Sanitation At Yorkshire Improving

Sanitary conditions at Yorkshire have taken a marked change for the better and early Thursday morning Dr. Walter R. Johnson, health officer, was satisfied that all corrective measures will be taken before the fly season arrives.

Two sanitarians working under Dr. Johnson made a place to place inspection at Yorkshire on Tuesday and notified all the residents that they would have to put in sanitary facilities in accordance with the health code at once. They reported a willingness on the part of the residents to comply, and with the exception of one or two poverty cases there is expected to be little difficulty. It may be necessary, the health inspectors reported, to proceed as far as issuing a few warrants.

At the meeting of the Prince William County Supervisors last Thursday the health officer was asked to make a third survey at Yorkshire and he did not expect to do it before June 12. Shortly thereafter Dr. Johnson obtained the aid of C. W. Weston, regional supervisor of sanitation for the state, who went to Yorkshire with Joseph C. Pace, the sanitation inspector in the county health office.

Their detailed survey indicated that conditions had been improved materially since the first report in February and a subsequent survey a few weeks later. Originally 30 inhabited homes and another 11 in process of construction did not have sanitation facilities that complied with the county ordinance.

Census Leader Lauds County Enumerators

Declaring that the population census in Prince William County is practically if not entirely complete, Archie V. Miller, Area Census Supervisor for Northern Virginia, this week praised county census workers for their zeal in collecting data for the decennial count.

Preliminary census figures, Miller said, probably will be available in about two weeks. First notification will be made to "the chief officials of the areas concerned," Miller declared. In the case of Prince William county, this will mean the Rev. J. Murray Taylor, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the county, and the mayors of the incorporated towns, Manassas, Haymarket and Quantico.

There will be no figures available for the population of such unincorporated places as Nokesville until the federal census bureau at Suitland, Md., works those figures out on tabulating machines, Miller added.

The Journal census contest, having closed on April 30, entries have been put in numerical order for the winner as soon as the preliminary figures are announced. The Journal undertook to award to the closest guesser a prize equal to $1 for each thousand in the official preliminary figure, and said in the contest announcement that the prize would be given within ten days after the census bureau gave out those figures. With cards in shape for quick judging, The Journal will be able to announce the winner either simultaneously with or a week after the official announcement.

Miller highly praised the self-sacrifice of two dozen Prince William County men who took the census here. "The long hours and relatively low pay of these people," Miller said, "are proof in themselves that their motives are those of public spirited persons, not selfish ones."

"I believe that through their wholehearted efforts we have obtained an accurate count which will do justice to your county and all this area. No commendation could be too high to give our census enumerators."

In case anyone was overlooked during the count, Miller asked that they notify the Alexandria Office of the Census Bureau at 2415 Mount Vernon Avenue.

Atomic Perils Are Explained To Manassans

Two Manassas women were among a group of Red Cross delegates who last Monday heard an officer of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project give pointers on passive civilian defense against atomic bomb attack.

Mrs. T. E. Didlake and Mrs. Walter Alpaugh represented Manassas at the Red Cross meeting at Pierre's Restaurant, Washington, where Major Gerald M. McDonnell spoke on the medical aspects of atomic defense.

The magnitude of the disaster following an atomic explosion was pointed up by McDonnell, who told the Red Cross women that a single severely burned survivor of a blast would require this much attention and medical supply:

Forty-two tanks of oxygen, three nurses, two and three-quarters miles of gauze, 36 pints of plasma, 40 pints of whole blood, 100 pints of other fluids, and such drugs as morphine and the anti-biotics.

Multiply this by forty to fifty thousand—the minimum number of casualties to be expected in an atomic blast—and the problem of passive civil defense is outlined in all its magnitude, McDonnell said.

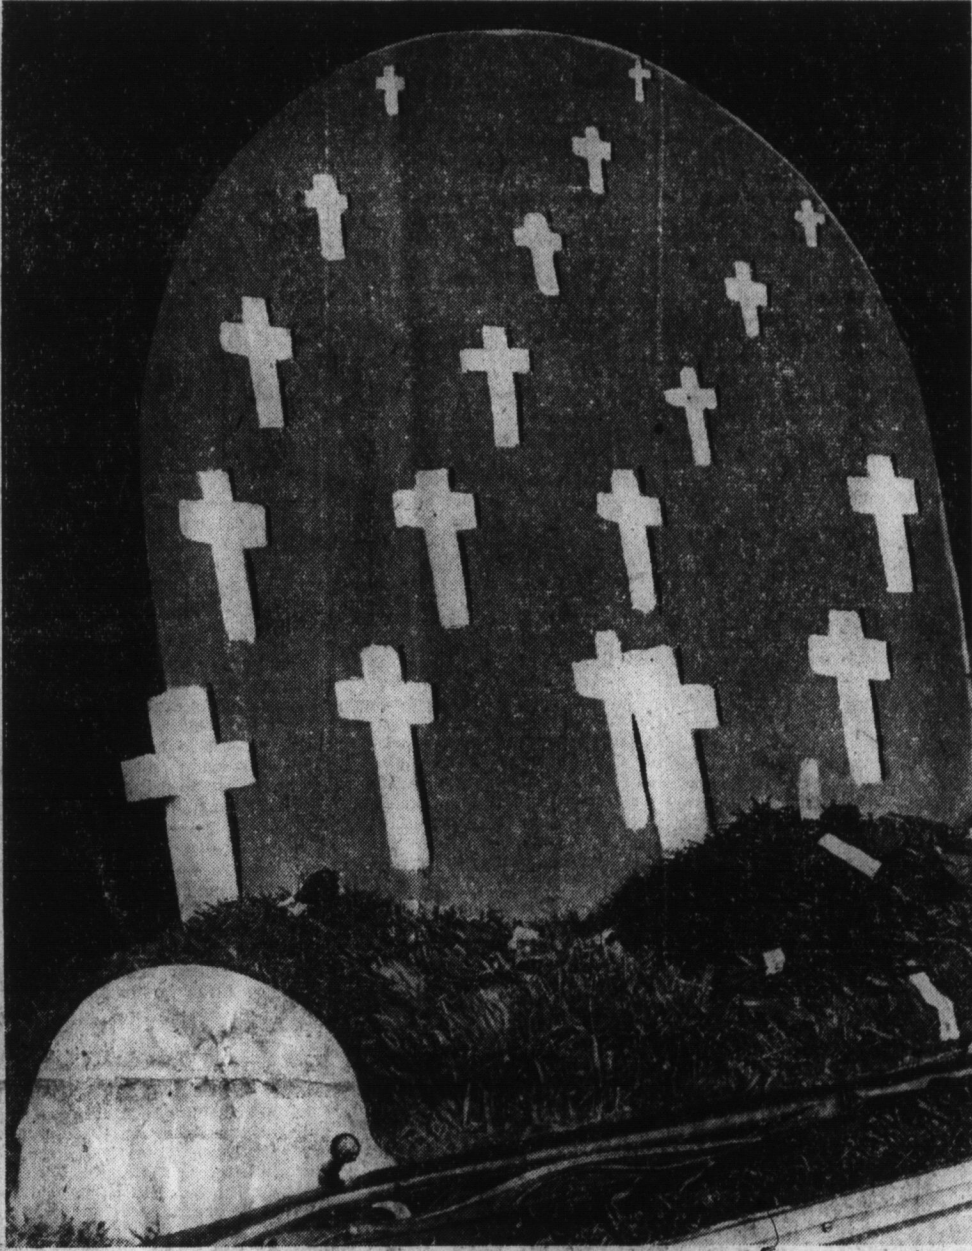

Maj. McDonnell also discussed radiation dangers, delayed effects of atomic blasts, and methods of protection against A-bomb attacks.

The meeting was part of a Defense Department effort to brief relief agencies on the probable task facing them in event of attack with nuclear weapons. Civil defense, which has been characterized as a more or less haphazard affair in World War II, must be highly coordinated to cope with domestic disasters which are to be expected in another war, military officials believe.

A 24-page report entitled "The Medical Aspects of Atomic Weapons" is available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, at 10 cents a copy.

A Manassas woman tells the Journal that she is "amazed" at the results she obtained from a classified ad in the Journal. She advertised for an article that had been lost, and within one hour after the Journal came off the press a phone call came, notifying her that the article had been found.

These Are Simple American Graves

All over the Nation this week the feeble hands of wounded soldiers are making red poppies, symbolic of the fields of Flanders—and other fields the world around—upon which they fought, and upon which nearly a quarter of a million Americans have died. Women in cities, towns and hamlets are decorating windows to remind you of these wounded and dead, as the members of the American Legion Auxiliary in Manassas have decorated the window in the American Legion Hall on Center street, shown in the above photograph. When these women think of war they think of the long rows of white crosses in the national cemeteries which Congress and a grateful people provided as the final resting place of their loved ones. Little did they suspect that their Army would illegally turn over an acre of this hallowed land to be reserved for the remains of a British field marshal.

An Editorial Report:

As Memorial Day Approaches, Let The Army Renew Its Faith With The Living and The Dead

Francis Cannon Post No. 7589, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is engaged in a drive to raise $6,500 to be used in the reconstruction of an old Manassas home as a headquarters and center for community activities. This is a commendable movement and should have wholehearted support. Such a gathering place is something Manassas sadly needs. It will be a memorial not only to Francis Cannon but to all those Manassans who went away and never came home.

Francis Cannon was a Manassas boy. He died for his country and his country brought him home to rest. He sleeps in the little family plot in Manassas Cemetery, just as hundreds of thousands of others lie in churchyards and national cemeteries, just as—a year from now—an Unknown Serviceman will be laid to eternal rest in Arlington National Cemetery.

Since December 5, 1946, we have been greatly concerned over the burial of another soldier. We have never been quite able to figure it out and with the approach of Memorial Day 1950 we think it is about time for an official explanation, even if that explanation must come from the President of the United States.

Perhaps he will explain when the matter is brought to his attention. We hope Mr. Truman will think about it as he prepares his tribute to the American soldier dead—a tribute which he traditionally delivers on Memorial Day in Arlington at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

We refer to the illegal burial, among American hero dead, of the remains of a British field marshal, Sir John Dill, and to the dedication of an entire acre of land in that sacred shrine as the field marshal's final resting place—an acre of land that would otherwise accommodate all that is mortal of 300 American war dead.

We think it is about time that something be done about a military hierarchy which rides roughshod over the law of the land—which ignores the rulings of the nation's highest court of law—which cavalierly forces its own legal experts to give an illegal act the cloak of legality—simply to satisfy the autocratic demands of a high-handed old soldier whose carefully tailored reputation is far greater than his stature could ever warrant.

The dictator-in-khaki to whom we refer is George Catlett Marshall, General of the Army, a resident of not-so-distant Leesburg, Virginia.

Here, at length—because the story is at once amazing and a little frightening—is the story of George Marshall and his good friend Sir John Dill; the story of how easily, even in America, a military junta can make a mockery of the nation's hallowed traditions of civilian control over the Armed Forces; the story of an acre of America's most hallowed soil.

Essentially, it is the story of Francis Cannon, who went away to war and never returned. Likewise, it is the story of Archie Jordan, who went away to war and came back to head the V.F.W. post named for Francis Cannon. And similarly, it is the story of the millions who never went away—the ordinary, non-veteran American whose laws, rights and traditions are being stolen from him by an impudent group of high-ranking military men who believe their own will is law simply because no one has ever told them differently.

The editor of The Journal makes no idle charge when he says that General Marshall's decision to bury Sir John Dill at Arlington was an illegal one. The dispute over the British general's burial is on the record and should be brought into the open.

The Journal suggests that Congressman Howard W. Smith, who represents in Congress the district in which our town of Manassas, Marshall's town of Leesburg and Arlington National Cemetery all lie, direct the Army to turn over to him a voluminous collection of papers known as the "293 File" of Sir John Dill, which is kept in the Office of the Quartermaster General of the Army. It is suggested, too, that Mr. Smith call for an Army file identifiable as "WDGSP-C3 13048, Subject, 'Erection of Monument in Memory of Sir John Dill in Arlington National Cemetery,'" dated 19 December 1946.

The Journal suggests that after having read these papers, Mr. Smith resolve on the floor of the House the appointment of an investigating committee. Interesting testimony could be obtained from General Marshall himself; Colonel Frank McCarthy, former assistant to General Marshall; Colonel Robert Harbold, former officer of the Memorial Division, Office of the Quartermaster General; Lamont Williams, former superintendent of Arlington National Cemetery; Maj. General J. H. Burns, former (1937) Executive to the Assistant Secretary of War; Kenneth C. Royall, former Under Secretary and later Secretary of War; Colonel Irvin Schindler, former Chief, Military Affairs Division, Judge Advocate General's Office; Major General Thomas H. Green, former Judge Advocate General of the Army; Lieutenant General Thomas B. Larkin, former Quartermaster General of the Army, and his successor, Major General Herman Feldman; Major General Wilton B. Persons, former chief lobbyist of the Army; W. C. Compton, general counsel of the Office of the Quartermaster General; Lieutenant General LeRoy Jutes, former General Staff Supply Chief; Lieutenant Colonel E. D. Comm, former executive officer to The Quartermaster General; Colonel Francis V. Fitzgerald, former Army Public Relations man now affiliated with the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal; Robert Woods Bliss, secretary of the John Dill Memorial Committee and former State Department official; H. P. Cammerer, secretary of the Fine Arts Commission; Colonel Robert Thompson, one of Lobbyist Persons' assistants; Mrs. Elva Mullen, former head of the Cemeterial Branch of the Quartermaster General's office.

Nokesville

By Mrs. Fred T. Shepherd

O. J. Fitzwater was presented a plaque from the Nokesville Fire Department in recognition and appreciation for the interest he has taken in the Department and all its activities. The presentation was made by the present president, George Sonafank, on Tuesday night when the regular monthly meeting convened. Plans were started for an annual banquet for all the firemen and the ladies of the Auxiliary.

On the men's committee are O. J. Fitzwater, George Sonafank and John Hyde. The group made definite plans, along with the ladies, for the County Fireman's meeting which will be held here at Nokesville this week. The men will be working on their equipment for the next few weeks getting it ready to participate in the Warrenton Fire Department's annual Carnival Parade on June 2.

The Sunday night worship service, with the members of the Faithful Climbers Sunday School class of the Nokesville Church of the Brethren taking part, was very well attended on Sunday night. The theme for the evening was "Talents." Mrs. Harry Miller and Mrs. Cleveland Flory opened the service with selections on the piano and organ. A trio consisting of Mrs. D. Fleischman, Mrs. Vance Somers and Mrs. Flory and a quartet consisting of Mrs. Fleischman, Mrs. Flory, Robert Beahm and Jay Garman gave wonderful messages in song. Others on the program included Mrs. James Earhart, Mrs. Wilbur Wright, Cleveland and Eugene Flory, George Sonafank, Wil-

ANGLING ANGLES

by old Hi

Howdy, fishermen! Seems mighty good to meet you fellers again. You recall that last spring and summer we got together here each week to talk over the ins and outs of fishing. We caught some big trout, bass, pike and all sorts of other game and pan fish and had a lot of fun.

Old Hi received a stack of letters from you rod and reelers all over the country, saying you like these columns, had picked up a few hints, and got some of your questions answered. Glad to have heard that, and hope many more of you will drop me a line this year.

Yep, if there's a problem puzzling you, just cast it my way and I'll try to untangle the backlash. Or if there are certain topics you'd like some dope about, let me know and they'll be given "first aid" treatment in the column—or by personal reply if you'll enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your requests to Old Hi, in care of this newspaper.

So we're off to another new fishing season, and now is the right time to get set for it. This means we've got some important work to do before hitting the lakes and streams to tackle the basses, trout, and other fish in good condition to survive the battles with hefty fish in the coming weeks or are they worn and damaged from last year's hard usage?

Have you enough hooks, leaders, sinkers, lures, flies, plugs, and spinner items? Do you need a reel, tackle kit, automatic fly reel, glass bait casting rod, spinning rod, minnow jugs, bait box, landing net or aluminum fish box?

Dig your tackle out of the closet, winter storage place and go over carefully this month. Perhaps you've split-bamboo fly rod needs new whorls, or the guides may be worn and have to be replaced. Don't wait until the trout season opens to tinker with your tackle, or the first trip may be ruined by faulty gear or the lack of some necessary equipment.

Take stock now not only of your outfit shapes up for the action, but also of your wallet. You'll want to have a look at the latest tackle creations on hand. There are new glass rods, improved reels, "heat-treated" lines and tested lures for game sport and better catches.

Then, for facts on how, when and where to use this tackle, send a postcard request to me, Old Hi, in care of this newspaper for your free copy of the booklet "Fishing For The Millions."

The County School Board has received a bid of $135,000 from Bruce Nolan of Warrenton for the construction of the Washington-Reid School. The next lowest bidder was the Nelson Construction Company, also of Warrenton. The Nolan bid is approximately $15,000 more than the funds available to the school board. Superintendent of Schools Worth Peters says he has a plan to present to the supervisors for the additional financing and will do so as soon as the supervisors can be called together.

Electricity is wonderful— PEOPLE are moreso!

DID YOU ever stop to think what's back of the wonderful miracles yours to command at the flick of a switch? Power, yes... but more than that, people.

Nearly every day you see some of them. They may set up their workshop in a busy city street or atop a pole on a lonely rural road... and their business concerns you more closely than you think.

It takes people to put the service in service... speeding sales, dependable electricity to home, office, farm, store, factory, hospital... everywhere electricity is needed.

for comfort, convenience, efficiency.

Seen or unseen, the men and women of VEPCO who provide your electric service are all specialists in their line. There is no adequate substitute for the training and experience acquired by them through years of working under the incentive system of free enterprise and business management. Many of them are your customers, your neighbors, friends, or relatives... and it is their vital service which makes Your Town an increasingly comfortable and pleasant place in which to live.

VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY

This Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Won A Case Against A&P

As almost everyone now knows, the anti-trust lawyers in Washington have brought a civil suit to destroy A&P. They ask the courts to order the dissolution of this company.

They say that this suit is based on the fact that they won a suit against us at Danville, Illinois, in 1946.

They did. In that case, Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley made a decision against A&P.

Immediately thereafter, in a letter explaining his decision, Judge Lindley wrote:

*"I have not condemned the A&P system.
I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."*

So, now we have the anti-trust lawyers saying that their suit to dissolve A&P is based on Judge Lindley's decision; while Judge Lindley himself says his decision could not be the basis for a suit of dissolution.

In previous ads we told you about the cases against A&P which the anti-trust lawyers lost. We promised to tell you about this case they won. Here is the story of the Danville case.

What Judge Lindley Objected To

At Danville, the anti-trust lawyers made all of the charges which they are again making against A&P today. They were substantially the same charges they had made and dropped at Dallas, Texas, after four federal judges had objected to some of them as "inflammatory." In his decision, Judge Lindley was critical of some of our activities. He threw some of the charges out of court. He did not make any decision on others.

He even took occasion to praise A&P for the efficient job of food distribution it had done. Judge Lindley said:

"To buy, sell and distribute to a substantial portion of 130,000,000 people, one and three-quarter billion dollars worth of food annually at a profit of 1 1/2 cents on each dollar, is an achievement one may well be proud of."

"No place in the world I take it are people so well fed as in the United States. Nowhere else, I suppose, do food distributors accomplish efficient distribution at so low a margin of profit. In contrast, we are told in other nations the problem is not one of an adequate diet but one of no diet at all."

But Judge Lindley did find us in violation of the Sherman Act. He based his ruling on the dual role played by our fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary, the Atlantic Commission Company, whereby that organization acted both as buying agent for A&P and as selling agent for growers.

Judge Lindley said:

"If I assume for the purpose of disposition of this case that in general the policy of A&P was to operate within the law and attribute to defendants a desire to comply with the law, there still remains the conscious, knowing adoption by all defendants of a plan of action by the Atlantic Commission Company affecting every department of A&P and every retail store which cannot be squared with the intent and purpose of the act."

In his letter explaining the decision, Judge Lindley wrote: "I have condemned their practices through the Atlantic Commission Company."

Judge Lindley imposed fines totaling $175,000. When his decision was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, we paid the fines. This ended the case—but we did not stop there.

Why, Then, Do They Want To Put A&P Out Of Business?

Ever since this suit was filed, the anti-trust lawyers have been making damaging statements that could seriously hurt our business if they were believed by the public.

They say that we were found guilty at Danville of all the charges they are making today. This is not true. Judge Lindley did not sustain all of the charges of the anti-trust lawyers.

They say this suit is designed to enforce the law. But A&P has clearly demonstrated its sincere desire to abide by the spirit, as well as the letter of the law.

What We Did To Correct This

In the light of the decision, we immediately set about reviewing our activities to be sure that there could never again be any criticism of our operations.

First, the Atlantic Commission Company abandoned the dual role to which Judge Lindley objected and which he said was the basis of his decision against us.

We did this even though the Atlantic Commission Company had been licensed for many years by the United States Department of Agriculture to act as both a buyer and seller of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Atlantic Commission Company now only buys for A&P. In other words, we stopped doing the thing which Judge Lindley said put us in violation of the Sherman Act.

We made additional changes in other methods of operation which Judge Lindley had questioned at Danville, even though he did not base his decision on them.

We did even more than this!

We went down to Washington and asked the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to their new interpretation of the vague anti-trust laws.

The only answer we ever got was that we should break up this company!

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to A&P's size, they insisted that we destroy this size.

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our manufacturing operations, they insisted that we get rid of our factories which produce many of the fine foods you buy at A&P.

Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our low prices, they insisted that we destroy many of the efficiencies that make these low prices possible.

In other words, they insisted upon the dissolution of A&P.

We were still trying to find out from the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to the law when they filed the current suit to destroy A&P.

They say they are seeking to "enjoin" A&P from engaging in certain "alleged" practices. Actually, the whole purpose of this suit is not to "enjoin" us, but to put us out of business.

They say that this suit for dissolution is based on the decision handed down by Judge Lindley in Danville.

But Judge Lindley has said of his decision: "I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."

What, then, is the real reason why the anti-trust lawyers want to destroy this company, which for 90 years has pioneered the methods of distribution which have given the American people more good food for their money?

THE GREAT ATLANTIC &

PACIFIC TEA COMPANY

The Oboon High School livestock judging team won a judging contest held last by the Blue Ridge FFA Federation. The future farmers are outpointed teams from other high schools at Nokesville, Calverton, Warrenton, Marshall, Dealton, and Lexington. Oboon team members were Oliver Crouch, Kenneth Speake, and Wallace Wright. High individual scoring honors went to Oboon Clark, a Calverton while second and third place went to Crouch and Speake respectively. Wright placed fifth.

J. Lee Buckley presided as chairman of the Prince William Safety Council meeting on May 9, when O. L. Heath, Virginia REA Job training and Safety Supervisor, showed a film on line and maintenance crews on handling hazardous work.

Following their 6-5 defeat of Oboon last Sunday manager Howard Atkinson said the Manassas Macs are a much improved bunch after last year and stand a fine chance to win the Northern Virginia League pennant.

Following The Red Sox

By Buddy Merchant

The Old Dominion League finally got off on the right foot Sunday, but the Manassas Red Sox went down to a tough defeat as the Virginia White Sox walked away with a 5-4 victory in the 10th inning.

The game was lost in the 10th inning when Giuseppe attempting to steal second kicked the ball as he slid in a second. He then got up and raced home with the winning run and a tough loss for Squeezer Polen and the Sox.

The Red Sox overcame a 4-0 lead by the White Sox in the 6th inning, scoring 3 runs in the 6th and 1 in the 8th. Merchant opened the 6th with a walk, Dallas Posey also received a free pass and Carlin Posey blasted a single to center to score Merchant. Martin reached base on a fielders choice and Dallas Posey romped home as Baldwin filed deep to center. Eddie Tyson and Shelton walked to fill the bases and Hawes was hit by a pitched ball to force home Martin.

In the 8th Will reached base on an error and Polen singled. Merchant then singled to right field and Will scored with the tying run. But then came the fateful 10th inning and the White Sox closed in their rabbit foot to win the game.

Following The Macs

The Manassas Macs are showing early season strength that might make them strong contenders for the League pennant, according to manager Howard Atkinson, and with two wins in their first two games under their belts Atkinson could be right.

After coming from behind to defeat Occoquan 6-5 Sunday, the Macs took the Nokesville Bluebirds for a ride Tuesday night at Swaley Field and sent them home on the short end of 14-11 score.

Russell Polen led the Tuesday attack with 5 hits in as many times at bat. Included were a triple and two doubles by Polen who started the game in center field and moved onto the pitcher's mound in the 5th inning.

The Macs led 10-4 after 4 innings, but Nokesville score 6 runs in the 5th off pitcher Polen, who was slower to warm up on the mound than he was at the plate. With the score tied 10-all, the Macs pushed across another run in their half of the 5th and were never in danger after that. Polen set them down in good order and allowed only one run in the last four innings, while the Macs got more in the 6th to clinch a win.

The Journal was ready to print the box score of the Macs-Nokesville game but found that the official score-keeper had given the Macs 14 runs and shown only 13 on the box score.

Here Is Shown The Acre of Ground in Arlington Cemetery Reserved As The Grave Site of Field Marshal Sir John Dill

The Arts Commission's Arlington Should Have Dignity of Temple

Recently head of the Decedent of that office, and Colonel Corbin, Jr., of the Advocate's Department.

What such an investigation would turn up: Dill was the senior Britisher of the Combined Chiefs in Washington, that "allied" which history may show much to prolong the war German counterpart, the command of Wehrmacht, Marshall died in Washington, December 4, 1944, and General Marshall then chief of staff Army—made up his mind John Dill should be, permanently in a place of honor at Arlington.

Marshall headquarters of was even larger than it there were in the Pentagon of lawyers who could General Marshall that no more right to bury in a British field marshal German corporal—except one ever told General Marshall which he did not wish to.

Whether the law was there, books—and it is still there, U. S. Code 281. Carefully restricts Arlington burials, sailors, marines and fishermen and optionally to citizens who died while in time of war in the ranks of forces.

Marshall ordered an as-Colonel Frank McCarthy, a reconnaissance out to select a place McCarthy thought would be in with the wishes of Dill. Marshall wanted a which was not immediately occupied lots. In a conversation on November 1944, McCarthy told Colonel Harold of the Quarter-General's Office, "We wanted a place because we know what the British may erect within the next year. You know, Sir John was one above any officer we have rank above that of General. We have selected a place, McCarthy selected was only a few hundred feet and to the left of the entrance to Arlington.

Marshall's intentions were known early. The convenience of the military, the feeble old Secretary, Henry L. Stimson, signed dated Nov. 20, 1944, addressed to the Quarter-General's Office, "The letter directed that the ground at Arlington National Cemetery in which the late Marshall Sir John Dill is now reserved to his memory, an interment will be made in the ground bounded at present by Roosevelt, Grant, Weeks and an Avenue."

Officers and the Under Secretary of War talked the matter over and decided that the law forbade the burial in Arlington of such as Sir John Dill.

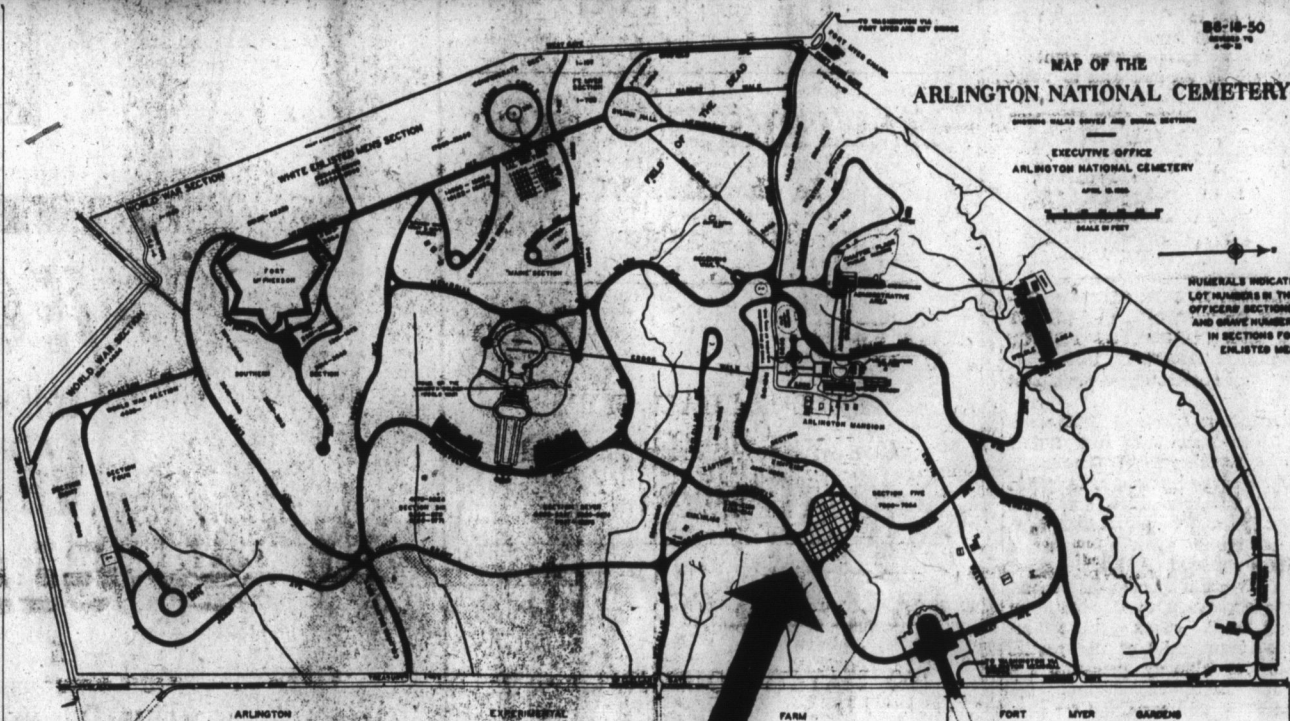

This was the expert opinion of the No. 2 civilian of the Army—himself a noted lawyer—the No. 1 military legal expert and the top Army man on cemetery matters. Their combined view meant less than nothing to General Marshall. He had set his mind not only to bury Sir John Dill at Arlington, but to raid the U. S. Treasury for $25,000 to erect a monument to Dill. Even his subservient generals gagged on this one, but did their best to appease the high-handed old soldier by going through the motions of preparing a resolution for Congress to pass authorizing the expenditure.

The responsibility for writing the resolution lay with Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, who as head of the Army's Legislative and Liaison Division was chief lobbyist for the Army. Persons politely gave Marshall his opinion that the preparation of a resolution Congress would adopt would not be complicated, but that he "foresaw some objections" to the type of resolution Marshall wanted. The record shows Marshall's reaction to Persons' negativism: scrawled across Persons' report in Marshall's handwriting are the words, "Have draft prepared. Check precedents."

Somehow, when the drafts were prepared, the $25,000 appropriation was never included. The Army knew it couldn't force that down the throat of Congress, even during wartime when legislators were of a rubber-stamp frame of mind. But Congress did adopt a resolution prepared for it by the Army, memorializing Sir John Dill. The Army also wrote a speech and gave it to Senator Tom Connally of Texas to deliver. Connally did what so many soldiers do with items forced on them by pressure groups: he edited it and obtained unanimous consent to "extend his remarks" in the Congressional Record.

The resolution which the Army forced through Congress at Marshall's insistence now lives both to plague it and to provide it, with an alibi it hopes will confuse the public while the Army waits out the traditionally short duration of the American memory. Here is what the resolution says:

"Whereas the Congress having been informed of the death of Field Marshal Sir John Dill in Washington, District of Columbia, on November 4, 1944; and
"Whereas the Arlington National Cemetery has been chosen as the final resting place of this distinguished soldier; and
"Whereas the Senior British representative of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, Field Marshal Sir John Dill, by his wisdom and devotion to the vital cause of British-American military cooperation, rendered a great service to the United Nations; Now, therefore, be it
"RESOLVED by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the outstanding service rendered to the United Nations by Field Marshal Sir John Dill be, and hereby is, recognized by the American people and the Congress of the United States."

The arrow points to the section of Arlington National Cemetery bounded by Roosevelt, Grant, Weeks and Sherman avenues, just to the left of the main entrance to Arlington, where the remains of the British Field Marshal Sir John Dill are buried in violation of the law.

which, being in charge of American war graves has always opposed the desecration of national cemeteries. Shortly after the resolution was adopted, W. C. Compton, the Quartermaster General's civilian general counsel, offered his chief an advisory opinion dated Nov. 19, 1946. The opinion pointed out that the legality of Dill's burial hinged on the paragraph in the preamble that states, "Whereas . . . Arlington . . . has been chosen as the final resting place . . ." The opinion recited two Supreme Court decisions that showed the preamble—the "whereas"—of a resolution to have no legal effect.

The Supreme Court decisions were plucked from two sources: one was Sutherland Statutory Construction, Vol. 2, Sec. 4804; the other was the case "Yazoo Railroad v. Thomas, 132 U. S. 174, 188." The former stated: "As the preamble usually precedes the enacting clause, it frequently has been said to be 'no part of the law' and hence cannot enlarge the scope of the statute. Its function is to explain and not to confer power." The latter said, "But as the preamble is no part of the act, and cannot enlarge or confer powers, nor control the words of the act unless they are doubtful or ambiguous, the necessity of resorting to it to assist in ascertaining the true intent and meaning of the legislation is in itself fatal to the claim set up."

The Quartermaster General's lawyer then concluded, "It is the opinion of this office that the portion of the joint resolution which constitutes the preamble contains merely a statement of fact or hypothesis upon which the enacting portion of the legislation has been predicated. It does not, in effect, amend or enlarge upon any existing legislation on the subject of burial in a national cemetery."

Dill was a fine soldier. Therefore, we resolve to state that the American people appreciate what he did during the war."

That is a flimsy foundation on which to build a campaign of law violation, but on no stronger foundation than that the Army has buried Sir John Dill at Arlington. And the Army has made its willful flaunting of the law stick for five and a half years.

After Compton rendered his opinion the Quartermaster General brought up the subject with a new Under Secretary of War, Kenneth C. Royall.

By this time, late in 1946, General Marshall was in China as President Truman's special envoy, and a slavishly Anglophile group of English Speaking Union members and pro-British State Department officials, known as the Field Marshal Sir John Dill Monument Committee, had gone into action. It planned to erect on Dill's gravesite a heroic-size equestrian statue of the field marshal.

The Quartermaster General met with Under Secretary Royall and, mustering all the diplomacy he could command, suggested a compromise to the desirable proposal of removing Sir John's remains from Arlington. He suggested that the Dill gravesite be reduced from one acre to the size normally reserved for any other officer of similar rank—a plot about eight feet square. (By this time, it should be explained, Dill no longer outranked all Americans; the five-star rank of General of the Army was created about a month after Dill's death.)

The Quartermaster General further recommended that no equestrian statue be permitted at the John Dill gravesite, and that the Under Secretary invite the secretary of the Dill Monument group to a meeting at which Mr. Royall would ask the Monument committee not to embarrass the War Department by insisting on erecting a statue.

The Army had good precedent for opposing a monument of the type the John Dill group advocated. For nearly 30 years the Fine Arts Commission, a government agency, had opposed such statues in Arlington. The commission, in its eighth report, covering the period 1918-19, had stated the case against statues in these words:

"The peaceful portions of Arlington Military Cemetery are those where long lines of small, white stones are shaded by large trees, through whose branches the sunlight filters. The intention is to have the headstones uniform in size, alike for officers and privates; and to express in the treatment of the cemetery as a whole, as well as in its central features and in well-designed gateways, the honor and respect this country shows to those who died in its service."

Again, in 1921, the Fine Arts Commission, commenting on monuments in Arlington, said:

"The stones used should be uniform in size and design. All display of an individual character is as much out of place as civilian clothing worn by individual soldiers in a regiment drawn up on parade . . . Statues, memorials, ornaments of any kind should be excluded. The entire area devoted to burials should be as sacred as a temple or a church."

Henry Gibbins, Major General and Quartermaster General of the Army in 1937, looked on these opinions and found them good. He asked the Assistant Secretary of War for a permanent restriction against monuments, and to Gibbins' request was appended this policy ruling:

"The policy contained in paragraph 4, above, is approved and will be rigidly enforced."
"By direction of The Assistant Secretary of War:
(Signed) J. H. Burns, Colonel, Ordnance Department, Executive."

Under Secretary Royall, faced with logic and precedent so understandable to him as a lawyer, agreed to the Quartermaster General's recommendations. Royall's assistant, Colonel Frank J. Corbin, wrote The Adjutant General of the Army, "by direction of the Under Secretary of War," the following letter:

"Subject: Burial site of Field Marshal Sir John Dill in Arlington National Cemetery.
"Desire that the Adjutant General dispatch a letter as follows, subject as above, to the Quartermaster General of the Army."

"1. It is desired that the Quartermaster General reduce the grave space presently allotted as a final resting place in Arlington National Cemetery for Field Marshal Sir John Dill to an area normally assigned to a deceased United States Officer of similar grade."

"2. Any previous instructions in conflict herewith are hereby rescinded."

Colonel Corbin then wrote the Hon. Robert Woods Bliss, secretary of the Dill Memorial Committee, inviting Bliss to a meeting with Royall.

All this activity seemed to be directed toward the War Department's preventing the desecration of Arlington by the erection of an equestrian statue of a British officer on America's most hallowed ground.

By the hope was short lived. President Truman had recalled General Marshall from China to become Secretary of State. When he arrived, the Dill Memorial Committee was still boiling from the news that the Army did not intend to let it set up a man-on-horseback effigy in Arlington. The Anglophiles rushed to the State Department with the story. Marshall flew into an Olympian rage and gave birth to one of the finest examples of overstepped authority in American political experience.

He called Army generals on the telephone. He berated them in anger. He is reputed to have told them that good relations with England hinged on the burial of Sir John Dill in Arlington "in the style originally planned."

The Manassas Journal

ESTABLISHED IN 1869
Published every Thursday by the Prince William Publishing Co., Inc. at the office of The Manassas Journal, Manassas, Va.

WILLIAM M. HINES, Sr. Editor-Manager
LAWRENCE WEEKLEY, Circulation and Classified Ads.

That the preamble of the resolution did not constitute law, the Judge Advocate General of the Army was directed to give a new opinion. His tongue-in-cheek opinion that Army generals needed to cover their shivering selves held that the resolution—all of it, every word—was law because it was signed by the President.

Whether the resolution—the part that begins, "Resolved, by the Senate . . ."—was law was never questioned. The point at issue was, "Does the preamble—the 'whereas'—part confer power or merely explain?" However, the ruling of the Judge Advocate General served a purpose. It enabled the Army's propaganda machine, under the direct Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, the ill-starred Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, and later the clever Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks—to have an explanation for newspapermen. That the explanation was sheer double-talk could hardly have been known by the newsmen, who did not have the facilities available to make the necessary investigation, who in most cases did not have the time to do the required amount of digging, and who in any case would have been subjected to all the well-developed obscurantist tactics the Army could muster had they asked to be shown the complete file.

The Journal believes the Army intends to do everything it can to help General Marshall violate the law. The record of five and a half years speaks for itself in this connection.

The Journal holds that the law now on the statute books which prevents such burials in Arlington should be observed, just as any law should be observed until it is repealed.

The Journal contends that the Army's scowling attitude and the autocratic, "I-am-the-law" stand of General Marshall constitute a grave threat to American law and American democracy. If a general, or an ex-general, can thwart the law, why can't a private, or a civilian, or even a President, do the same with impunity?

The Journal believes further that unless it is stopped the Army will connive with the English Speaking Union, with General Marshall, and with those State Department officials whose love of America, until some bright morning the statue of a British general, as ride a rearing steed, will look down on the nation's capital from a promontory consisting of an acre of ground selected by order of our one-time Chief of Staff, our one-time Secretary of State, our present head of the American Red Cross.

And while we are discussing Sir John Dill, why should we not ask about Ignace Jan Paderewski, whose services to the world of music and the world of popular rule place him far above Sir John Dill as Thomas Jefferson stands above William T. Sherman?

Paderewski, the father of the Polish Republic and one of the greatest pianists the world has ever known, died here during the war. His remains were taken to Arlington, but they were not given an acre of ground. They were not given even the six feet of earth any Christian can expect as his due. They were—and still are—stored in a vault pending shipment back to Poland. The corpse of Paderewski is too great a democratic force; the Russian masters of the Polish people will not accept the bones of Poland's Washington.

But was Paderewski not more beloved and better known by the American people than this British general, Dill?

If Arlington is to be turned into a public burying ground for foreign nationals who happen to die in the United States, why has Paderewski not been committed to the soil?

Could it be because he was not a friend of George Catlett Marshall?

It has long been an Army rule that a staff study should be made of all recommendations. This article has some semblance to a staff study, so The Journal recommends:

Let the Army right itself with the people to whom it has been unfaithful by repudiating the illegal and autocratic rule of General Marshall.

Let the Army then prepare another resolution, and send this resolution to Congress for enactment.

Let the Army bear in mind that the "whereas" have no force of law, and that the "resolved" is all that counts.

Let the resolution read:

"Whereas, the death of Field Marshal Sir John Dill occurred in Washington, District of Columbia, on November 4, 1944, while the United States and its Allies were at war with Germany and Japan, and
"Whereas, shipping facilities were at a premium and it was impracticable at that time to return the remains of this distinguished soldier to his native land; and
"Whereas, his temporary interment in Arlington National Cemetery was recognized as an expedient until such time as an American warship might become available to return his remains to their homeland; and
"Whereas Section 281, Title 24, U. S. Code, specifically states who may be buried in national cemeteries; Now, therefore, be it

"RESOLVED, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled that the Secretary of Army be, and he hereby is, directed to use from funds already appropriated him for the Return of World War II Dead any amount necessary for the disinterment of the remains of Sir John Dill from Arlington National Cemetery, and their return to his native land in a manner commensurate with his rank.

"And be it further resolved that the action directed herein be completed, by delivery of the remains on the ground at an English port, within sixty (60) days after enactment hereof."

Perhaps the Army is still too much under the thumb of General Marshall. Perhaps it will not introduce such a resolution. Congressman Howard W. Smith, you represent the district in which Arlington Cemetery lies, and in which this violation of law has taken place. Will you introduce the resolution, and force the Army to mend its broken faith with the American people?

Quantico Triangle Dumfries

By Lee Roy Peters

I don't know what it is about his newspaper business that makes it so fascinating. I've been trying to give up this job for more than a month because I am so busy with my work of my boys' club and my odd activities and a few other things of a civic nature that I engage in that I sometimes do not have the time that is required to devote to it. But my merchant friends simply won't let me quit. I don't know what I am going to do about it.

I guess it is because they get results from this type of advertising and I am happy about that. The editor was giving me a lecture the other day about waiting until the last minute to get my material upon his desk. When I ask him when he wants me to get my stuff in he tells me "yesterday." There seems to be no tomorrow in his vocabulary.

That's the way with a lot of people who deal with the merchants too. They walk into a store and want something right now and they never seem to think of all the things a merchant must do to keep a stock well supplied and to anticipate the wants of everyone, even if they do not express them.

That's one thing about the stores of Quantico and Triangle. They do carry an excellent stock of goods and they have learned by experience just about when people are going to want things and they have them on hand. Because of that my job really isn't as difficult as it could be if there was a different type of merchant to deal with, so I guess, perhaps, that some of the fault lies with me in that I have so many irons in the fire of a civic nature that I meet myself getting up in the morning about the time I have gone to bed. At least it feels that way at times.

I am sure you will excuse me for unburdening upon you my own problems. It all started when I took part in the VFW minstrel show a few weeks ago. Up to then, in the long winter evenings, I was able to get some newspaper work done but now that sports have come along and the boys of the club occupy much of my time it is becoming increasingly burdensome to call upon everyone. There should be two of me.

At any rate just drop in upon my advertisers and tell them that you sympathize with me and write a letter to the editor and tell him to cease being a Simon Legree and I may get through the summer.

Roy Doggett is still a tax-free common carrier and has not been ruled to be a merchant subject to a license tax. Town Attorney W. Hill Brown, to whom the town council referred the matter of Doggett's failure to pay a license, has not reached a decision but has written to Richmond for opinions rendered in similar cases.

YOU CAN HAVE CHARM PLUS CONVENIENCE IN YOUR KITCHEN

Trim, compact little "model" kitchens have their advantages, but the family with a large kitchen can have convenience plus charm. A delightful dining corner in a remodeled kitchen features a unique fireplace and a collection of copper objects. Walls painted chartreuse and furniture enameled brown and copper combine attractively with a white-coated chimney and pale yellow shelves.

BY LONORE KENT

Do you think wishfully of a trim, compact new model kitchen? Do you reflect, unhappily, on your own spacious, but definitely pre-war workshop? You needn't. There are all sorts of possibilities for convenient arrangement in your larger kitchen. There are also more ways it can be endowed with charm and livability than the small, business-like affairs in many brand-new houses.

One large, awkwardly arranged kitchen has, for example, been rearranged into a room that has production-line efficiency plus inviting charm and comfort. First of all—as the construction of the chimney permitted it—a unique and delightful miniature fireplace was constructed at table-top height in the corner devoted to mealtime. A generous ledge in front of the fireplace created a small hearth.

At right angles to the chimney a bench was built—with shelves above it in the popular new eggcrate pattern. These gave attractive setting to a treasured collection of copper objects. The bench itself had a box seat which held logs and kindling. A Hitchcock bench and a table with wheels completed the furnishing of the fireside group. The wheels on the table, incidentally, made it possible to tundle the table directly to the sink after a meal, eliminating the need for many steps in clearing the table.

Because of the joy they took in their copperware, the family planned a color scheme to complement it. Walls and woodwork were coated with a lovely shade of chartreuse green semi-gloss enamel that was as easy to wash as it was to view. The Hitchcock bench was done in a copper tone. The movable table and built-in bench were enameled a warm brown to match the linoleum, while the eggcrate shelves were finished in a chartreuse yellow that blended with the cushions on the bench. The brick of the chimney, in white, repeated the gleaming, durable finish of the kitchen equipment, while the fabric of the curtains at the windows combined all the lovely colors in the room.

MANASSAS CHAPTER U.D.C.
Mrs. Joseph G. Kincheloe, Mrs. James D. Conner and Miss Mamie Conner were hostesses to the Manassas Chapter, U.D.C. on May 3rd at the Stonewall Jackson Hotel. President, Miss Isabelle Hutchison, in the chair. Usual order of opening exercises followed. Historian, Mrs. W. A. Newman read from U. D. C. yearbook the aims of the organization and a list of prize essays submitted to the chapters. Mrs. Newman then presented Mrs. J. C. Messer of near Clifton who gave a fine review of the book "Foreigners of the Confederacy." Mrs. Messer, formerly of Hattiesville, Miss., where she held membership in U.D.C. for forty years. An appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Newman for the entertaining program.

Mrs. J. M. Hanson, a guest, very kindly gave a movie, showing scenes from the program transferring the old Dogan House to the Battlefield Park Service and also scenes from the dedication exercises of the McLean House at Appomattox on April 15th.

Mrs. E. D. Wissler, chairman of U. D. C. scholarships reported that she has all information and material for applications.

Literature committee told of distribution of sixty booklets "Some Things for Which the South Did Not Fight." Announcements were made of observance of Lee's birthday, May 8th at the Battle Field Museum and of the 4th District meeting at the Confederate Home, Alexandria, Va., May 13th at ten a. m.

An invitation was given to the chapter to confer with committees of the Prince William Post and V. F. W. for arranging program May 30th. On this occasion crosses of Military Service awarded by U. D. C. will be presented by Manassas Chapter.

Mrs. L. J. Carper reported rapid sale of Confederate flags at the Stone House Inn through the courtesy of the hostess, Mrs. J. P. Lyon.

The dining table was lovely in flower arrangement of crimson larkspur, white stock and fern. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the hotel hostess, Mrs. Water Sadd.

DAR SESSION

The Elizabeth McIntosh Hammill Chapter, D.A.R., met at the Stonewall Jackson Hotel on Tuesday afternoon with Miss Daisy Etta Davis and Mrs. J. L. Dawson of Occoquan as co-hostesses. Mrs. C. C. Lynn, regent, presided at the long business session.

Much of the time was spent in discussing letters asking for contributions for many worthy causes. A letter from the Veterans of Foreign Wars was read asking contributions for the war memorial they plan to use as a meeting place. A pledge of $25 was made at this time.

The restoration of Woodlawn in Fairfax County is another of the large D.A.R. projects which has progressed rapidly. Of the original purchase price of $175,000 only $36,000 remains to be paid. Many loans and gifts of furnishings have been made to make this an attractive shrine. The father of one of the chapter members, Mrs. C. B. Compton, built the old mill which now stands on Woodlawn although it was originally built at Water 'Lick' near Front Royal and later moved to its present site. The chapter made another contribution to this project.

Mrs. R. L. Byrd, chairman of the Good Citizenship Committee, reported that Priscilla Wakeman of Osborn High School, Frances Ann Sanford of Occoquan District High School, and Christobelle Mary Lee Tolson of Brensville District High School were the winners of the Good Citizenship awards in their schools. Because of the excellence of the papers submitted, the chapter unanimously agreed to award each student with $3 in addition to the medal and certificate.

Mrs. Lynn read a letter written to the District of Columbia D.A.R. asking their permission to cut some of the pine trees planted in 1939 in the Conway Robinson Memorial Park to make possible a roadside parking area when the dual highway is built. The Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs with the State Forestry Service is making plans for this beauty spot which will be an added attraction to the Park.

Mrs. Lynn gave a brief but interesting report of her trip to Washington as a delegate to the National Convention. She presented to the chapter a small flagstand made from the box elder which had to be cut down to make the addition to Constitution Hall. The flagstand held national, state and D. A. R. miniature flags.

Mrs. Margaret M. A. Finch of Takoma Park was appointed recording secretary to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Everett Rice, who was commended for her fine work.

Mrs. Byrd was a guest of Mrs. Robt. H. Smith at the Fairfax DAR meeting held at Cedar Grove last Saturday. She gave a brief account of the meeting.

The resignation of Mrs. Luciene Carter was read with regrets.

As a closing to the meeting Mrs. Finch read the "Star Spangled Banner."

Nokesville

lard Wilkins, Ted Shepherd, Mrs. Fred Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Nelson, David Kerlin and Frank Foster. The Faithful Climbers will hold their next monthly meeting at the church next Tuesday night with Mrs. Cleveland Flory and Mrs. Eugene Flory acting as hostesses.

The Seventh Grade accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Flory, Mrs. Oliver Rowe and Lester Huff spent Tuesday visiting several places of interest in Washington.

The Eighth grade with their sponsor Wallace Bolding, spent Thursday enjoying a picnic at the Manassas Battlefield.

Ray Diehl arrived on Friday evening after a 2,000 mile drive from New Mexico, where he is stationed in the Air Force. Ray looks grand.

Janet and Carey Crismond and those little twin girls of Spotsylvania took advantage of Sunday's sunshine and visited "Grandma" and "Grandpa" Trenis.

Little Sherry Brown will probably be home from school the rest of the year on account of having the whooping cough. We believe this is the worst epidemic of various diseases Nokesville has had for many a year. The mumps, which contrary to tradition that they won't cause much suffering, are really putting plenty of our folks in bed for at least a week. "Victims" this past week have been Marie Kerlin, Alton Flickenger, Faye Whetzel, Grace Shepherd, Wade Whetzel, Jr., and the other three of our children.

Warren Wright spent the weekend at his home away from studies at Bridgewater College. Warren had just gotten out of the infirmary after being confined there with the mumps.

Mr. Paul Theimer is back in bed again.

Dr. Grover Brown arrived home on Saturday evening after a business trip to Texas.

Mr. J. C. Snider of Arlington spent Wednesday night with the W. W. Snyders and Thursday visiting relatives here in Nokesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Theimer, Jr. back into their lovely little house and little daughter have moved on the L. R. Cowne farm. Mrs. Theimer has been ill and unable to do her work so they had been living at the Senior Theimer home.

Mr. Graybill continues to be critically ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Allen of Woodbridge spent Monday with Nokesville folks. Mr. Allen gets so much pleasure sharing some of the wonderful fish which he catches with his friends here.

The Rev. D. D. Fleishman were Sunday dinner guests of the George Sonafranks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith of Berton spent the weekend with the David Yankeys and John Randall.

The young people and their friends of the Nokesville Church of the Brethren are invited to the Sonafrank home on Sunday evening for a worship service and get-together.

Mrs. Dorothy Field and little Karen and a friend of Florida spent Tuesday night with the Stuart Michaels on their way to New York where Mrs. Field and Karen will visit relatives for a while before coming back here for a visit.

Mr. J. A. Hooker celebrated his 33rd birthday on Sunday, April 30 along with his grandson, Ernest and Mrs. Louise Sloop Ramkey. Miss Anna Hooker came home from William and Mary College for the occasion. Rev. and Mrs. Ramkey up for the day which has been celebrated in the Hooker family for many years. Rev. and Mrs. Ramkey have accepted the call to go to the Bridgewater-Dayton Presbyterian Charge. They will live at the Manse on College Street in Bridgewater.

Both little children of the Silas Langs have the whooping cough. The Langs are living with the Theimers now.

All four of the George Cowne children are recovering from a nice couple of weeks with the measles.

SEE CHITWOOD'S DAREDEVILS

Give Thrilling Exhibition of FORD'S Strength, Stamina and Performance (Using Stock Cars)

MAY 16 8:30 P. M.
LONGVIEW PARK SPEEDWAY

THERE'LL BE NO DOUBT in your mind that Ford has an extra margin of safety when you see how stock model '50 Fords take the punishment Joe Chitwood's Auto Daredevils give them.

It takes a car that's precision built for the Daredevils' precision driving! You'll see the exciting new power of the "hushed" V-8. You'll see how Ford's new 13-way stronger "Lifeguard" Body (now "sound-conditioned" for quiet) can take it... how Ford's "Hydra-Coil" and "Para-Flex" Springs team up to absorb severe shocks with ease. And you'll see dramatic proof that Ford's "Finger-Tip" Steering means responsive, easy handling. You'll agree—Ford's built to take it!

And it's an economical car to buy and own—with low first cost (your old car probably more than covers the down payment)... low operating costs (with great mileage, and quality construction that keeps maintenance costs down)... and high resale value (because Ford's future is built in). One "Test Drive" tells you Ford's the low-priced fine car. Ford's "hushed" 100-h.p. V-8 is yours for hundreds less than most "Sixes"... or choose Ford's advanced 95-h.p. Six for still less.

will be to discuss types of recreation equipment to be purchased and just where will be the best place to install these at the center. As most of you know this was a project started by the Lions club some odd three years ago. In this three odd years the Lions have made rapid progress with what they call their baby. All Lions activities have been for the purpose of putting more money to the fund for the center. To name just a few projects that have put money in the fund is the carnivals held each year, various plays, minstrels, raffles, parties and etc. At the present time there is a plan underway to install water on the center, stands have been built to accommodate some 1500 people, in conjunction with the diamond which has lights, an area has been cleared to install play ground equipment on and the laying out of a picnic area is in progress at this time. Surely the people of the area should be proud of this wonderful undertaking of the Lions and everyone should give this project his utmost support, because of its benefit for all that live in the three communities.

The first practice of the season will be held for all young boys of the Quantico, Triangle Dumfries and Quantico Post areas at the Lions Diamond Monday, May 15 at 6:30 E.S.D.T. If you were not 17 as of January 1, 1950 you are eligible to make the team.

Elsie R. Smith and
Jas. Hutcheson Wed

Miss Elsie R. Smith was married at noon Saturday to Cpl. James Hutcheson in a ceremony performed by Rev. John Edens at the home of Mrs. Thomas C. Price in Manassas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Smith of Watertown, N. Y. and Cpl. Hutcheson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hutcheson of Gunstonville, Miss.

The bride wore a blue dress with white accessories, and an orchid. Her mother wore a print dress with a corsage of white roses. Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Frank R. George, and the best man was Sgt. Frank R. George.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Mrs. Price's home. The couple departed later for Richmond where they are honeymooning.

Decorations included a floral arrangement of 7-branch candelabra and palm leaves for the altar, and a centerpiece of white snapdragons and white carnations for the reception table.

Others at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fogler, children, Gerald, Michael and Ida, and Mr. E. E. Rohr.

Sign Letters
To Him, Urges
Dr. Johnson

"The anonymous letters received by the Fauquier-Prince William County Health Department complaining of insanitary conditions are useless to us as far as enforcing corrective measures," Dr. Walter R. Johnson, Health Officer, reported this week.

"We receive an average of one of these unsigned letters a week," he said, "but unless we have complaining witnesses to testify we are unable to bring the matter into court for corrective action."

The complaints usually list the names of property owners where the conditions exist, Dr. Johnson pointed out. Such things as broken drain fields, excessive refuse, insanitary living quarters, and other conditions which might affect the public health of the community are usually listed in the letters.

Persons making complaints are asked to sign their letters, and the Health Department will then be able to investigate and take action. The policy of the Health Department is based upon positive information which will not place the organization in the position of snooping.

Where a nuisance "not a health hazard" exists, the complainant seeks abatement, consequently where the complainant is anonymous no action is possible, it was pointed out.

TRY! It's the Way to Make Sure of the Car You Buy!

150 CARS

Choose From and You SAVE $100 and More on the Car You Select

The largest used car stock in the State of Virginia and every car carries a Silver guarantee. Once you know you'll appreciate the value of a Silver guarantee and the full meaning of a Silverized Used Car... a used car that has through several inspections and operations to make sure that it runs right we offer it to the public. That's why Carl says this about any of his cars: "... Try it... no obligation to buy. We supply the gas. You drive the car 4 hours or more if necessary. Prove to yourself that the car is in perfect condition and well worth the price. If the car does not meet with your approval in any way, don't buy it. We want you to be satisfied. Just look at our prices... prices that can't be beat.

BE WISE! BE THRIFTY! BUY A '49 INSTEAD OF A '50
Take their biggest depreciation the first year... and the wise buyer saves this difference. They run and look like new, in fact, you can hardly tell them from the new models... yet you'll save $500 and as much as $700 and $800 on the car you buy. Just look at the prices listed and see the cars. You'll see right away that it's thrifty to buy a '49 instead of a '50.

Funds Come In For VFW Headquarters

Contributions have started pouring in to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in their campaign to raise $6,500 for a new headquarters and community center. Receipts have already been sent out to those who have contributed by mail.

When completed the post headquarters, located at the corner of Main Street and Portner Avenue, will provide not only a meeting place for members, but also a site for civic and community meetings, according to post commander Archie Jordan. "The VFW will always be available for scheduled meetings of civic groups seeking community improvement," he told the Journal.

Remodeling is expected to be completed within the next 30 days with virtually all work being done with labor donated by the VFW members. Plans call for a fully equipped kitchen for dinner meetings and post officials expressed a hope that community organizations will take advantage of the facilities to be offered.

The post is "dedicated to preserving, fostering and developing the true spirit of America," explained Eugene Worley, post adjutant.

Named for Francis Cannon, Manassas soldier who died in action on Saipan, the post headquarters will commemorate all Prince William war dead.

Since its formation in the Summer of 1946 the local VFW has been a generous contributor to charities and welfare funds. The members have voted donations to the war memorial health center, the Osborn High School band, the Red Cross, and others. A special charity work of the post has been the distribution of Christmas baskets to the needy.

Coal is a fuel, not a feed, so don't give it to hogs. That is the advice from George Herring, animal husbandman at V. P. I., who says many farmers ill-advisedly feed coal to hogs, and in so doing, increase the cost of putting weight on the animals.

52-Man Economic Council Is Established to Study State; 'Startling' Facts Are Expected

"Startling" facts concerning development in Virginia's economy will shortly be released in reports made to committees of the Advisory Council on the Virginia Economy. State Senator Lloyd C. Bird of Chesterfield, council chairman, has undergo sharp declines from their present levels. It is our hope that the studies shortly to be announced will be of real aid to Virginia citizens planning their future business operations." The 52 member council will report to the Governor, this fall, the results from its assigned study of the possibilities of increasing the income of the average Virginia citizen. It operates through committees of citizen-leaders in 17 fields of the State's economic life.

Raymond V. Long, State Planning Commissioner and executive secretary of the council of business, farm, and civic leaders, legislators and State officials has announced that the council will return approximately $12,000 of its current appropriation to the State Treasury July 1. Employment of Virginia specialists, aided by volunteer citizens, has proved more efficient than the original plan of engaging out-of-State professional consultants, he explained.

In a letter to Virginia newspaper editors this week, Dr. Charles F. Marsh, coordinator consultant for the council, said that the first of the study reports, now being summarized for release, predicts the immediate decline of a large portion of an industry basic to the present economy of a sizeable section of the State. "But our studies also indicate," he explained, "that if efforts are now gradually shifted to a portion of that industry presently relatively undeveloped, that area can reach a higher level of prosperity than now known."

Dr. Marsh is chairman of the business administration department of the College of William and Mary. He is now on a leave of absence from the college to aid the council.

Assurance that the 300 unpaid committee members could file minority reports dissenting with conclusions reached by committee majorities has been a major factor in the success of studies now nearing completion, Senator Bird said. He added that he was "much gratified" at the cooperation received from the hundreds of Virginia citizens who have been questioned in the fact-seeking project.

The Advisory Council is supported partially by State funds and partially by private business. It was created in 1947, and received General Assembly sanction for its two-year study in 1948.

LURAY SINGING TOWER Opens 14th Season March 16th

C. T. CHAPMAN
AT THE CLAVIER

One hundred thousand programs are being distributed this week throughout the United States announcing the 14th season of carillon recitals at the Luray Singing Tower, Luray, Va.

Recitals are to be given each Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. From March 16th to June 18th recitals will be given at 3:00 p. m.; Sunset recitals will be given at 7:30 p. m. from June 20th to September 3rd; and from September 5th to November 16th the recitals will be at 3:00 p. m.

C. T. Chapman who is the regular carillonneur at the Luray Singing Tower stated that more than 50,000 people attended recitals in 1949 and that he expected the 1950 season to exceed 1949. Attendance has increased each year since the opening in 1936. The recitals have not only become popular with the people of Virginia, but are attended in large numbers by out of state visitors.

The Luray Singing Tower is at the main entrance to Luray Caverns and is within sight of the Shenandoah National Park and Skyline Drive. The tower containing the carillon is 117 feet high. The largest bell weighs 7,640 lbs. and the smallest 12½ lbs. Total weight of the 47 bells is 36,170 lbs.

Horses, Horses, Horses!

"A better trotting horse at this stage than last year's winner of the $85,000 Hambletonian, Miss Tilly." That's how Fred Egan described Scotch Dean this week when he checked into Roscroft Raceway to prepare for the May 22 opening of the Oxon Hill, Md. harness oval. The 70-year-old Egan, two-time winner of the famed Hambletonian will be making his first appearance on a Maryland harness track this year. Egan added, "I clocked Scotch Dean in 2:02 4-5 for the mile last year at Indianapolis, which is mighty good time for a two-year-old."

The canny veteran of 47 years driving sidewheelers considers his best horse "Spencer Scott," with which he won his first Hambletonian in 1940 and then drove to the world's stallion record of 1:57 1-4 at Lexington as a four-year-old in 1941. Egan also pointed out that he had developed "Hoot Mon" as a two-year-old, before the colt set the record for the Hambletonian with an even 2:00 mile triumph. Miss Tilly, last year, was the second winner for Egan who raced in the inaugural Hambletonian in 1928, appearing in 15 altogether and finishing in the money in 10 of those 15 tries. Egan has trained nothing but trotters for the past eight years, handling horses for O. W. Phellis of Greenwich, Conn., owner of Miss Tilly and Scotch Dean, and Lawrence B. Sheppard, owner of the fabulous Hanover Shoe Farm.

Egan already has eight horses at Roscroft, with three more due in later to complete his string. St. Clair, a four-year-old which raced as an entry with Miss Tilly in year's Hambletonian, finishing in one heat with Clint Hodgson, and E. Hel Greely, sired by great Spencer Scott, are other horses which Egan has stable in the track.

The remainder of his stable made up of Mary Lou Hanover, Sparkle Hanover, Colonel Bessie Wee Minnie and Calena Hanover.

President Roosevelt's Board said— President Truman's Board said— Still the leaders of the Railroad Firemen's Union say—"STRIKE!"

This ridiculous strike is an affront to every citizen of the nation. It's not for more money. It's not because of hours. It's only for soft feather-bedding spots for additional unnecessary firemen to go along in diesel locomotives just for the ride. A leading liberal newspaper calls the demands of the union leaders "horse-feathers"!

The reckless leaders of the firemen's union want to force down the throats of the railroads and the public a ridiculous "make-work" proposal which has been twice ruled out by Presidential Fact Finding Boards duly appointed under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

This demand of union leaders for additional and unnecessary firemen to ride in diesel locomotives was rejected—after months of hearings—by a Board appointed by President Roosevelt in 1943.

It was again rejected in 1949 by a Board appointed by President Truman.

Recent meetings with the National Mediation Board have brought no change in the attitude of the union dictators.

Union Leaders Defy Intent of Law

The union leaders helped write the Railway Labor Act. Yet in an attempt to jam through this scheme of pure "feather-bedding" by leading the members of their union out on strike and threatening paralysis to large areas of the nation, they are defying the spirit and intent of the very law which they helped to create.

This strike is not for higher wages. It is a strike to force the railroads to employ many more thousands of firemen who are not needed! It would be indefensible waste. The railroads have refused to place this additional and unnecessary burden on the public.

But more important than any other consideration, is the action of these few irresponsible union leaders in seeking to force a crippling strike upon the

This strike is one of the silliest strikes in history!

What are these reckless union leaders trying to do? They seek to cause thousands of their members to strike, and throw hundreds of thousands of other employees on and off the railroads out of employment, with loss of pay to them and their families, plus a severe blow to industry and the citizens of the nation.

What's the strike all about? If the union has its way—what happens? The present members of the union won't get one cent more pay. They will merely have been assessed for a costly and indefensible drive in an attempt to provide more dues-paying members for the union by creating "feather-bedding" jobs for additional and unnecessary firemen.

This is certainly one of the silliest strikes in history!

nation for their own selfish purposes. There is no other possible answer to such a demand but "No!"

The railroads in making such a reply believe they have the whole-hearted support of the people in whose interest they are willing to fight this cut, despite the loss and inconvenience that all will suffer.

It is time to put an end to such un-American demands.

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk to you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

are the names of 632 organizations credited with donating money to the II Memorial campaign in Prince William County. The names of the persons apparently are outlined last week by Attorney Stanley who announced that the birth center plans had been advanced a proposal this the Supervisors obtain from the donors, to use for the construction of a new National Guard unit in Manassas. That an excellent war memorial, suggestion of Mr. Cox.

Ed Rohr Has A New Car; It's A 1917 Model

The latest addition to the antique automobile collection of E. E. Rohr is a 1917 Detroit Electric which incorporates some of the features of the vanguard-designed, post-War II cars.

Three hundred and sixty degree visibility is perhaps the most "up-to-date" feature of the 33 year-old black coupe, while its back seat driving arrangement is its most startling feature.

The car sits high off the ground and differential is easily visible to pedestrians. Two long, pants-splitting steps get you up into the glassed-in passenger compartment which is square shaped and big enough for a man of medium size to stand in. A swivel chair is located in front against the windshield and faces to the rear. On the left front side there is a stool seat, for the baby, that swings in under the dashboard when not in use. In the rear of the compartment the driver sits on a two-place cushion seat, similar to seats in present day autos; the only difference is that in today's cars there are no seats in front of the driver. Steering apparatus, a long handle, folds up against the wall when not in use and foot pedals and switches are close to the rear.

Outside, behind the cabin, there is a smart looking trunk with modern air-flow contours. The prow of the vehicle also shows attempts at streamlining, but more crude, as fenders and lights protrude like open taxi doors.

This sporty model is the seventh antique car acquired by Rohr, who began collecting them in 1937 when he liked an old rubber bulb squeak horn so well that he bought the 1915 Ford to go with it. Since then he has gradually built up his auto menagerie, and now can be numbered among the foremost collectors in America. He recently became a member of the Antique Automobile Club of America and this year plans to make their annual Glidden Tour. The Tour entourage, composed of collectors and their showpiece vehicles, will visit Ottawa and Montreal this Summer and later tour New England.

Two Who Quit Sox Put Team Out of Gear

The Manassas Red Sox baseball team was thrown out of gear for short while last week when two players "jumped their contracts" and went over to Gainesville of the Northern Virginia League.

The two, Tommy Darr and Clint Holt were expected to be a pair of valuable Sox and loss of them made things look pretty dark, according to manager Dallas Posey.

However, the addition of hard-hitting first baseman Harry Martin h's week to fill Darr's shoes has dispelled most of the gloom. Holt was a pitcher and another is not needed as badly as was the first baseman, according to club officials.

The players were under contract not to play with another Old Dominion League team during the present season. But since Gainesville is not in this League, their action is not expected to damage their own chances.

Mrs. Clark H. Wood, Mrs. Flora Weir, Mrs. Lillian Burke, and Miss Bertha Luck, left Monday for Richmond where they will attend the Grand Lodge of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Luck are members of the Grand Choir.

Three Visits On Recreation

Miss Marian Preece, District Representative from National Recreation Association will visit three communities in this county to assist with their recreation problems.

Miss Leona M. Kline, Home Demonstration Agent, announces that plans have been completed for Miss Preece to visit the Nokesville community on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 16. Miss Lanier, Recreation Chairman for the Nokesville H. D. Club is arranging for a meeting of members of the Nokesville community.

Mr. Ian Ross, Acting Chairman, for the Manassas Recreation Association has called a meeting of the Association and all persons interested in community recreation to meet at the American Legion Hall, Tuesday night, May 16 at 8 p. m. D.S.T.

Miss Preece is going to meet with members of the Quantico Recreation Committee on Wednesday, May 17. She will meet these members at the recently acquired Recreation ground to discuss plans for development of this plot.

The public is invited to attend these meetings and cooperate with the plans for developing and improving recreational facilities in our County.

200 Failed to Buy Auto Tags

About 200 residents of Manassas are evading purchase of town automobile tags, according to records in the office of City Clerk R. L. Byrd.

Deadline for purchase of the small tag was May 1. On Monday, one week after the deadline, only 201 citizens had purchased their tags. Byrd estimates that there are between 475 and 500 cars and trucks owned and operated here by residents of Manassas. There were 419 purchasers last year.

Cost of the tag, which attaches to the top of State auto tags, is $3 for cars and pickup trucks. It increases $1 for each additional one-half ton weight of trucks.

FORD'S THE ONE FINE CAR IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

(Yet it costs so little to own)

JUDGED "FASHION CAR" OF 1950

Yes, Ford has again been judged "Fashion Car of the Year" by the New York Fashion Academy . . . two years in a row.

SEE FORD DEALER TV
Thursday night—KAY KYSER

THAT'S ALL IT TAKES—10 minutes behind the wheel '50 Ford—and you'll realize that quality has invaded the price field. Ford's new V-8 power will show you in a matter of seconds why America's costliest cars favor this type of engine. (But in the low-price field only Ford has it.) Yet with all its commanding power, this V-8 never raises its voice.

For comfort you'll like Ford's lower, level "Mid Ship" Ride. Sofa-Wide seats. For safety, its 13-way stronger "Life Guard" and 35% easier-acting King Size Brakes. And for your pocketbook's sake you'll be glad to learn you can own even a Ford for hundreds less than most "sixes" (and Ford's "Six" for less). Yes, you'll find Ford a sound investment—low in first—low in maintenance and low in depreciation.
