

HAYMARKET SCHOOL ENDS HELD MEETING ON SUNDAY BIG WEEK AT EASTERN CLEAN UP A BIG SUCCESS MAKES GOOD PROPOSITION

Closing Exercises of Haymarket School Were Held Friday Evening, May 21.

(CONTRIBUTED)

The commencement exercises of the Haymarket School were held in the auditorium of Masonic Hall last Friday evening, May 21. The hall was decorated with roses, orange blossoms, and clusters of wistaria. The school, which was assembled on the rostrum with its background of flowers, presented a scene that will be long remembered by all who were present. The program was as follows:

Song of welcome by the school. Address of welcome by the principal, Mr. Carter, who pointed out a few of the needs of the school. He spoke of the past session's work and asked for the co-operation of the patrons in the building up of a larger and better school next session.

Miss Nannie Osbourne then recited James Whitecomb Riley's famous poem, "Knee Deep in June," which was thoroughly enjoyed by the entire audience. This was followed by a recitation entitled "When the School Year is Over," by Thomas Garrett. Misses Margaret Watts, Pl. ebe Rector, and Bertha Watts then sang the "Spring Song" which was enthusiastically applauded.

The children in the primary department followed with a song entitled "The Song of the Blue Bird." Miss Bertha Watts followed with a recitation, "Remembrance." The large bouquet of roses presented her was evidence that she would be remembered by one at least. A wreath dance then followed, given by the girls in the fourth and fifth grades.

A song by the school, "Alma Mater." Miss Phoebe Rector followed with a recitation. After her recital the applause in one particular section of the hall was very pronounced. Song by school, "Uplidee."

Then followed one of the most attractive features of the evening, a debate on consolidated schools. Miss Margaret Watts, Miss Christine Bragg, and Mr. Wallace Shumate upheld the negative while Mr. Julian Watts, Miss Ellen Utterback, and Mr. Parsons Rector defended the negative.

Dr. H. M. Clarkson, Mr. Geo. Tyler, and Robt. Rust acted as judges. The debaters showed marked ability and the entire debate was very spirited. In the rebuttals the debaters came back with much fire and the withering sarcasm hurled at their opponents was hailed with delight by the audience.

While the judges were discussing the merits of the question the League Chorus sang for the entertainment of the audience. They were encored several times and it was only by the return of the judges that they were allowed to stop.

Mr. Rust commended the debaters for the manner in which the debate was rendered and announced that after careful consideration of the argument presented by both sides, the judges decided in favor of consolidation.

Mr. Tyler then presented a medal, awarded by the principal, to Miss Margaret Watts, for delivering the best debate.

The promotion certificates were given to the pupils. Promotions were as follows:

TO SECOND GRADE—Elizabeth Strumata, Elizabeth Wine, George Williams, and Rufus Arnel.

TO THIRD GRADE—Letitia Gill.

TO FORTH GRADE—Mary Stover, Louise Robinson, Everette Thomas, Louella Willis and Nellie Arnel.

Manassas Was Meeting Place This Week of Railway Men—Over Fifty Attended.

A meeting of the Washington Division Efficiency Association of the Southern Railway, was held in Manassas on Sunday last. Fifty-three members of the association were present at the two sessions, one of which was held at 10 a. m., and the other at 2:30 p. m. The two sessions of the meeting were held in the new town hall, and the association expressed itself as deeply grateful for the use of the hall. The association dined at the New Prince William where a bounteous dinner was served.

The meeting was presided over by Byrd Leavell, agent at Culpeper, who is president of the association. Several addresses were made, two of which we will make mention of. E. F. Ticer, agent at Alexandria and vice-president of the association, had as his subject "The Prompt Handling of Correspondence." The speech of the day, however, was that of J. R. Culp, agent at Remington, who addressed the association on "Tidiness and Neatness About the Station." His speech brought forth prolonged applause.

Besides those mentioned above the following prominent members of the association were in attendance: W. C. Hudson, of Alexandria, superintendent of Washington division; W. T. Williams, trainmaster of Harrisonburg division; R. F. Beckham, of Alexandria, route agent; V. A. Slaughter, of Alexandria, route agent; G. R. Kennett, of Greensboro, N. C., block inspector; E. W. Davis, of Washington, chief clerk, auditor of disbursements; A. H. Hamaker, freight agent at Harrisonburg and secretary of the association; C. A. Galbraith, of Washington, chief clerk, auditor of freight house; Hardy Seay, of Washington, formerly of Manassas, chief clerk, auditor of station accounts; M. J. Bath, of Charlottesville, traveling auditor.

Messrs. T. F. Coleman and W. H. Clark, both of Manassas, constituted the reception committee, and a most effective committee they made from the many pleasant reports circulated after the meeting.

SESSIONS WORK ENDED

Seventeenth Annual Commencement Exercises Held At Hebron Seminary.

The seventeenth annual commencement of Hebron Seminary was ushered in with much vim last Saturday evening when the prize contest was held. On Sunday Prof. J. A. Garber, of Washington, delivered the baccalaureate sermon, in which he pointed out higher ideals in life.

The annual music recital of Monday evening proved to be, as had been predicted, the best musical program of the year. Much enthusiasm was aroused in the members of the Bible Department when, on Tuesday evening, Bro. J. R. Leatherman, of Fairfax, made an excellent address.

Wednesday evening was given over to the annual alumni meeting program. The members of the faculty were greatly surprised by a number of useful gifts presented them by the graduating class. The program of encouragement was given from various angles and students who have made good names for themselves since leaving the walls of Hebron.

FRIDAY EVENING

Friday evening was given over to a recital by the pupils of the Dramatic Art Department. The program was presented before a capacity audience which was generous with applause. The performers were screened from view by a voluminous white curtain which was drawn aside after the program was started, exposing an attractively decorated platform, with a mass of foliage in the background.

The program opened with a piano duet which was followed by several good dramatic selections. Those taking part were Prof. Willis W. Harriman, director of the Dramatic Art Department; Mrs. Harriman, Misses Carrie Fetzter, Bessie Hubbs, Ernestine Mozer, Grace Genzberger, Watson, and Ethel Hixson, and Mr. Hal Ramsey.

Each performer reflected much credit upon Prof. Harriman's training, Mrs. Harriman finding special favor with the audience. Miss Carrie E. Fetzter, of Washington, D. C., formerly of this county, and Miss Ethel Hixson, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hixson, of Manassas, displayed much ability in their respected numbers and were greeted with warm applause.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

On Saturday afternoon the schools of Art and Home Economics gave their exhibition and reception in Baldwin Hall from two to five o'clock. The major portion of the lower floor was given up to the exhibits, and the hallway and two rooms were very prettily decorated with roses and green shrubbery. The various articles on exhibit were artistically grouped and arranged and were the admiration of the many visitors.

The main room on the front was given up to specimens of art work of the pupils of that department during the current year. The work of each student was grouped separately, except where the student had only one or two exhibits. Miss Amelia F. Brown, of Manassas, had on exhibit her work in china decoration for the year. All of her work showed skill in execution and a gift for color blending. Miss Carrie E. Fetzter, of Washington, D. C., was the principal exhibitor of paintings. Miss Fetzter, who never made any attempt at painting until this year, was highly congratulated on all sides for the excellent work she has done. Her ability as a dressmaker was also testified to by a skillful and neatly executed piece of work in this line.

After leaving the art room, and while on the way to the home economics exhibit in another room, no one failed to pay their respects to the punch booth where the appetite of the visitor was toned down a little for the safety of the very tempting exhibit of the Home Economics Department. This exhibit was varied and most carefully gotten up. Canned goods, bread of different kinds, meats, desserts, etc. presented such a pretty picture that the visitor was loath to depart. No small part of the pleasure derived from the visit was the very gracious guidance and the words of explanation given by Miss Meth, director of the department, and several students.

SATURDAY EVENING

Miss Edna P. Porter, assisted by Miss Edith M. Otto, gave a

Senior Recital on Saturday Evening. In this recital Miss Porter took the role of pianist, a field in which she is not so well known to the Manassas music-loving public as in the field of vocal music. The fact that Miss Porter is not so well known as a pianist is no argument that she is not well accomplished in that side of her musical education as was well testified to on Saturday evening.

In the opening number, a sonata from Beethoven, Miss Porter displayed good technique, while in a later number, "Etude Melodique" by J. Raff, she played with much feeling. Her final number, "Capriccio Brillante" by Mendelssohn, in which Prof. Gorrell took second piano, brought out her general ability and showed very clearly her grasp on music of the pianoforte.

Miss Edith M. Otto, mezzo soprano, most ably assisted Miss Porter. Her opening number was well sung and was most enthusiastically received by the audience. In her numbers she was accompanied by Miss Ernestine Mozer, to whom much credit is due as an accompanist. Miss Otto's best number was "Sweet Be Your Dreams" by Emerson James. Here her voice showed to best advantage, and she sang with remarkable sweetness and feeling.

SUNDAY MORNING

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning the program for Baccalaureate Sunday opened with "The Heavens Are Telling" from Handel's Creation, which was well rendered by the chorus class. Dr. E. F. Daugherty asked the congregation to sing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" and a Scripture reading was given by Rev. Simmons. After this the chorus class gave another selection, a prayer was given by Rev. E. A. Roads and Mrs. J. S. Dunn sang the solo, "O Divine Redeemer."

Then followed the baccalaureate sermon by President H. U. Roop. Br. Roop had as his subject "Christ, The Light of the World." He stated in the outset that Christ came into this world to teach, and as his talk progressed he brought out more fully just how Christ is the light of the world. To the Class of 1915 he gave in part the following ideas: A life is not the circumstance of accident but the golden opportunity of purpose. God judges life by its tendency, its motive, and the plan for our life will be reached just to the extent we live close to God. Christ makes possible for men a newer and better life. The great need of the world to-day is moral help above everything else. The divinity of Christ is the all-essential principle of religion, without it religion degenerates. Christ gives worth to the life work of each individual, and each must do his duty or it will remain undone throughout the ages.

Following Dr. Roop's sermon the congregation, which was a large and representative one, sang "How Firm a Foundation" and were then dismissed by Rev. J. E. Slick.

Activities on Part of Manassas Civic League Give A Cleaner Town.

When the mayor issued his proclamation calling upon the citizens of Manassas to observe the week of May 17 to 23 as "clean up and paint up" week, and when the Manassas Civic League planned its campaign, little was it dreamt that the people of the town would cooperate to the extent that they did last week. Now that the "clean up" is a thing of the past the people of the town are unanimous in saying that Manassas is decidedly more attractive and certainly cleaner.

During the first three days of last week the people collected in boxes, barrels and piles their unburnable trash, so that when the teams of the civic league started on the rounds Thursday morning it was soon found that plenty of work awaited the league. The league's team hauled for two and one-half days and Hon. C. J. Meetze furnished a team for Friday. In all thirteen big two-horse wagon loads of garbage were removed by these two teams to the dumping grounds on Henry Norris' place near town. In addition several one-horse wagon loads were hauled out at the instance of individuals during the week.

Practically the entire town was covered during the latter part of the week. When the team stopped hauling on Saturday noon about one more load of garbage remained to be hauled out, but the league by this time was in such financial straits that it could stand no more expense, so the work had to be halted when right on the verge of being thoroughly finished.

Not only were great quantities of garbage and rubbish hauled out by the league but several of the vacant lots were tackled by their hired men and put in much more orderly and clean shape. The "clean-up" idea has spread so that many of the alleys and "catch-alls" behind stores and other buildings are being cleaned up. The health officer has expressed the opinion that Manassas is cleaner now than it ever was before and this is a fact of which the town should be justly proud.

Two Farmers of Near Clifton Were Haled Into Court For Cruelty To An Animal.

(The Hebron Observer)

An attempt to kill a beagle hound belonging to William F. Ford, jr., a postal clerk living in Clifton, in the belief that the dog had been annoying sheep, brought W. B. Deak and A. D. Bauserman, two farmers of the Clifton neighborhood, before a justice court on Tuesday night, a week ago, on a charge of unnecessary cruelty to animals. After a hearing before Justice B. Spindle, of Centerville, lasting several hours, the two farmers were fined $12.50 each and costs. Both noted an appeal.

The incident aroused much feeling among the residents of Clifton, who openly espoused the cause of the dog and its owner, and there was a large attendance at the trial. It appeared from the evidence that Bauserman suspected the Ford dog of having

State Board of Health Makes Fine Proposition for Progressive Community—Act.

WANTED: A Virginia community to invest few hundred dollars in campaign that will rid it of hookworm disease, eradicate fly-borne typhoid and improve general health. Only one more county this summer. Apply to State Board of Health, Richmond.

With funds made available by the International Health Commission, the State Board of Health is anxious to locate that Virginia community which is willing to invest about $250 in a sanitary campaign, on condition that approximately $1,000 be spent through the board in eradicating hookworm disease and fly-borne typhoid and in general sanitary betterment.

This, in substance, is the somewhat unusual proposal made in the weekly bulletin of the State Board of Health, given out to the press this week. Back of it is an outstanding chapter in the sanitary history of the state.

When the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission concluded its five years of work in the South last winter, the International Health Commission was organized to carry on sanitary investigation in America and abroad. After careful study of conditions, the commission decided to begin intensive campaigns in various states the object of which should be to illustrate by the eradication of certain communicable diseases, the economic importance of public health work.

At the invitation of the State Board of Health, the International Commission agreed to start such a campaign in Virginia, under the direction of the board, and to supply the greater part of the funds necessary. Work was accordingly begun in a district of Southampton county, where a trained health officer and two assistants have been engaged in a canvass of the community, farm by farm, in order to encourage the installation of sanitary devices and to rid it of filth-borne diseases.

This work has succeeded so well, that the commission has now agreed to organize another "unit" in a selected Virginia community. The salary and expenses of the health officer in charge and the salaries of necessary assistants are paid with funds from the commission, the incidental expenses are borne by the state, the community is only asked to pay the traveling expenses and board of the assistants—a total of about $250 for a complete campaign.

The problem now before the board is to select that progressive Virginia community which is most anxious for a general campaign of sanitary improvement and will make its contribution to that end. In return the board can practically give assistance that with public cooperation, hookworm disease can be made to disappear, fly-borne typhoid can be eradicated, infantile complaints can be decreased and the general health of the community can be greatly improved.

In order to "play the game," the board has asked the press of the state to present the case to the boards of supervisors with the understanding that the community will do the greatest part of the work. The board is just willing to cooperate will be given the new "unit." Work will be undertaken in the selected community by June 15 and will continue for at least three months.

BIG WEEK AT EASTERN

on the lawn of Eastern College at 6:45 o'clock Sunday evening was particularly pleasing to all those in attendance. The main part of the service was that of singing familiar songs without accompaniment. In addition, a few short remarks upon Christianity and some of its aspects were made by several in the audience and before dismissal a prayer was given.

After about twenty minutes' intermission the evening's program in connection with the annual address before the Christian associations was started in the auditorium. The opening number was "Twilight" by Abt, which the chorus sang very effectively. Miss Porter then sang a solo from Haydn's Creation, Mr. T. A. Martin, president, of Eastern Y. M. C. A., gave a scripture reading and Rev. O. W. Aderholdt gave a prayer.

Dr. Roop then introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. B. F. Daugherty, who gave an address on "The Vision of Life." Dr. Daugherty from the beginning held the close attention of every one present. His masterly handling of his theme, his able delivery and his command of language made his address one of the best ever heard in Eastern College.

It is a man's duty to test his visions; there are good and bad visions in life. Some of the unworthy visions, ones which we must overcome are: 1. The life of ease and pleasure. Many have this vision to-day, but in every case it leads to the accomplishment of no good, many times to ruin. 2. The seeking of wealth. Wealth in itself can give no satisfaction, and as an aim in life the accumulation of wealth is to be frowned down upon.

1. Character. Character must be supreme in our life. Character has its foundation in thought and as the Bible says "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Love the things that are good and you will grow to be like them. 2. Have an all-prevailing purpose in life. This is essential if your life is to be a success. 3. Get a good preparation so that in whatever field of usefulness you are called you will be able to render effective service.

The evening's program was brought to a close with two more musical numbers, the chorus class singing "Father, Oh Hear Us" and Miss Porter and Mrs. Sumner rendering very sweetly the duet, "Hark, Hark, My Soul." Dr. Roop pronounced the benediction and the pleasant evening's program was at an end.

MONDAY EVENING
One of the events of commencement week was the evening of song given on Monday evening by the vocal pupils of Mrs. J. C. Dunn, assisted by Mr. O. W. Mosher, violinist, and Miss Ernestine Moser, accompanist. To the "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner played by Miss Moser the chorus class entered and took their seats upon the stage. They then sang a song after which Misses Porter and Otto delighted the audience with "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman." The Loreley Glee Club followed with two very pretty little songs, and then Miss Sallie Clark sang "Spirit Flower." Miss Clark was heavily encored, in response to which she made several bashful bows, each bow bringing forth additional applause, until finally the next number was ushered in.

The college chorus sang two more songs which were followed by Maturis' Japanese Cycle. Miss Otto, charmingly costumed, sang the cycle, which consisted of six parts, each part receiving its proper rendition. After Miss Otto's singing the Loreley Glee Club sang "Down in the Dew Dell" and "Roses Everywhere." These two songs were finely sung and were the best of the glee club's renditions.

Mr. Mosher, a favorite on the violin, played in a most excellent manner "Scena Ballet" by De-Beriot. In this solo, to which an accompaniment was played by Miss Moser, he displayed very skillful execution, and in his encore number he played with decided feeling and expression.

The two costume numbers lent much variety to the program and both of them were highly commented upon. The other costume number came now when Joseph Millares sang a selection from the opera "Pagleacci." Dressed as a clown he sang of the tragic sorrows and passions that fall to the clown as well as to others. Most admirably did Millares carry out this number, and at its conclusion he received prolonged applause. His number was easily the most popular on the program.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON
Before the public part of the Class Day program was held on Tuesday afternoon, Miss Florence S. Lion served tea to the faculty and graduating class of Eastern College. Toasts appropriate to the day and the occasion were given by President Roop, Prof. Cobham, Rev. El A. Rood, Prof. Hodge and Dr. B. F. Daugherty.

At 3 o'clock the senior day program proper started when Miss Ernestine Moser, who presided, read the class poem. This was followed by the reading of the class history by Miss Porter. Miss Geisberger read the class prophecy, several remarks in which elicited much applause, and Mrs. Baumner read the class will. Concluding the pleasing program was the presentation of grotesque and humorous gifts to the members of the class. Misses Jones and Landis had the honor of making the presentations.

While the Class Day program was going on in front of the boys' dormitory Mrs. J. E. Jordan was entertaining her class of little tots in one of the rooms of the building. A bounteous spread consisting of strawberry ice cream, cake of many varieties (and so far as the writer tasted of excellent variety), bananas, oranges, etc., made all present feel particularly fortunate in being Mrs. Jordan's guests.

After the serving of the refreshments Mrs. Jordan bestowed in a gracious manner the medals and prizes of the year. Wm. Hill Brown, Eloise Giddings and Garnett Brown each received medals for scholarship in their respective classes. Wm. Hill Brown had the enviable record of not missing a day or of being late to class during the entire year. Books were given as prizes for excellence in work to Fannie Ransdell, Vera Lucas, Benjamin Lucas and Gordan Morgan, and other tokens of esteem were given to other members of Mrs. Jordan's department. The affair proved highly enjoyable to both the children and a few older persons who were so fortunate as to be present.

TUESDAY EVENING
Another large crowd was present at the auditorium Tuesday evening when the final concert of the advanced students of the Pianoforte and Voice Departments was given.

ent at the auditorium Tuesday evening when the final concert of the advanced students of the Pianoforte and Voice Departments was given. The concert opened with a two-piano piece, "Romance from Concerto D minor" by Mozart, the first piano part of which was played very artistically by Miss Margaret K. Roop, daughter of President and Mrs. Roop. Miss Dorothy Johnson played two compositions by J. Raff; the first piece she played bringing out her ability as a pianist very convincingly.

Joseph Millares again drew great applause on Tuesday evening at the conclusion of his fine rendition of "Foreador's Song" from the opera, "Carmen." His voice is well suited to the rendition of operatic numbers and he always proves a great favorite. Miss Porter played very prettily two solos, and then Miss Nettie Curtis, of Warrenton, gave the most skillful exhibition of the evening when she played two solos, in each of which her technique and fine sense of harmony stood out as dominant characteristics.

Miss Mabel L. Jones, with Prof. Glenn C. Gorrell at the second piano, played well "Le Matin" by C. Chaminade, Miss Margaret Roop played another solo, Miss Edna Porter sang two solos with much sweetness and then Alfred Prescott, with his characteristic good control, his forceful manner and his good sense of melody, gave the audience two well-executed solos.

Miss Jones played again, this time two solos which showed much temperamental treatment at the hands of the player. The concluding number of the program was "Concerto, G minor" by Mendelssohn. This, the most pretentious number on the program, was played in an excellent manner by Miss Curtis, first piano and Prof. Gorrell, second piano.

WEDNESDAY MORNING
The concluding exercises of the sixteenth annual commencement of Eastern College were held Wednesday morning beginning at 10 a. m. Several musical selections were given during

MANASSAS, VA., FRIDAY, MAY 28, 1915.

JUST A BEGINNING

The "clean up" of last week should be the beginning of a continuous and permanent "clean up" for the town of Manassas. We should stop to think of the enormous amount of unburnable trash that was hauled out of town last week; at the same time we must realize that equally as much if not more rubbish than was hauled out yet remains in Manassas—for many citizens said that they had not gotten their unburnable trash together when the league's team called. Besides this there is a great quantity of burnable trash scattered in small quantities here and there which could easily be sent up in smoke if the people would only go to the trouble. The above statements are not conjectures on our part; we are recording our own observations and we are trying to present the facts just as they are, not at all colored by sentimentalism.

One fact in regard to the "clean up" stands out clear-cut and indelible, i. e., the town itself must inaugurate at its own expense (which will be at the citizens' expense) some method of removing at regular intervals the unburnable trash. It's easy enough for a man who has a tear of his own to say that every property owner should remove his own trash, but ask that man to name a single community where every citizen, none excepted, removes his own trash at his own expense. We daresay that he would have to hunt a long time to find a single community in which his plan works. We cannot expect it to work here if it has failed everywhere else.

No, it's the town's business to haul out the trash. The expense to the town will be very little, perhaps not fifty dollars a year, and any town that cannot afford to spend fifty dollars a year for the sake of health and cleanliness is indeed in a bad way. Anyone who saw the great loads of tin cans and other throw-away receptacles, many of which were partly full of water before they were thrown into the wagon, will tell you that the town by all means should see that this rubbish is not allowed to collect. As it is there are too many natural breeding places for flies and mosquitoes, let us make special effort to remove all the artificial ones.

The Manassas Civic League and some public-spirited citizens were taxed quite a bit in the recent "clean up" campaign. Every penny of this money will have been well spent if the town will now take over this matter and see that regular hauling-out days, say about once a month (probably not over a day at a time will be required to cover the whole town), are inaugurated. If, on the other hand, the matter is neglected, the recent campaign will have, for itself alone, proven quite expensive.

The town cannot count on the Manassas Civic League's hauling out rubbish. The league is too poor an organization, but were it able it is doubtful whether it would take up the matter, for it is the unanimous opinion of the body that it's the town's business and duty to attend to this matter. It might also be said that the league has many other matters awaiting its attention, and as it hopes to demonstrate in the future, it can in no wise be considered merely a "clean up" league.

Therefore, it behooves each member of the town council and the honorable mayor of the town of Manassas to most seriously consider this matter of furthering the interests of the citizens of the town. And it behooves each citizen to agitate most vigorously for a municipal council and taking care of the carrying out of unburnable trash at regular intervals. Any man or woman who considers the question from the stand point of community welfare is bound to arrive at this conclusion: the town must at stated intervals haul out the unburnable trash of its citizens.

AN OFFER EXTENDED OUR SUPERVISORS

On the first page of this issue you will see an article headed "Makes Good Proposition." This article sent out by the State Board of Health directs the attention of the boards of supervisors of the state to a very important proposition, one which they, as servants of the people, must very seriously consider. The proposition is presented to each board and to that board and that community which manifests the greatest interest will fall the good fortune of receiving the campaign for their county.

As explained in the article referred to the State Board of Health is going to conduct a campaign in one more county this summer for the riddance of hookworm disease, for the eradication of fly-borne typhoid and for the improvement of general health. The expense to the county receiving the campaign will be, according to the State Board of Health, about $250 whereas approximately $1000 will be spent through the State Board.

The Board of Supervisors of Prince William county are in session to-day and this proposition is being presented the body. It is hoped that they will act favorably on the proposition. In fact, we hope they will become enthusiastic in their application for the campaign, for we feel confident that the popular vote of the county would bring in the verdict: "Accept the offer in the most enthusiastic manner possible."

ARE WE GETTING OUR MONEY'S WORTH?

"Little drops of water, little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean and the wondrous land." But how about the dribs that are being paid out every month on our roads, are they making better roads for the county? Bad roads are a disgrace to any but a poverty-stricken community and Prince William has never been ranked as poverty-stricken.

To rivet your attention upon what we are about to say we wish to present a table showing the amount of money allowed from the county road funds at twelve consecutive meetings of the Board of Supervisors of Prince William county. The figures given below in no instance include the amounts allowed out of the joint state and county fund, neither do they include any amounts allowed out of any fund save the road funds of the different districts, the special road fund and the special road tax fund.

The table as carefully drawn up by us:

Board Meeting	Amount Allowed From County Road Funds
June 25, 1914	$ 2,574 92
July 27, 1914	964 49
August 27, 1914	3,676 94
September 24, 1914	791 41
October 22, 1914	714 82
November 12, 1914	1,554 22
December 17, 1914	1,288 06
January 4, 1915	202 88
February 18, 1915	211 90
March 11, 1915	349 77
April 1, 1915	476 94
May 6, 1915	2,486 88
Total for twelve meetings	$13,143 98

We see from this table that at twelve meetings the board spent $13,143.98 of the county's money for road purposes. We hasten, as do many others, to ask how much of this has been spent for permanent road improvement. THE JOURNAL does not desire to appear arbitrary in the matter but we must candidly say that in as far as we know (with the exception of amounts spent on permanent bridges) none of the money so spent can be counted upon as bringing permanent results. We regret exceedingly that small amounts are being spent here and there whereas, if the whole amount was spent in building a small piece of permanent road each year, in the course of twenty or twenty-five years we could expect some good roads for the county. The way things are now the roads are patched up each year only to be torn to pieces the following winter. No real constructive work is being done with the county's funds.

The urgent need of the county, if it wishes good roads, is the services of an expert along the lines of county road building. We have no doubt but what a good man can be employed for about $1,000 for nine months each year until we find his services no longer needed. No business can succeed without good management, neither can permanent roads be built until the supervision of the work is entrusted to a thoroughly experienced expert in road building. The county will sooner or later employ a man to supervise its road building, and the sooner the better, both financially and in the results accomplished.

Prince William could well afford to take out bids for road improvement, but until such time as this matter receives its proper attention let us see what money we spend is not being wasted. In other words let us try to get our money's worth in road building as we try to do in everything else. A small portion of real constructive work done each year will, in the course of a few years, give us something at which we can point with pride. He who uses one talent wisely can often accomplish more than his neighbor who squanders ten.

Italy is now engaged in waging war upon Austria. It remains to be seen, however, as to just how effectively Italy can use its "boot."

Contributions of much worth to the program in the way of short addresses were given by Hon. C. J. Meetze and Lieut. Geo. C. Round. To climax the program of the evening came the address of Hon. Geo. L. Browning, of Orange, who carried his hearers into the sublime thought of life's possibilities.

Yesterday, the last day of finals, was the best of all. The program opened with music. Four orations were delivered, the orators being O. L. Strayer, Sara Beahm, Hilda I. Flohr and Wm. M. Beahm. An essay on "Growth of Stenography" was read by W. S. Hinegardner. Hon. C. J. Meetze delivered the prizes and medals and President I. N. H. Beahm presented the diplomas.

Hon. Lewis M. Machen, of Alexandria, delivered the annual commencement address. He had as his subject "Will of the People." With fine oratory and deep thought he contrasted the will of the people and the will of the state, and he inspired a closer study of the workings of the state and its people. With other musical numbers the program was concluded by short addresses by W. F. Hale and the retiring president, Prof. I. N. H. Beahm.

Winners of prizes and medals: The Hon. H. T. Davies prize of $10 was awarded by Messrs. W. R. Hooker, E. S. Hoon and D. W. Boyer jointly to Mabel Harley and R. G. West.

The Hon. Thos. H. Lion prize of $10 was awarded by the faculty to D. C. Hollinger.

The Hon. C. J. Meetze prize of $10 was awarded by the faculty to Pernie Grisso.

The Hon. C. E. Nicol debater's medal was awarded by the Nicol Literary Society to William M. Beahm.

Diplomas were awarded as follows:

Academic Course—O. L. Strayer and Hilda I. Flohr

English Scientific Course—Sara Beahm and W. M. Beahm.

Music Teachers' Course—Eva A. Flohr and Esther Beahm.

Typewriting and Stenography—W. S. Hinegardner.

Voice Culture Course—O. L. Strayer.

Reading Contest at Groveton.

The best representatives of the Catharpin and Groveton neighborhoods met at the pavilion on Wednesday, the 19th instant, to take part in the second reading contest. Four classes were represented. The third and fifth grades from Groveton read against same from Catharpin. The third class was composed of four of our young teachers, and the fourth of the married folks of both sections.

The prizes were awarded by popular vote each one in the audience casting one ballot. Harold Moss won out easily in grade three, Alma Cross in grade five, both of Groveton, but Catharpin became at once the favorite when Miss Eleanor Wilkins read Riley's "Home Again With Me."

The next class was composed of Mrs. Davenport Wheeler, Mrs. C. R. McDonald, Mrs. King, Mrs. Walter Sanders, Mrs. Sam Swart, Mrs. Harry Hundly, Mrs. Sam Moss and Mrs. Arthur Heary, most of whom had trained voices accustomed to oral reading. Each read a portion of "Pollyanna" and each held her audience. It would have been a hard question for judges to decide but popular vote gave a decided majority to Mrs. Deb. Wheeler. Should their contests become popular it would give a great impetus to oral reading.

School Board Meeting.

The Manassas District School Board will meet on Saturday, June 19, 1915, for the purpose of appointing teachers for the term of 1915-16.

5-23-4t D. J. ARRINGTON.

J. G. Kincheloe Seriously Injured.

Yesterday afternoon about 5:30 Joseph G. Kincheloe, of Manassas, was seriously injured when a loaded lumber wagon ran over his left leg, breaking and badly bruising it just below the knee and just above the ankle. Mr. Kincheloe was hauling some lumber out of the woods near Blooms when some laths which he was carrying on top of the load of lumber began to slide off. He jumped in an endeavor to save himself but in jumping his foot got entangled in the lines and before the horses could be halted one of the rear wheels of the wagon passed over Mr. Kincheloe's left leg.

Mr. Hanback, who was driving a team right behind Mr. Kincheloe's, came to his assistance at once but he saw that means of getting Mr. Kincheloe under medical treatment were imperative. He then went in search of Mr. Dave Yates, who in a short while came in his automobile and brought the injured man to his home in Manassas.

Medical attention was given the injured man but it was thought wise to carry him to a hospital where the broken leg could be set in wire, so this morning Mr. Kincheloe was carried on train No. 14 to Sibley Hospital in Washington. At present it is difficult to predict the outcome, but it is hoped that no serious complications arise in the case.

Former Manassas Boy Meets With Serious Accident.

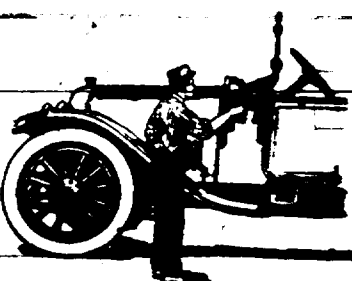

Mr. Earl Blossom, who was born at "The Highlands," the property recently sold by Mr. Ransdell to Mr. Gilpen, formerly of W. Va., met with a serious accident in Alaska a short while ago. Mr. Blossom, whose father owned the large wooden block on the southwest corner of Center and Battle streets, where Manassas' great fire started in 1906, and who shortly afterwards moved to Washington state, has been successfully engaged in business in Seattle.

Not long ago young Blossom was engaged in Alaska on a contract when a sudden accident deprived him of one of his legs and a part of his other foot. At last accounts he is doing as well as can be expected, and will in the course of a few weeks return to his parents' home in Seattle.

Earl Blossom will be remembered by many of Manassas' citizens as a small school boy of the town from ten to fifteen years ago. THE JOURNAL joins the many friends of the family in extending sympathy to Mr. Blossom and family.

A Boy Scouts Troop Organizing.

Mr. R. O. Bibb is now organizing a troop of boy scouts. Last Friday and Saturday Mr. Bibb carried a number of boys who have signed the pledge of membership on a camping trip to Bland's ford bridge. Applications for membership should be made to Mr. Bibb at an early date if the boys wish to get the most good out of the organization as extensive plans are already underway for the summer's activities.

Dorinda's Engagement

Bridegroom Was Slow, but Arrived at Good Time.

By LARISSA MACKIE

When Dorinda Kerr passed Lem Tuckby's hardware store Lem came out in the doorway, looking after her with a most irritating air of gratified ownership. Dorinda had glanced at the store out of the tail of her lovely eye and she had seen Lem hovering behind the glass-paned door.

Lem Tuckby was middle aged and fat and asthmatic, and Dorinda was twenty-two and slim and very pretty in a fair, delicate way. And they were engaged to be married. At least that was what Lem Tuckby told his friends, and it was rumored that the Widow Kerr, Dorinda's mother, was about to announce the engagement by notifying all the Quincy Harbor folks.

But Dorinda still maintained that there was no truth in the statement. "Mother," she cried that afternoon, as she hurried into the cozy sitting room with the red geraniums on the window sill.

"Well, I said yes to him for you, dearie," Mrs. Kerr, as she turned the key of the door, was knitting. "You see, you don't know your own mind, and—"

"Dorinda was staring at the placid face of the stout woman with head-dressed eyes. "You say I am engaged to Lem? You accepted him for me?" she said with a shriek.

"Yes. And Lem's coming tonight," returned her mother impatiently. "You'll not cut up any more children's mess! Lem Tuckby's the best chance you ever had, hearing Billy Lane—and Billy Lane never gets serious attention to a girl in his whole life."

"Lem'll bring the ring tonight," pursued Mrs. Kerr with a gratified smirk. "It was the last engagement ring—a large amethyst—maybe you've seen Lem wear it."

"The girl shuddered. Many times had she seen the large, showy ring on Lem's red hand.

"I'll not marry him, mother. I'm of age—you can't make me marry him if I don't want to, and I won't—I won't!"

Ann Kerr looked agitated at the little spiteful, whom she scarcely recognized.

"What's the matter, Dorinda? How come the engagement I came home?"

"Her dear little daughter. All her life Ann Kerr had tyrannized over people, and Dorinda had always been under her mother's thumb. She rebelled as unbecomingly as it was unpleasant."

"Ann Kerr had not ruled over her little husband until the grave opened him a gateway refuge, and she had not dominated Dorinda, to give in to a girl now. She came to her mother's height and pushed Dorinda into a chair."

"I've never coming for you, Dorinda," asked Billy, inclining his lips to Dorinda's sunny head. "Well, here I am, and when you've heard my story—well, you'll say I've kept my promise, that's all! There's a flourishing business out in Ohio and a cozy cottage waiting for you to help me choose the furniture, and—what's the matter, Dorinda? Not crying because I came home?"

Dorinda was crying with joy. She had never been so happy in all her life, she told herself, as her face pressed close to Billy's coat sleeve, which smelled deliciously of tobacco.

Lem Tuckby always differed on other of peppermint candy, which he nibbled constantly.

"I can do nothing of the sort, miss," retorted the widow bitterly. "There isn't any more money in the whole village, and I ain't going to Tom, Dick and Harry asking 'em to buy the mortgage on my house—not if I lose it. You forget that I was a Hodge!"

"Stop that nonsense, Dorinda. You know you like Lem Tuckby. Why he's been coming here for six months, and you've played accompaniments for him while he sawed away on that old fiddle of his, and nobody can blame him if he thinks you mean you liked him."

"Mother, I really never dreamed he was coming because he cared for me," protested Dorinda. "Why did you think he called, eh?" Dorinda blushed furiously, but she looked her mother straight in the eye.

"I hope—I hope I have too much respect for your poor pa ever to look at any man again," cried Ann Kerr wildly, for in moments of emotion she was wont to refer to her long suffering husband as a paragon among men.

"I—I know, mother—but—" Poor Dorinda, remembering her dearly loved father, broke into sudden tears.

Ann Kerr's face darkened, and she went into the kitchen and began to prepare the evening meal. She was angry with herself for having believed Lem Tuckby would look at her with such a fresh young creature as Dorinda to attract his admiring eye. And she was angry with Dorinda because she girl despised an opportunity that she herself would gladly have seized.

So mother and daughter ate their supper in silence, and when the meal was concluded Dorinda went and sat in the sitting room with a look of utter despair on her fair young face.

"You'll soon be rid of Lem if you're going to look at him like that," laughed her mother sardonically. The back door opened and Alvina Toby came in, a little red shawl held closely around her thin, yellow face.

"Hope I ain't unwelcome," she cried, wrinkling openly at Mrs. Kerr. "Wednesday night's 'bean night,' you know, and I thought perhaps you'd get some sense sitting out here alone."

"It's right down," said Mrs. Kerr, with empty glance at Dorinda's averted face. "Dorinda's got a headache."

Dorinda got up and went into the parlor, where her mother had lighted the pink lamp. It was warm in there, for the coal fire in the stove was glowing red, but Dorinda was shivering with cold dread as she waited for the unwelcome sound of Lem Tuckby's heavy footsteps.

From the closed door of the sitting room came the shrill sound of Alvina's voice. Now and then her words sounded quite plainly to Dorinda and as Alvina talked the girl grew paler.

"Dorinda acts awful unkind over being engaged to Lem Tuckby," shrieked Alvina. "The people's got to get up—I could have myself engaged to him ten years ago myself—but I had good reasons for staying single."

Ann Kerr's deep voice rumbled some inaudible reply; then Alvina went on: "Well, it's surprising just the same to think of Dorinda taking Lem—you'd have thought she'd have preferred Billy Lane. I hear that he's staided down wonderfully. He went west, you know, and his folks are pleased as can be over it—said Billy wa'n't nearly as bad as folks painted him. His ma always said it was Dorinda that was to make a man of him."

"Dorinda?" questioned Ann Kerr sharply. "Yes—and seems he told her he wouldn't come back till she'd be prop to take him—he ain't never come back yet." Alvina laughed disagreeably.

Dorinda stood with closed eyes and tightly clenched hands. Her heart was aching with the remembrance of her parting with Billy Lane—handsome, fascinating, careless Billy Lane, who had undoubtedly forgotten her long ago. Well, perhaps it was just as well that her mother had arranged a marriage for her with Lem Tuckby—people couldn't laugh at her, after all, if Billy came home with a wife as sure as one predicted he would do.

"The girl's engaged to an angry bludgeon and Dorinda's heart sank. She would go to the door and let Lem in before he rang the bell—that was the worst of things to do in Quincy Harbor. She had a sudden silence in the sitting room, and she knew the three women were listening.

Dorinda opened the door and admitted the slighted fury of Mr. William Lane. Billy's hat dropped on a chair and Billy's arms were around Dorinda, and remained there.

"I'm right here," grinned Lem, socked at his very moment the aroma of peppermint was prevailing Lem up the front walk and around to the side door, which Lem considered the proper entrance for the son-in-law elect of the house; the front door was entirely too formal.

Lem carried his yelp in his black box, and his round face glowed with anticipated pleasure as he thought of the pleasant evening he would enjoy. He admired Dorinda Kerr very much, but he had never supposed that she would dream of marrying a middle-aged chap like himself.

"Cocky, but I put some of these young dudes on the run," triumphed Lem Tuckby, as he opened the side door and entered the Widow Kerr's sitting room.

Mrs. Kerr and Alvina Toby had been sitting suspiciously close to the parlor door. When they saw Lem Tuckby the widow rumbled a deep note of consternation.

"I'm right here," grinned Lem, socked at his very moment the aroma of peppermint was prevailing Lem up the front walk and around to the side door, which Lem considered the proper entrance for the son-in-law elect of the house; the front door was entirely too formal.

Every Home Needs One

FIFTEEN REASONS

- 1st I was greatly surprised to find that your beautiful Vacuum Clothes Washer weighed only two pounds. - Mrs. L. B. Johnson, Tenn.
2nd I am a practical mechanic and took pleasure in looking over the construction of your machine. I can see that it's made mighty good and by men who knew their business. - L. J. Jones, Ill.
3rd I want to tell you that I washed a tub of white clothes in just three minutes by the clock and they came out perfectly. - Mrs. Eliza Stanton, N. Y.
4th I have seen lots of washing machines used but yours is the first one that cleaned goods without rubbing and did not run the colors. - Fay Fox, Minn.
5th I take so much pleasure in putting my clothes through the rinsing and bleaching water with the Vacuum. - Caroline Bailey, Fla.
6th My husband works in a machine shop and his overalls get so dirty I almost rub my fingers off cleaning them. Today I washed them with your machine and it was fine and so easy. - Mrs. Joy Gray, Pa.
7th My beautiful laces and embroideries have always been washed manually by hand. Yesterday I used the Vacuum Machine on them and they were not hurt's a bit. I wash all my lace curtains with it. - Mary Wilson, Kansas.
8th I have never been successful washing comforters; they get so torn and pulled apart. I use your machine on them and they always come out beautifully cleaned. - Lucy Morton, Okla.
9th I thought your salesman was joking when he said I could wash a tub of clothes in three minutes and I did it myself last week and had my big washing out on the line at 11:00. - Mildred Tompkins, Ohio.
10th I have always hesitated about using a washing machine as I thought they pulled and tore the clothes so. But I want to tell you that I have used your machine for three months without the slightest trouble. - Mrs. P. Bedford, Minn.
11th I was surprised when I did my washing yesterday. I hurt my arm the other day so my little twelve-year-old girl used the Washer. It was so easy she thought it was fine. - Mrs. Nellie Masder, Ark.
12th Up in this country people don't buy things unless they are all right. I have studied the operation of your Washer and know that you have exactly the right principles. Compression and vacuum worked with hot water will clean anything. - Prof. William Pennell, Maine.
13th After using your Washer for several months I can see where it's going to last me for years. I am delighted with it and think it the best buy for the money I ever made. - Martha O'Reilly, Va.
14th I have known away your price. Any machine that stands so long as yours has, and stands up the way it has, don't need a guarantee. I am going to tell all our friends about it. - Mrs. Dr. A. Ely, Wis.
15th You are not asked to buy anything. My salesman came and wanted to place one of these machines in your home on five days' trial without obligation on your part. Your business is done on the basis of believing that satisfied users make the best advertisement. Send for one by Parcel Post.
