HOT DEBATE OVER AGE LIMITATION

Young Democrats Hold Annual Convention at Roanoke.

Richard S. Wright, of Woodstock, has been elected president of the Virginia Young Democrats, heading a slate which includes Leonard K. Baber of Richmond; Garland Moss, of Mecklenburg County; Page Norton, of Charlotte County; and Walter I. Young, of Alexandria, vice-president; Lewis McMurren, of Newport News, secretary; Jesse Wilson, of Charlottesville, college secretary; Miss Addie Munsey, of Bland, national committeewoman; and Duval Radford, of Bedford, national committeeman.

Meeting in Roanoke August 29-30, the convention postponed until 1947 a 40-year age limit on active members.

The flareup over the age limit came when Clay Church, of Marion, chairman, presented the majority report for the committee which studied the question for the past two years, and moved its adoption.

He said the majority recommendations for amendments to the organization's constitution provided that members of clubs chartered before January 1, 1943, (whose age limits are now 18 to 45), could continue to be members in good standing until January 1, 1947, when the age limit would become 40. Members over that age then would be eligible to become honorary members.

Members who joined clubs after January 1, 1943, would have to be 40 or younger.

Maurice Rosenberg, of Alexandria, inquired if there was a minority report, and Charles R. Fenwick, of Arlington, made the point of order that the majority report would have to be considered before the minority report could be heard. Willis Cohoon, convention chairman, sustained Fenwick and ordered a vote on the majority report.

John Goldsmith, of Radford, rising to speak on the motion, asked to see the minority report and Cohoon ruled he could not, but reversed himself when the parliamentarian overruled him. Goldsmith then read the minority report, which provided for application of the 18-40 age limits as of January 1, 1943.

Rosenberg presented a substitute motion for adoption of the minority report. Robert L. Anderson, of Marion, a member of the age limit committee, said the group had felt that a "grace period" should be allowed before the activity of older members was cut off. He said some members who had worked as Young Democrats for several years might want to run for office in the next few years.

After more debate and a short recess, a roll call vote was taken, with most of the nine districts casting a solid block of votes against the minority report. The final vote was 649 against it, and 74 for.

Other action of the convention included adoption of a resolution on foreign policy, urging a "blackout" of the words and deeds of Lindbergh and Senator Wheeler; recommendation of a revision of the small loan law, with a maximum interest rate of 24 per cent a year; approval of an adequate increase in the number of State police; recommendation of legislation to curb the powers of State administrative agencies; recommendation that the State Education Board and the Budget Commission seek State appropriations to help defray the cost of school transportation; and suggestion that the President take over and operate defense plants where necessary, pending an agreement between labor and ownership.

The convention adopted a recommendation by John G. Turnbull, chairman of the committee on small loan laws, that the necessity of revising the small loan law of Virginia be regualted, and the State Corporation Commission be authorized to control the purpose and amount of such loans.

A majority report of the committee on legislative affairs that the General Assembly give the people an opportunity to express their opinion on abolition of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting was defeated by a voice vote on a motion that shut off debate. The majority report was opposed by the committee chairman, James Palmer.

Another of the committee's recommendations, that the legislature authorize an adequate increase in the

MARINES SEEK MISSING RELICS

Interesting Articles Listed as Being of Particular Importance.

Scores of long missing articles are wanted by the U.S. Marine Corps to add other relics in its museum here.

Battle flags, guns, uniforms and other odds and ends, each of which reflects some exploit or tradition of the Corps, are on display in the museum located on the top floor of the post recreation building.

Similar articles are being sought by Lieut. Col. Clyde H. Metcalf, curator of the museum, who for weeks has been gathering a substantial collection of military souvenirs.

A welcome discovery would be the rifle which Corporal Michael Chockie used to fire the first shot of the World War across the bow of a German cutter in the harbor of Guam on April 6, 1917, the date that America entered the war.

Another wanted souvenir is the sword which Lieut. Israel Green, of the Marines, bent double on a belt buckle or some other metal object when he made a thrust at the abolitionist John Brown at Harper's Ferry in October, 1859.

Green discarded his weapon as useless, but the sword was known to have been retained as a curio by other persons up until some time after the Civil War.

Most of all the Marines would like to recover a military strong box, containing about $25,000, which was hastily buried when the capital was invaded during the War of 1812. The rumor persists that the chest is still buried in the navy yard. According to another theory, someone discovered the box long ago and made away with it.

number of state police, was approved.

Approximately 1,000 persons attended the convention. Charles R. Fenwick, of Arlington, delivered the keynote address, in which he advocated Navy convoys to get supplies to Britain.

Other speakers included Colgate W. Darden, Jr., who asked aid of the Young Democrats in forming the next administration's program, William M. Tuck, Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor, who predicted that the Darden administration would rank among the greatest in Virginia's history, and Governor James H. Price, who reviewed the work of his administration, and offered Darden every assistance in familiarizing himself with State government affairs.

FRATERNAL CLASS NAMED FOR STATE DEPUTY (contributed)

Prince William Council Daughters of America was instituted in October, 1933. Ever since we have had O. B. Hopkins for deputy. At the close of the year in June we were able to honor him with a class of 17 members. It has been earlier stated that this class was in honor of the Councilor. However, it was an error. The class was in honor of "O. B. whom we all love and feel more than thankful that our State Councilor appointed him as our deputy for the ensuing year.

"O. B." has been ever ready and willing to help us. We hope our new members will be as faithful workers as he has been. He was present July 28, and installed the new officers for the coming term.

CYRIL WADE-DALTON

The town of Manassas was deeply shocked to learn on Monday morning of the sudden death in Oklahoma City, of Wade-Dalton, a resident of the town for nearly a quarter century.

At the time he was on a visit to his son, Edward, and to see his baby grandchild. The immediate cause of his death is said to have been from a heart attack.

Besides his son he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nina Haydon, daughter, of Mrs. William H. Haydon, and Mr. Haydon, who himself only passed away a few weeks ago. There is one daughter, Nina, who is employed by the Government in Panama; also by two sisters.

Besides operating a local business, Mr. Dalton had government connections in Washington where he had been employed for some fifteen years. The funeral will take place at Trinity Church tomorrow at 1 p.m. (Friday). Interment in the local cemetery, with Masonic rites.

STREET SUBWAY ADVOCATED

At the weekly luncheon of the Prince William Chamber of Commerce, the members unanimously decided that, as a body, they would restrain all motor vehicles over which they have control to a speed of forty miles an hour.

This action was taken as a gesture in the gasoline saving campaign. Mr. Alpaugh mentioned the distressing accident which occurred at the south end of Bland's Ford bridge on Tuesday morning in which several enlisted men were seriously hurt.

Engineer Staggs stated that the matter of posting danger signs and speed control was under consideration of the State Highway Safety Engineer.

Mr. Alpaugh also advocated construction of an underpass on Route 234 where it crosses the Southern Railroad.

FARMERS TOLD NOT TO EXPAND

C. T. Rice Urges Concentration of Efforts at Kiwanis Dinner.

One of the largest and best attended meetings of the Manassas Kiwanis Club was held last Friday evening at the annual Farmers' Night.

The agricultural committee, composed of Messrs. P. A. Lewis and J. C. Kincheloe, had charge the program.

After the Kiwanians and their guests had made the welkin ring under the vigorous leadership of their pretty and vivacious sponsor, Mrs. Kitty Baker and the best sing leader in the Capitol District, Ray Ratcliffe, the more serious side of the evening was presented.

The club is to sponsor the name of Prof. R. C. Haydon at the Washington convention of the Capitol District District next month when he will be proposed as lieutenant governor for this District.

Mrs. Frances Saunders was presented as the first speaker. She gave a very entertaining little dissertation on the methods used in 1940-41 and now being used in 1941-42 Triple A year.

One of the most striking statements she made was that almost $25,000 worth of lime had been distributed free to farmers qualifying under the program. She also gave other facts and figures which meant more perhaps to the farmer guests present than it did to some of their Kiwanis hosts.

After a brief round table on her remarks, C. T. Rice, of Oakton, and a leading cattle man of the State, rose to give some advice pertinent to the dairymen, nearly all of the guests falling to that classification.

Mr. Rice gave a rather sober picture of the milk industry, urging Northern Virginia farmers not to go haywire over the present condition of the market and plunge into heavy investments which might prove dangerously heavy in a comparatively short space of time.

Rather than that, the speaker urged conservation of the soil on the farms they possess at the present time, concentrating on their acres now under tillage rather than seek new investments.

A general discussion followed Mr. Rice's address which was voted by all as a useful guide.

The remarks of welcome were given by President Frank, and, of course, the evening was not complete without a "farmer's" joke by the club's orator, O. D. who gave the assembly something to laugh over as they adjourned after the conclusion of one of the most profitable meeting of this kind held in recent years.

Among the guests present were:

Mr. J. L. Moser, Mr. Warren G. Keith, Mr. C. F. M. Lewis, Mr. Stue Phipps, Mr. Charles W. Lewis, Mr. Frank D. Cox, Mr. L. J. Pattie, Mr. Ray Slusher, Mr. N. P. Spaulding, Mr. J. E. Barrett, Mr. Robert A. Barton, Mr. G. C. Russell, Mr. C. T. Rice, Mrs. W. S. Saunders, Mr. Kite Roseberry, Mr. J. F. Hale, Mr. Harry Jacobs, Mr. Francis M. Lewis, Mr. R. R. Fishapw, Mr. O. R. Hersch, Mr. F. L. Hoffman, Mr. William Wheeler, L. B. Thomas, Mr. R. H. Florence, Mr. J. W. Aley, Mr. C. C. Gillan, and Mr. Wilmer M. Kline.

MISSIONS DISCUSSED AT AT W. C. T. U. MEETING

The Light Line meeting of the W.
C. T. U. was held on August 26, 1941, at the Methodist Church. The meeting opened with "Lead on O.
King Eternal" after which Mr. Luttrell read a portion of the fifth chapter of Matthew, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Embry explained the different branches of the W. C. T. U. work.
She then called on Mrs. Graham from the Baptist Church, Mrs. Saunders from the Presbyterian, and Miss W.
Myers from the Methodist Church to tell of what their churches are doing for missions. It was interesting learn that they are doing work in many of the some countries, and at the same thing there are small countries where only one or the other is working. In spite of all the confusion abroad, the work of spreading the Gospel is still going on. It was also pointed out that a great deal of work is being done on the Home Mission field. After these talks, Mrs.
Embry told of the special work of the W. C. T. U. for missions.

The meeting closed with "Onward Christian Soldiers" followed by the Aaronic benediction.

EVENSONG SERVICES TO BE RESUMED

STAPLES—GORDON

In the early afternoon of Sunday,
August 31, Miss Gladys Gertrude Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Gordon, of Woodbridge, Va., became the bride of Mr. Joseph Alan Staples also of Woodbridge, Va., in a simple but beautiful wedding ceremony in All Saints Catholic Church at Manassas, Va., the Reverend James J. Widmer, officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a satin brocade gown with a dainty lily of the valley design. The gown was designed with long fitted sleeves, sweetheart neckline, and soft gathered bodice and skirt. Her veil of bridal illusion, bordered in lace, was held on her head by a Juliet cap of pearls and flowed the entire length of her train. She carried an arm bouquet of white bride's roses.

Dorothy Gordon, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a blue taffeta puffsleeved gown, a detailed duplicate of the bride's own gown. Her coronet and veil were a matching blue and she carried pink roses. Joseph W. Gordon served as best man.

After a wedding dinner at the bride's home, the young couple started on their wedding trip to Florida.

GAME RESTOCKING

HITS NEW HIGH

Game restocking hit a new high in the Old Dominion during the past year. More quail, more wild turkeys, and more deer have been released in the State since last fall than during any previous year, according to a report released today by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries.

More than a thousand wild turkeys and over ten thousand bobwhite quail were set free in Virginia during the past year. Many of the quail were released on small refuges where they could be given special protection.
The annual increase from the birds on the refuges naturally moves out and restocks surrounding areas which are open to hunting. Between eight and nine hundred of these small refuges are scattered throughout the State.

The wild turkeys raised last year by the Game Commission were used to restock some of the 2,000 square miles of Virginia forests which could support turkeys if brood stock were present. Wild turkeys produced in captivity are too expensive to release on areas where turkeys are already present, and where there is now an open turkey hunting season.

The 356 deer brought into Virginia from northern States last winter were also used to restock suitable forest areas where native deer were exterminated years ago by over-hunting.
The deer restocking program has been under way for several years, and has been quite successful. The State Game Commission reports that several fine deer herd are being built up.

Church Will Be Dedicated on Sunday

St. Anne's Nokesville, which is now known as the Nokesville Methodist Church.

The Nokesville Methodist Church is a part of the Nokesville Charge of the Alexandria District. It is located in Prince William County about 35 miles West of Washington, D. C.
It is a church of rural people, the majority of the members are engaged in agriculture. The church has seen a rapid growth since its organization as Methodist Society which was ordered by the third quarterly conference, November 14, 1910. The extract from the 1910-1911 conference record book reads as follows: "The following question was put to the Quarterly Conference—Is it expedient to organize a society at Nokesville, and establish a preaching service here". Dr. F. J. Prettyman was the Presiding Elder in the chair and the Rev. Mr. H. S. Willey was pastor in charge. The answer to the above question was registered; "By vote
it was agreed to do so unanimously".
The first services were conducted in a small frame building. In 1928 under the pastorate of the Rev. H. B. Smith, a new church was erected and served to meet the needs of the congregation.

In 1940, just about one year ago, in early part of September there were some that saw an opportunity for greater work and greater service for the church in the purchasing the unused Protestant Episcopal Church building that stood one block away from the Methodist building. The Episcopal Church was a most beautiful sanctuary of worship, but had been allowed to grow up in a thicket of briars and weeds and was depressing sight to see such a beautiful House of God neglected and ill-treated. The leaders of the Methodist congregation communicated their desire to purchase this building to Bishop of the Episcopal Church in charge of Virginia Diocese and a sale was ordered. The Methodist Church of Nokesville purchased the building and grounds and it was through the Christ like spirit of the Bishop of the Episcopal Church that this deal was made, because the purchase price paid by the Methodist was much less than an offer made by an individual who wished to use the building for a non-religious purpose. The Episcopal Church and its Bishop in Charge, Bishop F. D. Goodwin, chose to see the building remain to serve religious and christian purposes rather than to realize a greater amount of money from its sale. Since the purchase the building has been renovated and restored, new furnace, new paint, hymnals, etc. The original Episcopal design of divided chancel with cross in Center has been retained. In the fu-

To A Scrubby Future

Scrub bulls sire only scrub cows. Scrub cows provide a scrubby existence for their owners. Only high-producing cows produce a profit. Only bulls with inheritance for high production can sire high-producing, profit-making cows. Such good herdtires can best be found in the production-tested purebred herds.

COUNTY AGENTS COLUMN

Which way is your herd headed? Up or down?

Which way is your herd headed? Will it be better one or five years hence? Is it ahead of where it was one or five years ago? Are the dairy herds of Prince William one of the oldest dairy cattle counties of the country—all that they should be? Are our individual cows and heifers up to the quality and type that produce most efficiently and profitably and that top the dairy cattle market when offered for sale? Is the dairy cattle industry of our county headed toward a scrubby or to a profitable future?

Is there a scrub bull in your community?

Is there a kept, bought or borrowed scrub bull in your community? It has been said that it is the responsibility of every citizen to stamp out the scrub bull—the serious menace to herd, community and county development. Not only the well being of the particular farm upon which such an animal is kept but that of the entire community and county is adversely affected. Are scrubby, random-bred, undersized, scrawny and mixed-breed bulls kept at the expense of herd, farm, community and county development?

The border-line bull

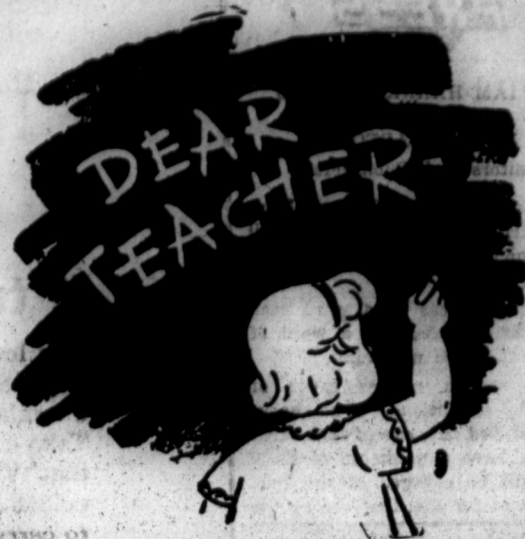

The border-line bull or the bull of unknown and unproven ancestry, yet having the appearance of a purebred, is a serious menace to dairy herd improvement—possibly even as much of a menace as the obvious scrub which is rarely found at the head of a larger dairy herd.

A registered purebred with a known ancestry of high production is more certain to transmit high-producing ability to his offspring than is the so-called "unregistered purebred". If a bull or bull calf is really a purebred, he should be registered in the herd registry of the breed which he represents. His certificate of registry will furnish proof of that fact. With young registered purebred sires of all—three dairy breeds available at reasonable prices from outstanding herds with outstanding Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing records in our own and nearby counties, is there a reason for breeding to sires of unknown and unproven ancestry?

We wish to thank our various correspondents for sending their notes early this week.

TWO YEARS OF WAR

The Second World War enters its third year this week, having begun September 1, 1939 with the German invasion of Poland, which resulted in its division between Germany and Russia.

1940 witnessed a spirited but futile resistance of Finland against Russian invasion, and the blitzkrieg conquest by Germany of Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium and France. Italy not cautious like unfriendly Japan declared war on England and was badly worsted in Africa, and in Greece, where Germany finally overcame the Grecian resistance and invaded Crete by air. Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia joined the Axis and finally Germany on June 22, 1941, launched a gigantic attack upon Russia, where the heretofore seemingly invincible Nazi might has been slowed down and almost stopped as winter comes on to aid the Russians, who with Great Britain are occupying Persia.

Countless ships have been lost, but Great Britain remains mistress of the sea, successfully defying German invasion, but suffering enormous damage by a superior German air power which is gradually being overcome with aid from America. Although feared from the outset, poison gas has so far not been used.

The U. S. on the outbreak war at first determined to keep out of war at all costs and passed an Embargo Act, but as one democracy after another went down we reversed our foreign policy, repealed the Embargo Act, passed a strong Conscription Bill, and have engaged in a gigantic program of military and naval preparation and industrial all-out aid to Great Britain under leadership of the only President in our history to have a third term in office.

The third year of war inaugurates brighter prospects for democratic victory as our great nation, slowly and not very efficiently, gears its vast manufacturing facilities to the most gigantic industrial effort of the

WHETZEL—BOWMAN

The home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bowman at Aden, was the scene of a very lovely wedding on August 31, at 6 when their daughter, Gayle, became the bride of Mr. Wade Hampton Whetzel.

The front trellised porch was tastefully decorated with palms, gladiolias, and permanent flower boxes. Miss Pearl Hope Shepherd played "Liebes- Traum" and the Wedding March, and preceding the ceremony, the Rev. Mr. John M. DeChant, of Manassas, accompanied by Mrs. DeChant sang, "O, Promise Me", and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Olden Mitchell sang, "I Love You Truly". Dr. Arthur L. Maiden, of Arlington, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a princess lined gown of brocaded satin with long tight sleeves. She carried a bouquet of roses, asters and baby's breath. She wore a lovely string of pearls of which are her mother's. Her veil of illusion was fingertip length.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Fred T. Shepherd, sister of the bride, wore a gown of wine velvet and taffeta and carried a bouquet of colored asters.

The bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Snider, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Vada Lee Stultz and Mrs. S. G. Whetzel, Jr., who wore autumn colored gowns of velvet and taffeta. Little Misses Sue Constance Shepherd and Peggy Carolyn Shepherd, nieces of the bride, acted as tiny bridesmaids and wore blue velvet. All carried bouquets of autumn flowers. The bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage.

Mr. Whetzel had as his best man, Mr. Fred T. Shepherd. Escorts of the bridesmaids, who, with the wedding party approached the scene of the ceremony in cars were Mr. S. G. Whetzel, Jr., and Mr. Miller Whetzel, brothers of the groom, and Mr. Richard Haydon, Jr., of Manassas. Assisting at the cars was Mr. Harry Whetzel.

The bride is a graduate of the local high school and Mary Washington College is employed as a teacher at the Brentsville District High School.

GIANT TOMATO

Mrs. L. W. Wisner brought an Ox-Heart tomato into the Journal Office this week weighing one pound ten ounces.

It was a beauty, perfectly formed (P.S. and ate well, also).

CATHARPIN

The Rev. Mr. Clark H. Wood has conducted a most successful revival during the past weeks at Fairview and Sudley Churches. Splendid, soul-stirring sermons were delivered each evening. Special music was rendered by our pastor and his wife. Eighteen additions were made to the church, and the great interest which has been aroused for the spiritual good of our community was manifested by the large congregations which attended the all-day services Sunday.

A very beautiful baptismal service was observed at "Tecumseh" the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Monday of Tribble Monday afternoon, when three of their children, Rose, Betty and John, were immersed by the Rev. Mr. Clark Wood. A number of friends attended the services and enjoyed the hospitality of this very delightful home.

At the congregational services held at Sudley, August 24, much business of the church was discussed and efforts made to see that all obligations, especially benevolences, be met by the 4th Quarterly Conference which will be held at the parsonage, September 6, at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Henry Maddox, charge lay leader, and Sunday School, Sup't., spoke of the necessity of resigning his position, owing to the fact that he has sold out his interest in "Tecumseh" to his brother-in-law, Mr. J. E. Tribble and will hereafter maintain a home in or near Washington, D. C. In appreciation of his loyalty to our church and his very valuable co-operation in all things for community betterment, the congregation presented Mr. Maddox and his bride with a very beautiful silver tray.

Mr. Robert Riley and his sister, Mrs. Myrtle Jackson, of Washington, D. C., visited their aunt and uncle, Mrs. Bertie Caton and Mr. James Riley one day last week. Mrs. Caton, who is recovering slowly from her recent illness, has been greatly cheered by the letters and cards which she has received from many friends of her church and community.

Little Miss Elizabeth Lynn has returned from a week's visit to her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stephenson in Front Royal.

Serg't. Currell Patton, who is an instructor at Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, last week visited his former teacher, Mrs. Etta Lynn, at Catharpin. There is nothing which delights Mrs. Lynn more than having her former pupils come to see her. Serg't. Patton served for many years in the U. S. Cavalry at Fort Myer and will be retired next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett J. Boothby entertained a number of their friends from the city, at "Oakwood" during the week end.

Mrs. Luther L. Lynn and Mrs. Augusta Lynn motored to Front Royal last Friday to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stephenson.

Miss Betty Brower left Monday for Roanoke, where she will stay with her aunt, Mrs. Russell Holmes Willis, while attending a business school in that city.

Private First-Class, A. Norman Stamm, of Fort George G. Meade, Md.; Private Charles J. Sterner, jr., of the U. S. Marine Corps, Quantico, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Sterner, sr., Miss Julia Sterner, and Miss Betty Jane Powell, of Arlington; Officer and Mrs. Raymond L. Briggs, and daughter, Patricia, Mrs. Rosalyn B. Sussan, Mr. Howard Wild and Miss Harriett Pattie, of Washington, D. C., were guests at the L. J. Pattie home during the week end.

Mrs. Frank Wood and little daughter, Fay Clark, of Lynchburg and Pvt. Randolph Wood, of the U. S. Army, at Edgewood, Md.; and Mr. Clark Hannon Wood, jr., of Lynchburg, have been guests of their parents, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wood at the "Parsonage".

Pvt. Harry M. Ellison, of Camp Croft, S. C., spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ellison.

Mrs. Sue C. Swart, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. Max Collins at Triangle, has gone to Atlantic City to spend some time with her sister, Miss Nan Cather.

Mrs. Lawrence Ayers, of Arlington, accompanied by Miss Stephenson, of Malone, N. Y., recently attended church at Sudley. Miss Stephenson is a niece of the late Mr. Harry J. Ayers.

The Hickory Grove Home Demonstration Group was most delightfully entertained at "Edge Hill", the hospitable and historic home of the Misses Ewell at the regular meeting, August 26. Many plans were made for future activities and committees appointed. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses for the afternoon.

Mr. E. N. Pattie and Mr. Lester Anderson accompanied Mr. Lyndon Anderson on their usual Labor Day week end vacation trip.

Miss Annie Troth, who will soon leave to teach school at Annandale, Fairfax County, spent a few days this week with Mrs. Etta Lynn and also visited Mrs. E. N. Pattie and other friends.

Mrs. Charles H. Munday and little daughter, Barbara Lee, were dinner guests of Mrs. Jennie McIntosh Sunday. Other callers Monday were Mr. J. E. Kidwell, of Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kidwell and others of the family, of Washington, D. C.

RADIO ADDRESSES BY SENATOR HARRY F. BYRD

The assigned subject of National Defense NOW is one directly vital to the lives and even the souls of every individual among us.

Tonight I want all of those who hear me to know I speak on the failures of our national defense program and of the delays in giving expeditious and effective aid to England as one who has supported, up to this time, all—every single one—of the foreign policies of the President of the United States, as one who is anxious to be helpful and to make these policies fully and quickly effective, as one who believes that the American people are entitled to know the truth respecting the progress of our defense program, that a free and frank discussion of the inefficiencies of disorganization and the unwarranted delays that have occurred will act as an incentive to remove the obstacles that now exist in the great effort our country is making.

If democracy means anything, it means that in times of great crisis the people should know the true facts upon which they must make vital decisions. Events in recent days make it more imperative than ever that the American people know the truth about the progress of our defense program and aid to England.

From the beginning of the European conflict I have believed that the surest way for America to avoid war is to be ready to repel any attack made upon us and to be prepared to conquer and destroy any nation or nations making that attack. I believe unstinted aid to England in war equipment and supplies is clearly to the interest of America, and that this assistance should be given today—now—and not further delayed. Already avoidable delays have diminished seriously the effectiveness of our assistance. We have done more in talking than in effective action.

The avoidance of war, except to repel attack by our own strong defense and by giving aid to England has been and will be the controlling influence in my official acts. In any event, in my judgment, it would be an act of utter folly to become a voluntary shooting belligerent in the European conflict in our present state of unpreparedness.

I am not an isolationist. I am not a pacifist. As a member of the Senate of the United States my concern is first and last the protection and security of our own Republic—to preserve our freedom and our American way of living—to cast my vote and act as an official of the United States Government solely to promote the best interests of America. I believe firmly that our safety lies in total preparedness for ourselves and giving aid to England in equipment and military supplies.

Winston Churchill said to America: "Give us the tools and we will finish the job". Anthony Eden, speaking for the English Government, only two days ago, said that the struggle will finally be decided in the quantity of production of mechanized war equipment, and he called for further efforts and further sacrifices in the immense task that lies ahead in the field of production. Speaking directly to America, Mr. Eden said: "All over the world we need your weapons—in Russia, in the Far East, in Libya and over Germany".

So far we have failed woefully in sending to England the fighting planes—the long-range, 4-engine bombers—the heavy tanks, the anti-aircraft guns, the merchant ships, the powder and the shells, all of which she must have.

On March 11, last, the distinguished Secretary of War, the Honorable Henry L. Stimson, said in a public address:

"A free government does not go to war until its people are convinced that such a course is necessary and that they have a just and necessary cause for going to war. They, the people," said Mr. Stimson, "are not afraid of the real news. What they want to be sure of is that there is no ballyhoo on one side and no sensational knocking on the other". Then Mr. Stimson made this very pertinent observation: "It is vital," he said, "that both the Army and the people behind it must know the real basic facts, free from any false exaggeration, either one way or the other."

The people of America are, as Secretary Stimson says, entitled to know the facts. They must know the facts, if this nation is to unite in an all-out preparedness effort for ourselves and for England, which means all-out sacrifice on the part of all our citizens. So long as our defense progress is measured in official statements by percentages of some previous production period, the people, of course, will never know the facts. We are told from time to time by our officials that the production now of tanks, for example, is 800 per cent over the production last December, and the production of other equipment is expressed in similar language. As not a single modern effective tank of the design now approved was produced last December, a production figure of 800 percent of zero still remains zero, and such statements are likely to be misleading to the public.

Just 2 years ago the war in Europe began. In this period, Germany has conquered and now occupies fourteen nations. The conquests were made by the effective use of superior military equipment; the coordination of huge tanks on the land and dive bombers in the air, complemented by all types of offensive and defensive equipment, adequately manned by trained personnel and with ample reserves to meet any reverses.

At the end of these two long years of ruthless and desperate struggle with the whole world engulfed in war, save only the Western Hemisphere, you and I and every other American citizen has the right—in fact in this free country it is our duty—to ask of those in authority for an accounting of what has been done to prepare our country for defense and to give to England quick aid so vital for our own protection.

The sum of 53 billion dollars, which has already been appropriated and authorized, is equal to about one-seventh of the total actual wealth of America, according to the most reliable estimates, a wealth the citizens of America have been accumulating by industry and frugality throughout the many years since our Republic was founded. The anticipated ultimate cost of 100 billions of dollars is more than one-fourth of this estimated wealth. And remember, these new costs must be pyramided upon an already top-heavy and burdensome public indebtedness incurred by profligate peace-time spending.

Speed in the achievement of the program is its greatest and most important factor. Speed in sending vital military equipment to England will shorten the war. The delays that have occurred and are occurring will lengthen the war. Speed in our own production for defense means our own security. Hitler does not wait for his adversaries to prepare. He strikes when they are unprepared, and this accounts for his phenomenal victories.

This is a mechanized war of great tanks, huge bombing planes and all implements of war so coordinated as to be effective in destruction than in any other war in the world's history.

Andre Maurios, renowned French author, said after the fall of France: "It is no mystery, but as a tragically simple explanation, the battle of France was not lost in the Spring of 1940 but between 1935 and 1939 in the factories of France. It is not so much a military defeat as an industrial defeat. France worked 40 hours a week and Germany 80 hours".

The failure of France to do the work and make the sacrifices essential for her defense destroyed her nation as a democracy. It gave England the closest call in the long and great history of that nation. Should we not profit by these examples?

Tonight I speak as an advocate of our American defense policy adopted by Congress which has been implemented by granting so far every single executive request. I have voted for the policy and all that has been described as required to carry it out.

All-out sacrifice and effort on the part of government, business and private citizens by all is required for its earliest and fullest consummation. The facts, figures, and conclusions presented to you are intended to embarrass no one. It is information which I know the American people are entitled to have. Those of us in public life can, I hope, discuss vital matters from the standpoint of high patriotism. It is vital, I think, for us to realize the facts as they are, and to blast ourselves out of the sixth column of deadly apathy. The sooner our national leadership provides the effective administrative machinery to do the job and convinces the country that we are not getting prepared as we should; that we are not sending the aid to England as quickly as England needs it; that we can only accomplish successfully the great task we have undertaken by all-out sacrifice and self-denial, the better our safety will be assured.

The figures on production which I presented to the Senate were secured from one of the very highest responsible government sources and, as I said in the Senate, are accurate in all essentials though, of course, may be approximate in some minor details. The fact that the President received somewhat conflicting figures from another source, no higher than mine, as to certain guns and tanks, indicates again the confusion that now exists in Washington with respect to our preparedness program.

The President admitted the accuracy of the plane production figures I used. Our low production of combat planes is the most glaring and conspicuous failure of our government in our own preparedness program and aid to England. The President did not question the small out-put of cargo ships and tankers so vitally needed by England in the war of the Atlantic. Neither was any question raised as to my statements on the construction of Naval vessels. Planes and ships are the most effective and important aid that we can render England, and are the most imperative need in our own defense.

As the production figures on military planes are agreed upon, the public has definite information and can decide whether or not our great nation has failed or succeeded in the production of these—the most vital equipment of all. It is, I think, the Number One failure. It was two years ago when the war began. We have had two years for preparation. From September 1, 1939 to September 1, 1941, our government has actually spent in cash for defense the great sum of ten billions of dollars. After all, it is only the facts that really count in the production of military equipment.

In my Senate speech I started that 60 heavy bombers were produced in July, but now I have positive and indisputable proof of the production of only 12 in June and only 14 in July. I say again, and I say it on the record, that two years after the war began and 14 months after the President called for 50,000 planes, the state of our production of combat planes, and especially heavy bombers, is one of the most discouraging chapters in our national defense program, and one that calls for such drastic action as may be necessary to remedy this failure. Combat planes are the first line of defense of America. If heavy bombers could be sent to England now at the rate of hundreds each month to bomb German, as Germany bombed England, the trend of the war would be infinitely more optimistic from our standpoint.

For the entire year 1940 only 43 merchant ships and tankers were constructed in America, and for the entire year 1941 only 105 merchant ships and tankers are expected to be built. This production for the whole year of 1941 is hardly more than the gross sinkings by the Germans in one of the heaviest casualty months. This I have in writing and is not denied.

The American Navy is equal to or better than any other Navy in the world. We have the best 1-ocean Navy in the World, but now we need desperately a 2-ocean Navy of at least 700 major vessels. This we will not have until 1946, five years hence, unless extraordinary means are taken to speed production. For the year 1941 only 28 major Naval vessels will be added—2 battleships, 17 destroyers, 9 submarines, no aircraft carriers and no cruisers. This I have in writing and it has not been denied.

In my Senate speech, I made the statement, and I repeat it now, that after two years of effort we have not produced a sufficient number of long-range anti-aircraft guns to protect one single city in America. At the present rate of production, as estimated by the President to be 61 90-M. M. anti-aircraft guns per month for the next four months, it will be several months before we will have sufficient long-range anti-aircraft guns to protect the City of New York, alone, which, it is said, would require 300. Not a single long-range 90-M.M. anti-aircraft gun has been sent to England.

In speaking of the lag in American defense production, the London New Statesman and Nation said in London yesterday: "The President's own figures of some 61 anti-aircraft guns, 72 anti-tanks guns and less than 700 operational aircraft in addition to 1,000 trainers are almost as shocking as the charges of Senator Byrd".

I want to assure my listeners that no one has "sold me down the river" on these figures. They come from the most authoritative sources and tell the true facts.

I want you to know of a letter I have seen from a boy who was drafted to go to the camps. He is no dissenter from our foreign policies. He is not complaining about the officers or about the Army. This letter reads:

"Get us some equipment to work with. We can't learn our coast artillery out of text-books. We've got to have practice firing. And what have we got? We've finally acquired one 37-M.M. gun for our battery, and we're supposed to have eight. No ammunition, and we have never been out on the range with it. Give the men the equipment", he said, "give them something with which to work and they'll turn into a swell outfit. But until you do, the men might just as well be back at their civilian jobs".

Unfortunately, this situation is not a singular case. We have 1,545,000 officers and men in training, but mostly lacking the huge quantities of specialized and complicated equipment, without which any Army today would be helpless and hopeless.

Is there any wonder that the boys in the camps, who are being trained with wooden guns and trucks camouflaged as tanks feel that the sacrifice they are making is not being utilized to the best advantage?

Today is Labor Day and I well know the average working man is among the most patriotic of American citizens, but a shortsighted minority should not be allowed to delay our program of preparedness by strikes in defense industries. Since January, nearly 6,000,000 man days have been lost by strikes in Army and Navy defense contracts. This number of man days applied to the construction of heavy, 4-engine bombers would produce 1,000. For the emergency, the 40-hour work week in defense work should be suspended, and every defense plant placed on a full work week.

The administrative machinery still requires further reorganization. The new board just appointed by the President serves the useful purpose of defining the duties between Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Henderson, both able men, but who have been attempting to function under an almost unbelievable overlapping of authority and conflicting efforts. Yet, after all, the job of spending billions for defense is an executive one. One man, and we should have the ablest citizen in America, can do a better job in executive management than a 7-man board super-imposed on other boards. Let us have a procurement director for all military supplies with the power to act.

We have before us the tragic example of conquered people who were once free and are now slaves, because they did not recognize their dangers; because they were unwilling to change their accustomed mode of living; because they would not give up their luxuries; because they preferred the soft and easy life to that of sacrifice and self-denial.

In America, the greatest of all democracies, we must demonstrate a democracy can be efficient and effective; that a democracy can be strong and hard, if need be; that a democracy can act firmly, wisely, and expeditiously.

This is our obligation—yours and mine—we must not fail!

FARM SECURITY OFFICE OFFERS COOKING ADVICE

Here are some of the basic cooking principles to know.

When cooking vegetables, remember to use little water. Cook them a short time and never add soda to the cooking water. When you cook green vegetables, leave the lid off the pan. Serve the liquid the vegetables are cooked in—either with the vegetable, or in soups, sauces, or gravies.

Cook all protein foods—meat, eggs, cheese and milk—at low to moderate temperatures all through the cooking period. High temperatures toughen protein.

The modern method of cooking all meat is to use moderate temperature during all the cooking time. Tender cuts of meat are cooked with no water in an uncovered pan. Tender meats include all cuts of pork and lamb—certain parts of beef—and young well fattened birds.

There's a special method to make cheaper, tougher cuts of meat tender. That is to brown the less-tender cut in hot fat. Then cook it slowly with added liquid in a covered pan. The steam formed by adding water and keeping the lid on the pan is just what is needed to soften meat that has tough connective tissue. Or tough meat may be ground or chopped to break up this tissue—then cooked as though it were tender.

Every modern cook should know about temperature control, not only for meats—but for many oven dishes. In cooking with fat, too, the right temperature can spell success. Fat that gets to the smoking point spoils the flavor of food cooked in it and makes it less digestible.

Lumpy foods are something no good cook can tolerate. It's easy to avoid them by blending starchy material with a little liquid, then carefully stirring this into the rest of the mixture. Or in making gravy or white sauce, cook the flour with the fat to add flavor. Then gradually add the cold liquid and stir until you get that perfect blend.

There are no tested rules for seasoning foods. But it's an art well-worth practicing to perfect. Experiment with herbs in poultry stuffing, in a meat loaf, or a vegetable curry. Try different taste contrasts—a dash of lemon with melon, a spicy sauce on beets, or mint stuffing with roast lamb.

And above all, learn to cook quickly and easily so you won't be worn out at meal time, so that you, too, can taste the element of human satisfaction in the food that you have prepared.

LET'S MAKE KILOWATT HOURS COUNT!!

LET'S PRODUCE!

DO YOU KNOW!

- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity will cool ten gallons of milk for one day.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity will grind one hundred pounds of grain.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity will milk one cow for twenty days.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity will grind forty-eight axe heads or eight mower blades.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity will light a one hundred red-bird Poultry House for six days.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity hoists two tons of hay.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity cuts one-half cord of wood.
- 1 Kilowatt Hour of Electricity cuts one ton of ensilage.

Farmers, the nation wide over, are being called into action to produce—to produce "Food for Defense".

A nation to remain strong and free must be well fed. We, the farmers of the United States, have a personal responsibility in this program of production.

So vital is this program regarded by our leaders that recent curtailments of installment credit exempted those appliances and implements which increased farm production.

There is a definite need now for milk, butter, eggs, cheese and other dairy products, which we of this locality are adapted to produce.

So let's avoid wasteful use of power. Let's put it to work in production of foods necessary for the health and strength of our nation, to resist aggression.

Let's make kilowatt hours count!
