MANASSAS, VA., FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1913.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

OFFER DIAMONDS CHEAP

Five Strangers Canvass Manassas Saturday to Pray Upon the Unsuspecting.

Saturday afternoon five strangers stepped off train No. 10 and immediately began hunting for those who are easily fooled.

Brilliant of tempting appearance in the way of scarf pins, finger rings and charms were offered at most any price that would land a customer, from as low as 25 cents to as high as $5 for the identical same gem. (?) Besides this tempting bait subscriptions were offered and taken to a periodical entitled, "The Southern Ruralist," for a very small consideration with a premium thrown in.

Sergeant Weir soon "got on" to the game of the fakirs and phoned detective headquarters in Washington for one of its force to come out and investigate. Accordingly, Detectives Vermilliar and Embrey of the force arrived here on train 13 and corraled the quint at the New Prince William hotel.

After a lengthy interview with the suspects the officers came to the conclusion that, although the stories told by them were conflicting in essential particulars, they were guilty of nothing that would warrant their arrest at their hands in Manassas, they nevertheless suspected them as crooks, and as they were going on the same train as themselves to Washington, they would place them under arrest upon suspicion as they crossed the District of Columbia line.

RELATIVE OF PRESIDENT

Will Honor Manassas With Her Presence in Visiting Relatives of Husband Tomorrow.

Manassas is to be honored tomorrow with a visit from one of President Wilson's near relatives, Mrs. Elmer P. Loose, of Waukesha, Wisconsin, formerly Miss Alice Wilson, of Clarksburg, Tenn.

Mrs. Loose was one of the guests at the Wilson family banquet at the Shoreham hotel, in Washington, on Monday night.

Her husband, a Presbyterian Evangelist, is a well known Manassas boy.

Mrs. Loose was stopping, during the inauguration week, with Dr. M. C. Bennett, another Manassas boy, in Washington, and will accompany Mrs. Loose to Manassas tomorrow to visit her friends here, spending Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Round.

From Manassas Mrs. Loose will go to Harrisonburg to visit her husband's daughter, Mrs. Althea Loose Johnston, a former Manassas girl.

On the day after the inauguration there was a special reception at the White House for the Wilson relatives and their immediate friends. Among them was a group well known in Manassas circles to wit: Mrs. M. C. Bennett, Mrs. Mary Chamberlain Beckwith, Miss Mabel Bennett, Miss Ruth Round and Mrs. Opha Bowman of Birmingham, N. Y., who have been in the city for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Jas. L. Laidlaw, of New York, in a recent debate on votes for women, in the Jefferson hotel at Richmond, scattered the opposition arguments as chaff before the wind and, in the opinion of a majority of the audience, must have made the most cerebral respondents to her challenge feel like three-cent pieces.

Mr. Hutchison Honored

COLONEL ROBT. A. HUTCHISON

Last Saturday Governor William Hodges Mann notified Mr. Robert A. Hutchison, a prominent attorney and Commissioner of Accounts, of Manassas, by letter, that it was his desire to appoint him on his official staff with the rank of colonel, provided that such appointment would be acceptable to him. Mr. Hutchison phoned to the Governor his acceptance Monday morning and his appointment immediately followed. Colonel Hutchison succeeds Col. W. C. Waite, of Culpeper county, who recently resigned. Colonel Hutchison left here on train No. 10 Monday afternoon, in full regiments, to take his position with the Governor's staff in the inaugural procession.

Manassas District Buys Rock Crusher

Supervisor Jas. F. Gulick, of Manassas magisterial district, has purchased the Austin Western Company of Chicago a rock crusher for the sum of $913, $400 of which sum is to be paid on June 1 and the remainder on Dec. 1, 1913. The machine is warranted to be first class in every particular and the company has agreed to replace any broken parts at any time within a period of six months, provided it can be shown that such broken parts was the result of imperfect construction or material. It was Mr. Gulick's desire that the other districts join in the purchase of the crusher and thus place its ownership in the county, but the proposition was vigorously opposed by all the districts with the exception of Gainesville, hence Mr. Gulick decided to go into the purchase single handed and alone for his district. Now should the other districts desire the use of the crusher in repairing its roads, they must pay a fair rental for same. The crusher should go a long way toward improving the roads of Manassas district, and under proper management prove to be a good investment.

Automobile Trip to Canada.

A party consisting of J. I. Randall, O. P. Glazier, H. C. Ryckman, G. Walker Merchant and two others to be determined, will leave here on Wednesday, July 2, for an automobile trip to Toronto, Canada. Two cars will be used to carry the party and their baggage. They will camp out each night, and the weather will be their guide. The route decided upon is from Manassas to Winchester, thence to Cumberland, Md., thence to Williamsport, Pa., thence to Hornersville and Buffalo to Niagara Falls. Crossing the suspension bridge at Niagara they will proceed directly to their place of destination. The trip will consume about two weeks.

During the party time to get back home for the horse show.

THE VIRGINIANS CHEERED

Old Dominion State Shares Honors With New Jersey in Inaugural Parade.

On Tuesday Virginia added her eighth son to her galaxy of National presidents under auspicious skies and Virginia and New Jersey shared honors and applause at the ceremonies incident to the inauguration as President of the United States, the son of the former and the adopted son of the latter.

From the moment President-elect Wilson walked unostentatiously down the steps of the Hotel Shoreham and passed through a line of University of Virginia and Princeton students to the time the inaugural parade disbanded at the court of honor in full view of the nation's chief executive, both States were conspicuous and students, governors, soldiery and committeemen of both bore equal part in the celebration of the elevation to the highest office within the gift of the American people a Southern born president whose life has been led for twenty-seven years in New Jersey.

Along the route from the capitol to the White House the troops of the Old Dominion and those of New Jersey came in for the lion's share of praise and applause. The Essex troop of cavalry, which escorted the President and the entire national guard of New Jersey were enthusiastically cheered, but the appearance of Gov. Mann and his staff with their new uniform and soldierly bearing was the signal of an outburst of applause that echoed and re-echoed from one end of the grand pageant to the other. The only State which made any show of rivalry of Virginia and of New Jersey at any time was Indiana, the Hoosier commonwealth being represented by the Black Horse Troop of Culver Military Academy, the escort of Vice-President Marshall.

Taken altogether it was one of the greatest events for Democrats that ever occurred in the National Capital.

UNITY HIGHWAY OPPOSED

Meets Vigorous Opposition at the Hands of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The proposed "Unity Highway" to connect Washington and Richmond to be constructed at the expense of the national government, was suddenly sprung upon the promoters of the highway at a meeting of the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, in Washington last week. Judge Alfred Beers, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, declared that he will vigorously oppose the appropriation of funds for any such highway until the last Union veteran is provided for.

Commander-in-chief Beers is, perhaps, unaware that the "Unity highway," with a monument to Jefferson Davis at Richmond, did originate from the Republican sources, but from J. E. Mann, Republican floor leader.

As the proposition has the endorsement of many of the leading Republicans in Congress and elsewhere, the opposition from Judge Beers came as a surprise.

Miss Janetta R. Fitzhugh, of Fredericksburg, was leader of the Virginia contingent in the great Suffragette parade in Washington Monday afternoon.

WILSON'S PLEDGE

"This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity.

Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do.

Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try?

I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side.

God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me.

CHARTERS NEW RAILROAD

Line to Start at Norfolk and Run Through Prince William County to Fairfax.

A new railroad was chartered by the State Corporation Commission last week, to be known as the Norfolk, Yorktown and Washington Railroad, which will start at Norfolk and terminate at Fairfax.

The road will make Newport News, Hampton and Yorktown, objective points and will run through the counties of Middlesex, Gloucester, Caroline, King George, Stafford, Prince William and Fairfax. The distance to be traversed by the road is approximately, one hundred and fifty-six miles. The charter authorizes a capitalization of $25,000.

The officers of the proposed road are: C. T. Hobert, president; Leone Cetelle, vice-president and secretary; and S. S. Pope, treasurer. The directors are Louis Fue Feursteln, Louis Mansbach, Harvey M. Dickson, W. F. Dusch, George H. Lewis, C. T. Hobert, W. W. Terry, of Norfolk, and C. T. Blake, of Greenburg, Pa.

Should the plans of this newly chartered company be carried into effect, the conveniences and other advantages which will accrue to the citizens of the counties through which the road will run, will cause the new enterprise to be hailed with delight by the parties who will be so greatly benefitted by the project.

Manassas High Defeated.

Fredericksburg High School won from Manassas last Friday night by the one-sided score of 21 to 6. The Manassas outfit put up their worst exhibition of the year, the whole first half being a rough and tumble scramble under the Fredericksburg goal from which the home team emerged victorious 11 to 0. The Manassas team started the second period in different style and played their opponent to a standstill until the final few moments when Fredericksburg again came to the front. The game was one of the roughest of the year and in addition was very slow, much time being consumed by the ball being out of bounds.

After the game Col. E. D. Cole, of Fredericksburg, formerly of Prince William, had both teams as his guests at Fucherd's restaurant where the array of good things to eat did much to lessen the regret of the home team over its defeat. After this pleasant feature the Manassas boys were guests of the Fredericksburg High School at a reception at the high school building.

The valuable horse of Dr. R. M. Harris, for which he paid $800 a year ago, was badly injured when it took fright at a passing train this week and crashed into a large show window at Orange.

BIG FIRE AT THE PLAINS

R. A. Cockrill Narrowly Escapes Cremation in His Storehouse at an Early Hour Sunday.

The large department storehouse of Robert A. Cockrill at The Plains, Fauquier county, together with its contents was destroyed by fire at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

When Mr. Cockrill discovered the flames the entire front of the storehouse was ablaze, and with nothing but a bucket brigade to cope with the raging element it was soon seen that the building was doomed.

In his frantic efforts to do something to save his property, Mr. Cockrill rushed into a side door of the storeroom for the purpose of getting a hand fire extinguisher and was soon overcome by smoke and the heat of the flames and was taken from the building in an unconscious and dangerously burned condition. A message was wired to Strasburg for a special engine and coach and upon its arrival the victim of the flames was hurried to Providence hospital in Washington where his injuries were pronounced to be extremely critical, it having been determined that the unfortunate man had inhaled the flames which met him with all their fury as he entered the doomed building.

There is no theory as to the origin of the fire except that of spontaneous combustion or rats and matches, as Mr. Cockrill had no enemies, so far as he knew, to support a theory of incendiarism. The loss on store and contents is estimated at $11,000, with an insurance of $7,000.

ENTERTAINMENT BY U. D. C.

Closed With Famous Confederate Song in Which Every-body Joined.

The entertainment given by the Manassas Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in the chapter room in the M. I. C. building last Friday night, was an occasion of real enjoyment and was largely attended. Besides the reading by Rev. T. D.

D. Clarke of the interesting sketch of the history of the late Major Jos. W. Lattimer, the "Boy Major of the Confederacy," which was listened to with rapt attention, the following program was rendered:

- 1. Recitation—Cary Noel
- 2. Duet, "I'm an old-time Confederate," Muriel Larkin and Fannie Randall
- 3. Recitation—Marvin Rice
- 4. Recitation, exceptionally well rendered by Miss Virginia Walker, entitled, "An Incident of the War."
- 5. Song—Southern Melodies
- 6. Selections from the address of Miss Rutherford at the U. D. C. convention in Washington which was well rendered, and an interesting and excellently rendered article by Miss Virginia Gardner.
- 7. Song—Four Little Girls
- 8. Dixie—By Everybody

At the conclusion of the program tempting refreshments were served.

The funeral took place at the home of Mrs. Voehl, and the body was shipped to Bristow and buried in the Carrico family burying ground near Langley Mill.

CONFEDERATE BOY-MAJOR

Sketch of War Record of Major Jos. W. Latimer Who Sleeps in Harrisonburg Cemetery.

Mrs. K. S. Paul, widow of the late Judge Paul, of the United States Circuit Court, and who is an aunt of Mrs. A. W. Sinclair, of Manassas, in preparing a sketch from the records and memorials of the Virginia Military Institute, from correspondence with citizens of Prince William county and from reminiscences of some of the older residents of Harrisonburg, has the following to say with reference to a Prince William county boy who lost his life in defense of the Southern Confederacy and who now sleeps in the "silent city" of the county seat of Rockingham:

There is one among these many graves that holds a deep interest for us by reason of the brief and brilliant career of the lad who lies below. The only stone at the head bears the following inscription:

"The Boy Major,
Jos. W. Latimer,
Major of Artillery,
Ewell's Corps.
Wounded at Gettysburg and died at Harrisonburg, Virginia, aged 19 years."

Joseph White Latimer was born near Brentsville, Prince William county, in October, 1843. His father was Samuel H. Latimer, of Maryland, of English extraction and descended from the same family as Bishop Latimer, the martyr of the days of "Bloody Mary." His mother was Charlotte Barron, of Virginia. After their marriage they settled in Prince William county, where Mr. Latimer owned a fine farm and a number of slaves. Joseph was the youngest of a family of eight children, consisting of five sons and three daughters. His father died before the beginning of the war. Of his childhood we know but little except that it was that of the Virginia country boy of that period, the child of well-to-do and intelligent parents, growing up in a home of comfort and abundance. He attended school in Brentsville and was known as a bright light-hearted boy, popular with his school-fellows and an excellent student. He possessed with the average boy's love of mischief and of playing tricks on his classmates, and a gentleman who, as quite a small boy, attended the same school when Joseph was one of the big boys, remembers hearing him severely reprimanded by the teacher for handing his deskmate a slate pencil which he had slyly heated on the stove. A lady who attended the same school told me that when on one occasion her little sister was called up by the teacher to be punished, Joe Latimer stopped forward before the frightened little culprit and asked that he might be punished instead.

In 1859, at the age of sixteen, he entered the Virginia Military Institute and donned the iron gray uniform of that famous school. In 1861, on the breaking out of the war, when he was just entering as a first classman, he volunteered his services to the State and was assigned to duty at the camp of instruction, at Richmond, to drill the newly organized artillery batteries. He was then but eighteen years old, slender and of such an extremely youthful appearance that the officers and men of the artillery at first resented being placed under the tuition of a schoolboy. But his soldierly bearing, his thorough understanding of his work, his good humor and kind disposition soon won their respect and affection, notwithstanding his indelible discipline. The older men of the batteries looked upon him as "our little boy."

In September, 1861, he was elected second lieutenant of the Courtney Artillery, attached to General Ewell's Division, and during that fall and winter season incessantly to perfect their tactics. In the following spring, 1862, at Standardsville, in Greene county, the company was reorganized and he was elected first lieutenant. In all the battles and skirmishes of the Valley campaign, McDowell, Front Royal, Winchester, Cross Keys and Port Republic, which followed in quick succession, he showed increasing efficiency, coolness and intrepidity. After the battle of Cross Keys, where his battery, with General Trimble's Brigade, was engaged continuously for five hours, the general published an order praising the conduct of the company and brevetted the young lieutenant "Captain of Artillery" and soon after he was regularly commissioned by the Confederate War Department. In April, 1862, he was promoted to the rank of major and assigned to duty with General Ewell's division and later had chief command of that body of men. His bravery, his efficiency and his considerate attention to their welfare gained their admiration and affection and they followed their boy major unquestionably through the arduous months of the summer of that year.

But at Gettysburg—"those three long days of mortal hell," in that leader's path of death and destruction his career was checked by a mortal wound. His battalion was stationed on Cemetery Ridge and stubbornly held its position, though subjected to a continuous and devastating cannonading until the morning of the third day, when it was forced back by overpowering numbers. But on the 2nd of July, while directing the work of his command with the greatest coolness and precision, he was struck by an exploding shell which completely shattered his right arm and killed his horse, the animal falling upon and badly crushing the gallant young rider. Desperately wounded and bleeding profusely, he still continued to give directions for maneuvering the field pieces while his cannon roared above his prostrate form in that chaos of strife and death. Some of his men carefully extricated him from under the dying horse and bore him from the field, he waving his uninjured hand in encouragement to the gunners.

His arm had to be amputated at once, but he bore the loss uncomplainingly, and his youth and strength led his friends to hope for his recovery, but then came the long and wearisome retreat, the slow procession of ambulances, filled with fevered or pallid or dying wounded, jolting over the rough roads back to the Valley, to the crowded hospitals or to private houses in Winchester. Major Latimer, among others, was brought to Harrisonburg and was taken to the home of Mrs. Harriet Warren, on South Main street. To those of us who remembered that noble woman, it is needless to say that the young soldier received every attention and kindness which she and her family could bestow; but, in spite of all their care, he grew worse. The knowledge that on the third of those fatal days at Gettysburg his battalion, had been hurled back by the continued and overwhelming charges of the enemy with fearful loss of men, horses and guns, and was almost annihilated, preyed upon his mind and grieved his heart. The anxiety and suspense which overshadowed the country after the retreat from Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg, and also, no doubt, the separation from his sorrowing mother, who was unable to come to him, added to the sadness of those weary days, though his naturally bright and courageous spirit upheld him until the weakness of approaching death mercifully stole all sense of sorrow.

His brother, Dr. Latimer, a surgeon in one of the Richmond hospitals, was with him toward the last, and his pride in the gallant boy and his affectionate care of him were most touching. Mrs. Warren described Major Latimer as "gentle and modest as a girl" and spoke feelingly of his fortitude and patience and his grateful appreciation of the kindness shown him by her family and the people of the town. The Rev. Thomas D. Bell, of the Presbyterian church, came frequently to see him, and, like all others who knew him in those weeks of illness, was impressed by his gentleness and courage. A day or two before his death, Dr. Latimer, holding the wasted hand in his, said, "Joseph, do you know how ill you are?" It was the faint and exhausted boy to whom he spoke. It was the soldier and the man who replied, "Yes, I am very ill, but I am not afraid to die," and to Mr. Bell he added, "I trust in the mercy of God." His brother and members of the Warren family were with him when in the early morning of August 1—a month after his fearful wound—he turned his dying eyes toward the summer sunshine, and then quietly closed them to all on earth.

This young officer, though not twenty years old at the time of his death, had filled posts of great responsibility and honor, and had won the confidence of his superiors and the devotion of his men. He received many tributes from men of high rank and great reputation. General Ewell called him "my little Napoleon." Col. A. R. Courney, of Richmond, under whom Latimer saw his first service, said of him in the spring of 1862, when he was under fire for the first time, in an artillery duel on the Rappahannock river: "Latimer stood between his guns and worked them with almost the same coolness and precision as when on drill." Captain Dement, of the same battery, wrote of him after his death: "I was with Major Latimer on the field of Gettysburg and assisted in taking him from under his horse and in carrying him from the field. His bearing during the day was most gallant, showing the greatest coolness and bravery under the most trying circumstances. While still under his horse he continued to give orders regardless of his wound and seemed to think only of his command." And the greatest of the great warriors of the Lost Cause, General Stonewall Jackson, in his report of the battles of the Valley, said: "Lieutenant Latimer, in command of the Courtney Artillery, a brave commander. This young officer was conspicuous for the coolness, judgment and skill with which he managed his battery, fully supporting the opinion I had formed of his high merits." Surely such praise from such a commander must have fired his young heart with pride, but nothing of the sort ever showed in his manner, for one of his most marked characteristics was his modesty. His extremely youthful appearance and high rank attracted much attention, especially from the foreign militarymen, English, French and German, who occasionally visited the headquarters of the Confederate generals, and who looked with astonishment on the slender youth who commanded an artillery battalion. But his quiet, unassuming demeanor disarmed the criticism and won the respect of all. In the vestibule of the handsome library of the institute hangs an oil portrait of the young artilleryman, the gift, I understand, of citizens of Prince William county, a boyish, beardless, but earnest face, with the rounded contour and fresh coloring of youth; dark brown hair above a smooth, unlined forehead, clear, candid gray eyes and firm mouth and chin, a face attractive, honest and kindly and indicating possibilities of strength and endurance. The artist has painted him in the gray uniform with red facings of the Confederate artillery service and with the pitiful empty sleeve pinned across his chest. And there, among the soldiers and heroes of Virginia, his "brethren of renown" is his rightful place.

To the Confederate veterans who served from Bull Run to Appomattox our conflict with Spain, seems a mere skirmish, and certainly the decadent Spanish navy furnished no such foe as those who for three long days hurled their overwhelming numbers against Latimer's batteries in the death struggle at Gettysburg.

Yet his grave is marked by only a very small, weather-stained headstone, placed there immediately after the war, and probably all that the family could obtain and afford at that time; one that any passerby would easily overlook. All of Major Latimer's immediate family have passed away, and there are none to care for his grave. Would it not be a gracious and worthy undertaking for the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Sons of Veterans and the citizens of Prince William county, whose native son, Major Latimer, is, to replace this insignificant stone with a larger, better and more enduring memorial to this brave and modest boy-major?

Major Latimer was an uncle of Messrs. W. J., E. W. and S. F. Weir and of Mrs. P. P. Chapman, of Manassas, and of Mrs. W. M. Longwell, of Gaasaway, W. Va.

This story, which we were unable to give in full, was read by Rev. T. D. D. Clark at the meeting of the Manassas Chapter of the U. D. C. last Friday night.

OFF TO THE INAUGURATION

Great Number of Trains Pass Through Manassas Monday En Route for the Event.

From early morning until late in the afternoon Monday, trainload after trainload of soldiers and civilians passed through Manassas en route for Washington to attend the inauguration of President-elect Wilson. Just before noon a train in charge of H. S. Jennings, of the Southern Railway, having on board the Second Virginia Infantry, composed of a company each from Winchester, Harrisonburg, Strasburg, Luray, and Front Royal, in command of Lieut.-Col. Leedy of Luray, was sidetracked here to give the right-of-way to the third section of train No. 32, having on board the 1st Georgia Regiment of Infantry, composed of the Republican Blues, German Volunteers, Oglethorpe Light Infantry, and Irish Jasper Greens, of Savannah, in command of Lieut.-Col. J. G. Butler. This train was followed one hour later by the seventh section of train No. 38 having on board William Jennings Bryan, the next Secretary of State; Josephus Daniels, the next Secretary of the Navy, and Gov. Craig, of North Carolina, with his gold-bedecked staff and group of stately State officials, who were to head the inaugural parade.

There was a cramping of necks from the overcrowded station platform to get a peep at the famous Nebraskan and his distinguished fellow passengers when the engine stopped to take water, but as it was the hour when they were satisfying the inner man in the dining-car only a very few, including the JOURNAL's representative, succeeded in doing so.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the third section of train No. 30 pulled in, having on board troops with a good percentage of Indians from Oklahoma. During the few minutes' wait Mr. W. N. Merchant, chief of the Merchant's Express, sauntered up to the train and said to one of the soldiers with the rank of captain on his shoulder straps, "Well, I hope you will all have a good time down in Washington; there will be plenty of good things to eat and plenty of good whiskey and other like appetizers to drink." "Oh, h—!" replied the officer, "we've got all of that aboard; would you like to have a drink?" When the answer was given in an affirmative that could not be misunderstood, a bottle was handed out the window accompanied with a few oranges. "Now, hold your hat," said the liberal officer, "and I will throw you a dollar," but when the coin reached the hat it had changed its denomination to one of the newly-coined nickels.

8500 Revolutions Per Minute

HAT is the wonderful speed at which an IHC cream separator bowl turns. The rim of a six-inch bowl, running at separating speed, is traveling at the rate of nearly two and a half miles a minute, faster than the swiftest express train that ever ran. Such speed as this means strain on shafts, bearings, gears, frame, in every part of a separator, such strain as can only be rendered harmless by the nicest adjustment of strength, flexibility, and quality of material and workmanship. The business of a cream separator is to skim the butter-fat from whole milk; but to do this it must be made mechanically right, or it soon ceases to be useful as a separator. The machine that meets these conditions and sells at the right price, is an

IHC separators have that carefulness of adjustment and balance of moving parts which make for durability and easy running. There are points in the construction of IHC separators, such as the heavy phosphor bronze bushings, trouble-proof neck bearing, cut-away wings, dirt and milk-proof spiral gears, etc., which make IHC separators, beyond any doubt the best of all to buy. There are four convenient sizes of each style. Ask the local dealers who handle these machines for a demonstration. Get catalogue or full information from them or write

Renall Ordinaries

They just like candy. They are soothing and they are acted. They do not cause griping, nausea, purging or excessive looseness. They tend to tone and strengthen weakened nerves and muscles. They promptly relieve constipation, and help to permanently strengthen it.

Renall Ordinaries promote better spirits and better health. In all of these things they are vastly superior to old-fashioned, harsh salts and other purgative pills which act and act only in the bowels in ways sometimes more than before. We particularly recommend Renall Ordinaries for children, aged and delicate persons.

Renall Ordinaries come in vegetable and in lemon. 12 tablets, 10c; 30 tablets, 25c; 60 tablets, 50c.

MANASSAS, VA., FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1913

WILSON'S CABINET.

The correct naming of President Wilson's Cabinet, which has puzzled the most astute politicians, up to the last moment, has at last been definitely named as follows: Secretary of State, William J. Bryan, of Nebraska; Secretary of Commerce, William C. Redfield, of New York; Secretary of War, Lindley L. Garrison, of New Jersey; Attorney-General, James McReynolds, of Tennessee; Postmaster-General, Albert Burleson, of Texas; Secretary of Navy, Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina; Secretary of Interior, Franklin K. Lane, of California; Secretary of Agriculture, David F. Houston, of Missouri; Secretary of Treasury, William G. McAdoo, of New York and Secretary of Labor, William B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania.

SAVE BOY CROP TO MAKE CORN CROP

In a recent address by W. W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway Company, at a banquet given by the Fauquier County Board of Trade, at Warrenton, among other things President Finley said: "Saving the boy crop to make the corn crop" is one of the most important subjects that can engage the attention of the Virginia farmers. Upon the finding of some practical and effective way, said Mr. Finley, of lessening the drift of young people from the country to the towns and cities depends the solution of many of the present-day economic and social problems including the high cost of living and the congestion of population of our larger cities.

Until recent years, said Mr. Finley, agricultural production in the United States was largely in excess of home consumption and relatively a large proportion of the manufactured goods used by the American people were imported. So long as this condition prevailed there was a sound economic reason for the drift from the farm to industrial and mercantile centers.

The condition now has become so acute that organized efforts are being made to induce people from the cities to move onto farms and to divert newly-arrived immigrants from the cities to the country.

The reasons which impel one boy to leave the farm may differ from those that influence another, says the Southern's president. These reasons are partly economic and partly social and may be removed by changing economic and social conditions as effecting the boy on the farm, said he. In some localities there are few, or no social gatherings to attend, little music, few books or papers to read and few improved implements or other conveniences to lighten the work on the farm or to bring pleasure in farm home, thus the boy has little encouragement financially or socially to remain on the farm, said Mr. Finley.

The remedy for present conditions, said Mr. Finley, is to be found in giving the boy a personal interest in the work that he does on the farm. He need not necessarily be paid wages in cash but an equitable interest in what he has helped by his labor to produce. It is the wrong principle, said Mr. Finley, for a father to present to his boy the runt of a litter of pigs, the first thing he had ever owned, and when he has cared for and fed that pig until he has made it the finest hog on the place, to sell it and put the money in his own pocket instead of giving it to his son to whom it rightfully belonged. Such instances of penuriousness and injustice is largely responsible, in the opinion of Mr. Finley, for the boy leaving the farm and seeking a new field where he can have some assurance of getting at least a share of the benefits derived from his labors and where there are some opportunities for social enjoyment.

THE results of experiments to find the origin of cancer have been made known by Prof. Johannes Fibiger, director of the Pathological Institute, at Copenhagen. His researches show that "cancerous growths in the esophagus and stomachs of rats were due to the presence in the alimentary tract of minute worms, which stimulate the cancer cells."

NATIONAL CAPITAL DISGRACED

Alike the disgrace placed upon the National Government by the execution of Mrs. Surratt, wrongfully charged as an accomplice in the assassination of President Lincoln, was the disgrace placed upon the National capital Monday, when the police authorities permitted ribaldry and insults to be hurled against the suffragists as they orderly paraded the principal thoroughfare of the Nation's capital under promised police protection. That Congress will investigate such indignities and lay the heavy hand of responsibility upon such as are guilty, is looked for with much eagerness by all who would uphold the dignity and purity of the fair womanhood of our land who have certain inalienable rights which should and must be respected.

PHONING PRESCRIPTIONS CONDEMNED

The tragic death of Robert Lionel, the little son of Capt. Jos. LeMasurier, in Richmond, last week, as the result of a phoned prescription by a Richmond physician to Drug Clerk Thos. W. McCreary, by which "a mild chloride of mercury" was understood as "bichloride of mercury," proves conclusively that the means of the telephone for having prescriptions compounded should be prohibited by a stringent statute. With frequently impaired phone transmission and the phonetic similarity of words of widely different meaning, the phone is by no means a safe medium for the transmission of prescriptions to druggists. Even the running of passenger trains on certain railroads by means of the telephone, which, in many cases, is likely to result in loss of life for the same reasons given in the case of prescriptions, is condemned to a great extent by the traveling public and will, doubtless, soon be abandoned.

THE WORLD CAMPAIGN FOR PEACE

To an audience of eight thousand people, William Jennings Bryan, whom Governor Craig introduced as the greatest apostle of the Prince of Peace on earth to-day and the world's foremost citizen and the highest type of real statesmanship, delivered an address on "Peace" as a special guest of the North Carolina Peace Conference which was in session at Raleigh for two days last week.

Mr. Bryan declared that it was the imperative duty of the United States not only to co-operate in every way possible with the world powers in furthering the campaign for peace, but to set a shining example of disarmament. He declared the United States was peculiarly fitted in location and standing among the nations of the earth to boldly take the initiative in the great stand for peace, and enumerated as the greatest factors that are making for universal peace the interests of commerce, the expensiveness of warfare, which had advanced from bow-and-arrow equipment to that point where the purchase of one cannon would bankrupt a man, and nations were running into debt to build monster guns, increasing intelligence and the ever growing conception of the brotherhood of man.

Particularly is this true, said Mr. Bryan with emphasis, with great ocean rolling between this country and any other formidable possible invader, and with chains of mountains stretching up and down each shore, across which the combined armies of the world could not penetrate against the wishes of our people.

Those who attended the lecture by Dr. Elmer Hoenschel at Eastern College last Friday evening upon the subject, "Where the Shamrock Grows," were highly entertained. The students of Eastern College attended the Inauguration in a body and made a good showing in the Inaugural parade in their College caps and gowns and red and white colors. Mr. Jacob Flory, son of Samuel Flory, of Nokesville, was taken suddenly ill of acute indigestion while at supper Tuesday evening, and for some hours was in a serious condition. Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, who bottled Cervera's fleet in the harbor of Santiago, which resulted in its total destruction a short time thereafter, delivered a very interesting lecture in the Leesburg opera house, at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. R. M. Jenkins, of the Crigler & Camper Company, of this place, received this week from his father in Madison county a very enjoyable present in the way of a barrel of handsome golden Albemarle pippin apples as fine as ever was seen in this market. The newly married couple are spending their honeymoon in Atlantic City. Mr. G. W. Merchant, of this place, was wearing a tag Wednesday, upon which was printed: "There is no pleasure in a graveyard, give me my flowers now. It takes a live fish to swim upstream, but any old dead one can do it. All men are liars except you and me and I have doubts about you." Dr. S. R. Donohue, jr., surgeon on the medical staff of the Fourth Virginia regiment of Norfolk, and son of Capt. S. R. Donohue, editor of the Fairfax Herald, participated with his command in the annual parade Tuesday and was the guest of his father for a few hours on the day following. Lucas, proprietor of the Prince William hotel, at the time it was destroyed by fire, and who is now proprietor of the Hotel Frederick of Fredericksburg, has brought himself into notoriety with the Hotel Register and Review by a party he finished on the recent hotel waiters' strike in New York. Lieut. B. D. Merchant who has been confined to his room in the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Stefano, formerly with the Hopkins Company as manager of the fine candy manufacturing department, is now manager of the Stark-Carden Candy and Drug Co., of Huntington, W. Va., and doing well. Henry Boler, who formerly was a resident of Manassas for a great number of years as hostler and man of all work for the late C. L. Hynson and who now resides at or near Gordonsville, was in town this week paying his respects to his old friends both white and colored. Henry is among the oldest negroes now living who remembers Manassas as it was in the days following the close of the war between the States. As the result of increased business at that point, the Southern Railway Company will at once provide additional depot facilities at Springfield station, 8 miles this side of Alexandria, on the main line, and establish there a regular freight and ticket agency. The improvements will consist of an addition to the present freight room of two commodious waiting rooms, one for white and one for colored people and a neat ticket office. Hearing was commenced in the circuit court of Alexandria yesterday, Judge Thornton presiding, in the suit of Eugene B. Talbert against Jeremiah H. Crilly for $5,000 damages as the result of the plaintiff being run down while riding a bicycle on one of the streets of Alexandria by a wagon belonging to and driven by an employe of the defendant. Mr. Crilly, who is a prominent wholesale grocer, is well known in Manassas. Dr. Benjamin F. Tuesday morning the small dwelling house occupied by John Whitmer and owned by M. J. Hottel, situated on West Center street, next door to the property owned by F. A. Cockrell, took fire, it is supposed, from the sparks from the probably foul fire and burned a hole two feet square in the roof. The bucket brigade, formed by the neighbors, succeeded in extinguishing the flames before the fire department arrived upon the scene. The probable loss by fire and damage by water will amount to $50, fully covered by insurance. The motion picture with illustrated lecture entertainments which were given in Athletic Hall last Friday and Saturday nights for the benefit of the Manassas Fire Department fund, was fairly well patronized though a much more liberal patronage should have been accorded them. The films representing the methods of fighting the flames in New York city were excellent, and the lecture describing them necessary to advance from fireman to fire chief was fully explained by the lecturer, Mr. Thomas Reynolds, who was chief of the fire department at the Sullivan, a young man, son of prominent Florida people and said to be a millionaire, was electrocuted last Friday in the Richmond penitentiary for the murder of Convict Guard John H. He tried to escape from the camp and, fatally wounded Howard when the guard sought to stop him. Secretary of War H. L. Stimson, spent the week-end last week, with Mr. Julian Keith at Warrenton. Mr. Stimson is an enthusiastic horseman and upon several occasions visited and hunted in the Warrenton neighborhood. While at Warrenton last week he purchased of Mr. Keith the high class, heavy weight hunter, "Piedmont," a beautiful bay by "Watchman" and a great jumper. "Piedmont" is well known by Horseman of Manassas. Mrs. Barrett R. Clark, of Arlington, a suburb of Baltimore, and a second cousin of Dr. R. E. Wine, of Manassas, was shot and killed by her husband Wednesday, after which he turned the weapon upon himself with suicidal intention, and is not expected to live. Mrs. Clark's father, a first cousin of Dr. Wine, was in Manassas Tuesday en route from San Antonio, Texas, to his home in Broadway, Shenandoah county, the former home of Mrs. Clark. While the team of Joseph Cheslock, a tie-hauler of Independent Hill, was standing with no attendant in front of Wagner's hardware store Tuesday afternoon, they became frightened at an approaching train and ran at great speed across the railroad tracks, barely escaping being struck by the engine of the train. The team was stopped almost in front of the passenger depot by parties who were witnesses to its narrow escape when it came dashing across the railway tracks. A fine specimen of Irish wit developed last night in the way of a rejoinder made by Ollie Lynch, son of Patrick Lynch, of Manassas, to Jerry Sullivan well known in Manassas. Ollie was water-boy for a railroad gang in which Sullivan was working, and Sullivan said to Ollie, "boy the Sullivans were of a higher class in Ireland than the Lynches, for over there I was called O'Sullivan." "Yes," replied Ollie, "if the truth was known you owned everybody there was the cause of our leaving."

Manassas Horse Show July 23 and 24. At a recent meeting of the Virginia Horse Show Association held in the Willard hotel in Washington, the following officers for the ensuing year were chosen: President, Joel L. Cochran, of Charlottesville; vice-president, Col. N. T. DePauw, of Haymarket; secretary-treasurer, Latham Fletcher, Culpeper. The following horse show dates were decided upon: Keswick, May 14; Leesburg, June 4-5; Upperville, June 12-13; Culpeper, July 4-5; Manassas, July 3-24; Orange, July 30-31; Charlottesville, Aug. 6-7; Berryville, Aug. 12-14 and Warrenton, Aug. 20-21. Col. DePauw offered a resolution providing that a committee be appointed to urge upon the Virginia legislature a law licensing and regulating the breeding of horses, which was adopted.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

At a regular meeting of Prince William Lodge, No. 21, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, held February 20, 1913, the following resolutions of respect were unanimously adopted: WHEREAS, On the 13th day of February, 1913, it pleased Almighty God, in his infinite wisdom to take from among us our beloved and esteemed brother, E. H. Smith, therefore, be it Resolved, That in the name of Brother Smith our order is deeply conscious of the loss of one of her truest sons, one who was always ready and willing to aid and assist in the advancement and extension of the principles for which we stand—Friendship, Love and Truth. It can be honorably inscribed to his memory that no worthy cause was ever turned away by him without being warmed and filled to the best of his ability. Be it further Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved brother and sisters our heartfelt sympathy, and That these resolutions be inscribed upon the records of our lodge, a copy sent to the brother and sisters of our deceased brother, and that a copy be sent to the MANASSAS JOURNAL for publication. JOHN H. BUCKLE, B. C. CORNWELL, Committee.

Gov. Mann, Wednesday, granted a further respite of three weeks to Floyd Allen and Claude Swanson Allen who were sentenced to die in the electric chair this (Friday) morning. The date now set for the electrocution is Friday, March 22. This is the fourth respite granted the condemned men and is looked upon by some as significant of a favorable impression made upon the governor by the enormous petitions and the forceful arguments of counsel in the closing act of intercession for executive clemency. Later Governor Mann gave out his final decision last night, that he will not interfere further with the execution and that the Allen's must die at the expiration of their term.

Not Yet—Probably Soon. President Wilson has served notice that the White House upon invitation only. His policy will be to "make appointments to office upon the side of merit and justice rather than upon political pull," it is said.

Happy Birthday Party.

Little Elizabeth Merchant celebrated the anniversary of her eighth birthday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Merchant, at Main and Church streets, last Friday evening from 5 to 7 o'clock, with a number of her little playmates and schoolmates as guests. Respectfully submitted, J. P. MANUEL, O. C. HUTCHISON, March 1, 1913.

It has been ascertained from good authority that a fifty bushel corn crop takes from the soil about seventy-one pounds of nitrogen, twenty-two pounds of phosphoric acid and forty-four pounds of potash. It is also ascertained that a crop of wheat takes from the soil thirty-five pounds of nitrogen, twenty pounds of phosphoric acid and thirty-five pounds of potash.

USEFUL ON WRITING TABLE

Suggestion for a Handy Little Convenience for Moistening Stamps and Envelopes.

In these days of "stamp licking," many of our readers will welcome the little suggestion contained in the accompanying sketch, for it may be carried out in a few moments and can be used not only for dampening stamps, but also for moistening the gum on the back of envelopes.

neck in the manner shown in the illustration. Then, if a little water is poured upon it, it will be ready for use and will remain moist for a long time, but when, of course, it does become too dry to be of service, it merely requires moistening again.

DAINTY BAG FOR THE FAN

Is Suspended From the Waist and Completely Hides the Fan When Not in Use.

No longer does the small fancy fan flaunt its presence in ballroom and opera house. When not actually in use it is hidden in a narrow, oblong and perfectly flat bag suspended from one wrist by long hangers which prevent it from getting in the way of the hand. By its texture, it is easy to determine the character of the fan's contents for if of white, mauve, green, maize or pompadour-tinted brocade silk or satin with a shirred top draws taut with white satin narrow ribbon, the fan has a spread of matching hue, and ivory, mother-of-pearl or colored sticks.

SOME NOVELTIES IN JEWELRY

Silver Favors May Be Chosen Without Working Permanent Injury to Bank Account.

Silver novelties in jewelry are so inexpensive that they may be chosen for sets of favors without working permanent injury to even a modest bank account. In girls' jewelry there are necklaces of silver beads, bracelets thickly studded with rhinestones and fresh water pearls, bracelet pins with large and small diamonds, novelties of silver deposit over colored crystal and diamond rings set with pearls.

Narrow Sleeves

Sleeves continue to be of a long and narrow description. In some cases cut in a bell shape over the hands; nevertheless, one occasionally meets with the sleeve reaching only halfway down the arm, in which case they are more ample, and have gathered cuffs in proportion. The waistcoat is being made in a variety of styles, suitable for coats of the same description, when the appear both above and below the fastening, which is usually of two large and elaborate buttons.

Don't Hide Knots

In basting work for stitching to not hide away the knots, but put them on the right side of the sewing, so that they are easily seen and do not show underneath them.

PREVENT HEN SITTING DOWN

California Man Invents Apparatus That Will Effectually Brak Up Broody Fowl.

As every poultry farmer knows, there are times when he does not want his hens to set and there are some hens he does not want to set at any time. To insure obedience by the stupid birds a California man has invented the apparatus presented here. A breast plate has two wire legs extending down from it. On either end of the plate are straps, which pass under the chicken's wings and buckle over its back. The legs stick out in front and do not in the back.

Balks Setting Hens.

least interfere with the fowl's freedom of movement, but to prevent her from setting, although she can lay eggs and is expected to do so if she wants to remain popular. When a hen persists in setting the eggs are sometimes hard to find, and when they are found are unfit for any other use.

TO PREVENT DREADED ROUP

Disease Results From Cold in Head and is Easily Broken Up if Taken in Time.

This is the season for colds. If left unattended a cold will, within comparatively short space of time, develop into either roup or bronchitis. While the two diseases are widely different yet they are both the result of colds, and while the latter is not nearly so disastrous as the former yet many birds die of it. A cold is very easily broken up if taken in time and thus the life of many valuable specimens saved.

Purchase a five-cent oil can and fill with coal oil. At the first sign of a cold catch the bird and by pushing the bottom of the can inject one drobble of oil into each nostril and into the roof of the mouth. It takes in time this one application is sufficient to cure the bird. Should a cure not be effected repeat twice daily. Result, the entire absence of roup, the most dreaded disease. In addition to the coal oil place a small quantity of permanganate of potash in the drinking water.

DOULTRY NOTES

Market eggs at least twice each week.

Warmth and comfort are the food economizers.

Don't forget that lice and mites affect the egg yield.

If received about four geese to make a pound of feathers.

Be sure that the male at the head of a flock of poultry is purebred.

The more the hen scratches, the more eggs she will lay. So keep her scratching.

Dry-picked turkey feathers command a better price in market than scalded ones.

February is generally the beginning of the laying season for both ducks and geese.

Ducks seldom become broody; geese are apt to become broody after laying the first litter.

The hens need straws and excoriate these days to keep them from becoming sluggish and inactive.

The secret of getting winter eggs is to hatch them under a broody hen well sheltered and well fed.

Eggs from yearling ducks hatch well but geese must be about three years old to show strong fertility.

A few drops of little liquid sulphur in bucket of water is fine for chick.

A little cotton seed meal mixed with mash is fine to produce glossy feathers and helps to supply the most food needed.

Geese cannot be profitably hatched and reared artificially, while incubator and brooders have revolutionized the duck business.

Green cut bones will make hens lay in winter. Get a bone cutter and grind them yourself. If you cannot buy them already ground.

The older the gender the more vicious he is apt to become during breeding season; the drake seldom shows temper, being of a many-minded nature.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HERE is no contentment without congenial and useful occupation. Happy is the one who is skilled to do something very well.

SOME DISHES FOR THE FIRELESS COOKER.

The up-to-date fireless cooker, with its aluminum lining and substantial dishes of the same material, is not an expensive utensil, for the efficiency of good work in the "heart of the house." There always goes with the cooker a reliable cook book, which gives concise and clear directions for preparing all kinds of food for the cooker.

The housewife may, after breakfast, get the noonday meal ready and put it into the caloric cooker, go out for a morning call or spend the morning free from kitchen-care as she pleases, knowing that she will have a well-cooked meal when the time comes to serve it.

The Sunday dinner and church-going problem is settled when a cooker is installed, as the most delicious roasts of meat will be cooking at home while you are enjoying Divine worship, without a worry that the roast will burn.

The radiators, which are an important part of a caloric cooker, may be made so hot that meat will be beautifully browned, bread, puddings and cake can be baked as well as in an oven.

For cereals, and all breakfast foods that need long cooking, and which are so often served under-cooked because of lack of time and also fuel, the cooker is ideal.

If one has an invalid in the house who needs warm food and cold drinks, both may be kept equally well at the same time, if one has a cooker of two compartments.

Pot Roast With Potatoes.—Sear a three-pound roast on all sides in a skillet. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and put it into the cooker. Pour over a good pint of boiling water, and if the meat is not very fat add a little hot fat from fried-out meat.

When boiling hot, remove at once from the stove and place in the cooker, cooking three and a half hours, using two radiators. One hour before serving, boil the potatoes five minutes, or long enough to heat them through. Lift the caloric lid and slip in the potatoes as quickly as possible. Of course, they should be drained and put into the broth, at the side of the meat, where they can finish cooking.

The KITCHEN CABINET

STUDY yourself until you know where you are strong and weak, where you are weak, and where you are strong and weak, where you are weak, and where you are strong and weak.

WINTER SPECIALTIES

This is a recipe for baked onions that will do to serve company: Melt two tablespoons of butter, add two tablespoons of flour, a half teaspoon of salt, one and a half cups of cream or chicken stock, four tablespoons of soft bread crumbs and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Boil five minutes, add a well-beaten egg and a dozen medium-sized onions which have been peeled. Peel and add the beaten whites of the eggs and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven.

Bolled Dinner.—Cook a three-pound piece of corned-beef with a small piece of pork for two hours, then add a cabbage head, turnips, a few carrots, and cook until tender.

A small sack of cranberry beans which have been soaked overnight and put to cook when the meat is put on will make a most acceptable addition to the dish.

Bolled Mutton.—Take two and a half pounds of mutton from the shoulder or leg. Remove all bone and add two pints of boiling water; salt one chopped carrot, celery, onion, a stem of pepper and eight or ten uncooked potatoes, sliced. Cook slowly for an hour or two. When ready to serve lift out the meat and skin.

St. James Pudding.—This is a staple, delicious pudding without an egg. Melt three tablespoons of butter, add a half cup of molasses, a half cup of milk, one and two-thirds cups of flour, a half teaspoonful of soda.

TO AILING WOMEN

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Manassas.

No woman should consider herself healthy and well if the kidneys are weak. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are disordered. If the kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen worse troubles may quickly follow. This is often the cause of bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning is also frequent cause of headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering with Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has proven effective in thousands of such cases. Let a Manassas woman tell of her experience. Miss E. Goodwin, Main St., Manassas, Va., says: "I do not hesitate to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. They are the most satisfactory remedy I have ever used, and I know of several others who have been helped by them. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills in curing kidney complaint. I strongly recommend them for that purpose."

A VALUABLE WAR RELIC

Mr. John R. Tillet Seeks to Restore Same to Family to Whom It Belongs.

Mr. John R. Tillet, of Manassas, has in his possession a valuable war relic in the way of a camp mess chest which he took from the camp of the twelfth Alabama Infantry, which was camped near Davis' Ford about four miles Southeast of Manassas, when the regiment evacuated its winter quarters in 1862.

General Rhodes' brigade, which was encamped at the ford referred to, consisted of the fifth, sixth and twelfth Alabama and the twelfth Mississippi regiments. Mr. Tillet is desirous of restoring the valuable war relic to some well authenticated member or members of the Tracy family to whom it originally belonged and would like to get into communication with such member or members with this object in view.

Colored Friends Condole.

To the M. E. Church, Occoquan: The Ebenezer Baptist Church and the colored people of Occoquan send their greetings and condolence to you in your recent bereavement in the death of Mrs. Edith H. Janney, who departed this life on February 8, 1913. While she had a great power for good in her own Church, she did not overlook that of the colored people of her town.

When we were building our church she contributed freely to our cause. Well do we remember her work of labor and love among us. Her earnest prayers and her kind words of encouragement will ever live in the hearts of the colored people of Occoquan and its vicinity.

We deeply sympathize with the family of the deceased in the loss of a kind, loving and Christian mother, whose place cannot be filled. Let us bow to the will of our Heavenly Father who called her to rest and trust that He will give to the Church many more like her.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these remarks be forwarded to the bereaved family, to the Church of which the deceased was a member and to THE MANASSAS JOURNAL for publication. L. F. PETERSON, PASTOR. G. M. DOLEMAN, Sec'y.

Jerusalem Under the Turks.

An address under the above caption was delivered to rather a large and representative audience in the Manassas Baptist church Sunday night by Capt. Frank Wells. He imparted much valuable and interesting information concerning Jerusalem and said many things on other matters.

His theology appeared to be safe enough, but his methods of expression lacked discretion. He made some true and telling hits, but their force was weakened by extravagant statements. If he had refrained from lavish repetition, had omitted the exploitation of his peculiar individual views on sundry irrelevant subjects and had abstained from egotism his talk of one hour and a half could have been very easily crowded into an acceptable thirty-five minute lecture on the subject of his address.

Quantico May Be Selected.

The Alexandria Motor Club is considering plans for the construction of a handsome club house at some point on the Potomac river.

Several sketches were presented and a committee was appointed at a meeting Wednesday night to consider the various propositions and present to the club at an early date complete plans for the new building together with recommendations as to the most desirable location for same. The committee consists of Cecil K. Sherman, T. L. Hall and A. C. Usher. It is understood that Quantico is in much favor as the location of the club house on account of the excellent wharf and beautiful scenery in that locality.

Now is the time for Brother Ransdell to get busy with the committee and land the club house.
