DRAFT LOTTERY DRAWING TEDIOUS

Operations in Washington Concluded At 5:47 A. M. Wednesday

The National Draft Lottery in Washington was completed early Wednesday morning, and required seventeen hours and thirty-one minutes. The first numbers were announced by the President of the United States and lesser officials continued the tabulation through the remainder of the day and throughout the night. The same glass bowl which was used in the first and the third drafts of the World War was used, but a cellophane extension was required this time to hold the capsules, because of their somewhat larger size.

As the first number 158 was announced by the President of the United States a very definite scream was heard by radio listeners. The number had been drawn by Secretary of War Stimson, and a mother present in the room, hearing the number of her son drawn, gave way for the moment to emotion, but quickly recovered her composure.

By striking out the numbers higher than the total registration of any Board, the sequence in which men will be called for classification and examination is determined. Thus, in Prince William, all numbers below 1584 occur in the tabulation in the order in which our boys will be summoned.

In the order of the Washington Lottery the men of Prince William County will be mailed questionnaires by the draft board in the sequence as listed here. It is believed that very few will be called in the first draft for November and that these will be reduced by the number of volunteers. One of the first men called is fifth on the list, Floyd Linthicum, a former employee of the Manassas Journal, who has already volunteered.

It is probable that no one not named in the following list is likely to be summoned by the Board at any time in the immediate future, but all registrants are advised to keep their whereabouts on file with the Board, because when questionnaires are mailed to registrants, they have to be filled out and returned to the Board within five days.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY REVIEWS EFFORTS

Elaborate Program Delights Those In Attendance

Approximately 200 women from all sections of Prince William County attended the annual Achievement Day October 24 which featured home demonstration clubs and farm security accomplishments of 1940. Mrs. C. T. Marshall, chairman of the county homemaking board, presided over the morning session and in her address stressed the purpose of Achievement Day as being the time when homemakers get together and summarize the accomplishment of the year, and look ahead to next year's work; it is the time to renew old friendships, make new friends, exchange ideas and to receive inspiration.

Rev. R. M. Graham in his clever welcome address, told of the progress of Home Demonstration Clubs since his first association with them in Madison County and challenged the group with—where were the men whose absence was conspicuous.

"Correct Lighting in the Home" was the theme of the morning session. Miss Lucy Blake, home demonstration agent, Fairfax County, in a lecture demonstration, showed what is a good light and how to change poor lights into I. E. S. lights at home with small cost. In her demonstration she changed bridge lamps, table lamps, and pin-up lights into three way indirect lights, and sowed inexpensive fixtures to be used in changing ceiling or side wall lights into indirect lights.

Accomplishments of the year were presented in a panel discussion led by Mrs. E. W. Thompson, ex-vice president, state federation of H. D. C., and participated in by representatives of each of the H. D. C. and Farm Security. (See next week's paper for year's accomplishments).

Exhibits of work done during the year featured: furniture restored at furniture clinics, namely, a walnut bed and cradle, a walnut chair, picture frames and cherry bed side table which had been refinished; a luggage stand, foot stool, rockers which had been reseeded; a high oak bed which had been cut down and given a blend finish, an overstuffed chair which had been rescued from a junk pile in pieces and was reglued, missing parts made and completely upholstered; also a mattress made at the mattress project by a low income farm family, a quilt and spread made by club members and a foot stool covered with needlepoint made by a club member.

Other exhibits were a "Homemade Tennis Set" by Greenwich Club, "Menu Planning" by Quantico Club, "Let's Be Strong" by Farm Security and a "Mattress under Construction" by Extension and F. S. A. co-operation.

To conclude the County Campaign—"Families who Play Together Stay Together". A pageant was staged by the Quantico, Woodbridge, Dumfries, and Hickory Grove Clubs entitled "Let's Play", Quantico Club represented the discontinued family whose mother never had time to play with her family. The father came to the rescue by taking the children out to play while the mother fell asleep and dreamed about the Hallows' party staged by Dumfries Club, the surprise Birthday Party for mother by Woodbridge Club and Story telling hour by Hickory Grove Club. The dream helped mother to solve her problem which concluded with a happy family united in singing.

Other entertainments numbers included delightful violin music by Mrs. M. C. Stuart of Dumfries accompanied by Mrs. Beulah Brawner, group singing led by Mrs. R. L. Carden and a delightful lunch was served by the County Homemaking Board.

BOOK CLUB MEETING

The Book Club will meet at 2:30 Thursday, October 31 in the high school building. Members and everyone interested are urged to attend.

POLITICAL RALLY AND BARN DANCE

On Friday night, November, the Post-Graduate and the Junior Classes of Osbourn High School will sponsor entertainments for the enjoyment of the students and the public.

At 8 p. m. in the M. H. S. auditorium, the Post-Graduates will hold a political rally. This is to be a comical affair with speeches given by Everett Jones and Shreve Brent, impersonating President Roosevelt and Mr. Willie respectively. "Smiley" Breendon and Harry Jarman will act as campaign managers for the candidates and will speak in their behalf.

After the speeches, the audience will vote for their favorite candidates. The combined returns of the rally and those of the school election will be announced at the barn dance after the rally.

The barn dance will be sponsored by the Junior Classes. This novel affair is to take place from 9 p. m. to 1:30 a. m. The Lion Boys, who played for the Junior - Senior barn Dance, will ring out the lively tunes. Delicious refreshments will be on sale to reinvigorate every body.

VIRGINIA SCHOOL SYSTEM IS ALERT

Will Do Much Towards Stabilizing Defense Ideals

Dr. Sidney B. Hall, sup't of public instruction in Virginia, recently sent out a letter to each of the division superintendents, regarding a program in Virginia Public Schools to Promote National Security. All educators, he said, are greatly concerned about having schools make the highest possible contribution to a sound, long time program of national security, as well as having schools participate in the immediate defense program.

Already the public schools are co-operating with the federal government to train young men in trades where there is a shortage of skilled labor. Furthermore the schools are prepared to give adult education classes, and emergency training for out of school youth, as well as for pupils enrolled in the schools.

As to the long-time program for national security, in addition to the usual school work, two matters are of the highest importance:

1. Improving physical fitness.
2. Developing appreciation of democratic institutions and of democracy as a way of living.

The Prince William County Education Association realizes fully the import of Dr. Hall's message and gives him wholehearted and active support. Mrs. Graves, director of Education in Virginia, met with the teachers of this county, Thursday evening, October 17 and gave expert suggestions for a more adequate program in physical education, "Understanding and practice of the basic health rules, provision for adequate nutrition, immunization against contagious diseases, correction of physical defects, maintenance of mental health and poise through a proper balance of work and recreation, and definite character building values gained from team games and inter-scholastic sports will receive their proper emphasis".

As, is the case throughout America, the Virginia Public Schools are doing everything possible to interpret democracy and develop appreciation of its privileges and obligations. There are three fundamental interpretations to which Dr. Hall calls the attention of teachers:

1. Democracy carries with it responsibilities as well as rights and privileges.
2. Democracy defends freedom of speech, of worship, of the press, and trial by jury.
3. Democracy gives the right and responsibility to choose and change our leaders and to improve our institutions.
4. "Our schools can bring to pupils an appreciation of the full meaning of these things alone, the significance of the totalitarian efforts to destroy democracy can be made so clear that there will be a great determination to defend democracy".

ARLINGTON KIWANIAN ADDRESSES LOCAL CLUB

Lyman Kelley of the Arlington Kiwanis Club was present at the Friday night meeting of the local club last week. He was introduced by R. C. Haydon, program chairman for the evening.

Mr. Kelley had as his general topic, "Kiwanis Education". Departing from fixed lines he chose a theme, "You poor fish" with such unusual ability that none could foresee the excellent human remarks that emanated therefrom.

After considerable debate, the hour for "family night" on November 8 was set at 6 p. m. and the housing committee was instructed to make arrangements for preparations of the meal which will be served in the Chopwamsic recreational area.

MANASSAS 4-H CLUB TO RE-ORGANIZE

OCTOBER MEETING OF W. C. T. U.

There was a good attendance at the Roll Call meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The double parlors at the beautiful home of Mrs. J. J. Conner were well filled. The opening song was "How Firm a Foundation Ye Saints of the Lord", with Miss Agnes Thomasson
at the piano. Prayer by Mrs. Gorrell followed by the reading of the lesson given for Oct. 22 in the Upper Room.

The leader applied this lesson to the work of the W. C. T. U. showing how the hindrances being placed in the way of the work they are doing will be overcome by the help of our great leader. She said they can be certain as the writer points out that Christ knows the hindrance and stands ready to help the kindered.
Tho we may lose some battles yet victory is sure when Christ is the leader. During the business session
the names of the directors of the different departments were read and each director given a month in which to present their work and bring reports.

Thirty members were there or sent their answer to the Roll Call. It is very encouraging when half or more of the membership respond willingly at the beginning of the year.

The remainder of the time was given over to the delegates to the state convention, Mrs. Blough and Mrs. Sadd, for their reports. Mrs.
Blough being unable to get to the meeting. Mrs. Sadd brought the report which was very interesting instructive and at times amusing.

The most vital part being about the work of the children and young people.
She was quite enthusiastic over the work their departments are doing.
She said the director of the children's department stressed the fact that each union should have a loyal temperance legion that being the children's organization and where temperance education should begin. The Youths Temperance council for young men and young women is also very important. The young people were very enthusiastic about their work. They had charge of the Sunday afternoon service and made interesting talks.
One young man said during his talk that the Y. T. C's had been trying to help the W. C. T. U's work for temperance now they were asking the W. C. T. U. to help them get rid of the liquor traffic and so make the nation and world safer for both young and old. A paper read told how eight hundred young people at a youths' convention voted for total abstinence and doing away entirely with the liquor traffic. It is both wonderful and encouraging to see so many of our finest and best young people taking such a stand against this great evil which is ruining so many both body and soul.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Everlasting Punishment" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 3.
The Golden Text will be "Righteousness keepeth him that is upright in the way: but wickedness over-throweth the sinner" (Prov. 13:6).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the bible: "For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble:
and the day that cometh shall burn
them up, saith the Lord of hosts,
that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings"
(Mal. 4:1, 2 (to)).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures",
by Mary Baker Eddy: "Remove error
from thought, and it will not appear in effect . . . Divine Science adjusts the balance as Jesus adjusted it.
Science removes the penalty only by first removing the sin which incurs the penalty. This is my sense of divine pardon, which I understand to mean God's method of destroying sin"
(p. 40).

The Ladies of the Methodist Church of Gainesville will give a turkey and oyster supper Friday,
Nov. 1, beginning at 5 p. m. at the Central Garage across from Sinclair's Service Station.

MARINES RECALL ORIGIN IN 1775

Long years of service to the Nation will be remembered by the U. S. Marines, who celebrate their 165th anniversary on November 10. Above: their first rendezvous at Tun Tavern in Philadelphia and two sea soldiers of the Revolution. Below: detachment of Marines as they appeared at the New York World's Fair.

Thumbing their way through their logbook to the date of their origin,
the U. S. Marines will turn back its fading pages to the year 1775,
when they pass their 165th milestone on November 10.

Dimming records reveal that the Continental Marines gathered in old Tun Tavern in Philadelphia when they rallied their members to fight for the freedom of the colonies.
From this quaint hostelry, now no longer a landmark, the Marines sallied forth with rattlesnakes painted on their drums and with high hopes in their hearts to win recruits for the "Cause".

Those were the days when the tavern was famous for its broiled steaks and tankards of ale, while sturdy patriots gathered in its upper rooms
to smoke long churchwarden pipes
and to discuss the rising tide of public opinion which eventually rolled into the overwhelming flood of the Revolution.

Sailing vessels on the Delaware

River pointed their jibbooms straight at the tavern, while occasionally a stagecoach clattered over the cobbles
to drop patrons at its doors.

It was an ideal spot to enlist men
"able to serve to advantage by sea when required". This was one of the stipulations made by the Continental Congress in 1775 when it authorized the formation of two battalions of Marines on the day they observe as their birthday.

All during the Revolution they performed loyal service on both land and sea. With the struggle for independence only a memory, the Corps was permanently organized in 1798 to follow in succeeding years the illustrious example set by its forebears.

Stirring chapters of the Marines'
logbook reveal that they were aboard
Old Ironsides in her days of glory,
helped to sweep piracy from the seas
at home or abroad, mounted Old Glory for the first time on the battlements of a Tripolitan fortress, carried their banners to the uttermost

ends of the earth, and fought in all the big and little wars of our country.

Scores of countries have witnessed the prowess of the globe-trotting sea soldiers who on nearly 200 occasions
have landed on errands for Uncle Sam. They have performed every task from chasing seal poachers in the Bering Sea to fighting our Nation's enemies, or guarding Americans in distant lands.

It is a far cry from the creaking sailing frigates of our first fleet to the floating fortresses of steel which now guard our shores against the assaults of some possible enemy, for the Marines have come a long way
in the intervening years.

Yet no marine could turn the pages of the Corps' well-filled logbook without a quickening pulse and a heartfelt response to the words of the sea soldiers' hymn, "We are proud to claim the title of United States Marine".

At this meeting they will raise their quota of forty dollars ($40.00) for

RACING STORY FEATURES TALENTED ARTISTS

"Sporting Blood", which opens next Monday and Tuesday, November 4 and 5 at the Pitts' Theatre for an engagement of two, is outwardly a thrilling horse race story, yet basically it is far more than merely the story of how an equine complex is overcome so that the horse can win
the big race. It is the story of the overthrow of prejudice and the discovery by the hero that a woman's love is more important than anything else in the world.

With Robert Young, Maureen O'-
Sullivan, Lewis Stone, William Gar-gan and Lynne Carver heading a capable cast, the story breezes along with a nicely handled pace provided by Director S. Sylvan Simon who is rapidly becoming one of Hollywood's more important megaphonists.
The story revolves is a race-horse one.
However, it is merely the adhesion for the tale although it does provide some of the best action of the year, with a spine-tingling race, the burning of a barn and a trick by which a "back running" horse becomes a world-beater.

The story basically is of a footloose young man who returns to his home town and finds that he is hated because his father once ran off with the wife of Lewis Stone.
He sets out to marry one of Stone's daughters for spite but really falls in love with Lynne Carver and is embittered when she jilts him. When he sees love in Maureen O'Sullivan's eyes, he married her purely for revenge but gets a shock into a realization of real love. With his own lessons comes a loss of prejudice on the part of Stone.

HOW RED CROSS AIDS SERVICE MEN

Rapidly expanding responsibility in connection with the mobilization of a 4,000,000-man army is giving the Military and Naval Welfare Service of the American Red Cross its busiest year since the World War.

Chairman Norman H. Davis reported increases of ten to forty per cent in the volume of work pertaining to Red Cross operations at Army, Navy and Marine Corps stations throughout the nation, in recent months.

Describing Red Cross welfare work
as a vital part of national defense,
Mr. Davis said his organization had completed plans to expand its services in proportion to the growth of the military forces.

"Review of the Red Cross peacetime program of the past 20 years",
Mr. Davis stated in a report on activities, "has satisfied the U. S. War and Navy Departments that the work
as conducted at present by the American Red Cross constitutes one of the most essential phases of national defense, since it bears directly upon that factor which underlies all aspects of military life—morale".

The report states that the past year has brought a forerunner of what may be in store for the Red Cross.
"The widespread movement of troops incidental to the reorganization of the Army and the maneuvers in the field resulted in many dislocations among families and other dependents of the enlisted men affected", the report continues.

"Individual chapters have reported increases as high as 40 per cent in the number of welfare problems they have handled for members of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard and their families", the report states. "While the increase for all chapters has average 11 per cent
not since the World War have so many men been subject to sudden transfers to new stations or to assignments for training at distant points. This has called for many adjustments in family life, which for the enlisted man on his limited pay,
is often a difficult matter".

The Red Cross maintains medical social service staffs in the general Army and Navy Hospitals. "An advance has been noted in the number of requests from medical officers to Red Cross medical social service staffs for aid in determining and solving environmental, personal and family anxieties which retard medical treatment", the report states, "about 20 per cent of the patients apply to the Red Cross for this specialized service".

Activities of Gray Ladies in Federal Hospitals, and of Junior Red Cross members, have greatly increased, according to the report.

UNUSUAL FAMILY STORY AT PITTS' NEXT WEEK

Hollywood has hit on another happy romantic teaming with Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier perfectly cast as the spirited lovers in the picturization of Jane Austen's amusing comedy, "Pride and Prejudice", which opens next Thursday and Friday, November 7 and 8 at the Pitts' Theatre for an engagement of two days.

Two brilliant stars, both winners

last year of Academy Award nominations, Miss Garson for her memorable "Mrs. Chips" and Olivier for his Heathcliffe in "Wuthering Heights", reveal new talents for comedy in the hilarious story of pride, prejudice and romance in early nineteenth century England.

The story centers around the Bennet family, handicapped by five unwedded daughters. Miss Garson makes a lovely and intelligent Elizabeth, the eldest daughter. Olivier is Darcy, a proud and wealthy young aristocrat who visits the village where they live. Despite his pride in family and distaste for the Bennets as a group, Darcy falls in love with Elizabeth who is prejudiced against his arrogance from the first.

The various romances of the Bennet girls are interwoven with the love affair of Elizabeth and Darcy. It is not until he has almost lost Elizabeth that Darcy realizes family pride can't hold a candle to the charming Elizabeth. A chance to redeem himself in her eyes comes when Lydia, least conventional of the sisters, creates a scandal by running off with an adventurer. Darcy saves her honor and also the Bennet family pride and Elizabeth gives in.

RED CROSS WAR RELIEF FOR FINLAND

John P. Thelen, veteran relief worker of the first World War and recently returned from a European relief assignment, left New York Saturday for Petsamo, Finland, where he will supervise distribution of more than 5,000,000 pounds of American Red Cross foodstuffs sent to the stricken Baltic nation in the past three weeks.

Thelen came to the American Red Cross after serving with the American-Scandinavian Field Hospital, Stromsund, Sweden. He returned to the United States on the S. S. American Legion via Petsamo.

Heavy shipments of foodstuffs to Finland were made by the Red Cross this month in an effort to alleviate near-famine conditions reported prevailing. Cable advices reaching the Red Cross stated that starvation appeared imminent for the winter months if help from the outside world was not forthcoming.

Finland's "scorched earth" policy of burning everything before the advance of Russian troops and the problem of providing for 480,000 homeless refugees from the ceded Karelian Isthmus has presented an overwhelming problem for the Finnish Government; it was reported by Red Cross observers who have returned here. Red Cross purchases, which are being made largely through U. S. Government funds made available for surplus farm products, are gauged along lines reaching here from Helsinki. Needs, it was explained, center largely on cereals, vitamin-containing fruits, lard and beans—all of which are customarily imported.

Dried fruits weighing 2,500,000 pounds constitute the largest item in recent shipments, the Red Cross said. In addition to foodstuffs, the Red Cross has sent in the past three weeks 10 stake trucks, 50,000 blankets, 26,000 articles of warm clothing for the large number of wounded soldiers and civilians still in hospital.

NOVEMBER FIFTH

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5th is the quadriennial election of our national ticket.

Here in the South it will be more or less of a dress parade, the only basic opposition to the Democratic ticket being based on the anti-third term idea. The usual Democratic majorities will be cut in some Southern States, especially in Virginia, where Willkie will run up around 100,000 votes and possibly more. The tendency toward governmental entrance upon additional phases of private industry will aid the opposition, and the labor vote will lend some heed to the Lewis bolt away from Roosevelt.

Senator Byrd has no Republican opposition and will poll a pretty solid vote, unless the voters overlook the fact that they must vote right down the entire ballot which includes our State ticket as well.

Howard Smith, one of the Nation's outstanding leaders, does have routine opposition in the nature of a prominent Charlottesville attorney. In order to give Mr. Smith the size of the vote that he deserves, the Democrats should not take a Democratic victory for granted and remain away from the polling booths but accept their individual responsibility and turn out for Judge Smith in no uncertain numbers. He is one of the greatest assets that this District has ever given to the American people, and our duty next Tuesday is to give him the biggest majority he has ever had.

A CALL TO DUTY

As we near Election Day—the most crucial one in all our country's history, let us not be governed in our voting by any petty reasons, but by a deep conviction of patriotism, for every inch of our patriotism is needed now, and will be needed more and more until the powerful forces of evil now moving abroad, and working secretly among us, have been quelled.

We are aware that all Fascist groups in the United States from the highest to the lowest instance, are both openly and secretly in this campaign to defeat Roosevelt, furnishing much of the strategy and ammunition used in print and speech. Therefore we know Roosevelt is the stronger man against these evil forces and for this reason, if no other we should support him, as our need for strong leadership is imperative. A prominent writer says it is not a choice between Roosevelt and our ideal, but a choice between Roosevelt and Wilkie.

The Republican candidate has had no experience in national affairs, and this is not a time to experiment with green material. I believe every truly patriotic voter will support the present leader Franklin D. Roosevelt in this very serious hour.

F. H. N.

Winchester, Virginia.
October 28, 1940.

Dear Editor:

In view of the fact that I have no Republican opposition, the general impression exists that I have no opposition at all, while a Socialist and a Communist are candidates against me—Hilliard Bernstein being the Socialist and Mrs. Alice Burke the Communist.

If you think this impression exists in your community, for the information of your readers, I would greatly appreciate your kindness in publishing the fact that I am opposed by a Socialist and a Communist. Under the Virginia law, Party affiliations are not indicated and the fact that these candidates are a Socialist and a Communist will not show on the ballot.

Your kindness in the matter will be greatly appreciated.

Faithfully yours,
Harry F. Byrd.

THE FIFTH COLUMN IN VIRGINIA

(Editorial)

An interesting pamphlet, "The Fifth Column in the South", by Joseph P. Kamp, has just been issued by the Constitutional Education League, with Southern headquarters in the First National Building, Birmingham, Alabama, which contains a mass of material, apparently authentic, which if only partially true is amply sufficient to make every patriotic American and true Southerner deeply conscious of the seriousness of the Fifth Column menace in our section of the country.

With citations of evidence which cannot well be ignored the writer proceeds to make a case against Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Virginia Federation of Woman's Clubs, the National Religion and Labor Foundation, Sidney Hillman, Henry Wallace, Rev. Charles C. Weber, Commonwealth College, Aubrey Williams, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the National Youth Administration, John L. Lewis, David Lasser, the Negro Soviet Congress and many other individuals and associations who are alleged to be stirring up strife between capital and labor and between the races and are providing government subsidy for Fifth Column penetration of the South at the taxpayers' expense.

It is quite impossible for the average citizen to check up for himself the accuracy and the justification for all of these charges, but he cannot help concluding that where there is so much smoke there must be a substantial fire, and in their volume and apparent authentic nature there is certainly a definite answer to the important question which is just beginning to stir the public apprehension of whether, after all, there is really Fifth Column at work in our midst.

Even a casual perusal of this interesting pamphlet is sufficient to cause us to exclaim in the tempo of the familiar holiday quotation which has been so widely printed:

"Yes, Virginia, there really is a Fifth Column!"

PRAISE NUTRITIVE
VALUE OF OYSTER

New testimony as to the nutritive value of oysters is advanced by the U. S. Fisheries Bureau in the current issue of the Fishery Market news.

"From the point of view of nutrition, oysters are better balanced than possibly any other single food," the News reports, adding: "Copper, iron and manganese found in oyster meats are important in preventing a type of nutritional anemia. Of other elements, calcium and phosphorus are necessary in bone growth, and iodine in the proper functioning of the thyroid gland. Oysters contain most of the essential vitamins; namely, vitamins A, B, C, D, and G, which are all necessary in the diet for the maintenance of a healthy body."

"The protein in oysters has an especially high nutritive value, likewise, glycogen, a substance similar to starch, is found in a form readily digestible by the human body even when uncooked. Because of this high mineral, vitamin, protein, and glycogen content, oysters are considered one of our most nutritious foods."

FIRE INSPECTION

Mr. F. B. Given, deputy state fire marshal was a pleasant visitor in Manassas Tuesday and in company with Fire Chief Vetter, and assistant Chief Raymond Davis made a careful inspection of fire hazards here.

He stated that the town was making gratifying progress in fire prevention and expressed the hope that as cold weather came on that furnaces and basements would receive proper inspection and care to avoid hazards occasioned by starting up our heating facilities for the winter.

COUNTY AGENTS
COLUMNFARMERS URGED TO OBTAIN
FARM PROGRAM GROUND
LIMESTONE THIS FALL AND WINTER.

Prompt fall and winter delivery may be obtained on ground limestone through the Agricultural Conservation Program. As was the case last spring only a limited quantity can be delivered next spring during the short period between which the land is plowed and corn is planted. Prince William farmers may avoid this rush and possibly disappointment in getting spring delivery by obtaining farm program ground limestone this fall and winter. It may be held over in a dry shed or other storage space or it can be efficiently used on sod to be broken for corn next spring, on small grain, pastures and hay land.

SHOULD LAND TO BE PLOWED
FOR CORN NEXT SPRING BE LIMED DURING THIS FALL
AND WINTER?

The farmer who limes each rotation may well apply the material on sod that is to be plowed for corn next spring. Winter freezing and thawing causes penetration of the lime into the soil to some extent. In plowing, the furrow slice is not completely turned over and good vertical distribution is obtained throughout the plowed layer. Tilling operations later provide the desired mixing with the soil.

FALL AND WINTER LIMING

Through years of custom, most farmers apply their lime during the spring. It's very often adds to the confusion of an extremely busy season, and many times the lime is not applied at all. The most common reasons are that the lime could not be obtained on time or that rain has delayed spring work to an extent that something must be left undone.

On a majority of farms, the solution is fall and early winter liming. The application of liming materials during these months has the following definite advantages:

1. More prompt delivery of lime can be obtained from manufacturers,

Careers in Engineering

By Rufus T. Strohm

Dean, International
Correspondence Schools

MANY professional engineers believe that the increase in the number of graduate engineers from 2,000 in 1890 to 158,000 in 1930 means an overcrowding of the profession. Such an opinion, no doubt, has been influenced by employment conditions.

There are many other engineers who feel that the training of highly skilled engineers will contribute much toward curing some of our economic ills. Certainly if the term "engineering" includes the technicians, the laboratory workers and the junior engineers, there always will be sufficient openings for engineering graduates.

The achievements of present-day engineering will appear as interesting experiments compared to many accomplishments that lie ahead. More efficient harnessing of power, improved transportation on land, sea and in the air, universal communication and free exchange of scientific knowledge, exploitation of raw materials, a more sympathetic approach to all the problems of modern life—these and many others are the problems which will keep thousands of engineers busy for years to come.

New applications of scientific knowledge are continually developing. The more we know about the forces and materials of nature, the better chance we have to use them in some manner beneficial to the human race.

grinding plants and through the Agricultural Conservation Program.

2. Farmers have more time to apply lime. It is true that the farmer is always busy but it is also true that he has more time in the fall and winter than he does in the spring.

3. Roads are better and the fields are easier to travel over.

3. Roads are better and the fields are easier to travel over.

4. Lime has more time to act and the action of freezing and thawing is of help in working the material down into the root zone.

NATIONAL SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA TO OPEN
ITS TENTH SEASON

With materials as intangible as a dream, five men went to work in the spring of 1931 to build a Washington institution. They built the National Symphony Orchestra. Those five men, with Dr. Hans Kindler as the ex officio moving spirit, formed the organizing committee. With the National Symphony Orchestra, with Rachmanoff as guest soloist, about to open its tenth season in the Nation's Capital, the story of that now great orchestral group is told in an illustrated feature article appearing next Sunday in The Washington Sunday Star.

THOUSAND OF QUAIL TO USE REFUGE THIS FALL

Nearly 1000 coveys of quail are expected to make use of the extensive system of refuges established throughout Virginia this fall, according to Carl H. Nolting, chairman of the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, who took time today to comment on reports of progress in quail restoration received from various counties.

The state-wide refuge system now includes nearly 450 sanctuaries, closed entirely to hunting, containing over 30,500 acres on which birds can be cared for and brought through the winter to insure sufficient breeding birds next spring to restock surrounding hunting grounds. Farmers generally throughout the state have been quite enthusiastic over the idea of setting aside small areas of ideal quail land to save next year's brood stock from possible over-shooting, and sportsmen feel very much encouraged over the prospects for better quail shooting on their favorite hunting grounds in the years to come.

The establishment of the state-wide refuge system is a part of the quail restoration project now being conducted by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. Areas selected as refuges are leased from landowners for a period including not less than two breeding seasons, and technically trained Field Biologists will be detailed to assist those landowners who wish to make food and cover plantings and thus increase the effectiveness of the refuges. Restocking will be done where the number of birds no present is inadequate to provide satisfactory brood stock for producing surplus birds which will restock naturally the surrounding land which must be left open to hunting.

Bobwhite quail move about very little, most of them spending their entire lives within a quarter of a mile of where they were hatched. Refuges will therefore be small, ranging from 40 to 100 acres, to insure an outflow of surplus birds to surrounding hunting grounds. In general these sanctuaries will be located on areas having adequate food and cover present. Landowners will be encouraged to make food and cover plantings on surrounding lands so that a maximum number of birds can find natural food and shelter throughout the year.

The project, financed in part under the Pittman-Robertson Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act, will be carried out by a staff of Field Biologists under the direction of C. F. Phelps, superintendent of Game Propagation for the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries.

THE LITTLE MINISTER

by
Sir James Matthew Barrie

"The Little Minister" was written by Sir James Matthew Barrie, who was a Scotchman by birth and who is famous for his writings of kindly humor, playful wit, and whimsical fancy.

This is a novel which is true to the characteristics of Barrie. Babbie gives the story the freshness and gaiety and playful wit for which Barrie is famous. Margaret, the mother of Gavin, is much as I would imagine the mother of Barrie. In his books Barrie usually gives his mother the part of the heroine under a different name and different features. Gavin's description is one which is difficult to forget. To look at him one would think he was a boy, not a young man of twenty-one. He had a round face with blue eyes and straight blond hair. His features were small, thereby accentuating his youthful appearance. However, his looks belied his disposition. If he thought something was right, he would do all in his power to convince everyone else.

The novel, "The Little Minister", is the story of two lovers who are worlds apart because of their social differences. One is a minister who was a young man greatly absorbed in doing God's will, while the other supposedly was a gypsy girl.

They first met at a weaver's revolt where he, as a man whose job it was to spread peace, was trying to break the riot up; she was urging the weavers on to rebellion. During the riot the town was surrounded and the weavers finally surrendered.

After this he started preaching a series of sermons against women, but he was forced to eat his words because he met her later while on one of his missions. The love that sprang up was too great to be killed by a small obstacle like social inequality. He loved her so much that he would have given up his job as minister to marry her. She knew of his love for his mother and the church, so to save him she went away to marry another man.

Many exciting things occur to carry the plot rapidly to its logical and happy conclusion.

This is one of the most interesting books I have ever read. Barrie told the story in such a way that it held my interest until I turned over the last page. For a few hours of pleasant reading I would recommend "The Little Minister".

The book may be borrowed from the Ruffner-Carnegie Library.

STRAIGHT
TALK from
One Farmer to Another

I am just one of 96,925 farmers in this part of the country who has found it pays to cooperate. Let me show you why:

First, I believe in democracy. Working economic problems out with my neighbor is really putting democracy to work. It is also cooperation. By getting together we have been able to buy better farm supplies at real savings.

Second, through our Southern States Cooperatives this past year we purchased 14,788,000 dollars worth of feed, seed, fertilizer and other farm supplies. We made $691,693 on this volume. Over half of that we took back in patronage dividends. The rest, after paying 6% dividends on the stock investment farmers have in the business, we put in reserves and working capital.

Third, in buying this great amount cooperatively we can demand the best and be sure that the price will be right. Mostly we do our own manufacturing in our own plants.

Fourth, the men I help elect in local patrons' meetings to represent my interests in this business will meet with 2,500 other locally elected directors the last of October in Baltimore. There they review the year's business, vote on policies, and elect men to the Board of Directors which is made up of men like me who hire the management of this, our business.

Fifth, we aren't selfish about this cooperation. There is still room for other folks. If you join with us you will be helping yourself as well as the rest of us by building a greater volume, which means more savings for all of us. When you use this cooperative you receive patronage refunds, part in cash, part in stock. The ownership of stock makes you a member.

GENERAL JORDAN LEAVES SERVICE

Prince William Officer Had Wonderful Record

By Cassie Moncure Lyne

Formerly of Library Staff, War Dept. Virginia has great cause to be proud of the enviable and splendid record made by Gen. Richard Jordan of United States Army; who, by his own request was recently retired. Not only was Jordan comparatively a young man to leave the service, of which he was an ornament; but his sphere of usefulness will be hard to fill. A distinguished graduate of West Point, he prepared for the New York Military Academy at V. P. I., Blacksburg; and entered the Army in 1901 as a first Lieutenant. He came of splendid soldiers; his father was renowned in the Confederate army; and his early environment as coming from a county that had produced such men as General Ewell, assured the nature of his patronage. He has served in France; won the Distinguished Service Medal; and has been on many Commissions of Peace, to lands like Brazil and China. As executive to the Chief of Embarkation, his accomplishments in the last World's War, were splendid; also his management of the Pilgrimage of the Gold Star Mothers to Flanders Fields. As Brig-General, he was assistant to such men as Major Gen. Frank Cheatham; likewise a great Southerner; who is now in charge of "Stratford", the birthplace of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

The things which Jordan did the army; though always true to the Union; showed the mettle of his past-urage; "Not that I love Caesar less but Rome more"—for he was ever true to the South. His name will go down on the roster of U. S. Army officers as one of the most popular men in the service; always the Virginia gentleman.

When Chief-Justice Taft put me on the Library Staff of the U. S. Department of War, I was tickled to death; for besides fondness for books and interesting army publications; it gave great scope for historical research; as the officers depend on the library staff to dig out the material for the many speeches they have to make. Eloquence or smooth diction seldom are attributes of soldiers; just facts, facts, facts—like constant bombardment! The World's War had left the world still shell-shocked; and civilization topsyturvy; so, some restorative was necessary to recover our poise.

In this hour of chaos, men's mind reverted to how Robert E. Lee had departed himself; when a worse war devastated the land. His example, his patience, his encouragement of others to rebuild the country seemed the best tonic for the A. E. F. veterans. The Cantonments had brought the Nation together. Men from Michigan had served with men from Mississippi; soldiers from Maine had gone over the top with lads from Missouri. Pennsylvanians had been sent to Camp Lee near Petersburg, Va., and having found Virginians did not have either horns or hoofs; and having delved into the history of the army officer for whom "Camp Lee" was named; the Pennsylvanians had asked to be known as, "Lee's Legion". That would have gratified "Old Marse Robert" . . . to have felt the sections were once again all one!

The Lees had ever been Federalists; for when it came to ratifying the Constitution; Light Horse Harry had insisted that, "We, the people"—was far better, than, "We, the states"—for he argued "America was, 'We, the people' . . . And from this hard-riding, hard-fighting Cavalryman, Robert E. Lee had inherited his soldiering.

When the A. E. F. got to Flanders Fields—the Allies, young chaps also, asked: "Who is your typical American soldier? Who is your ideal? . . . like for instance, We have Cardinal Mercier; and Albert of Belgium . . . Who is your one great man, that in a crisis would risk all for an ideal of duty—What's his name?"

There was but one reply: "ROBERT E. LEE".

This had happened once before—in Boston, at a meeting of the officers of the Grand Army of the Republic—soon after the close of the Civil War, General Casey had arisen at a banquet and lifting his glass, said: "To the man who was the pride of the Old United States Army; that many of us still love; and whom we all respect!" . . . He got no further; for every West Pointer rose to his feet; and with outstretched hands in salute—said: "Let us name him" . . . at which the toast-master smiled while the welkin rang; "Robert E. Lee!"

When people gather at the graves of their dead; hatreds of sectionalism disappear; hence the many memorial days at Arlington have served to visualize the attention of the great West and the big-hearted North, on the master of Arlington. Lincoln, coming from the log-cabin of Kentucky; Grant from the middle-west when living conditions were primitive; the Trans-Mississippi element who knew nothing of colonial life in the manors of Virginia and Maryland; But, Arlington house was an object lesson. Here was an estate far handsomer than Mt. Vernon; but linked with Mt. Vernon . . . for was not General Lee's wife, the great grand daughter of Martha Washington? Did not the Custis family own Washington's own army tent that he used at Valley Forge? Where were all these relics? Arlington house was emptier than last year's bird's nest—The ghosts of the Past seemed to be on furlough—desolation—empty rooms—not a foot-fall.

If only Henry Ford had lived prior to 1860; there would never have been any Civil War; for the Abolitionists would have been the South was turning cannibal barbarians into the splendid servants that are today our useful Negro population. So, when the Burial of the Unknown Soldier began to direct tourists traffic to Arlington! by the hundreds of thousands the Government wisely did three things:—

Uncle Sam built the beautiful Bridge which links the Lincoln Memorial Park with Arlington grounds—which had been an idea of Old Hickory, who was no fool—for Andrew Jackson saw in his days, it was figuratively necessary to link North with South, as typical of the Union. By good chance, the grandson of General U. S. Grant, young colonial Grant, (son of the much beloved general Fred Grant) was entrusted with this job.

Then, the Government, with the official stamp of the Union, placed a Tablet on the house opposite the War Department, known as the "Blair House," which states; "Here at the instance of Abraham Lincoln, the command of the army in the field was tendered to Robert E. Lee."

A great many of those on the "inside" had always known this; but, now the world can read it; there on Pennsylvania avenue, in bronze, with the official seal of the U. S. Eagle. It warms the heart of the South-land to remember that Lincoln paid this great compliment to the son of Stratford; for Lincoln as a Kentuckian born, had himself a mother from Virginia; that famous Nancy Hanks, whose family lived in the same Tidewater section whence sprang the Washingtons, Monroes and Lees.

But, the climax in honoring Lee, arrived, when the son of one of General Phil Sheridan's cavalrymen, Hon. L. C. Crampton of Michigan, introduced a Bill which became a Law on March 4, 1925 which reads as follows:

Restoration of the Lee Mansion was initiated by the introduction of a joint resolution in the House of Representatives by the Honorable L. C. Crampton, of Michigan. The resolution, which became law on March 4, 1925, in the form of Public Resolution No. 74, reads as follows:

"Joint Resolution authorizing the restoration of the Lee Mansion in the Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia."

"Whereas the era of internecine strife among the States having yielded to one of better understanding, of common loyalty, and a more perfect Union; and

"Whereas, now honor is accorded Robert E. Lee as one of the great military leaders of history, whose exalted character noble life, and eminent services are recognized and esteemed, and whose many attributes of precept and example were compelling factors in cementing the American people in bonds of patriotic devotion and acting against common external enemies in the War with Spain and in the World War, thus cementing the hope of a reunited country that would again swell the chorus of the Union: Therefore be it

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed as nearly as may be practicable, to restore the Lee Mansion in the Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia, to the condition in which it existed immediately prior to the Civil War and to procure, if possible, articles of furniture and equipment which were then in the mansion and in use by the occupants thereof. He is also authorized, in his discretion, to procure replicas of the furniture and other articles in use in the mansion during the period mentioned, with a view to restoring, as far as may be practicable, the appearance of the interior of the mansion to the condition of its occupancy by the Lee family."

"Approved March 4, 1925".

This carried an appropriation of $150,000 as a tentative measure, or earnest, that U. S. funds would meet the necessity caused by the tooth of time. The South was delighted; and the North also in full co-operation; for Robert E. Lee transcends sectional boundaries; and belongs to the Nation; he was Superintendent of West Point; one of Scott's ablest men in the Mexican campaign; and for thirty years, wore the loved uniform of Blue, in which he was married; and which his style of hearing and grace of manner, carried with it all the charm of gold braid and brass buttons!

But, the question of refurbishing Arlington was not to be as simple as table-rappings; for only an echo came as to where were the Lee valuables; and would the families who owned these priceless heirlooms part with cabinet-makers and artists to copy them . . . or would they permit their portraits? Uncle Sam now was as busy as a sheriff with a search-warrant . . . and all this work fell on three men, God bless them . . . namely the Quartermaster-General, who was my boss; and his able executive officer; and the Quartermaster who had charge of construction and housing. Their names were Major General Cheatham, for as Arlington residence was in Arlington National Cemetery, this building for years had been used as the "National Cemetery's office". Therefore, a new office would have to be constructed; for the care of all National Cemeteries comes under the province of the Quartermaster-General, who ranks second only to the Chief-of-Staff; for the ramifications of the Quartermaster's corps is a far-flung battle-line of activities. It is no small honor to be the Quartermaster-General of the United States Army. Right here, I wish to state, the dignity of this office is recognized as so big; it caused Joe Johnston to be ranked ahead of Robert E. Lee when the Civil War began; for albeit Lee was a splendid Army engineer and cavalryman; but Johnston had been Quartermaster-General, U. S. A., which means a "Major-General's rank"; while Lee was only a Colonel of Cavalry; therefore in grades, Joe Johnston far outranked him. Both were West Point distinguished graduates; as was also Jefferson Davis; a martinet and a stickler for precedent. The men came in the Confederate service as they had ranked in the old United States Army. General Cheatham, who was now my boss; and who restored Arlington likewise did a herculean task, in placing head-stones over the American war-dead in Flanders Fields. With Cheatham, as executive officer, was Dick Jordan, from Virginia; who spared no pains in collecting data for Arlington; and he was not only efficient but "knew his ats"; being himself a West Pointer; and a son of a brave Confederate sire . . . Like "Brer Rabbit" in Joel Chandler's stories, Dick Jordan was born in "The Briar patch" of Virginia's very battle-grounds, since his Father lived between Manassas and Warrenton; and that broadly translated in the sixties, meant; "Between the Devil and the deep blue sea—for this is the guerilla terrain of Mosby's Men . . . every blade of grass had been watered with human blood in this debatable land! With Cheatham from Tennessee and Jordan from Virginia; (both tarred with the same stick of loyalty to memories); some leaven was needed from the middle-west; lest the War Department break out into a regular "Rebel Yell!" . . . The saving grace of the situation was the level-headed Bash—splendid mid-westerner; old long legged Louis Bash; who delivered the goods. He was head of the Construction department. The timbers; girders; rafters and everything at Arlington (built 1802) was now about to go to pieces like the "One Hoss Shay" . . . Bash got ready. The wheels of the Quartermaster's wagons were well greased; and the proper material soon found its way under his supervision to make Arlington fire-proof and far better than ever Custis built it; this old mansion—where Le Marquis de LaFayette had been a guest; where many Presidents of the nation had crossed their legs under the fine old mahogany's festive board; and smacked their lips over Virginia cured ham; and cracklin bread; and delicacies in fish from the Potomac!

When it became noised around that my Mother was of Lee lineage; many questions were referred to her excellent memory. Always had she treasured her memories of when Mrs. Lee was in Richmond; and of those thrilling times when she would see General Robert E. Lee, who sat his horse like a Centaur, riding through the city. Strange as it may seem now, in my Mother's young day; it was considered very bold for a woman to be an authoress. My Mother's contemporary, Miss Hawes had to camouflage as "Marion Harland"; and this queer mid-Victorian angle, made Mother reluctant to enter the literary world; though her great aunt, Jean Moncure, the wife of Governor Wood, (founder of Winchester), was Virginia's first poetess. But, after much pumping and persuasion; though it was like pulling eye-teeth;

she finally "opened up" . . . Then, it was as if heavy artillery had gone into action! Always at Confederate Reunions, Mother sat with Mrs. W. H. F. Lee, (Tabb Bolling), and Miss Mary Custis Lee; for she had in her veins the blood of both the Stratford and Ditchley lines. Her uncle, Richard Cassius Lee Moncure was Chief-Justice of the Va. Supreme Court for 35 years; her great-uncle, Richard Henry Lee, the Signer of the Declaration of Independence; had moved in the Continental Congress, that: "The colonies ought and should be free". Mother's cousin, Leigh Robinson, famous attorney, had made the dedicatory address at Gettysburg when the equestrian statue of Robert E. Lee was unveiled; so that from alpha to omega, she had a knowledge that nobody could surpass on the Lee traditions . . . Mother's brother, the late Judge Eustace Conway Moncure was Gen. Robert E. Lee's trusted scout; and was detailed to this responsibility by the knowledge that Gen. W. H. F. Lee ("Rooney") had of him in his command; Ninth Va. Cavalry, C. S. A. . . . But, now, to return to our muton—she was the "Old Mortality" who could chalk the grave-stones of the Past; and bring out the data that was needed to refurbish the Lee mansion.
