Schools Serve Democracy

With the opening of the schools of Prince William, it might be well for parents and teachers to do a little thinking about the pupils that present problems to both of them.

Children going to a school system should not be regarded as raw material to be subjected to certain definite processes in the expectation that the finished product can be certain or standardized. Factors of inheritance and environment combine to make each child a special subject requiring, more or less individualized treatment.

Parents, who expect a school and its teachers to take a rough specimen of untrained humanity and develop it into a polished human being, are looking for a great deal. They must not expect the school to take the place of the home and the church. The guidance that a teacher can give to a pupil is valuable and necessary, but it should not and cannot replace entirely all functions of parents.

Teachers, on the other hand, facing a mass of little human beings in their classrooms, should not overlook the importance of identifying each pupil as a separate and distinct human entity. The good teacher is not a mass-worker. There must be the recognition of the peculiar difficulties that confront each student, together with an intelligent tolerance for the child if the greatest improvement in the individual is to be secured.

Naturally, we are very proud of the school system in this community. Along with millions of other Americans, we thoroughly endorse the common schools which offer educational opportunities to all children upon practically equal terms. The schoolhouse, in our opinion, is the bulwark of democratic processes, which should be understood, respected and appreciated by officials and teachers, as well as by the students themselves.

Farm Economy Bears Brunt

The monthly report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers shows the first recovery in industrial production since October, 1948. Preliminary estimates indicate that, in August, industrial production recovered the four per cent dropped in July.

There are some favorable and some unfavorable facts in the picture as presented to Congress and the President. The country's labor force increased by 400,000 but this was because non-agricultural industries offset the decline in agricultural employment that totaled more than one million. Prices received by farmers, and the parity ratio, continued the decline which began in April. Personal incomes dropped in July to three cent below the high of December, 1948, with most of the decline showing itself in farm income.

We have selected several items relating to agriculture in this country because it seems to establish that farmers, as usual, bear the first brunt of a drop in prices. It is well to bear this in mind in connection with any legislation that bolsters agriculture because of the undisputed fact that the economic welfare of the nation depends upon the economic welfare of the farmers in this country.

Every community of people, including Manassas, needs unselfish leadership. You can supply some of it.

Airlines Need More Help

The subsidy-supported private airlines of the United States face a serious threat in the new jet-powered airliner of Great Britain, according to Velos W. Rentzel, Civil Aeronautics Administrator.

This is an interesting commentary upon an American industry which, we have been led to believe, was foremost in the world. The claim has often been made that under private enterprise the United States has developed airplanes and aerial operations unsurpassed by any other people in the world.

Of course, this has not been accomplished without generous subsidies from the Federal Treasury. In fact, the subsidies from the Government are on a more liberal basis than ever. Now, because of the successful development of a jet-airliner in Great Britain, a movement is underway to persuade Congress to do something to help maintain "this nation's leadership in the development of transport planes."

Chance Is Needed

National "Employ The Physically Handicapped Week," begins October 2nd and will direct attention to the advisability of seeking to give employment to those able to work but not usually considered readily employable.

The special week has been authorized by Congress to call attention to the plight of the physically-handicapped, who need the opportunity to be self-supporting. Many individuals, suffering physical disabilities, are well able to earn their living if they can find sympathetic employers ready to give them a chance.

A Dollar A Dollar

The dollar problem that threatens to stifle international trade arises from the fact that the other nations need and buy more goods and services from the United States than this country is willing to buy from them.

The only way to relieve the dollar shortage is by the process of permitting other people to sell something in the United States. As they sell they will acquire.

While the reciprocal trade program quire the dollars necessary for their purchases has made considerable progress, the tariff still stands as a bulwark against the importation of foreign goods. As long as it blocks the American market to other nations there will continue to be a dollar shortage which can be relieved only by gifts of money, the lending of credits and the investment of American capital in other lands.

President Truman, in his speech at Philadelphia, called attention to the situation, declaring that "we must increase our imports. If this is what we want, the way to do so is to lower some tariff rates to the point where foreign products can be sold on the American market."

Belgian Swims Channel.

Americans may be disappointed that Shirley Mae Fance, the young school girl failed in her attempt to swim the English Channel, but they can take some satisfaction over the successful effort of Fernand Dumoulin, crippled hero of the Belgian resistance movement.

The Belgian industrialist, weighing 230 pounds, was in the water twenty-five hours and one minute. He entered the Channel against the advice of experts who warned him that the weather was too rough. Moreover, he did so with little training, without having tackled a long distance in salt water. Business, in Belgium, said Mr. Dumoulin, was pressing and he didn't have time for long training.

It is possible for the human race to make progress too fast but there is no immediate danger.

There is no telling what you can read under the introduction: "Congressional circles indicate, etc."

A lady remarked the other day that the clothes men wear in hot weather make them look foolish.

"I don't think it helped Gilmore much, moving him away from the clock."

Do You Want Your A&P Put Out Of Business?

Last Thursday in New York, the anti-trust lawyers from Washington filed a suit to put A&P out of business.

They asked the court to order us to get rid of most of our stores and also the manufacturing facilities which supply you with A&P coffee, Ann Page products, Jane Parker baked goods, and other quality items we produce.

This would mean higher food prices for you. It would mean less food on every dinner table and fewer dollars in every pay envelope.

It would mean the end of A&P as you know it.

This poses a basic question for the American people: Do they want to continue to enjoy lower prices and better living? Or do they want to break up A&P and pay higher prices, and have lower living standards?

What do you want?

Why Destroy A&P?

This suit was brought under the anti-trust laws. These are good laws. They were passed about fifty years ago to prevent any company, or any group of companies, from getting a monopoly in a field and then raising prices to the public.

A&P has never done any of these things.

Nobody has ever shown that we have anything even approaching a monopoly of the food business anywhere. As every housewife knows, the retail grocery business is the most competitive in the country and we do only a small part of it.

Nobody has ever said we charged too high prices — just the opposite. This whole attack rises out of the fact that we sell good food too cheap. We would not have had any of this trouble if, instead of lowering prices, we had raised them and pocketed the difference.

Nobody has ever said that our profit rate was too high. During the past five years our net profit, after taxes, has averaged about 1 1/4% on every dollar of sales, which is less than almost any other business you can think of.

The American people have shown that they like our low-price policy by coming to our stores to do their shopping. If A&P is big, it is because the American people, by their patronage, have made it big.

Obviously, it is the theory of the anti-trust lawyers that the people have no right to patronize a company, if their patronage will make that company grow; and that any big business must be destroyed simply because it is big, and even if the public gets hurt in the process.

Do You Want Higher Prices?

There is much more involved in this case than the future of A&P. The entire American system of efficient, low-cost, low-profit distribution which we pioneered, will face destruction and the public will suffer.

A&P was the first chain store in this country. For more than ninety years we have tried to build a sound business on the simple formula the founder gave us: "Give the people the most good food you can for their money." Year after year we have tried to do a better job, make our business more efficient, and pass the savings on to the consumer in the form of lower prices.

Our efforts along these lines have led other grocers to keep their costs and profits down.

In the old days before A&P, food that cost the grocer 50¢, often sold as high as $1.00 at retail.

Today, food that costs the grocer 50¢ generally sells to the public at less than 60¢.

The methods we pioneered have been adopted not only by other grocers, but by merchants in other lines. There are today literally hundreds of chain stores, voluntary groups and individual merchants operating with the same methods and in the same pattern here under attack.

If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in destroying A&P, the way will be clear for the destruction of every other efficient large-scale distributor.

Who Will Be Hurt?

There has never been any question in our mind that it is good business and good citizenship to sell good food as cheaply as possible. As Fortune Magazine said about A&P some time ago, "It is firmly attached to the one great principle — the selling of more for less — that has made the desert bloom and the nation wax great."

We sincerely believe that we have helped the American people eat better and live better.

We believe that the hundreds of thousands of farmers and manufacturers who have voluntarily sought our business have profited by our fast, low-cost distribution of their products.

We know that our 110,000 loyal employees enjoy today, as they always have, the highest wages, shortest hours and best working conditions generally prevailing in the retail food industry; and that these men and women have found in A&P good opportunities for security and progress.

We know that thousands of businessmen — the landlords who rent us our stores, the haulers who operate our trucks, the people who supply us with goods and services — have a big stake in our operations.

Obviously, all these people will suffer if this company is put out of business.

What Shall We Do?

We admit that the interests of the owners of A&P are of little importance.

Frankly, they could make an enormous amount of money by breaking up A&P, as the anti-trust lawyers wish, and selling off the parts.

But is this what the American people want? Do they agree with the anti-trust lawyers that our food prices are too low, and that we should be put out of the picture so other grocers can charge more?

Frankly, if this were the case, we would not want to continue in business.

But we seriously doubt that this is the case. Twelve years ago, an effort was made to tax this company and other chain stores out of business. The public rallied to our support. They said they liked our quality foods and our low prices. As a result of their opposition, the tax was defeated.

Now we are faced with this new attack through the courts. We are faced with the heavy costs and all the trouble that lawsuits involve.

But we believe this attack is a threat to millions of consumers who rely on us for quality foods at low prices; to farmers who rely on us for fast, low-cost distribution of their products; and to our loyal employees.

We feel that it is our responsibility to all these people to defend, by every legitimate means, this company and the low-price policy on which it was built.

SECTION II. That for the purpose of this ordinance "An approved method of disposal of human excrement" shall be deemed to be either: a) A properly installed flush toilet connected to an approved public or private sewer. If a public or private sewer is available to the property owner, the owner will be required to connect to the public or private sewer if the owner of the latter permits such connection; (b) A properly connected flush toilet connected to an approved, properly installed septic tank system or an approved sand filter, or other types of approved secondary sewage disposal and/or treatment; (c) A standard pit privy of concrete, or double wood construction.

The terms "properly installed," "approved," and "standard" as used in this ordinance shall be construed to mean "in accordance with the specifications set forth in the current septic tank or pit privy bulletin of the State Health Department." The term Health Department shall mean County Health Officer or his duly authorized representative.

SECTION III. (a) It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to install or repair, have installed or repaired; allow to be installed or repaired; or contract to install or repair a septic tank for another person, firm, or corporation, before the owner of the property on which the septic tank is to be installed or repaired, obtains a permit from the Health Officer of the County Health Department, or his agent.

(b) The permit shall specify the minimum capacity and amount of drain tile, and designate the approximate location of the septic tank.

SECTION IV. No part of any septic tank system shall be covered or put into use until completed, inspected and approved by the Health Officer of the County Health Department, or his authorized agent.

SECTION V. If upon any inspection, the Health Officer or his authorized agent shall find any violation of this ordinance and/or the provisions of the permit issued under it, he shall direct the person, firm or corporation to whom the permit was issued, by written notice, to make the necessary corrections, within such reasonable time as shall be specified therein.

SECTION VI. It shall be unlawful for any owner or any tenant or lessee of any premises properly supplied with a sanitary privy or flush toilet or other approved device for the disposal of human excrement of misuse or neglect the same, so as to allow or cause it to cease to be sanitary.

SECTION VII. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to start construction work in any new sub-division, or housing development before furnishing in triplicate plans and specifications of the sewer system or sewage disposal system to be used together with plans for the anticipated water system to be used in the structure or structures. These plans and specifications shall conform to the requirements of Section II of this ordinance and must be approved by the Health Officer, or his agent, of the County Health Department before construction is started.

SECTION VIII. Any person, firm, or corporation contracting to install, repair or clean septic tanks in County for another person, firm, or corporation shall first obtain a permit to do such work. To obtain a permit the person, firm, or corporation shall apply to the Health Department of County. The permit will be issued at no cost to the applicant, if the applicant appears to be qualified and equipped to do such work.

Permits shall be renewed annually and a permit may be revoked for failure to comply satisfactorily with this ordinance.

SECTION IX. Any person, firm or corporation that cleans any septic tank shall dispose of the sludge and material removed from any septic tank by depositing such sludge and material into a sewage treatment plant or a sewage system that leads to same; or, by depositing under the surface of the ground in a manner that does not endanger any source of drinking water and is not accessible to flies.

SECTION X. Any person, firm, or corporation who shall neglect, fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this ordinance; the permit issued under it as provided in Section III; or the written notice within the time specified in such notice as provided in Section V, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and, shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $25.00; and, each day's continuance to so violate this ordinance or any of its provisions shall constitute a separate offense.

SECTION XI. All ordinances, or parts of ordinances, in conflict with provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

SECTION XII. Should any section, paragraph, sentence, clause, or phrase of this ordinance be declared unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, the remainder of said ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

WHY THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD STRIKE?

Over twenty years ago, the Congress of the United States passed the Railway Labor Act. It was hailed by union leaders as a model for the settlement of labor disputes.

President Truman's Board Condemns Strike

There is an established legal method for handling disputes involving existing written contracts—just as there is such a method of settling any contract dispute which you may have in your daily life.

The President of the United States appointed a Fact Finding Board to investigate and adjust the Missouri Pacific dispute. This Board reported, in part, as follows:

There is no Need for Strikes

With all of the available methods for the interpretation of contracts, there is no need for a strike or even a threat of a strike, but the leaders of these railroad unions have ignored the ordinary procedures established by law and insist upon imposing their own interpretations of their contracts by means of a strike.

The wheels have stopped rolling on the Missouri Pacific. They may stop rolling on other railroads at any time. Recently the Wash. Railroad was forced to discontinue operation for several days under similar circumstances.

What are These Strikes About?

These strikes and strike threats are not about wage rates or hours. They result from disputes over the meaning of existing contracts. They cover claims for a full day's pay for less than a day's work, or for payments for services performed by others who were fully paid for the work done.

efficiently or economically if the leaders of the unions ignore agreements or laws.

Provisions of the Law which are Disregarded

There are five ways under the Railway Labor Act to settle disputes over the meaning of contracts:

- 1—Decision by National Railroad Adjustment Board.
- 2—Decision by System Adjustment Board for the specific railroad.
- 3—Decision by arbitration.
- 4—Decision by neutral referee.
- 5—Decision by courts.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has been and is entirely willing to have these disputes settled in accordance with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act. Regardless of this fact, the union leaders have shut down that railroad.

Innocent Bystanders Suffer Losses and Hardships

There are about 5,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen on the Missouri Pacific. They are known as "operating" employees, and are the most highly paid of all employees on the nation's railroads, but their strike action has resulted in the loss of work to 22,500 other employees of the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they have imposed great inconvenience and hardship upon the public and the communities served by that railroad.

The Railway Labor Act was designed to protect the public against just such interruptions of commerce.

If these men will not comply with the provisions of the law for the settlement of such disputes, then all thinking Americans must face the question, "What is the next step?"

Obviously the railroads cannot be run

Sunday School Lesson

THE PSALMS WE SING
International Sunday School Lesson
for September 23, 1949

MEMORY SELECTION: "Oh magnify the Lord with me, And let us exalt his name together."
Psalm 34:3.

Lesson Text: Psalm 23: 1-6; Psalm 42: 1-2; Psalm 90: 1, 2, 11, 17.

Our first lesson in this series called our attention to the fact that the Psalms have long been the hymnbook of God's people. A glance through the book of Psalms reveals certain basic differences from the hymnbook we use in our churches today. The first is the absence of musical notes, although in former years and today in many foreign countries, the hymnbooks used by the congregation give only the words, the musical notes being reserved for the organist and choir. The second difference to be noted is the absence of rhymes. While this may be due to the difficulty of translating Hebrew poetry so that its rhyme could be preserved, Hebrew poetry seldom used rhymes and did not follow a meter in a strict sense.

None of the music used in ancient Israel has survived to our day. This is thought to be because of their lack of musical notation, because of the decline in religious fervor in the century before the coming of Christ, and, finally, because of the destruction of Jerusalem. After the Babylonian captivity the synagogues employed a simple style of music, and it is probable that some elements of that music survive in a few of the chants of the Jewish services in the synagogues today.

Many of the hymns used in our churches today directly or indirectly reflect the Psalms. We have three psalms assigned for this lesson.

son, the 23rd, 42nd and 90th. The best-known of all the Psalms is the 23rd. From this psalm many of the hymns of our churches were taken. The first stanza of Sternhold's version of the 23rd psalm reads: "My Shepherd is the living Lord, nothing therefore I need, In pastures fair with waters calm, He set me for to feed."

George Herbert's beautiful version of the same psalm is: "The God of Love My Shepherd Is," and James Montgomery's "The King of Love, My Shepherd Is," are familiar to most congregations today. A very ancient hymn based on this psalm is by Clement of Alexandria. It was written in Greek, over 1700 years ago, and is "Shepherd of Tender Youth." "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us," a favorite of many people, was written by Dorothy Ann Thrupp, an English woman, and first appeared in a collection of hymns published in 1838.

Not so many hymns may be traced directly to the 42nd psalm, although it would not be too difficult to find many that echo its thought. The best known, however, probably is "As Pants the Hart for Cooling Streams," written by Nahum Tate and Nicholas Brady, who published it in 1696. Isaac Watts has given us the best version of Psalm 90 in hymn, His "Our God, Our Help in Ages Past," is a great period of confusion and danger. Watts is said to have first begun the hymn "O God," but, at the suggestion of John Wesley, he changed it to "Our God."

In pointing out why hymn singing so effectively opens the doorway to God, William E. Kerstetter, declares: "It moves the imagination with precious memories of mountain-top experiences. . . (It) stirs, cleanses, relieves the emotion; in a gloriously redeeming way chasing shadows, light, causing us to feel again that we are equal to the challenge to rise to nobler living."

"Hymns are effective avenues to religious experience in much the same sense in which Jesus is an Avenue to God. . . In hymns, God is not an all-inclusive abstraction. He is a 'mighty fortress.' As the hymns express it: 'This is my Father's world, and to my listening ears, all nature sings, and round me rings, the music of the spheres." . . . In hymn-singing, as in no other experience of worship (except communion), Christians become aware of their fellowship with others as well as with God. There is the exultation which comes with the consciousness that they are not alone. That they are part of a great congregation of persons sharing the same great redemption and glorious commitment. This, in fact, they are one with that great band of men and women who, in other lands, in other generations and in other centuries, sang with one accord to the glory of God and the saving of their own souls. Not incidentally, it is religion like that which possesses the power to save society too!"

Better Highways
are built with

Money-saving
CONCRETE

Concrete has the strength and stamina to carry heavy truck traffic and it is ideal for fast-moving passenger cars. It is skid resistant, drains quickly, improves visibility and cuts driving costs by saving on gas, tires and repairs. Concrete has the durability to keep traffic rolling without pavement shutdowns for repairs.

Concrete offers all these advantages at low annual cost. Its first cost is usually less than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity, its maintenance is less and its life is longer.
