WAGENER PRIZE OFFERED AGAIN

Rules Announced For Current Year By Donor Of Prize

Starting in a few weeks, The Journal plans to print a series of weekly book reviews, written by students of the Osbourn High School, Manassas, in competition for the W. C. Wagener Memorial Prize, which is now offered for the third consecutive year.

Clarence Wagener, as during the past two school sessions, will give a prize for the best book review written by a member of the third or fourth class of the Osbourn High School and printed in The Journal between October 23, 1941 and May 14, 1942.

Not more than twenty-eight students may compete, because of the limited number of publication dates. It's a case of first come, first served. But not less than fifteen students must sign up, else the prize offer will be null and void. Friday, October 10, 1941, is the last day on which entries can be received.

All books reviewed must be obtainable on loan from the Ruffner-Carnegie Library. No book review is to exceed 400 words. No book reviewed by Clarence Wagener in 1938-39 or by a student competing for the W. C. Wagener Memorial Prize or the Supplementary Prize during the 1939-41 and 1940-41 sessions is eligible for review this session.

Three judges are to be selected one judge each by Prof. Worth Peters, Principal; Miss Eugenia Osbourn, Librarian, and Mrs. Keith Lyons, Teacher of English, of the Osbourn High School.

The winner, to be announced at the 1942 banquet of the Manassas High School Alumni Association, will receive the W. C. Wagener Memorial Prize, consisting of a Certificate of achievement and the following books, which will soon be placed on display at the library:

"George Washington," a two-volume biography by Joseph Dillaway Sawyer, with 1500 illustrations, including 250 portraits of Washington; "Dante's Divine Comedy," with illustrations by Dore; "Oriental Odyssey," essays by Bob Davis; "The Story of Evolution," by Benjamin C. Gruenberg; "To My Father," a novel by Charles Wertenbaker; "The Cleft Stick," a volume of short stories by Walter Greenwood.

Mr. Wagener also repeats the supplementary prize offer. He will give a copy of "The Pageant of Civilization," by Arthur G. Brodeur, to the student of the first or second year class of the Osbourn High School who writes the best book review (a minimum of twelve such students must compete) submitted on or before Friday April 10, 1942. No book reviews by first or second year students can be printed.

DEFENSE COUNCIL TO SALVAGE IRON, RUBBER, PAPER AND OTHER SCRAP MATERIAL

Gardner L. Boothe, Chairman of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council, announced this week that the Council would wage a salvage campaign throughout the region to collect iron, rubber, paper, and other waste materials, the shortage of which is interfering with the defense program.

M. J. O'Connell of Warrenton has been appointed Regional Chairman of the Salvage Campaign. The materials collected will be sold by the Council and the proceeds devoted to the Council's recreation program.

Mr. O'Connell will set up Salvage Committees in each of the thirteen counties and the two cities in the Council area. One-half of the proceeds from the sale of the scrap material will remain in the area in which it is collected, and half be turned over to the Regional Recreation Committee to be used for overall work in the region.

Charles R. Fenwick, Chairman of the Regional Recreation Committee of the Council stated after a meeting with Mr. O'Connell this week that his committee would give Mr. O'Connell every possible assistance in the campaign.

The recreation work of the Council, said Mr. Fenwick, falls into two classes—entertainment of the selectees in the several localities and soldier recreation centers at points near military reservations where no facilities are provided from public funds, such as are now in operation in Arlington and Alexandria. According to Mr. Fenwick local recreation committees will be aided in providing shelter and entertainment for soldiers at points where convoys rest overnight. Mr. Fenwick pointed out that Warrenton, Virginia is one such convey resting place. A few weeks ago a local Warrenton committee set up emergency rest rooms, where 800 men were provided showers and refreshments on a few hours notice. The Council plans to provide similar facilities wherever need arises.

PROMIENT CIVIC LEADERS DESCRIBE ADVANTAGES OF NAVY TRAINING

Since Secretary Knox announced the enlistment drive for Uncle Sam's new Two-Ocean Navy several weeks ago, many young men have asked if they were eligible to enlist without a high school education.

Mr. C. W. Staggs the American Legion Post answers this important question for the young men of Manassas.

"Navy enlistees do not have to be high school graduates," said Commander Staggs. "Any ambitious and patriotic young fellow who wants to serve his country has that opportunity now by joining the United States Navy or Naval Reserve. Of course, he must be of average intelligence, good character and be able to pass certain physical and mentally examinations. Now, more than ever before the Navy needs men of that type."

"All applicants, whether or not they have high school diplomas, are given an elementary examination containing about 100 questions," explained Commander Staggs. "Those receiving a grade of 50 per cent or more satisfy Navy educational standards. 'Naturally, a high school education is helpful in the Navy, just as it is in civilian life,' points out Professor R. Worth Peters, principal of Manassas High School."

"There are certain advantages for the high school graduate in the Navy," said Mr. Peters. "He has a wider background to call upon in earning advancement in position and pay. For example, men who are proficient in English may be sent to one of the Navy's communications or clerical schools. Recruits with a knowledge or aptitude for handling tools might be marked for a trade or engineering course. Men with college educations may qualify for midshipman's training courses in the Naval Reserve and after their schooling period they will report for active duty as officers with the rating of ensign."

The Navy has four excellent trade schools to which new recruits in either the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve may be sent after a training period, providing they pass entrance examinations with sufficiently high grades. At these schools they will be trained in any one of nearly fifty skilled trades or vocations to which their aptitudes suit them and will receive free schooling valued at hundreds of dollars in addition to their regular Navy pay. Such an education is valuable for advancement in the Navy and in later civilian life," he concluded.

KIWANIANS PRESIDE AT YOUTH ASSEMBLY

A number of talks by past president was the feature put on by the Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting on Friday night last.

A. A. Hooff, as chairman of the program, called on five past presidents to talk on assigned subjects. They were all very good and constituted a sort of taking stock of what the club had done and might do in the future for the individual in the club and for the community as a whole.

On Tuesday evening, at the invitation of Kiwanian J. R. Royer, a portion of the club, took over the assembly at the State Vocational School. It was a varied presentation, consisting of music by a high school octette presented by professor Peters.

The "Red Snappers" have been working hard under their coach, Herbert Saunders, and expect to give the visitors a battle all afternoon.

The Front Royal Team lost several of their players through graduation last year, but is expected to possess a well balanced team again this year. The visitors have handed the "Red Snappers" two defeats in as many seasons.

The following boys make-up the local team: Frank Parrish, Capt; Frank Beeton, Thomas Breedon, Billy Hinton, George Oleyar, Edward Jasper, C. H. PATRONS GREET MANASSAS FACILITIES

A large group of patrons assembled in the Manassas High School auditorium last Thursday evening to welcome the new teachers of Bennett and Osbourn schools and to greet those teachers who are returning here. The following new teachers answered the roll call: Misses Carrie Lanford, Alice Nelson, Evelyn Hall, Lillian Knight, Sarah Latham, Marion Broadus; Elizabeth Trueheart, Sadie Gravely and Mr. Reams Bennett.

The new president, Mrs. A. O. Beane, presided during the short business session held before the reception, and proudly announced that the local association had been awarded the silver cup for the greatest increase in membership during the past school year of any unit in the State Parent-Teacher Association.

Following committee reports, which showed much activity during the summer months in library and pre-school round up work, plans for Adult Group Study classes were discussed by the new chairman, Mrs. P. A. Lewis.

Mrs. Richard Haydon listed the following objectives to be undertaken by the organization this term:

1. To promote libraries-including materials for parents.
2. To sponsor and advance the work of the pre-school committee.
3. To sponsor a study group.
4. To bring the school and the home into closer relationship through Room Mothers.
5. To cooperate with the teachers financially in any program of work requested, as far as possible.
6. To promote a sound health program.
7. To intensify the efforts to maintain the standards of the community and safeguard the character and morals of our children and youth.

A delightful musical program was presented under direction of Mrs. Vincent Davis. After group singing, Mr. Garrett Turner, of the Manassas State Vocational School, sang two solos, with Mr. Cleveland Fiesher accompanying at the piano.

Mr. Richard Haydon, County School Superintendent, made a most interesting talk, stressing the need for cooperation between parents and teachers in planning the child's future.

Mrs. Breedon's fifth grade room won the attendance banner. The social committee served delicious punch and cake during the reception.

ago with the present time. Mr. Hynson also brought in some nature readings of a lighter vein.

Reverend J. J. Widmer gave two of his inimicable monologues which went over big.

"Government for the People" was discussed on by Professor Sigman. It was very apropos of the present national and international situation, and much appreciated by his audience.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Reality" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ. Scientist, on Sunday, September 28.

The Golden Text will be "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth:
and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind" (Isa.
65:17).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Rom. 8:28).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth has no consciousness of error. Love has no sense of hatred. Life has no partnership with death. Truth, Life, and Love are a law of annihilation to everything unlike themselves, because they declare nothing except God" (p. 243).

THE BIG BAD BURGLAR

A large house,
A small mouse,
A few crumbs of new cheese;
Tearing claws,
Bury jaws,
Then a tight hurried squeeze.

A large bowl,
A small hole,
A few curves of bright steel;
Not a sound
All around,

Then—a faint strangled squeal.

MEMORIES

In loving memory of Clay Arnold who departed September 24, 1914.
Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one laid to rest
And the ones who think of him today
Are ones that loved him best.

Of times my thoughts go wandering
To the grave not far away
Where lies the sweetest one to me,
My love for him will never fade.

Years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never—
The happy days when we were to-

NOKESVILLE N. B. CHURCH WILL DEDICATE NEW PARSONAGE

The Nokesville Church of the Brethren will have a service of dedication for its new parsonage Sunday, September 28. Rev. Cecil O. Showalter of Sipesville, Pennsylvania, who was acting pastor of the local church at the time the parsonage was started last spring, will preach the dedicatory sermon at the regular morning worship service at eleven o'clock.

The afternoon service is being planned especially as a home-coming service for members, former members, and friends of the church who now reside elsewhere. The various ministers who have served the church during its entire history have been invited to attend and participate in this service. A brief review of the history of the local church will be given, mentioning some of the most notable achievements from the beginning of the church until the present.

Basket dinner will be served in the church dining room at 12:15. Following this there will be a period for fellowship with old friends and acquaintances. The afternoon service will begin at two o'clock.

Feeling the need of a permanent parsonage as the home of the pastor, the Nokesville church decided in business meeting last spring to build a house suitable for that purpose.
Under the leadership of the building committee, with John Miller as Chairman, the house was planned and built largely by local workers, much of the labor being donated. The building is now practically finished, and is already occupied by the pastor of the church, Olden D. Mitchell. The parsonage is a brick cased house, semi-bungalow design. Besides the nine rooms and bath, there is a full basement, hot and cold water, and a hot water heating system. The parsonage is a valuable asset to the church, and is greatly appreciated by the members as well as other people in the community.
The public is cordially invited to attend and participate in the Dedicatory Services.

TROOP MOVEMENTS IN VIRGINIA IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Officials of the II Army Corps, headquarters of which are in the Willard Hall Junior High School Building in Wilmington, Delaware announced today that the Corp's three divisions and special and attached troops had been issued march tables which just about place every vehicle leaving for First Army Maneuvers in North Carolina this week at a specified place and at a specified time.

Approximately 12,000 trucks, command cars, and staff cars will make up the convoys, in which units of the 28th and 44th Divisions, stationed at Indiantown Gap, Pa., and Fort Dix, N. J. are scheduled to have their home camps Thursday evening. The 29th Division from Fort Meade, Maryland now at A. P. Hill Military Reservation near Fredericksburg, Virginia and the last of the Headquarters II Army Corps Staff and Headquarters Company will not leave until Friday morning.

A large number of officers of the staff of the II Army Corps will leave Thursday to serve as liaison officers with each of the march columns. The march south to North Carolina is under strict II Army Corps control and columns will be required to clear definite points enroute by a definite time. While this is expected of any military movement it is essential in this case for marching behind units of the II Army Corps will come the VI Army Corps troops from the northeastern section of the country. The VI Army Corps will follow the II Army Corps into the Carolina maneuver area.

The VI Army Corps has the 1st Regular Army Division from Fort Devens and the 26th National Guard Division from Camp Edwards. In addition to the two divisions there will be VI Army Corps troops and additional First Army troops attached to the VI Army Corps for the march south.

The 44th Division, moving in 2,300 trucks, will roll southward in two columns, with points in northern Virginia as their first overnight stop. One column will use Route No. 1 and 30 from Trenton, Philadelphia and Gettysburg, Pa., then Hagerstown, Md., by Routes Nos. 116, 16, and 60, and then to Winchester, Va., by U. S. Route No. 11, where they will remain the first night.

The second column will move to Philadelphia by way of the Camden Delaware River Bridge, thence to Baltimore, Md., by U. S. Route No. 1; to Frederick, Md., by Route No. 40, and then south to Point of Rocks and Lucketts, Va., for the night halt.

The division will spend Saturday and Sunday nights in bivouac, one column at Buena Vista, and the other at Buckingham, Va. The entire division will sleep in Greensboro, N. C., Monday night, arriving at Wadesboro Tuesday.

The 28th Division, which will bivouac the first night near Winchester in the point of Rocks area, will use Routes 11, 29, and 15. The second night will be spent in the Buena Vista-Buckingham, Va., areas, and then they will leave for Greensboro, N. C. Members of Headquarters II Army Corps will leave the Willard Hall School Building around dawn Friday in a convoy consisting of between 60 and 70 vehicles. They will go through Baltimore to Washington on U. S. Route No. 40, where they will take Route 211 to Warrenton, Virginia, the first night stop. Saturday the men are scheduled to reach Durham, N. C. where they will bivouac until Monday, leaving then for their permanent camp during the maneuvers at Wadesboro.

Although the 28th and 44th Divisions are pulling out at night, most of the traveling will be done in the daytime with the usual two-hour stops. Meals will be cooked enroute on gasoline field ranges.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

My parents will have their children come to the daily Bible school, and will prove to them the power of the Bible. And they said, let us build a city and a tower, whose top may reach to heaven, and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.—Genesis 11:4.

NO BREATHING SPELL FOR DIXIE

We are encountering numerous evidences that during the national emergency, while we are putting forth our best efforts to sustain the Administration in all-out aid to Britain, we are not to be allowed a breathing spell so far as Anti-Southern attitudes of the Washington Government are concerned.

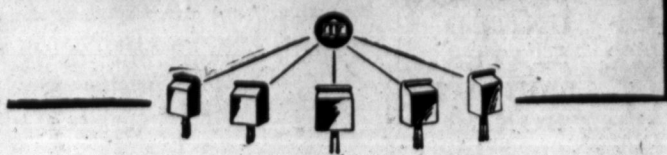

We see this possibility in recent utterances of the Attorney General which indicate that the present emergency will be utilized to further "social gains" of the New Deal. We see it in the recent mediation decisions which penalized the Southern coal industry in favor of Northern operators. We see it in the continuation of discriminatory interstate freight tariffs favoring Northern manufacturers, and within the last few days we note it especially in the milk situation, where a determined effort is being made to ruin the dairy industry of northern Virginia by opening the Washington City milk market to the middle-western states.

We are fortunate in having so staunch a defender in Congress as Representative Howard Smith who right now is making a determined and forceful fight to maintain the present high health regulations which are in force in the District of Columbia.

The citizens of Washington ought to be alive to the dangers which will accompany the opening of distant supplies to Washington. Milk bootlegging will unquestionably thrive under the new proposals. But whether Washingtonians are concerned or not, the main industry of Northern Virginia faces ruin in this recent proposal and every one of us, regardless of occupation would be affected.

We, therefore, appreciate the great fight Representative Ho-

Editor,
Manassas Journal.
Dear Sir:

I read an article in your paper on September 18, 1941 on "Bobwhite quail Restocking Begins. Said item refers to six thousand birds to be released in Virginia this fall. Consider as an example the planting of half grown game, wild turkeys and quails in early winter to fall easy prey to hunters, foxes, cats, hawks and owls.

Old hunters say that a covey reduced to four members has a small chance of surviving through the winter. Others contend that the covey cannot make a comeback unless it keeps as many as eight birds for disease and natural Predators such as hawks, owls, foxes and cats take a toll as well as gunners. Quail roost on the ground in a circle with their heads facing outward; this formation gives them a certain amount of protection and perhaps warmth as well. But when the birds are no longer protected by their own healthy numbers the snow and ice of hard winter may weaken them to the disappearing point. This reflects shows ignorance on the part of the conservation officials or else it is done to avoid feeding the young birds and turkeys during the winter at the expense of the department or could the item referred to be mere propaganda issued to expand the sale of hunting license.

R. O. Bibb

OLD RED HOUSE TAVERN

The uncovering of a small column of English brick on the site of Red House Tavern at Haymarket yesterday, revives interest in this mysterious old structure. Thought to have been built soon after 1755, on the land of William Skinner, on what was later to be known as Lot 64 or 65 of the "Town of Hay Market" and destroyed by fire around 1800; these dates are but speculation. Even the names of those licensed as inn keepers in the days of its prosperity, are lost to us through destruction of the early court records of Prince William County.

What we do know is the fact that the tavern was a large red brick structure, long and low, with a porch across the front, no doubt plentifully plastered with notices of run away slaves, sale of horses and other public notices; and that it stood at the intersection of the old Carolina Road and the Dumfries tobacco road to Thoroughfare Gap. The original well, 72 feet deep, still supplies cold and excellent water.

The red brick construction of English brick, is responsible for the name of "Red House", and on a map of 1787 by Thomas Jefferson, this locality is so designated. The name of "HayMarket" did not come into existence until 1798.

THE OBSERVER SAYS

We are reluctant to start calling names, but when the safety of the country is at stake many of the ordinary amenities should be dispensed with, even where members of the gentler sex are concerned. Women have been found more ruthless and effective than men in spy work and in subversive activities, and they play a very cunning role in many of the Communist schemes now in operation, particularly in the South where they naturally enjoy great immunity because of the general acceptance here of the ideals of chivalry.

It is not against the law to be a Communist. No one can be arrested and held for holding certain views. It is only when Communists break the laws of the land and commit overt acts that they can be legally apprehended, and when they do this, no matter how unimportant their illegal acts may appear, they should be taken into custody. There are two important reasons for this action. In the first place they should be restrained wherever possible because they are also doing a lot in most cases which has not been detected. In the second place it is important to see who will come to their rescue, either by offering bail from jail, or by loud accusations of persecutions and charges of violation of constitutional rights.

So this week we depart from our original intention of refraining from calling names, especially where women are concerned, and specifically mention the arrest last week in Richmond of the Communist candidate for Governor of Virginia, Mrs. Alice Burke was taken into custody there on request of Alabama authorities. According to press reports she is wanted, together with a man listed as Wirt R. Taylor, for having escaped a fine and prison sentence imposed in Birmingham several years ago. She immediately was bailed out by an Aubrey H. Straus, Chairman of "The Virginia Committee on Constitutional Rights" and a friend listed as Samuel Leibowitz.

Our readers will see this name of Alice Burke on the ballot next November as Communist Candidate for Governor of Virginia, but they will not see the names anywhere of the Fifth Column which is formed in Virginia to back up her subversive activity, and it is this Communist Fifth Column about which we are chiefly concerned at this time in Fairfax County. There is a very definitely organized Nazi Fifth Column also, but their activities, while generally more brutal in inspiration, may be regarded also as more stupid in execution, and less dangerous, at least at the present time. Our Nazi Fifth Column is bad enough to be sure, but its leaders are not the past masters of propaganda that are the Communist Fifth Columnists. In comparison with the cohorts of Joseph Stalin in this country the Bundists, while certainly dangerous, may be considered a group of fat-head, pretzel eating, beer-drinking chumps.

"NAVY INTELLIGENCE"

Is it necessary to be a high school graduate in order to enlist in the Navy?

No. Navy enlistees need not be high school graduates. All applicants will be given an examination containing approximately 100 questions. A grade of 50 per cent or better on this examination is sufficiently high to pass the Navy educational standards. However, a high school education will be valuable to the seaman during his Navy enlistment.

If I enlist in the Navy or Naval Reserve, will I be sent to a Navy Trade School?

All new recruits are sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and after a training period they may take examinations for entrance into Navy Trade Schools. Those recruits who pass their examinations with sufficiently high grades are sent to Navy Trade Schools before assignment to the fleet. While attending these schools, they will receive regular Navy pay and free schooling valued at $1500.

What is the greatest possible pay I can expect to earn during my first term of enlistment? It is possible to earn as much as $126 a month by the end of your first term of enlistment, and remember that your clothing, lodging, medical and dental care are all supplied free.

After I have served my term of enlistment, what benefits do I get for re-enlistment?

Depending on your rate and length of service, you can get a cash bonus up to $300 plus 30 days leave with pay.

What does the term "ash can" mean in the Navy?

An "ash can" is a slang term applied to the depth charge used to combat submarines. The average "ash can" is a container filled with approximately 300 pounds of T.N.T. and can be dropped overboard from a ship and so controlled as to explode at depths ranging from 36 to 300 feet. These are generally carried by the fast ships in the fleet, as a boat dropping a charge regulated to explode at 70 feet depth must move away from the explosion area at a speed of 25 knots or more. These "ash cans" are either rolled off the stern or shot from "y-guns" which hurl one right and one left simultaneously.

WHAT IS INFLUENZA?

"Influenza is a very contagious disease which attacks the air passages or organs with which we breathe. It occurs in the form of epidemics varying considerably in extent and intensity. Some affect a small number of people and do not spread very far. Others attack many persons and spread extensively. Many think of influenza as meaning any bad cold. Frequently it is difficult for the physician at the outset to distinguish between them. However, influenza is a true disease due to a special kind of virus or germ so small that it cannot be seen even by the use of a microscope," states Dr. I. C. Riggan, State Health Commissioner.

"Influenza spreads from person to person by means of 'droplet infection', that is by small drops of moisture or mucus containing the virus and thrown off into the air by coughing, sneezing, laughing, or even loud talking on the part of one who has these germs. This disease also is spread through handling or using handkerchiefs, drinking cups, and other articles soiled by the discharges of one who has the germs in his nose or his throat.

"While influenza may begin very much like a cold, the symptoms usually are more severe. In most cases the victim feels sick rather suddenly. He feels weak. His head, back, and limbs ache. Most patients complain of feeling chilly. A fever in which the temperature rises to 100 to 104 develops. Many patients feel dizzy. The patient looks and feels sick. A dry, hacking cough may develop, but very little is brought up with the cough. In three or four days as the temperature begins to fall the patient begins to feel better and recovery begins. Usually it takes several days at least for the patient to be in condition to return to his normal duties and it may take much longer. Weakness and depression may be quite marked and distressing symptoms may arise if he attempts his full activity too soon. There is great danger too of the development of serious complications if time is not allowed for recovery, or if proper care is not taken during the actual illness.

"When influenza cases are numerous, in an effort to prevent getting it one should: 1. Keep away from those who are coughing and sneezing; 2. Stay out of the room where a person is sick with a respiratory disease unless needed to look after the patient; 3. Do not put fingers, articles of others or anything into the mouth that does not belong there; 4. Avoid the use of common utensils and articles; 5. Keep away from crowds, insofar as possible, especially crowds indoors.

"If to these precautions are added the main rules to keep the body strong including wholesome diet, obtaining plenty of sleep, avoiding fatigue and cold, proper ventilation, and a reasonable amount of exercise regularly in the open air, one's personal defense will have been developed just about as much as it is possible to do so.

"However, if in spite of precautions or through neglect one gets influenza, then to bed at once, send for the physician and implicitly follow his instructions. Any other plan is foolhardy, dangerous, and easily can be disastrous."

MILTON WRITES ABOUT EXPERIENCES IN ENGLAND

By W. B. Lee Milton
British Air Transport Auxiliary
White Waltham Aerodrome, Maidenhead, England—It looks as if I will be in school until the middle of October, and I am receiving training that can't be bought. Eventually the pilot who makes good will fly almost every type of service aircraft, and be backed by a ground and flight training that has taken nothing for granted. We have to adjust ourselves to English methods and to conditions peculiar to England, but these British don't miss a trick.

I have been going to London every week-end for a day, and am now able to find my way around without asking many questions. There is something unique about London, that even the war has not erased. I expect you would call it an atmosphere suggestive of all the culture that England possesses, which has been further enriched by the matchless courage the British civilian population have shown in this war.

Of course there is the seamy side, that is part of the backwash of all war, but it doesn't obscure the better things. There have been a few raids recently, which are just as nerve wracking as the more destructive big raids. And talking about raids, I have been in one. It was accompanied by all the noise and drone of motors and the thought, I wonder where the next one is going to drop. I am sure that if the American people ever have the misfortune to face falling bombs that there will be a general cry for bigger and deeper holes—and I won't blame them a bit.

People are just as nice as they can be to Americans. While taking dinner at the Mayfair Hotel in London last week, an Army Major, seeing that I was alone, came over to my table and invited me to join his party. I spent a delightful evening with them. That's just one example. Later in the evening, after my hosts had gone, I was invited to the table of a French movie actress—and that's another example. But my friends can relax, because everything went off in the most proper way.

I have talked to a lot of people. I had a most interesting conversation with a Polish air pilot recently. He told me that his people are bound together by the closest ties, they count relationships as far back as 300 years. In other words, if you had a great-grandfather in common ten generations back, this Pole would call you cousin. If you possessed the dignity of age, you would be called uncle. That's why the Poles fight with such fierce vengeance, they lost so many relatives.

Last night I had supper at Clivedon with Lady Astor. After 35 years in England she's still a Virginian, and nice and plain as an old shoe. I sat next to George Bernard Shaw and I never talked to a more delightful person. He is simply alive with brilliant conversation. I was amused at his comment on the ocean meeting of the President and Mr. Churchill.

Mr. Shaw is young for his age, both mentally and physically, and is a very humble person. He has a way of saying things so that you never know whether he is jesting or serious—and yet everything he says is pregnant with truth. I was impressed by the fact that he is a very religious person—and of course no sham whatsoever. He calls a spade a spade. His conversation is just like his plays. Marshall and myself stayed until late and needless to say it was an evening we will never forget.

Spiritually the picture here is much the same as in America. The churches are relatively empty. It's a shame. One wonders how we are going to have enough spiritual quality left in England and America to build the kind of world we say we are fighting for. It seems to me that there is a lot in this world that isn't worth shedding a drop of blood to preserve, but it's worth fighting for a chance to build into the fabric of human nature the eternal qualities that Christ died for. And the Church is either going to wake up and lead the way or simply perish.

Personally I was never more convinced of my responsibilities as a clergyman—and I do have a grand opportunity among these men. I know what is to be denied the opportunity of attending church. I was on duty for five Sundays and had to take my services in the mid-week. Last Sunday I had the chance to go to the eleven o'clock service. Honestly, if I couldn't have walked there I would have crawled.

There are a large number of Americans in every branch of His Majesty's service, and the American Eagle Club on Charing Cross Road in London is doing a splendid job of providing little comforts and entertainment, with inadequate facilities. My thought is this—don't relax for a minute any effort that adds to the comfort of the British soldiers and people—but can't something be done for the Americans?

Few of us know what an American cigarette looks like any more. There

"Imagine me, steering a Destroyer!"
