

OLDER MEN MUST REGISTER

Draft Board Sending Out Detailed Inquiry

From Washington has come the announcement that registration of the older group, ages 45 to 64, inclusive, has been set for April 27. It is estimated that around fifteen million men will sign up on this date for possible non-combatant service.

Selective Service Boards throughout Virginia and the Nation are busy sending out the occupational questionnaires to the men who registered on February 16, who fall between the ages of 35 to 44, inclusive. The big four-page inquiry will also go in due time to the older men who are to register on April 27.

This occupational questionnaire, printed on yellow card-board and in close small type is designed to uncover millions of men now working on jobs of no particular value to the Nation's war effort who can be placed in war work, frequently with no great hardship either to themselves or to their dependents, but who, if the need should become sufficiently acute, will be called anyway.

Two hundred occupations are listed and every registrant will be required to check every job on the list they have ever held, and to add any skill not listed. Carpenters, dairy and farmhands, plumbers, electricians, printers, automobile mechanics, welders and almost every mechanical skill of war value is covered.

A unique feature of this occupational classification is the section for professional and scientific workers. Here are found architects, biologists, chemists, dentists, lawyers, physicians, veterinarians, and a blank place for any profession not listed among the 36 professions named. And the registrant is asked if he has ever registered with the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel, Washington, D. C. This agency is collecting information with professional and scientific ability. It has no authority other than voluntary persuasion at present, since the Selective Service Boards seem to possess plenty of authority right now to place all registrants where Uncle Sam wants them.

As registrants receive this occupational questionnaire they are allowed 10 days to fill it out and get it back to their Selective Service Boards. They have to fill it out in duplicate, and instructions are given how to properly fold the document so it can be mailed without having to attach any postage.

ALL-NIGHT BLACKOUTS COMING SOON

All sections of Virginia should prepare for all-night blackouts.

This warning has been issued from the State Civilian Headquarters in Richmond.

Counties adjoining the metropolitan area of Washington already know what this means. They are finding out that it is not sufficient merely to pull the electric light switch or blow out the lights. It is necessary to fix up at least one room in the house which can really be blacked out, so that the family activities can go on with no light visible from the outside.

Along the Atlantic coast lights which can be seen from the sea are being permanently extinguished or shielded. It has been discovered that submarines can easily see ships which pass between them and an illuminated shore-line.

SENIOR PLAY WELL PRESENTED

Annual Event Of Osbourn High School Greatly Enjoyed

The annual Spring play of the Senior class of Manassas High School was presented Friday night with all the nicety of a professional group. The ensemble showed the effects of weeks of careful training by an expert in amateur theatricals (Mrs. Vincent Davis) who picked her characters with great care and wove them into the picture with precision that deserves much praise.

The play is about a small town girl (Frances Brower) who yearns for a glamorous career at Hollywood. She is aided and abetted by a faithful pal (Mary Alice Slusher). On the other side of the picture is her adoring swain (Dickie Haydon) who is willing to abase himself in any fashion (and does it) to stop his best girl from going haywire. His resourceful ally Frank Beeton, who is also willing to take it in their frantic schemes, sticks with him to a hilarious finish.

The properties squad had a job to do which was harder than for the usual play, and last but not least was the curtain hand (Wallace Bolding) who snapped the proscenium at exactly the right second.

The little maid (Marie Dozier) was scintillating in her unaffected manner and got the big hand which she deserved.

Coming from what started out to be a small part, Sylvia Prost was a most charming prospect for the author (John Broadus, Jr.).

Eddie Jasper put on all of the swag of a bragging publicity man. As an absent minded father, Joe Johnson had a small speaking part but which demand expert reserve and timing in action. Dorothy Lawson, as the very pretty and also very busy mother, was a regular little dynamo.

Frank Parrish as a farm enthusiast was quite natural in his attitude, almost as natural as the little granny (Betty Thomas) who really had one of the key parts.

Those with less difficult parts but who did their respective jobs just as the French designer and his models, well as the others were Harold Hersch, Shirley Davis, Naomi Mauck and Marguerite Wood.

Jack Burchard went through his serio-comic appearance with approved style and that just about sizes up the cast.

BASEBALL PRACTICE BEGINS MARCH 30

The Manassas Macs, local baseball team will begin practice on Monday, March 30, at 6 o'clock. All old and new members are asked to be present. The first practice is essential to every member of the squad. Maurie Smith manager of the local team this year, urges every boy that is interested in baseball to please be present.

No Sales To Be Allowed During Week Of Registration

From Chicago it has been announced by Acting Chief John E. Hamm, of the Office of Price Administration, that all sugar sales throughout the United States will be halted at midnight, April 27, and remain stopped for a week.

Then around May 4 or 5 the biggest national registration in the history of the country will begin as individuals would begin registering at the public elementary schools and be issued their ration books. The Chicago announcement, dated March 21, states that wholesalers, bakers, confectioners and other industrial users would register April 28 and 29 at High Schools.

It is stated that a number of administrative details remain to be worked out, including determination of the amount of sugar which will be allowed each individual—probably either a half pound, or three-fourths of a pound, per week. However the general plan seems to follow the pattern announced three weeks ago and then withdrawn.

One member of a household, it is stated, can sign up for the whole family, giving the name, age and address of each. It is not explained why the ages are asked, since the allowance seems to be the same regardless of age. Each person, it is believed, will be allotted a ration book containing 28 stamps, each good for a two week's supply, and stamps must be torn out to allow for sugar on hand. And if the stamp is not used for the period indicated, it is not good thereafter. It is stated that 2 pounds per person may be on hand without taking out stamps.

Industrial consumers will be supplied with some kind of certificates instead of stamps and the plan of regulating their supply has not yet been announced in detail.

PHEBE HOLDEN WOOD

Mrs. Emmett A. Wood died at her home in Remington on Monday morning, March 16, after an illness of several months. She was the daughter of the late Thomas Holden and Belle J. Holden, and was born at the Holden farm "Elsinore" in Fairfax County, where she resided until her marriage to her first husband, the late E. Wood Weir, of Manassas.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday, March 11 at Grace Methodist Church at Manassas, where she had been an active and loyal member for over 30 years, and were conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. C. Luttrell, assisted by Rev. J. D. Russell of Remington. Interment was in the Manassas Cemetery. She is survived by her second husband, Emmett A. Wood, whom she married in 1930; six sisters, Mrs. A. S. Harrison, Mrs. R. N. Wrenn and Miss Estelle Holden of Herndon, Mrs. R. A. Hutchison of Manassas; Mrs. B. F. McGuire of Washington; Mrs. C. L. Fleming of Arlington and a brother, Thomas S. Holden, of Cross Plains, Texas. The pall bearers were James Woolf of Rectortown, J. A. Conchie of Remington, Dr. Fred Dowell, Jackson Ratcliffe, Dr. B. G. Cocke, and J. H. Steele, all of Manassas.

Mrs. Wood, like her mother whom she resembled, was popular with everybody. Her beautiful charity to all, her untiring energy in doing for others, and her loyalty to the principles for which she stood, will leave a sweet, undying memory in the many hearts that loved her. Like the woman praised by our Savior, she hath done what she could and now she is receiving the blessed greeting "Well done more good and faithful. Enter into the joys of thy Lord."

SHANGHAI PASSAGE

Howard Pease

"Shanghai Passage" is one of the most exciting books I have ever read. Howard Pease, the author, tells of Stuart Ormsby's expulsion at West Point. Ormsby's father wrote him to come home, and when he arrived and saw his father waiting, he couldn't face him, so he decided he would travel. Ormsby, having no money, began to wander the streets.

As he walked aimlessly about, he was approached by a young man who asked whether Ormsby would like a job. He worked for the seaman, and after an exciting experience, he found himself aboard a huge freighter, the "Nanking." This boat carried gamblers, murderers, and chisellers. If the crew didn't like their captain, they would kill him. Ormsby knew after the war on board that he shouldn't be there, as he had done nothing wrong.

After this thrilling experience, he was united with his father in Shanghai, and his father convinced him to return to West Point.

"Shanghai Passage" is chocked full of mystery and sudden death, and I am sure any one who reads it will enjoy it immensely because it is full of exciting happenings.

This book may be borrowed from the Ruffner-Carnegie Library.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Reality will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 29.

The Golden Text will be "A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good" (Luke 6:45).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Rev. 4:11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which He creates is good, and He makes all that is good, and He makes all that is made." (p. 472).

VENGEANCE (Thoughts for Lent)

Reprinted from the Southern Churchman

There's nothing more just
 For God to say
 Than "Vengeance is Mine,
 I will repay."

For Christ gave His life
 Life to conserve,
 To end sin and strife,
 Love to preserve.

Nations hate nations,
 Vengeance, they fight;
 Make virtue of sin,
 Claim they are right.

Oh, dear Heart of Christ!
 Much you have bled
 To bring love to life
 Back from the dead.

But adamant souls,
 Sodden with sin,
 Thy plea will not hear
 Mid battle's din.

—JOHN E. SHEA.

LARGEST CLASS TO GRADUATE

Exercises To Be Held In Richmond Tomorrow

The largest group of Army Aviation Cadets from Virginia ever assembled will be in Richmond on Friday, March 27, prior to entraining for an Aviation Cadet Replacement Training Center, it was announced today by Lieutenant Colonel Leland W. Skaggs, Army District Recruiting Officer.

The group will include 110 candidates for Air Corps commissions from practically every section of the State, Colonel Skaggs said. All of the would-be flyers for Uncle Sam recently were qualified for training by the Aviation Cadet Examining Board located in the Lyric Building here.

"Although the Army Recruiting Service is not at liberty to give current facts and figures concerning its activities," Colonel Skaggs said, "this representative group should give Virginians an idea of what their State is doing to 'keep 'Em Flying!'"

The District Recruiting Officer pointed out that although the consignment will be the largest Virginia has produced for shipment on a single day, "it does not represent the total for the month, or even for the week."

"In the near future," he said, "we expect to top this shipment of prospective Air Officers."

Although the number of cadets in the group appears small when compared with troop movements in general, it is well to remember that the age range for Aviation Cadets is 18 to 26, inclusive. Too, their intelligence must be above average and they are required to undergo a rigid physical examination. Before an applicant is accepted for appointment, he must prove to the satisfaction of the board that he is morally qualified to become an Army officer.

"In some cases the tenacity of purpose and determination of these boys has been amazing," Colonel Skaggs declared. "We have seen some of them lose fifteen to twenty pounds and others study night after night for months to better prepare themselves mentally."

"With men like this from Virginia to fight our battles in the air, perhaps distant lands, each of us should feel more keenly our own responsibilities in this time of crisis. It makes us realize that the 'V' in Virginia stands for Victory."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Jessie Williams who departed this life 3 years ago, March 27, 1942. Often we think of you, dear Jessie, When our heart is sad with pain, For this earth would be a heaven, Could we but hear your sweet voice again.

Sleep on dear Jessie, your labor is done.
 Your willing hands shall toil no more.
 A faithful husband and father, both loving and kind.
 A better husband and father no one could find.

Dear is the grave where he is laid,
 Sweet his memory that will never fade,
 Part of our lives lie buried deep under the sod,
 Where our dear husband and father sleeps.

Written by his loving wife and daughter,
 Fannie and Ruby Jane Williams.

Steel-Piercing Eye

Steel used in vital parts for war machines—planes, tanks, ships, guns—must be flawless, because America's fighting men must have weapons that are both accurate and tough.

1. The new million volt X ray built by General Electric saves precious hours in finding flaws. It is so powerful that its rays can pierce thick steel castings.

2. Defects in the steel show up on X-ray film. Therefore faulty materials are tossed aside before costly hours of machining have been spent on them.

3. A regular check-up on pieces of X-ray film worn on workers' wrists helps guard against prolonged exposure to the rays given off by the X-ray tube.

4. X-ray exposure needed for 5-inch-thick steel is now 2 minutes instead of previous 3 1/2 hours! Whole days are saved in examination of even thicker castings.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

THE RED CROSS WAS READY

By Allan A. Michie

The following powerful testimonial to Red Cross preparedness appeared in the March issue of "Reader's Digest." The Courier reprints the article through the courtesy of that magazine and the author—correspondent of "Life" and "Time" who has just completed an eight-month trip through the Middle and Far East.

As one of the first war correspondents to reach Hawaii after Pearl Harbor Sunday, I was struck by one bright spot in all that tragedy. The Red Cross had been ready. I dread thinking of how much worse the confusion and suffering would have been if Red Cross workers hadn't been right on the job, organized for instant action.

Within a few minutes after the first Jap bombs rained down on Pearl Harbor, Red Cross workers manned their prearranged posts. Many Red Cross volunteers were wives of officers and men stationed at the air fields and naval bases. They did not know what fate awaited their loved ones but they did not stand idly by. Jap planes strafed their cars on the road as they drove to their stations.

From its emergency kitchens, the Red Cross promptly supplied food to rescue workers. Bombed-out families were supplied with lodging, clothing and blankets, as well as food. Emergency stores of medical supplies and surgical dressings were rushed to hospitals and to schools which had been turned into temporary hospitals.

Doctors struggling furiously to save the lives of soldiers and sailors blasted and burned in the attack soon used up the Red Cross reserve of blood plasma. The Red Cross issued a call for volunteer donors, and its workers gave their own blood until sufficient donors could be brought in. (In all 10,000 volunteers gave their pint of blood at the rate of 50 per hour.)

By 3 a. m. on December 8 the Red Cross Motor Corps, driving in a black-out blinder than London's, and risking shots from jittery Territorial road guards, had removed 3,000 refugees from the danger areas around Pearl Harbor and the air fields. Many of the Red Cross's volunteer workers stayed at their posts for ten days with little sleep. Red Cross information centers were promptly organized to help anxious service men seeking the whereabouts of their families from whom they had become separated during the bombing.

When we were ready to sail for San Francisco, 127 badly burned and wounded naval men placed on board our ship. The Navy was short of nurses, so Red Cross officials scoured Hawaii, and in two hours located 11 registered nurses who were vacationing on the island and who volunteered to take the danger-fraught voyage to San Francisco.

At Pearl Harbor, the Red Cross was ready for this extraordinary emergency because it always stands ready everywhere.

Since 1939 the American Red Cross has helped 15,000,000 refugees in Asia and Europe. I have seen it in action in a dozen countries: In France, helping refugees and prisoners of war without regard to race, creed or color. In Portugal arranging for the care of stranded Americans. In Syria American Red Cross workers followed the British, Imperial and Free French troops, distributing food to the Arabs who had been half-starved during the British blockade of the Vichyites. In Abyssinia they risked their lives among the wild tribesmen of the hills to bring badly needed medical supplies to the interior of Haile Selassie's country.

In Egypt, working through the Egyptian Red Crescent, American Red Cross officials provided mobile kitchens, food, blankets and medicine for the 175,000 refugees who fled in terror from Axis air raids on Alexandria. In Manila, a week before the Japanese attack, I stood in the streets and watched the Red Cross assist in an evacuation drill. When the Japs burned the city the Red Cross quietly and efficiently carried out the evacuation of 100,000 residents while bombs rained down among them.

Thus, with America's entry into the war the Red Cross has taken in place with the armed forces at home and abroad, wherever American troops are in action. It is holding front-line positions from Chungking to Cairo, from Los Angeles to London.

NUMBER 17 ★ Kitchen tricks every woman should remember ★ About produce that's always fresh ★ A story about vitamin B<sub>1</sub> and pork ★ What Sue learned over a bridge table

Ten culinary tricks that make meals more nutritious—and more delicious

It has always been your family duty that you serve healthful, nutritious meals—now it is your patriotic duty that you do so. These kitchen tricks, from the Saway Homemakers' Bureau, are really ten important ways to conserve or add vitamins and minerals (and, at the same time, sparkle) to your everyday meals.

1. A new general rule for pan-frying vegetables is to use about 1/2 cup water in any kind of flat-bottomed cooking utensil and add about a tablespoon butter, oil, or other fat, and heat to the boiling point. Then put in freshly shredded or diced vegetables, salt lightly, cover tightly, and cook just until tender—10 to 20 minutes.

2. It is better to cook green, strong flavored vegetables in a little more boiling water, uncovered. This keeps green vegetables green and modifies strong flavors.

3. Do not use soda to preserve color in green vegetables. It destroys valuable vitamins and, if vegetables are correctly cooked, it is unnecessary.

4. Juices from cooked vegetables contain much of their minerals and vitamins, and should be served with the vegetables if possible. Otherwise, add these juices to soups and gravies.

5. Always buy fresh, tender, young vegetables or there's no point in following the above rules. Fresh vegetables are not only best for flavor, but they contain more minerals and vitamins.

6. Cook all fruits as short a time as possible, in as little water as necessary.

7. Cook dried fruits, if soaked, in the same water that you soaked them in.

8. Use fruit juices from cooked or canned fruits to sweeten desserts (in place of sugar) and in salad dressings, if they are not served with the fruit itself.

9. Use milk as much as possible in cooking, besides its use in custards, puddings, and scalloped dishes. Milk adds nutritive qualities to oatmeal, rice, cornmeal, and other cereals usually cooked in water.

10. Use eggs as much as possible in cooking. They add nutrition to many foods as well as improve texture and flavor.

TYPHOID FEVER

The conquest of typhoid fever represents one of the major victories of sanitary science in this country. Forty one years ago the typhoid deaths in the nation reached an estimated annual total of more than 35,000. By 1940, the typhoid mortality for the entire United States was only 1,378. Of even more significance are the figures resulting from a study made by the American Medical Association several years ago. At that time (1939) 34 large cities did not report a single typhoid fatality and in 10 others no residents died of the disease. Moreover, in every State, including Virginia, where a complete record exists since 1913, the decline in deaths has been 90 per cent or better. While these figures indicate great progress against this former scourge, last year in Virginia there were 29 typhoid deaths and 319 cases. In view of the knowledge as to the cause of this disease, the ways in which it is spread, and the effective measures available to prevent it, the 1941 record represents an unsolved typhoid fever problem.

A successful solution depends somewhat upon the intelligent application of sanitary environmental protection and its maintenance by those living in rural sections. Purifying water supplies, establishing adequate sewerage facilities and safeguarding the milk in cities, large towns, and semi-urban areas have been responsible for the notable success against typhoid in these localities. While these procedures readily can be carried out by municipal authorities, the cost of applying such mass control measures in strictly rural sections is prohibitive. Such a plan also is impracticable. Therefore, in rural communities both the cost and the initiative are the home owner's responsibility.

Since contaminated drinking water is a principal infection source in rural areas, protecting the drinking water supply against underground seepage and surface drainage is essential. The Prince William County

Health Department will advise on original construction and on improvements regarding wells, springs, cisterns, home sewerage facilities, safe handling of home milk supplies and other matters of environmental sanitation.

It should be emphasized that the typhoid fever germ can only gain entrance to the body through the mouth and that these organisms are to be found in the excreta of human beings who have or have had the disease. The germs reach the mouth through mechanical means such as by the hands or on food that has been contaminated by flies or other insects which have access to a source of pollution, or through a contaminated water supply.

The typhoid fever problem still existing in Virginia, therefore, calls for positive action by those living in country districts: The small epidemic and occasional case frequently indicates indifference or neglect to this subject. Call your health department in Manassas for advice on sanitation

A WONDERFUL RECORD

Owing to the fact that considerable publicity has been given to the Statement that many Virginia school busses have been found more or less outmoded and even unsafe, something should be said regarding the status of school bus transportation in Prince William.

Here the condition is about as near perfect as could be expected under ordinary operating conditions. The State Motor Vehicle Commission found only one bus not rated as up-to-date and that only because it did not have shatterproof glass.

Such new bus bodies as needed will be provided the local school system when hundreds of other orders will be turned down because our school authorities had the presence of mind to get their orders in promptly last fall.

As to accidents, admission is made of the fact that school busses throughout the state have a better record than the common carriers but in Prince William even this condition is eminently satisfactory our busses having no major collisions to their account, and practically perfect in operation except for a few scratches, bumped fenders, etc.

Here to the Board and its excellent Superintendent show their superior judgment in keeping on the job only such men as will help in maintaining very high levels in public safety.

NOTICE TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Notice is hereby given that the Occoquan Company has filed with the State Corporation Commission of Virginia an application for a license to construct, operate and maintain a hydro-electric development on Occoquan Creek in Fairfax and Prince William Counties. The proposed dam is to be located on Occoquan Creek about 1 1/4 mile upstream from Highway Bridge on Route No. 123, at Occoquan, Virginia, and will be about 125 feet high. This dam will form a reservoir extending upstream about 19 miles to the Blands Ford dam on Broad Run and to the Bull Run Power Company's dam on Bull Run, which is about 6 miles upstream from its junction with Occoquan Creek. In connection with said dam it is proposed to construct a power station having installed two 24,400 horsepower vertical reaction turbines, each direct connected to a 22,500 K. V. A. (at 80 per cent power factor) water wheel generator. It is further proposed to supplement the stream flow at the dam by pumping water back from the tailrace into the reservoir, and for this purpose two 17,000 horsepower pumps, each delivering 1,000 C. F. S. against a head of 126 feet and driven by direct connected 17,000 horsepower synchronous motors, are to be installed in the power house.

Notice is further given that the State Corporation Commission has set said application for hearing in its court room in the City of Richmond, Virginia, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. on Thursday, April 23, 1942, and at such public hearing the applicant and other interested persons, firms, associations, or corporations, will be given an opportunity to present facts, evidence and argument for or against the granting of said application.

Description, maps and plans of said proposed development are on file in the offices of the State Corporation Commission, and in the offices of the State Commission on Conservation and Development, and also in the offices of the Charles B. Hawley Engineering Corporation, 1016 Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., engineers for the Company, at either of which places they may be seen and inspected by any interested person.

SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE FARM BULLETIN

What to Do About Fencing and Roofing

It takes a lot of steel to fight a war. Some of it is coming from the steel roofing and fencing you had planned to buy this spring. There may be a little steel roofing left in some places, but if you find it consider yourself lucky. Instead of steel you can turn to heavy grade roll roofing with a high quality felt base for long life. Choose Unico Roll Roofing. It will stand the rain, sleet, wind, snow and sun for years without cracking, checking or drying out.

You can prolong the life of old paper roofs with Unico Liquid Asbestos Roof Cement. It will stay put in hot weather and yet not crack in cold weather.

As for steel fencing . . . You can make your three-strand barbed and smooth wire fence go three times as far with a Southern States Electric Fence Controller. The low-cost battery type will serve any farmer who does not yet have the farm wired. For sure-fire service there is the combination battery and house current model. String a single wire and hold back almost any livestock. They respect an electric fence, and your fencing problem is solved at a saving to you.

Cheer Up -- Paint Up

One farm supply you CAN get is paint. Ask for UNICO paint. It's made by your cooperative on the same high-grade specifications reached by test and experience before war broke. Unico paint will add as much as 16 years to the life of metal and wood buildings if thoroughly applied. There's nothing like UNICO paint to brighten things up.

The Burning of Haymarket

By Chas. J. Gilliss

Perhaps the fact that the Town of Haymarket was burned by Federal troops during the War Between the States, is so well known, that there is little reason for recounting it, but events leading up to this, and subsequent happenings are not so familiar and perhaps are worth recording for the benefit of those interested in history.

Let us first take a look at the Town as it appeared in the Fall of 1862, when the Northern Army had overrun this portion of Virginia. Washington Street then retained its full sixty feet in width, though some of the other streets had even then been encroached upon or blocked off by indifferent persons. There was no mayor or council to enforce order, as all able bodied men were in the Confederate Army. The town lots still retained their numbers, but these were beginning to lose their identity. All told, the size of the community was but slightly smaller than it is at the present day, but there had been some good places of business. Among these was a fair sized saddlery establishment, at which excellent saddles were made and heavy breeching harness for bell teams, all from the finest home tanned leather. There was an old established cooperage, where thousands of barrels had first been turned out by a member of the Washington family. The hotel and bar of Thomas A. Smith stood on Lot No. 64, close to the site of the ancient Red House Tavern. All standing buildings were of frame or log, with the exception of the brick Episcopal Church, which had ceased to function as a church for the duration of the war. This was the only church building in the town. After the first Battle of Manassas, the Episcopal Church had been used as a hospital; the benches being stacked against the walls and the floor covered with straw, upon which the wounded Confederates were placed. The same was true after the second Battle of Manassas. A long low building at the S. W. corner of Washington and Jefferson Streets, was also used as a hospital, and a gruesome sight had been the long pine boxes stacked at the door, ready for burials.

It must not be forgotten, that Haymarket, small as it was, had done its part for the Confederacy, for it was here in the winter of 1860-61 that the Prince William Rifles were organized, with Dr. George S. Hamilton, as captain, Grayson Tyler as 1st. Lieutenant and Winston L. Carter as 2nd. Lieutenant. This organization uniting with similar organizations on June 10, 1861, became Company F of the Seventeenth Virginia Infantry, C. S. A., and gave good account of itself on more than one occasion.

While it is true that the Haymarket neighborhood, as well as others, had been stripped of every able bodied man capable of bearing arms for the Confederacy; still old men and boys left behind were to do their part in defense of the homes, and this they did in a kind of guerilla warfare, sniping at a blue coat when ever they could. This was particularly true in regard to the heavily loaded trains, carrying Federal troops or supplies, hauled slowly by puffing little wood burners, engines, over tracks in a deplorable condition. It must be remembered that this was before the time when the Partisan Ranger, John Mosby had commenced his raids, which afterwards made him such a thorn in the flesh to all Federal forces. However, in this Fall of 1862, the sniping at trains did assume such a proportion that it finally led to the issuance of an order from Federal Headquarters, that all houses within one mile of a railroad, capable of harboring sharpshooters, should be burned. There is no doubt that this order was not intended to apply to towns, but to isolated houses.

General A. von Steinwehr's division of Sigel's corps were camped one mile west of Haymarket, at the junction of the Thoroughfare and Antioch Roads. Many of this troops had been recruited from the most ignorant class of Pennsylvania "Dutch" and were known to the Confederates as "Blenker's Dutch." Late in the afternoon of Nov. 4, 1862, some of these men reported that they had been fired upon in Haymarket; whereupon, the commanding officer, engaged in a game of cards and not wishing to be disturbed, growled out, "Go back and burn the d—place." Another account says that an old man in Haymarket, was at work shingling a barn roof, when Federal soldiers passing by, took a pot shot at him. Unhurt, the shingler came tumbling down, but his neighbors took up the cause, and did shoot back, driving the soldiers out of town. There seems little ground for dispute in these two accounts. Certain it is, that taking the words of the commanding officer as an order, (though question has been raised if they were intended as such), that night a band of "Blenker's Dutch" made their way into town, with the intention of burning the same. Old Mr. Garrett Hulfish, said to have been a Northern sympathizer, and whose house was at the extreme East end of Haymarket, was awakened by the sound of weatherboarding being torn from the side of his dwelling, to be used in kindling the fire. Rushing out he remonstrated strongly, stating his views, and when these failed, he seized a piece of wood and lay about him, but was speedily cut over the head with sabers and had to rush back into the blazing building to rescue his children. Colonel Edmund Berkeley, who was captured that night at Thoroughfare Gap, says he saw Hulfish afterwards, with his head tied up in a handkerchief and with blood on his coat.

And so house after house was set blazing until the whole sky was lit up with the lurid flame, and officers at the camp, perhaps realizing too late that the words of the commander had been taken in earnest, came charging down to stop the work. However only a few small dwellings and the brick church, at the Western end of the town had not been put to the torch. Those responsible for the fire were at once arrested and taken before General Sigel, where a court martial was at once held in the store at Gainesville. Could the Federal order against sniping be justified in the wholesale burning of a town? Colonel Berkeley, who was present at the court martial in his capacity as a Confederate prisoner, does not give us the result of the trial.

Marching westward, Blenker's "Dutch" wintered in the neighborhood of Rectortown, then headed for Winchester. Arriving at the Shenandoah River, they found it in flood, so decided to build rafts in order to cross. A party of them appeared at the farm of Charles B. Rust, about four miles above Berry's Ferry, where they proceeded to break into the meat house and steal everything they could. In the meat house was a pine trough, hollowed from an immense tree and filled with the traditional soft soap of that day. In the dim light of the building, this was mistaken by the raiders for something very different, and exclaiming "molasses, molasses" they dipped great masses into their mouths. Such sputtering probably was never known before or afterwards. On the place was also a number of pea fowls, which the soldiers chased and pulling out the long tail feathers, stuck them in their caps. Now the wearing of a pea cock feather has been from time immemorial a sign of bad luck, and the slaves standing around did not fail to voice this sentiment. Finally a huge raft having been constructed, the troops embarked, largely over loading the craft, which caught in the swirling waters of the river, overturned, and it is said that eighty persons were drowned; as a result of wearing pea cock feathers, as the slaves would tell you for many a day afterwards.

At one of the battles of Winchester, these men, who could not ride and knew nothing about a horse, were strapped on to keep them from falling. In the din or battle, many horses ran away, and their riders, unable to keep their seat, slipped under the animal and were dragged to their deaths.
