Related but none the less sincere. Congratulations to the Manassas Legionnaires and the Manassas Hawks for their outstanding performance in the basketball season just past. In recognition of their creditable performance, the members of the teams by the Legion will be feted at a buffet dinner at the Hotel Stonewall Jackson April 14th.

Manassas... and hates. That's what R. C. Jarman had to say when he came by office Monday, prior to leaving Northern New Jersey. Mr. Jarman has been working in Manassas vicinity for the past three years, representing the land department of the Transcontinental Line Corp. Because of the nature of his work, he travels many miles of this country, but he has never been better than he has in this section of Virginia.

Nice profit!... Mrs. G. E. Eide, secretary of the W. S. C. S. Belch Church, Woodbridge recently received from the supper society sponsored by that organization, and wants to express appreciation to all who helped make affair such a success.

Stewart Eustace of Frost Ford recently handed up an old newspaper which was found in dismantling the wooden buildings on the property. It was a copy of Morning Herald, Baltimore, dated September 28, 1898. Although yellow with age and somewhat torn, parts of some pages are easily readable.

The Journal is indebted to W. E. Wagoner, promotion manager of the Jacksonville, Fla. and former editor of this paper, for his outstanding article on the life of the late Miss Emma H. Osbourn, which will be published in three installments in our pages beginning with the next issue. Later Mr. Wagoner promises to have the account made up in booklet so that it will be available in more permanent form for distribution to Osbourn high school graduates for years to come.

Finer Pastures In Co. Urged At Dinner Meet

Dr. Grever Brown, chief agronomist, U. S. Department of Agriculture, presided at a "dutch treat" dinner meeting of the Prince William county pasture improvement committee and interested citizens here Monday night.

The program devoted to the promotion of better pastures in the county to make possible more cowboys here was widely discussed. Representatives of farm implement and fertilizer firms, banks and other interested groups were called upon to assist in making farmers of the county more conscious of the benefits of improving their pastures.

County Agent Frank Cox arranged the meeting which was attended by 40 interested citizens. Two other similar meetings were proposed, one in May and one later in the season, in order to observe the progress of the program.

Featured on the program were two young farmers, Bobby Wood, Nokesville, who spoke on "Soil Conservation and Religion" and Junior Cowan, also of Nokesville, whose topic was "Treasures of Soil and How to Conserve Them."

Pastures will be judged this fall, with awards made to two farmers from each district in the county showing the greatest pasture improvement. A score card for judging pastures was adopted.

5 Inductees Leave Monday Draft Delinquents Defined

The names of five men have been released by Local Board No. 99, Selective Service, for induction into the armed forces from Prince William county on Monday, April 10th.

The draftees are Sinclair Thomas, George Francis Waters Jr., Dumfries, Va.; Johnny Gill Sinclair, Carlton Upshur Theimer, Nokesville, and Stewart Warren Polen, of Manassas.

This month's draft quota was halved because of the calling out of the local National Guard unit. Delinquents Defined

The Board has issued the following statement concerning Selective Service law delinquents:

"A 'delinquent' is a person required to be registered under the selective law who fails or neglects to perform any duty required of him under the provisions of the Selective Service Law." That definition is a direct quote from selective service regulations.

With the deadline for filing a week away, only two candidates have announced for the three offices to come up for election this year in the Manassas town election June 12.

Most recent to file was Arthur L. Carter, local businessman, who will seek one of the council seats. He filed with the county clerk's office yesterday.

Mayor Harry P. Davis announced his candidacy for re-election on Tuesday of this week. He has served as mayor since 1922 and states he is running at the request of a number of citizens, who feel the town needs an experienced official to carry it through the coming "trying times."

Councilman Ferris Gue, whose term expires, told the Journal today that he was undecided. Some weeks ago Councilman G. Wallace Hook definitely stated he would not seek re-election.

Harry Parrish, local young businessman, states that while he is considering running for Council, he was not ready to make any official announcement and that he would make some definite decision by next week.

The deadline for filing is Thursday, April 12th.

Candidate Carter is a well-known and prominent businessman, being part owner and manager of E. B. He's Radio. He is also active in residential construction in Manassas. During the past year and a half, he and his associate have built 16 homes here.

He is a native of Manassas and a graduate of Osbourn high school. On leaving school, Mr. Carter was employed in Occoquan and Washington. He returned here about 12 years ago and became manager of Brown & Hoff, Inc., lumber firm. Less than two years ago, he entered his present business.

Mr. Carter is 40 years old and married. They have two children, Barbara Sue, 9, and Arthur L. Jr., 2.

PORT MEADE, MD., April 2—Private Henry L. Flory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flory, Nokesville, has been assigned to the Signal Replacement Training Center, Camp Gordon, Ga., for basic training.

He will receive six weeks training in basic military subjects.

Capacity Crowd Turns Out To Protest Set-Back Law

STUART T. DEBELL

DeBell Will Seek Post As Supervisor

Stuart T. DeBell, well-known dairy farmer of Centreville, announced this week his intention of being a candidate for supervisor from his district in Fairfax county, subject to the Democratic Primary in August.

He states that he has become a candidate in the race as the result of the urging of many of his friends and neighbors.

Mr. DeBell, a native of Centreville, was educated in the public schools of Fairfax County and graduated from Clifton High School prior to his taking secretarial duty at Strayer College from which he graduated with a B.C.S. Degree in 1949.

Following his graduation, Mr. DeBell combined dairy farming with the practice as a tax consultant. He was elected Soil Conservation Supervisor for Northern Virginia District in the general election in November, 1949, for a term of 4 years. He was appointed to the Electoral Board of Fairfax county by Judge Paul Brown to fill the unexpired term of B. B. Iden, and served on the Democratic committee of the county for several years.

Mr. DeBell married the former Mildred Keller, who taught school in Centreville. They have three sons.

The Court House was packed to capacity Wednesday night when the proposed county zoning or set-back ordinance was presented for public hearing by the County Planning Commission.

Supporters of the ordinance were conspicuous by their absence or if present by their silence. Aside from certain members of the commission, who attempted to explain the reasons for the ordinance, only one voice was raised in support, that of Harry O. Swam, of Brentsville District.

The apparently well organized and directed opposition, the major portion of which came from Dumfries and Cotes Districts, was spearheaded by Roy Helms, of Yorkshir. A petition opposing the ordinance and containing around 150 names was presented. Speakers for the opposition included C. W. Alpaugh, G. C. Russell, John Clark, Gainesville; Reverend Shulke, Dumfries; Mr. Cato, Dumfries; Colonel Kerr, Quantico.

The argument was advanced that the ordinance would deny to a property owner the right to use his property in any way he sees fit. Main opposition seemed to be directed against the provision that no addition to or alteration of an existing building within 25 feet of a highway, to cost more than $500, would be allowed except by the appeal of cases involving undue hardship to a board of zoning appeals. Opponents argue that such a restriction on the use of an existing building would gradually decrease its value.

Bristow Man Wins Prize At House-Warming

Leroy Fox, of Bristow, was the winner of the grand prize awarded at the "house-warming" held by Manassas Southern States Cooperative at its sales room Tuesday. The prize was 500 lbs. of feed.

Other prize winners were H. D. Orebough, Nokesville; Eva Flowers, Manassas, R. 3; M. G. Keebler, Dumfries; J. N. Thomas, Manassas; Col. J. G. Cooper, Centreville.

The enjoyable affair was attended by over 300 customers and friends. Southern States officials from Baltimore were among those attending. They were H. B. Manuel, district manager; G. R. Hamner, assistant farm supply supervisor, and G. S. Ebsonga, farm supply supervisor. Ladies of the Farm Home Advisory committee registered guests and served refreshments.

Correspondents are requested to send copy in early.

Members of the Planning Commission attempted to point out that if owners of property adjoining primary and secondary roads of the county are permitted to continue to erect buildings within 25 feet of the road, and when such property has to be condemned for widening the road, the inconvenience to the property owner will be greater than if he had not been allowed to build within 25 feet in the first place. Also, that the cost will be greater to all the taxpayers out of whose pockets come the funds with which the Highway Department reimburses the owner of such condemned property.

The Commission also emphasized that if such restriction were in effect, less tax funds would have to be spent to reimburse property owners, and a much greater portion of the road fund would be available for the maintenance and improvement of the roads.

Board Faces Big Problem In Filling Vacancies Next Year

The matter of finding sufficient number of qualified teachers to staff Prince William county schools next year was the big problem facing the School Board at its regular meeting here yesterday.

The county now employs approximately 175 teachers, and needs 8 to 10 additional teachers next year to adequately take care of the anticipated increase in pupil enrollment. Of the present staff, 15 teachers have already indicated that they will not return next year.

County Needs $809 To Meet Drive Quota

Prince William county is within 75 percent of its goal in the annual Red Cross drive, according to Mrs. Joseph Mills Hanson, county campaign chairman.

In her reports today, Mrs. Hanson showed a total of $2491.03 contributed as against a quota of $3300. The report of funds subscribed from each district in the county follows:

Manassas, $1551.20; Brentsville, $295.70; Gainesville, $86.18; Dumfries, $387.65; Occoquan, $123.30; unallocated $42.

Mrs. Hanson states that the goal should be reached by the middle of April, provided the workers finish their solicitations and report by that time. Many workers have not made their final reports.

Group Votes For Increase In Directors

The board of directors of the Prince William Chamber of Commerce will be increased to seven members for this year by the adoption of an amendment to the by-laws at a membership meeting of the body at Hotel Stonewall Jackson, Tuesday night.

The amendment was passed after lengthy discussion, with Stanley Owens authorized to rewrite the section of the by-laws, which is to be changed to read in part: "from six directors to a minimum of seven, and not more than 15 directors."

The nominating committee is to submit the names of nominees for the directorships this week so that members may ballot on same.

Dan H. Kelso gave a report on the progress of the Clean-Up Week program to be held April 22-May 5 and requested a $50 appropriation for advertising which was voted by the group.

A resolution aimed to discourage the solicitation of advertising and donations for unworthy causes from county business places was presented by Fred Hynson and adopted after much discussion.

President Benjamin Muse presided.

Set For New Season

The Triangle Red Sox are getting ready for the 1951 season, and held their practice session last Sunday afternoon.

Dallas Posey, who formerly managed the Manassas Maces, is expected to field a fine team this year and will give the rest of the teams in the league plenty of competition.

Ninety-three of the present teachers, who hold proper certificates and who had made application for return, were elected by the Board for the next year. However, 8 of these have indicated that they have not definitely made up their minds about returning.

It was pointed out that in any contest over the limited number of teachers available, Prince William runs a poor second to such localities as Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria, where teacher pay is considerably higher.

Indications are that Osbourn high school will be hardest hit by teacher turn-over. At this school almost 50 percent of the teaching staff has indicated that they do not wish to return.

According to R. Worth Peters, superintendent of schools, "we are faced with an awful lot of vacancies."

It was stated that the employment of teachers who hold local permits or emergency licenses will not be acted upon until June or July.

$100 Trust Fund From Estate of Miss Osbourn

At the request of the executors of the estate of the late Miss Eugenia Osbourn, the School Board accepted a trust fund provided in Miss Osbourn's will, for the purpose of establishing the memorial to her sister, the late Mrs. Annie Osbourn Metz, the first principal at Osbourn high school. The memorial is an annual award to the Osbourn senior who does the most outstanding work in the English department. The fund is represented by three U. S. Savings Bonds, with a maturity value of $100, each. The Board requested the executors of the estate to cash the bonds and turn over the proceeds to the School Board for investment, the interest to be used for the annual awards.

Budget in Detail

In order to promote a clearer understanding by the citizens of the county of the present school needs, the Board authorized the publication in full detail of the proposed school budget for 1951-52. A hearing on the budget will be held at the Board of Supervisors meeting on April 30th.

Confers With Parents On High School Courses

Miss Carrie Lanford, assistant principal and guidance counselor at Osbourn high school, reports that during the past week several highly satisfactory conferences have been held with the mothers of present 8th grade students, to determine curriculum plans for the students' high school courses.

Effort is made in these conferences to adapt the curriculum for each student to his or her own individual needs and aptitudes. Entering high school the student may avail himself of the college preparatory, the commercial, agricultural, vocational or four years science course, the latter course having been initiated last year.

Parents who have not yet consulted with Miss Lanford concerning their 8th graders are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Manassas Boy Is Active In Dramatics

Carroll Conner, college senior, son of Mrs. J. K. Conner, Rt. 1, Manassas, enacted the part of "Goods," a miser, in "Everyman," the world's greatest morality play, when it was presented at Bridgewater College on March 19 and 20.

An active participant in college dramatics, Mr. Conner has appeared in seven student plays since he enrolled at Bridgewater in September, 1947. He usually has played a comic role, and last November gave a notably successful interpretation of the ludicrous and lovable Mr. Dupin in the senior play, "You Can't Take It With You." He will enact his first straight dramatic part in "Everyman."

Mr. Conner has done the hair styling for a number of college dramas, often has assisted in costuming and staging, and last season was stage manager of the junior play, "She Stoops to Conquer."

In recognition of his outstanding contribution to Bridgewater College drama, Mr. Conner recently was named to full membership in the focal chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity. Initiation will take place early April.

Tribute Well Deserved

Mrs. Floy H. McInteer, who resigned recently due to ill health as a member of the Prince William County School Board, was paid high tribute in a resolution passed by the Board this week.

The resolution reads in part: "Mrs. McInteer was elected to the Board on May 23, 1933, and qualified on June 7, 1933. Her resignation was accepted February 26, 1951.

"Her first interest as a member was the welfare of the children of Prince William county. In this interest she worked harmoniously with other members of the Board and with the school superintendents and other professional personnel. She was, and shall remain, an inspiration to those with whom she worked.

"Mrs. McInteer's concept of her responsibilities as a member of the Board was never limited by purely local interests. Although she represented the Dumfries district, and served their interests well, her outlook was county-wide in all decisions.

"The Board will feel the loss of Mrs. McInteer very keenly. Her experience, her knowledge of the manifold tasks facing education and her personal stability were always an asset to the Board in its deliberations."

To Mrs. McInteer's credit is nearly 18 years of service to the schools. No thought of glory, no monetary reward has been hers, only the satisfaction of work faithfully performed.

If we may speak for the county as a whole, let us say: Well done, public servant, well done!

In Memoriam

"If We Love Those We Lose . . . We Cannot Lose Those We Love!"

Within the space of three short months, four members of Manassas Chapter, U. D. C., have been carried by the relentless River of Time to the Shores of Eternity. To each one, the "daughters" loving tribute was the St. Andrew's Cross of the Confederate Flag. Mrs. Keen Wells (Emily Margaret Carter) and Mrs. Jos. Dodge (Evalina Dunaway Schulz) left us January 18; and Mrs. A. O. Weedon (Elizabeth Nelson) and Miss Eugenia Hillary Osbourn, a few weeks ago.

"Margaret" was a descendant of Virginia Confederate stock. Although ill health prevented active participation in the Chapter work for a long time, her heart was in the Cause which her grandfather, Jas. Shirley Carter of the 17th Regt., defended. Gentle, unassuming, Margaret's life has been likened to a rose that shed its sweetness to all around and has now unfaded on the other side."

"Miss Lena," as Mrs. Dodge was known to older community residents, was so imbued with the patriotic spirit and principals of her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Schultz, that she entered the UDC membership at an early age on the record of her father, John I. Dunaway, of Cooper's Battery, C. S. A. Broken fortune and death marked her later years; but she was loyal and true to the end.

For more than forty years, Manassas Chapter, UDC, had the gracious affiliation of Mrs. A. O. Weedon, daughter of Lt. Edwin Nelson, Co. H, 15th Va. Cavalry. When active service in the work she loved ceased with the frailty of long, full years, the dainty little matron was always "at home" to welcome friends with real southern hospitality. Of her much can be said and much is expressed in these words: she was "an old-time Confederate" and a gentlewoman of the "old school."

Almost synonymous with the name of "Miss Eugenia" is education. Much has been written and more will be written, but the story will never be told of her (Missionary, as she termed) effort and accomplishment in establishing and maintaining a standard high school. In an unusual way, recognition of her and her work was made by the President of George Washington University, when Miss Osbourn received the degree of A.B., 1935. Asking the Class in Education to stand, Dr. C. H. Marvin said, that the University was HONORED to have among its graduates Miss Eugenia Hillary Osbourn of Manassas, Va., who had done outstanding pioneer work in education. Besides the school life, Miss Eugenia had a great love of garden with its old-fashioned herbs and flowers. Students will recall the beauty of her gorgeous peonies when graduating classes were entertained in her garden. Retirement from official school life gave her more time for this and other interests. About ten years ago, she came into the "UDC" on the record of her uncle Washington Marquardt Hillary, 1st Battery of

I saw a lampman mount
A steep and rugged road,
While I came on behind
Beneath a heavy load.
The light that shone right out
Ahead
Helped me to walk with firmer
Tread.

"But soon I lost my friend
While climbing up the hill.
He climbed right over the top
While I kept trudging still.
But in the mist, how sweet the Light!
It helped the day, it fought the Night."

We thank God for these loved ones who have entered into perfect rest of the deathless years. We thank God for the light they left behind along the path we tread.

High Praise Accorded Book Written By Manassas Native

A new book by a native of Manassas is winning high praise from the critics. It is "Cinderella's Slippers," a collection of seventy-five poems by Alice Boorman Williamson. The handsomely printed volume is published by the Dietz Press of Richmond.

Reviewers Praise Book
The reviewer in The Washington Star has written: "Generally a lyric poet, she nevertheless does not hesitate to allow a sweep of words to put her message across. This collection of her verse shows her in the affirmative mood which has always characterized her work. She has a sure eye for human drama and net wit, as witness a delightful poem called 'If There Were But One Golden Tree'."

The Washington Post pointing out that Mrs. Williamson is "a native of Manassas, Va., who served on the staff of the Geophysical Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington for 32 years prior to her retirement in 1947," pays tribute to her "mostly sweet, but sometimes 'light humorous verse'."

Miss Sara Dunlap, in a feature article on Mrs. Williamson's book in the Roanoke Times, wrote of its range "from the solemn to the lightly whimsical" and of the "author's deep feeling for her home state."

The Richmond Times-Dispatch has included a sketch of Mrs. Williamson's career in its "Virginia Writers" series, in part as follows:

Poetry Widely Published
"Mrs. Williamson's poetry has appeared widely in periodicals, including the Saturday Review of Literature, the Christian Observer, Centaur, Chambers' Journal (Scotland), the New York Times, Southern Presbyterian Journal, Good Housekeeping, and in anthologies. She has also published short stories and articles in a number of magazines."

Born in Manassas
"Mrs. Williamson was born in Manassas, Va. Her parents came to Virginia shortly after their marriage and never returned to their native England. Her father taught music and was a church organist, H. Osbourn, of Manassas:

If I have captured any slightest shred Of Beauty's garment, that bright gossamer Elusive as the airy ribbons spread Across the sky when Sun and Rain confer, And tenuous as silken mists that blur The morning valleys with their fine-spun thread, I owe you the priceless souvenir, Who showed me how to follow where she led.

It is because you taught my eyes to see, And all my senses to become aware Of Beauty's presence, that there came to me, Slow drifting through the drowsy evening air, This shining border from her cloak of blue That I shall keep for love of her—and you!

Letters To The Editor

216 Rittenhouse St. N.W.
Washington 11, D. C.

Editor Journal:
Last week's Journal was a big improvement. Keep up the good work.

For many years the Manassas Journal was one of Virginia's best weeklies. W. H. W. Moran, who was the first editor, and his successor, Daniel R. Lewis, gave Prince William a good paper. Mr. Lewis died in 1933, and from that date down to the present everything has been in more or less of a chaotic state.

One great trouble with The Journal has been its notoriously bad presswork. I worked on the paper from 1893 to 1902, and through those years and until about six years ago Journal readers had nothing about which to complain. I was able to read everything in your last issue.

I understand you have met Mrs. Bushong. Tell her you have received this letter and ask one question: "Who is this bird who knows so much about The Journal?" Gladly will give you an earful.

My subscription will be due in another three weeks. I shall call to see you very soon.

Enclosed clipping are from Saturday's Star.

Wishing you success in what may well be called a prodigious undertaking, and hoping that you will like Manassas and its people, I am, Fred S. Boorman

Editor Journal:
We heartily agree with your editorial of March 8 and sincerely hope that the citizens of Manassas will lay aside personal grievances and get to work with our teachers for better schools in the community.

We have some fine teachers and as parents we should feel proud of them for doing their jobs under such adverse conditions.

We do not always agree with President Truman and Congress in their decisions, but as citizens we stand together for our country and we should support our schools in the same manner.

Our teachers have been attacked unjustly through some editorials but we believe that public sentiment is with them and not against them.

So let us all practice the "Golden Rule" and make Manassas a town to be proud of.

Yours very truly,
Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Champion
SPEED DEMONS

Editor Journal:
Can't something be done about the speed limit through Yorkshire? It is very sad when you see a child, stand over the broken or dead body of his canine pet. Most of these drivers never stop to see if the animals are dead or alive. Believe us if they won't stop for a dog, we wonder if they would stop for a child, and it may be a child next. Yorkshire is now a growing community, and most every home is blessed with children.

Sincerely,
Mrs. G. W. Lewis,
Mrs. L. L. Whetzel.

Local Girl Is 4-H Winner In Area Contest

Miss Catherine Kemper won first area award on "Food Preparation" in the 4-H Club contests in which ten Northern Virginia counties participated at Culpeper recently.

Others participating from this county were Miss Sylvia Kline, who entered the frozen foods contest and Miss Rebecca Slusher, who entered in the style dress revue. Miss Kline won third place award and Miss Slusher first place by modeling her own skirt, vest and blouse creation in the revue.

Mrs. Leona K. Barlow, county home demonstration agent, accompanied the young ladies to Culpeper.

As area winner, Miss Kemper will compete in a district contest. District winners will try for state honors during the annual 4-H Club short courses at V. P. I. in June.

Close Grazing Can Damage Ladino

The above pasture seen shows WHAT NOT TO DO if a good stand of Ladino is to remain productive. Cows are still running on the Ladino in January. Getting only "Pickins," their hooves will crush the exposed runners and thus weaken the plants; also because of this exposure, damage may result should severe weather be had. In view of the above, and too because Ladino does not bed down into a tough sod like White Dutch Clover, it is recommended that it not be grazed closer than four inches in height.

Ladino Clover Ranks First As Ideal Pasture For Sheep

George W. Litton, Associate Extension Animal Husbandman, V.P.I. The best sheep philosophy is that they must make 90% of their living from forage crops of hay and pasture. The pasture revival in Virginia is right up the sheep's alley for it fits into a pastoral system of farming like a hand in a glove.

Good Ladino pastures are wonderful for sheep. California has gone so far as to market lambs as "Ladino Lambs." They're grazed and finished on nothing but these good pastures and the system certainly makes money. The extremely succulent growth of Ladino clover is tasty and to the lamb's liking. It is very high in protein which meets their high requirement of this nutrient for rapidly growing muscles and for wool production.

In palatability studies at the Illinois Experiment Station, where they checked up on the like and dislikes of sheep as to what they would eat, Ladino headed the list. Instead of saving it for dessert they always ate it first. This was true regardless of all the legumes and grasses offered. One other thing was noted in another test and that was if there was enough Ladino to eat so that they didn't have to take the orchard grass they wouldn't. Of course when the orchard grass was neglected for a few days it ran up tall and then started shading the Ladino, which isn't good.

Right here perhaps might be a good spot to say that we doubt if there should be a pasture devoted to sheep alone. Most farms should use both sheep and cattle. Their grazing habits are different and, if used wisely, almost any pasture is better off with both sheep and cattle. The old idea that they couldn't be grazed together has been exploded by the V.P.I. Experiment Station as the rankest kind of a myth. This is true though if pastures are overstocked, and there isn't enough grass for both, sheep will be the last to starve. This is because they can eat closer than a cow. Their split mouth parts and narrow muzzle are so constructed as to shave the ground if necessary. Perhaps this fact alone accounts for the early prejudice of not having sheep and cattle on the same field.

There are chapters in a lot of books that call sheep scavengers. That is supposed to mean that sheep can clear the brush, clean the fence rows, mow broomsedge, fight running briars and do all the other things a mowing machine does, and sheep will do it! But if that is why you keep sheep don't expect them to produce much $1.00 per lb. wool or many 40c lambs. Just give credit to the labor account and don't expect much else—nothing from nothing still leaves zero. But on the other hand if you have some good pasture that you want to sell as lamb chops, there is no better way to market some of it. The point is there is no class of livestock that responds any faster to the loving care of an understanding hand—and good pasture is certainly part of that care.

Good sheep picking is not tall, rough and coarse stuff. The ideal length of about 4 to 6 inches is wonderful for them. While it's in a rapid state of growth is how they like it best. This of course means there must be plenty of plant food to feed it and water enough to shove it out, but it may mean too, stocking it heavily enough to keep it down should it tend to grow away and get tough.

Pasture is a conservation crop and sheep are quite conservation minded. The top of the hill gets poor first and the sod thins out and gullies come. Not so if sheep graze it because they sleep on top of the hill, deposit their fertility there and in so doing return the richness to the hill tops. Show me a pasture grazed by sheep and there's sure to be the return of fertility to the spot that usually erode first. Southwest Virginia has terraces around the hills in pasture fields long before a terracing machine was in use. They were made by nature's own wise terracing machine, the hoofs of sheep. No wonder they are referred to as the "Golden Hoof." Sheep even beat out the soil conservation theme by the water they drink. They prefer not to drink swiftly running water—and of course the slogan of conservationists has long been "to make running water walk." Then too they won't drink if they have to get their feet wet and muddy doing it. So pasture farming, conservation and the sheep business are at least kinfolks. They might be first cousins or even triplets.

Elsewhere in this publication you'll read expert advice on seeding, land preparation, and fertilization of good pastures. Read it and heed it but after you grow it, consider sheep as a way of harvesting and selling it. Over the years, Virginia farmers have come as near getting back a dollar from each dollar invested in sheep, thru good years as well as bad, more so than from any other meat animal. And many farms are missing a good source of revenue by not growing good pasture and stocking them with sheep—for in 1951, the wool and lambs from 30 sheep can bring in an extra $1,000.

Annual Farm Clean Up Week Begins April 2

This week is annual "farm clean-up week" in Virginia.

Theme of this year's cleanup week is: "Clean up for more profits through fewer livestock disease losses."

Here are some of the farm pointers suggested for the week in the bulletin issued today by the Foundation:

"1. Buildings in which livestock and poultry are housed should be cleaned and disinfected to kill disease germs and parasites.
"2. Mud holes and stagnant ponds which may harbor parasites and germs should either be drained or fenced off.
"3. Old strawstacks, common sources of infection, should be spread and plowed under.
"4. Holes in foundations, where pigs or poultry could burrow under, should be walled up.
"5. Nails, glass, wire and other objects which cattle might swallow or step upon, should be picked up. Protruding nails in mangers or partitions should be removed.

"6. As soon as possible, young livestock should be moved to pasture that hasn't been used by the same species for two years."
"Authorities estimated that the annual loss from common barnyard diseases and parasites totals more than half a billion dollars.
"Much of this loss could be prevented by proper sanitation and disease-prevention measures." Foundation said. "Cooperative farmers, veterinarians and all stock health authorities are in this annual cleanup week beginning April 2."

21 Players Turn Out For Macs First Practice

Twenty-one men turned out Sunday for the initial practice session of the Manassas Macs which was held at Swasey Field.

There was a long batting drill and fielding practice. The day was warm and ideal for baseball, with quite a number of fans turning out to watch the boys in action. Also on hand were Manager Kite, Raceberry, Coach Sedrick Saunders and club officials Bill Saylor and John Parrish.

Although a little early to make any predictions, there's good indication that the Macs will have one of the best teams in years. The team will practice again next Sunday at 2 p. m.

Improvement of the roads themselves. Members of the Planning Commission are R. J. Ratcliffe, chairman, W. M. Johnson and Mrs. Jane Service, Manassas District, Mrs. Audrey Kerr, Broad Run, Lester Huff, Nokesville; B. W. Brunt and H. L. Mooney, Occoquan; A. E. McInteer, Quantico, and Cecil Garrison, Dumfries.

In executive session following the close of the public hearing, the commission compiled a report of the public hearing, to be submitted to the Board of Supervisors along with the proposed strip zoning ordinance. The commission felt that the public gathering was in favor of abolishing the Planning Commission; that apparently the main objection to the ordinance was to section one, the limitation on existing non-conforming buildings; that the public gathering expressed the opinion that the planning Board was being used as a tool of the State Highway Department.

Further disposition of the ordinance is up to the Board of Supervisors.

"SUCH BIGNESS"

Exchange Teacher of England Gives Her Impressions of U.S.

Miss Phyllis Naylor, the exchange teacher from England, who is currently teaching in the Baldwin School, delighted those attending the Manassas PTA meeting last week with an account of her impressions of this country.

Miss Naylor, who is head of the Kellbrook Primary School in England, is this year exchanging places with Miss Sue Ayers, county school supervisor, who is currently taking Miss Naylor's place in the English school.

Impressed by Bigness. Miss Naylor said that she has been most impressed by the bigness, the vastness of everything in the United States—the skyscrapers, the colossal engines, huge long distance busses with their very polite drivers, great high roads, tall trees, large Virginia forests.

She will long remember, said Miss Naylor, our wonderful gadgets, our wonderful coffee, and our drug stores which she described as "the hub of the world." Even the size of our newspapers have been a matter of wonderment to Miss Naylor. When she bought her first New York Times, she thought she had taken two papers from the shop by mistake, and took it back to the shopkeeper, apologizing for her mistake. "He told me I had taken only one!"

Temperature Extremes. Our great extremes of temperature have been difficult to adjust to, she said, pointing out that on a trip to Leesburg on a Saturday in January, she basked in the sun and a temperature of 72. Two mornings later, she related, she was helping to lead children on busses in a temperature of 12.

Miss Naylor has been greatly impressed with the number of cars everywhere, and the fact that so many of them are parked on the streets at night. "In England you get your garage before you get your motor car, and sometimes you get your garage and never get your motor car," she said.

Another difficulty she has had is in getting used to the cheer leaders and the night games with fields lit up. She showed great ingenuity when upon arrival here she became confused with our "double time." She solved this problem of slow time, versus fast time by carrying two watches.

The abundance of food in the stores where one can buy anything he chooses, and the fact that one can eat anytime and anywhere, have been most pleasant, she continued. "I would like to say a big 'thank you' to my superintendent, supervisor and principal, to the parents and the children, and to all my colleagues for the kind way they have received me and my mother."

In discussing the English school system, Miss Naylor pointed out that one similarity between the two countries is the need for more school buildings, many more teachers, and more thought given to the recruitment and training of teachers.

Miss Naylor will return to England at the end of the school year. She has made many friends here, and her stay here has proved the wisdom of President Truman's statement that "The exchange teacher system is the best program for international understanding."

Rev. F. L. Baker Gives Talk to Kiwanis Club

"What Can the Kiwanis Do For the Church" was the subject of an inspiring talk by Rev. F. L. Baker, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, at the regular meeting of the Manassas Kiwanis Club last Friday night.

"In addition to the influence that Kiwanians wielded in the community individually," he said, "that as an organization perhaps their best service could be rendered by the community by the support of cooperative undertakings."

He cited the union services on Thanksgiving, Good Friday and the 5th Sunday under a service held in the various churches, and also urged their support of the religious training program in the public schools.

County P-T Group Meets At Regional High School

The Prince William County Parent-Teacher League met at the Manassas Regional High School, March 16, with Mrs. Gladys Walker, vice-president, presiding.

The League decided to sponsor a scholarship fund for worthy students of Prince William County. The Campus Chorus under the direction of Mr. J. A. Major sang two selections. Students under the supervision of Mrs. N. S. Vaughn gave an interesting discussion on "How The School Helps Us." This was followed by two selections by Mrs. Earline Humphrey.

C. N. Bennett, principal, gave a report on plans of the proposed building program. The physical education group, under the direction of Miss D. M. Brown, presented a tap dance.
