. The story is filled with anecdotes about the motoring habits of presidents up to the present day.

RE: PROPOSED HEALTH ORDINANCE.

THE RUN OF SERGEANT HOKE

By Horatio Littleman

As I passed through Manassas town upon a summer day, I came upon the biggest bull that ever chewed on hay.

He must have weighed at least five tons, and stood full ten feet high.

And I could tell that he was mean; he had a wicked eye.

He must have known I was a Yank. It seemed to make him sore.

He started pawing up the ground, and mobilized for war.

I thought of Stonewall Jackson, and I struck a war-like pose

Which that bull heeded not a bit.

He whistled through his nose

And came at me like Pickett's charge

... and I was on my way,

Recalling what Napoleon said;

I'd fight some other day.

We left that place in nothing flat,

and hit the pike in high.

Two autos doing sixty took the ditch to let us by.

We came upon a running fox, and left him far behind.

We chased some rabbits from our path, and made them hard to find.

We passed a field of standing grain

... I think 'twas wheat, or rye ...

And left it flattened by the wind

we made as we passed by,

And crossing o'er a wooden bridge,

we fired it with the heat

Engendered by the friction of our madly flying feet.

I think we would be running yet if

that bull had his way,

But I proposed an armistice ...

that we declare a stay

Of hostile acts, and get our breath.

(Meanwhile I climbed a tree)

But Mr. Bull refused the truce; in status there were we

At stalemate

FILM TRIUMPH FOR

JOHN STAHL

For twenty-five years the name of John M. Stahl has been associated with great pictures—"Magnificent Obsession," "Only Yesterday," "Back Street"—and now he adds another triumph to the already long list. The picture is "When Tomorrow Comes," is seen next Monday and Tuesday, October 16 and 17 at the Pitt's Theatre.

As a vehicle for stars, Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, Stahl as selected an unusual problem story in "When Tomorrow Comes." The adaptation provides a rich field for his directorial abilities and the acting genius of Miss Dunne and Mr. Boyer. The result is one of the most powerfully dramatic offerings of the season.

Miss Dunne is seen as Helen, a waitress, who because her restaurant is closed by a strike, accepts the invitation of a stranger, Philip, played by Boyer, to spend a day in the country with him. He is leaving for France in three days, he tells her.

Trapped by a hurricane and each believing they are to die, they confess their love for each other. Then Helen discovers her companion to be a married man.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Doctrine of Atonement" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 15.

The Golden Text will be "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John 2:1).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it" (Matt. 16:24,25).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Implicit faith in the Teacher and all the emotional love we can bestow on him, will never alone make us imitators of him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us" (p. 25).

VETERAN OF MANY WARS

Of late, the Percheron horse has taken on a new significance due to military developments here and abroad. Uncle Sam has always preferred grade and cross-bred Percherons for his heavy artillery and similar army uses due to their dark and solid colors. At this time horse numbers in the United States are approximately 10,800,000 head as compared to 21,308,000 head in 1914. As in previous war periods, it is evident that horses will again be in brisk demand.

The above picture shows a pair of prize winning Percheron mares, Lisette and Marjorie, that will be one of the features in the Percheron Draft Horse Day to be held in Centreville, Maryland, October 14. The event is being sponsored by the Pioneer Point Farm of Centreville, and the Oldfields Farm, Galena, Maryland.

Instructive talks will be given by Wayne Dinsmore, Chicago, world-renowned authority for the Horse and Mule Association of America, and Secretary Ellis McFarland of the Percheron Horse Association of Chicago. The discussions will include a judging demonstration using imported and American-bred Percheron mares and stallions. Concluding the day's activities will be the disposal of the horses. Wide-spread interest in every horse event of this kind lies in the fact that every farm uses some kind of power to till the crops, haul the manure wagons and do most of other jobs around the farm.

ALL-VIRGINIA BRIDGE

Discarded bridges from all sections of Virginia were used in the fabrication of this structure at Lowman's Ferry in Pulaski County on secondary road 67. The interesting story of how highway officials took spans formerly used on New River in Giles County, at Norfolk, Ripplemeade, north of Staunton and east of New Market on primary roads and combined them in this new bridge made necessary by the $11,000,000 Claytor Dam project on New River is told in the current issue of "The Commonwealth," which is devoted to highway progress in Virginia. How Virginia is building not only a primary system of roads second to none in the country but is doing remarkable work on its secondary system is told by highway authorities.

THRILLING PICTURE AT PITT'S THEATRE SATURDAY

Telling an exciting tale of modern Arizona and its cattle troubles, George O'Brien's latest picture, "Racketeers of the Range," opens next Saturday, October 14 at the Pitt's Theatre.

The story deals with a resourceful cattleman's single-handed battle against a big packing corporation that threatens to monopolize the packing field and bring ruin to himself and his fellow ranchers. The big corporation has convinced the girl owner of the local packing plant that she should sell out, and when the cattleman finds his arguments useless, he has the smaller outfit thrown into bankruptcy and gets himself appointed receiver.

He hopes to maneuver the company out of its financial troubles before the receivership ends, but finds unexpected opposition from his cattleman associates, as well as from the corporation men. Finally he agrees to buy the local herds himself and get them to the plant, but he runs into big-scale rustling, with the crooks using fast motor-trucks to carry away their loot; moreover, he is nearly kidnapped himself. The rescue of the girl in the case, and of a train-load of cattle, after an exciting running fight in the mountains, affords a fast climax to the film.
