POLLUTED FARM WATERS

Typhoid Fever Rates of Country Districts Raised by Polluted Waters.

(U. S. Geological Survey)

In selecting a country home for the summer special attention should be given to the question of a pure water supply. Farms, which are generally remote from towns, cities, or other areas of congested population, seem to be almost ideally situated for obtaining pure and wholesome water. In reality, however, polluted water is exceedingly common on farms, and typhoid fever rates are usually greater in country districts than in cities. Typhoid fever is transmitted largely in drink or food taken into the stomach and is especially likely to be communicated by polluted waters obtained from shallow wells near spots where the discharges of typhoid patients have been deposited and subsequently carried into the wells, and it is doubtless principally this fact that makes the disease so common in farming regions.

The sources of the water used on the farms are numerous—lakes, streams, springs, wells of various kinds, and cisterns—all being extensively used, although the water from lakes and streams is generally used only for stock. Each of these sources under some conditions may yield entirely safe and satisfactory supplies, while under other conditions certain of them may be a constant menace to health.

Of the various sources of water supply the ground water is the most satisfactory for farm use, because it is least liable to pollution, and streams and ponds are the most unsatisfactory, because of the ease and frequency with which they are contaminated. Fortunately, however, they are very seldom used for drinking and domestic purposes, being utilized mainly for stock, on which the effect of slight general pollution is not serious, though some severe epidemics of disease among cattle have been traced to polluted streams. The underground supplies, whether from wells or springs, although safe in many localities, are far from being universally so, the safety depending mainly on their location and on the nature of their protection.

Many of the failures to protect adequately the water supplies used for drinking arise from a lack of knowledge of the manner in which waters circulate through the ground and of the ways in which they may become polluted. Information on these subjects should be of value, and it is with the object of supplying this information that the United States Geological Survey has published Water Supply Paper 255, on "Underground Waters for Farm Use," a copy of which may be obtained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

I Don't Believe in Missions.

The work of evangelizing the world is an essential part of Christianity. A man may choose whether or not he will be a Christian, but once having chosen to follow Jesus Christ he has no alternative with regard to missionary work, both at home and abroad. Even if our Lord had never given the Great Commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," the duty would be no less real. For the disciple of Christ to ignore or disobey this command is to deny the very nature of his faith. The missionary obligation rests on the character of God, on the universality of the Gospel, on the unity and need of all humanity. The Great Commission does not create, it states, an obligation.—Selected.

TYPHOID REPORTS

The State Board of Health Wednesday renewed its request for prompt notification of all outbreaks of typhoid fever that threaten to assume the proportions of an epidemic. The board is now fully organized for its summer work against the disease but cannot promise the prompt stoppage of epidemics unless reports are made before the disease is widespread. Physicians in particular are asked by the board to forward their monthly report cards promptly and to notify the board if there are any evidences of outbreaks in the communities where they practice. The same request is made of municipal authorities and of private citizens.

A "SAFETY FIRST" FOURTH

State Board of Health Calls Attention to Heavy Casualties in Past Years.

Unless there is a return of the vigilance shown some years ago in observing a "Safe Fourth" the State Board of Health, in a special warning issued Wednesday, predicts that there will be increasing casualties this year in celebrating the great American holiday.

The bulletin of the board reads, in part, as follows: "The people of the Commonwealth are strongly urged to do their part this year in observing July 4th with celebrations which will not endanger life and limb. Attention is again directed to the fact that failure to do this in past years has cost many hundred their vision or the use of their limbs."

"According to the statistics compiled by the American Medical Association, the total casualties, killed and injured, from Fourth-of-July accidents during the last ten years have been as follows:

1904	4,100
1905	5,176
1906	5,466
1907	4,418
1908	5,628
1909	5,307
1910	2,923
1911	1,608
1912	986
1913	1,195
1914	1,546

"These figures show that despite the agitation of the last few years, the casualties from accidents on July 4, 1914, were higher than they had been since 1911. The reason is that the low record made in 1912, when only 41 were killed and 945 injured, gave a false sense of security. Unless the press again arouses people to the danger, we shall soon revert to the conditions that were a national disgrace prior to 1911."

"The only safe rule to follow is to take no chances. This applies particularly to parents whose children, with the heedlessness of immaturity, beg for the privilege of exploding fire works and toy cannon. If these parents yield and an accident follows, they blame themselves for the shattered hands or the lost vision or the maimed bodies of their children. If the parents turn the celebration into some other channel than fire works, they can readily avert the danger. The board would like to see this rule universally applied in Virginia."

"The casualties seldom impress because they are scattered over a large country for a number of years. But it is worth while noting that during the Fourth-of-July celebrations in America during the past ten years there were more casualties than in the great battle of New Orleans, where the British and the German struggled for four days. This is a horrible indictment of American common sense."

DIXIE HAS BIG OPENING

Manassas Turns Out to Take In Opening Show—Big Things Are Planned Now.

The opening of the new home of the Dixie moving picture show took place last evening. Manassas turned out en masse to see the initial show in one of the best small town picture houses in the land. In fact the impression gained by all was that Manassas now possesses an up-to-date moving picture show which compares favorably with the best of the large cities. Manassas has only praise for the progressiveness of the management of the Dixie.

The exterior painted in white shone out brightly as the throng gathered last night. The performance was hardly under way before the house was filled to its capacity. Eight big fans furnished breeze enough to make everyone comfortable even though the evening was very warm. And for music an auto piano has been installed which furnished music of a high grade.

Several points stand out prominently in this new home of the Dixie. "Safety first" has been thought of in building and equipping this home. Two large exits in the rear and two good-sized doors in the front will afford ample exits for any crowd. The pictures show well upon the plaster screen and sound carries well in this narrow building.

The management now plans to give a matinee performance each Saturday at 3:15. Starting next Monday a show will be given each evening. On Monday evening Mary Pickford will appear and on Friday evening Charlie Chaplin will hold forth with his mirth-provoking stunts. The managers are trying this rather pretentious program to ascertain just what Manassas desires in the way of an up-to-date moving picture show.

BUSY NOW AT NOKESVILLE

Health Campaign in That Town—Getting Well Under Way—Other Features.

The sanitary survey which is now well under way in the Nokesville neighborhood is progressing nicely. Dr. R. W. Garnett and Mr. Tuttle, microscopist, are busily engaged in making a map of the district and the work of examinations is going on at the same time. There are several points which they desire emphasized.

Every family in the area included in the survey should push the work in making their privy sanitary. This work should be done at once. The carpenter hired by the State Board is ready to assist and show how it is to be done, but he cannot do all the work. With very little effort you can soon have a model privy on your premises, if you will follow instructions and get busy.

Any person in the county who desires an examination made for intestinal parasites can have same made if they will send specimens. This examination will be made free of charge. Any community in the county which desires an illustrated talk on any of the following subjects should write Dr. Garnett, Nokesville, at once: Flies, mosquitoes, hookworm, typhoid, etc. In so far as he has time, he will be glad to give these talks in various sections of the county.

—Mr. Bibb Herndon, of near Aden, was paralyzed on Tuesday. He died at ten o'clock this morning.

MANY VISITED CAVERNS

Over 100 From Manassas On Sunday Excursion to Famous Luray Caverns.

Sunday morning bright and early a number of Manassas' citizens were up and making preparations for a day's outing. At nine o'clock a good crowd was assembled at the depot and when the excursion train for Luray pulled in 100 round trip tickets had been sold. The train, which left Washington shortly after eight o'clock, stopped at Alexandria and took on about fifty passengers. At Manassas considerably over 100 were taken on, the total number of passengers carried by the train being in the neighborhood of 600.

Luray was reached shortly after one o'clock. Of course the first and most important thing was dinner. A great number in the party stopped at either the Mansion Inn or the Hotel Laurence, each of which is under the management of Mims Brothers. Mr. H. T. Mims, who started the New Prince William Hotel in Manassas under the new management, received the guests from Manassas very cordially and showed them every courtesy.

After dinner the excursionists were driven to the world-famed caverns which are a little over a mile from the town of Luray. Here the party was divided into many groups, for each of which a guide was furnished. If you have come within speaking distance of any of the excursionists this week you have heard descriptions of marvelous scenic wonders, weird and grotesque stalactitic formations and of most beautiful and amazing caverns of underground waters.

Tired out from a day's outing which will long be remembered those from Manassas reached home about 9:30 p. m. This is the first excursion of this nature which the Southern has run for many years. A somewhat similar excursion was run by the Southern over the same route about thirty years ago.

THE HOUSEKEEPING CLUBS

A Pertinent Letter in Which Attention is Called to the Clubs' Mission.

EDITOR MANASSAS JOURNAL:

On the subject of the Good Housekeepers' Clubs, it seems that their monthly published reports do not quite fill their legitimate and expected mission of giving helpful information. The prime object of the club organization is "the promotion of good housekeeping"; and the meetings must contain something worthy of being passed on through the kind service of our local press.

It is very pleasant when we entertain to see in print that our home is "hospitable" and that we "are gracious and charming," our refreshments delicious, and that our guests "thoroughly enjoyed themselves." After some expenditure of time and thought for the comfort and pleasure of the club guests, it is very nice to know all this is "delicious, delightful and refreshing." But gratifying as it may be to the individual hostesses, it is scarcely edifying to the public, if the report stops with these eulogies.

If the club topic is Home Efficiency, would not you, dear Mrs. Busy Housekeeper, like to know how to clean silver as readily as you wash the dishes by using certain parts of salt, soda and boiling water with aluminum; how to cut biscuits quickly with a revolving cutter; how to make good bread with less lard; how to mix oil and vinegar of a salad dressing; and many other "how's"

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Dove, of Bradley, gave a birthday party in honor of their son, Owen, on Sunday, June 20th. A most enjoyable time was reported by those in attendance. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hockman, Misses Ella and Sallie Runion, Maggie and Nan Molair, Anna and Ada Woodyard, Naomi and Lucy Cooper and Messrs. Joseph Mason, of Rockingham; R. L. Armentrout, of Keezletown; Jessie, Leroy and Locky Whetzel, of Aden; J. C. Dove, of Aden; Edward, Charles and Obediah Runion, E. E. Molair, James and Grady Cooper and Lohr and Lassie Whetzel.

TO EXTEND LIGHT LINES

Town Council So Decides at Regular Meeting Monday—Five Members Present.

The June meeting of the town council was held in the council chamber of the town hall on Monday evening, June 28th. Those present were Mayor W. Hill Brown and Councilmen Brand, Conner, Johnson, Speiden and Wheeler. Messrs. Hynson, Coleman, Nash and Prescott were absent.

The council was presented with a sworn statement to the effect that a note for $300 and interest for one year, given by the Town of Manassas, payable to Howe Engine Co., had been destroyed in a fire which destroyed the dwelling of Thomas Fletcher, of Fairfax county. This note was due December 1, 1914, with one year's interest. The council acknowledged this statement.

It was ordered that the public utilities committee be instructed to carry out the resolution passed at meeting held June 29, 1914, relating to the extending of the electric light poles to a point opposite the dwelling of Mr. Westwood Hutchison, provided the cost of the extension be advanced by property owners on warrants issued by the council payable March, 1916.

It was also ordered to build electric light line on Center street to the corporate limits at once and to supervise the construction of the line outside of town, since Messrs. Lion, Athey and others have agreed to furnish the money to erect the line outside of town, paying for it with one half the monthly bills for current consumed until line is paid for, the line then to become the property of the town.

A deed was ordered to be executed by Town of Manassas conveying to Southern Railway Company the right of way over the Prescott lot, adjoining the power house lot. This right of way was not included in deed whereby the town became owner of this lot, hence it was necessary to execute another deed to the Southern Railway Company.

A number of bills were ordered paid out. $80.50 for fines collected was reported by the sergeant.

A permit was granted H. T. Davies for the erection of a two story frame dwelling and a one story frame building on his lot on Grant avenue.

that conserve time, energy and expense?

The club reports should offer a fine medium of exchange of "household helps." THE JOURNAL solicited just such contributions last year, but thus far nothing special has been accomplished. Will you not use your opportunity and start a Housekeepers' Column the very next time the club meets?

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

Our Patriotism Should Show in A Prominent Display of Old Glory Monday.

(From Baltimore Sun)

Coming events used to cast their shadows before—now they scatter their pictures. Hence, when we note that pictures of Old Glory adorn bonbon boxes and arsenals of cannon crackers, containing nothing more deadly than candied mints, stacked in confectioners' warehouses, we quite instinctively say "Fourth of July! Salute the flag!"

Sir Sven Hedin, the Swedish historian, relates that, visiting the city of Antwerp, the day after its capture by the Germans, he saw amid the burning wreckage of the deserted harbor the American flag flying proudly from its pole. Soon it would be swept heavenward in a chariot of fire, but, unlowered it waved amid the terrible onslaught of war.

Hence, upon July 4, 1915, it especially behooves the American people to unfurl their national flags and to feel more deeply than for many years past the significance of the Stars and Stripes. It is their flag that cost the sons of the American Revolution their lifeblood, yet which today proudly stands for peace when almost every other national flag flings defiance to an enemy.

Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, has said that every citizen of the United States is a maker of the American flag in the work that they do to preserve and glorify the principles for which the flag stands; the ideals to which it aspires. In an imaginary dialogue between Old Glory and a Government clerk presented by Secretary Lane the flag says: "I am your belief in yourself—your dream of what a people may become. . . . All you hope to be and have the courage to try for. . . ."

I am the clutch of an idea and the reasoned purpose of resolution." All these things and many more the American flag symbolizes to its people. That is why laws are enacted to guard the flag from commercial or disrespectful usage. To offend the American flag is to offend the American nation. Like the cross, symbol of Christianity, the flag must be held in deepest reverence—lifted high to the eye, enshrined in the heart, revered in the soul.

So when the day of American Independence dawns, if, in the safeguarding of life and property, men no longer indulge in the dangerous and noisy mimicry of war, if the ear-splitting firecracker, the reverberating bomb has gone the way of all senseless things, welcome in their place the opportunity to hang out the Star-Spangled Banner that is the nation's pride and glory. What matter if the size be small, the sentiment the flag stands for stretches from ocean to ocean.

Wilbur D. Nesbit, once a feature writer on a Baltimore paper and co-author with Otto Hanserich of "The Girl of My Dreams," has written a lyric to the American flag that may be read with patriotic pleasure.

Your Flag and my Flag—
And how it flies today!
In your land and my land,
And half the world away!
Red and blue and white,
Red and blue and white,
The stripes forever gleam;
Blue, white and soul-white,
The good forefathers' dream;
Sky-blue and true-blue, with stars to shine bright—
The gloried golden of the day, a splendor through the night.

Your Flag and my Flag—
And oh, how much it holds!
Your land and my land,
Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart beat quicker at the sight—
Sun-kissed and wind-teased—
Red and blue and white,
The one Flag—the great Flag—the Flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue.

ALL CAN BE BENEFITED

Every section of Prince William can reap benefit from the health campaign which has recently been inaugurated in the county. While these sanitary surveys will do detail work in only three communities this does not mean that no other parts of Prince William can share in the benefits. All of Prince William now has an opportunity of learning about better sanitation and general health improvement. If, at the end of this campaign, your neighborhood says that the work has not benefited the community it will be due to a lack of interest and support on your part.

Here are a few ways your community can reap benefits from this campaign even though you are not fortunate enough to "land" one of the surveys. In the first place any citizen of the county can submit specimens for the examination for intestinal parasites, and such examination will be made free of charge. Secondly, illustrated lectures on many phases of the health question will be delivered (in so far as the time can be had) in those communities which desire to have such talks. Thirdly, each community can very wisely select a committee of its interested citizens to make a personal inspection of the detail work done in one of the fortunate communities.

The State Board of Health in many ways is doing a great work in bettering living conditions in Virginia. What they supervise in the way of sanitary improvement is done well, and now that they are starting upon such exemplary work in this county it behooves every section of Prince William to take advantage of this opportunity. Even though you do not get the campaign in your vicinity do not think you are left out; if you want to be helped you still have a good opportunity.

VACATIONS AND THEIR WORTH

"Are you going to take a vacation this summer?" This is a commonly asked question and one which is frequently answered in the affirmative. In fact the vacation idea is so firmly established in the routine of city life that from the lowest paid shopgirl to the highest paid official in the land, the vacation period is looked forward to from one year to another with much eagerness. Vacations are granted employees because it is believed that a change is essential and highly beneficial in the case of the individual who lives shut up in a city for the major part of the year.

Vacations of the right sort are of great good. Many a man or woman after a change and rest takes up work with renewed energy and a broader vision. When work becomes tiresome, one's nerves feel unstrung and when the care of life's duties seem to bear heavily upon us then it is we need a change. In some cases it's a rest that's needed, in others a change of environment and activity. In every case what is needed is something that will build up the body and at the same time prove agreeable in a mental way.

But are all vacations beneficial? We would say "No." When a hard-working individual goes to a "swell" mountain or seaside resort where amusements galore beckon to him on all sides, and where a good night's rest is never considered, he comes away at the end of his vacation period in a far worse condition than when he started for the so-called "rest." We do not mean to say that what everyone needs is to simply sit in a rocking chair and fold the hands. No, this is good for some but for others it would be anything but beneficial.

A good general rule in regard to vacations is that they should not prove a drain upon one's vitality, either by over-exertion, loss of sleep or indiscretions in eating and drinking. One to get good out of a vacation must choose wisely the resort, and must be willing to live sanely. Use good sense when you go on your vacation; you will come back a new man, ready to take up again with much zeal the work in which you are engaged.

CIGARETTES AND THE SCHOOL BOY

Perhaps the most exhaustive summary that has been made on the effects of cigarette smoking upon boys is that embodied in "The Case Against the Little White Slaver," a compilation of facts, figures and comments upon the smoking of cigarettes by boys. Henry Ford has taken great pleasure and pride in summing up the case against the "little white slaver" and in collaboration with Thomas A. Edison, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Hon. Benjamin B. Lindsay, Hudson Maxim and many others he presents many interesting, truthful and startling facts in regard to cigarette smoking and the use of tobacco in general by boys. If every boy and young man would read carefully "The Case Against the Little White Slaver," there would be far less smoking than at present.

We are, however, now advancing an argument against tobacco smoking (cigarette smoking in particular) on the part of the boys of Manassas and Prince William. That cigarette smoking is harming the boys of Prince William no one will deny (not even the boys themselves if questioned in their more serious moments). It is not our purpose at present to go exhaustively into the ill effects of cigarette smoking upon the boys of our county but we do wish to bring one fact clearly to the attention of every person in Prince William, i. e., that the tobacco habit is sapping the lifeblood of many a little son of Prince William to such an extent that he will go through life deficient in mental ability, undeveloped in physique and equipped with a nervous system that will make life a burden rather than a pleasure.

Have you ever thought of the school boy and cigarettes together? Why is it that so rarely an inveterate smoker of cigarettes gets very far advanced in school? Why is it that such a large per cent of the boy graduates of our high school are non-smokers? Ah, here is home evidence which bears out the facts which are advanced by men who know. Will you believe what the boys of Manassas and Prince William are daily demonstrating. Just as true as the fact that night follows day it is that lack of will power, loss of the power to concentrate and a lowering of vitality are brought about by the smoking of cigarettes in general.

Boys, it is a hard matter to keep you from smoking. If you make up your mind to smoke whether or not, only the strictest surveillance on the part of your parents can save you from the ruin that stares you in the face. We want to see each boy in the county make a man of himself, not just an excuse of a man. Prince William and Virginia need you to fight her battles of peace as well as of war, and it is only with sound bodies, clear brains and a high life purpose that you can claim yourself as being worthily equipped for the fray. If you are now using tobacco in any form you are handicapped, and to attain the full honor of manhood you should give up tobacco and its associates.

Value your brains and morals, boys. These are the things which if developed will make men of you, men of the most worthy type. But all the evidence is against the proper development of your brain if you use tobacco. Like all poisons it acts quickly upon the tender tissues of your brain and works against your mental progress at every turn. If you did not smoke you would have a greater desire to go to school and to make something out of yourself. It is characteristic of the boy tobacco users that ambition of the better sort is almost entirely lacking in them. And on the other hand tobacco does not improve your morals; mortality is most assuredly not furthered by your walking around with a cigarette stub hanging from the corner of your mouth.

Parents, can you see no connection in the smoking of cigarettes by your son and his disregard of school and church? As long as you have lived your eyes must certainly be opened to the fact that smoking in the boys and good school records are incompatible. But do not just notice and do nothing about it. Act to save that boy. You would do anything to save him if he were about to be run over; why not save his brain for him? In this day of keen competition only the most alert win out. You are more responsible for your son in this stage of his life than he is for himself. You love him dearly, then protect him from the poison which he takes into his system with every puff of a cigarette. Its deadly fangs are sinking deeper into his brain, the highest God-given organism which is known. People of Prince William, awake and save the boys; it's our greatest privilege and opportunity to be of service to the future citizens of our county.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Gordon a son on Tuesday morning. Miss Katharine Lewis was hostess to the Bridge Club on Wednesday evening. The Greenwich and Nokesville telephone exchanges will observe holiday hours on Monday. Jos. A. Fox, of Culpeper, and Ruby O. Williams, of Bristol, were married this week in Washington. Arthur E. Crider, of Penn. W. Va., and Edith N. Whetzel, of Cattlett, Va., were married in Washington Tuesday. Mrs. J. R. B. Davis entertained the "L. P. G. W. D." Club yesterday afternoon at her home on Battle street. Mr. Joseph Posey has purchased for his brother, Mr. D. W. Posey, a Ford car, which is now being enjoyed by the owner. Special children's day services will be conducted at the Buckhall U. B. church Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. All are invited to be present. The list of names of those who paid their poll tax six months prior to Nov. 2, 1915, and are therefore qualified for the primary and fall elections is now posted at the town hall door. Stafford county is now to have a farm demonstrator. This was assured by action taken by the authorities this week. Prince William will do well to keep up with Stafford in this direction. The Ladies of the Catholic church will hold a lawn party on the lot to the east of the New Prince William hotel on Thursday evening, July 8th. Everyone is invited to patronize this affair. Judge Thornton has postponed the opening of the July term of the Alexandria circuit court from Monday next to Wednesday next. This was done as an accommodation to the attorneys. The regular monthly meeting of Manassas Chapter U. D. C. will be held in the chapter room, July 6, at 3 p. m. A large attendance is requested as the annual election of officers will take place at the meeting. The supposed case of scarlet fever of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bell turned out to be nothing more than a slight stomach derangement, from which the little girl recovered by the first of the week. At the request of Dr. C. R. C. Johnson, the honorable mayor and the town council of Manassas met in front of the town hall this morning where a picture of the body was taken. This picture will go far and wide on post cards. Victor Mills, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Mills, fell out of a chair about 5:30 p. m., Wednesday and broke his right arm at the wrist. The little fellow suffered much pain that night but is now getting along nicely. Bradley and Nokesville crossed bats last Saturday at Nokesville. When the game was called in the fourth inning on account of rain the score stood 21 to 4 in favor of Nokesville. From all accounts it was a great game. The Fauquier-Prince William Letter Carriers Association will meet in the office of Hon. C. J. Meetze this evening at 8 o'clock. This is a regular semi-annual meeting and every carrier in the two counties has been urged to be in attendance. The Rev. Robt. B. Galt, of St. Louis, Mo., who week before last was called to take charge of the Presbyterian churches at Manassas and Clifton, declined the call. As yet no action on selecting another pastor for the joint churches has been taken.

Service and celebration of the Holy Communion at the Trinity Episcopal church, Manassas, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Meeting of the Sunday school promptly at 9:45 a. m. Seryice at St. Anne's Memorial Chapel, Nokesville Sunday, at 3:30 p. m. Miss Louise Walker, who suffered considerably from poison oak inflammation last week, has entirely recovered. She left for her home in Barboursville Tuesday morning, accompanied by her aunt, Miss Mary Walker, who had been visiting Mr. W. J. Walker. Monday, July 5th, will be observed as holiday in commemoration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The banks will be closed and the postoffice will have business hours from 9 to 12 in the morning and from 5 to 6 in the afternoon. Forth of July will see fair weather in practically every section of the country according to weather predictions handed out by the bureau this week. THE JOURNAL takes no responsibility for this statement; if it rains your recourse is with the weather bureau. Wednesday morning a list of names was sent in making application for the establishing of the Manassas Artillery Company. It was impossible to get a local militia company as the state has now a full quota and in addition several applications are ahead of Manassas'. Mr. R. C. L. Moncure, a prominent lawyer of Fairfax county and well known in Manassas, has accepted a position with the Argentina Railway which has its headquarters in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Mr. Moncure leaves for his new position to-day. His contract with the railway is for one year. Mr. Charles Lynn had the misfortune to get his right arm and shoulder entangled in a binder which was in motion last Thursday. He suffered a deep cut near the arm pit which has necessitated his carrying the right arm in a sling. He is improving but still uses a sling for the injured member. The eighth annual summer encampment of the Baptists of Virginia will begin at Virginia Beach, in the auditorium, next Tuesday night, July 6. This seaside chautauqua will continue in session until Thursday, July 15. Several from Manassas anticipate taking in part, if not all, of this encampment. Numerous promotions in the postal service went into effect yesterday. The three carriers from the Manassas office, Messrs. Howard Young, Daniel Bell and Marshall Haydon, have been promoted in salary to $100 per month. Their schedule has been changed so that they now leave Manassas at 9:20 a. m. The horse show which is to be held at Culpeper Monday and Tuesday promises to be one of the best ever held in Culpeper. Greatly reduced round trip fares will be sold July 4, 5 and 6 for this event. The Southern Railway will also sell reduced fare excursion tickets July 3, 4 and 5 for other points limited to return July 8. Twenty-five thousand people are expected to be in attendance upon the sixteenth annual convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America which will be held at Atlantic City July 6 to 9. Reduced rates are given on all railroads and special hotel rates can be had. Several from Manassas anticipate taking in this convention. Miss Ruth Round left last week to take up work for the Orthopedic Hospital for Crippled Children of New York City. This hospital is located at White Plains, N. Y., a suburb of New York City. Miss Round has charge of the physical culture work in this school for the summer, and in addition engages in some instruction.

The marriage of Mr. James McIlhany Thomson, of Louisiana, to Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark, took place at Bowling Green, Mo., on Wednesday. Mrs. Thomson several years ago was a pupil of Prof. Glenn C. Gorrell, in Washington, and played in several Washington recitals with some of Prof. Gorrell's former Manassas pupils. A surprise party was given Charlie Trimmer on Monday evening. The evening was taken up with games, music, etc., after which refreshments were served. Among those present at the enjoyable affair were Misses Emily Round, Helen and Laura Willis, Irene Shenks, Mabel and Grace Lynch and Elsie Rosenberger, and Messrs. Herman Bryant, Gilbert Spies, Walter Hornbaker, Clarence Meetze, Fred Shenks, Lester Cather and Gordon Brown. The dime social, given under the auspices of the Manassas W. C. T. U., last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Geo. C. Round, was a well attended and enjoyable affair. A program, consisting of recitations, readings and songs, which was further augmented by short temperance talks by several of the men present, proved pleasing to the sixty or more persons in attendance. Delicious refreshments were served about 10 p. m., after which the pleasant evening's entertainment ended. Two men were badly injured in an automobile accident near Aden on Wednesday. The car was running at a good rate when it ran into a ditch and upset. The occupants of the car were Mr. Claude Shuniman, general manager of the International Correspondence Schools, Mr. Hudden, of Lynchburg, Lenett Brown, of Fairfax, and Roy Brown, blacksmith, of Aden. Mr. Shuniman was injured, though not serious, but Roy Brown was seriously injured and is now confined to his bed. Mr. Daniel M. Johnson, 23, of Charlottesville, Va., and Miss Dollie Mildred Bennett, 18, of Manassas, were married yesterday in Washington. Mr. Johnson is a passenger flagman on the Southern Railway and known to many of the townspeople. Mrs. Johnson, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bennett, is a well-known young lady of this neighborhood. The newly wed couple are now visiting the bride's parents. THE JOURNAL wishes the bride and groom much happiness in their married life. Interesting Program Promised. A big program is now being worked up for the next meeting of the Manassas Civic League which will be held on Monday evening, July 12th. The main speaker of the evening will be Dr. R. W. Garnett who will give an illustrated talk on "Flies and Mosquitoes." Dr. Garnett is the representative of the State Board of Health who has in charge the health campaign which is now being waged in this county. He is a well informed and interesting speaker and a large crowd should turn out to hear his talk. In addition to this health talk there will be a few musical selections. The program will not be a long one; the endeavor is to make it snappy and not too long. The place of the meeting will be announced in next week's issue together with other details. Plan now to take in this interesting and educational program. Everyone is invited and admission is free. Brentsville District School Board Meeting. The School Board of Brentsville District will meet at Nokesville, Va., Tuesday, July 6, at 2 p. m., to appoint teachers for the coming year, and to let contracts for supplying the schools with wood. The board will be glad to hear from the patrons, either in person or by petition, in regard to the appointment of teachers. R. W. S. Clerk.

A CARD. As I have been requested by a number of my friends in different parts of the county to say who I expect to select as my deputy, I beg to state that if I am favored with the nomination for sheriff, I shall make Mr. M. I. Glascock my deputy for the districts below the run. Very respectfully, D. J. ARRINGTON. TERMS CASH

Owing to the many changes in business conditions, we feel that we can better and more profitably serve our customers by selling goods for cash. We are not taking this step hastily or without regret, but after considering the matter long and well. Our customers have always been loyal and we deeply appreciate it; but believe it will work for the good of both you and ourselves. In buying and selling for cash we will always be in a position to give our customers the highest grade merchandise at lowest prices.

We are confident that after trying this system out with us you will be as much pleased with it as we hope to be. All of the large mail order houses, most of the large department stores and many of the smaller stores throughout the country have adopted this system and with great success. Never have we heard of one of them that would be willing to return to the old credit system. We will continue to carry the same high grade lines of goods that have always been carried by us, only on a larger scale. We will be very glad to have you come in and allow us to explain our system.

Beginning July 12th our terms will be cash.

 CHAPTER II

The winter of 1861 '62 passed quietly with us. Early in the spring the Confederate camp at Manassas was broken up. Our army fell back southward, and my elder brother and the Slades followed, the one to serve as quartermaster's aid, the other to refugee in Richmond. The routine of life had to go on, in spite of heart-sickening suspense. As spring advanced we heard of many battles and of one most disastrous to us.
 The battle of Williamsburg took place on Sunday, May 6.
 My brother Albert's name was not on the list of killed and wounded. He was reported as "missing." But at last came a letter telling us the fatal truth. Albert had fallen young, brave, and handsome, gallantly leading a charge of the Washington Volunteers—by this time few in numbers—he died in the defense of home and country. The shock of this loss to his devoted parents may be imagined. Bitter indeed was their grief—and many friends came to offer sympathy. In the South all hearts were then drawn together. We proved the truth of this.
 But daily life had to go on. My father had his patients to visit.
 My mother, brave, dutiful, and religious, braced herself for her work.
 Summer came, and with it a short visit from my elder and now only brother. He was serving in the commissary department under Major Snodgrass of Ewell's division. He told us more of Albert's death and of the general state of things. The war was now at its dreadful height. Soon after he left us, in August, the second great battle was fought at Bull Run and in its neighborhood; more extensive than the last and more bloody. Here was no panic flight of the enemy. It is known how long that stubborn conflict raged. Our cousin, Gen. R. S.
 Ewell, was badly wounded and carried to "Auburn," the home of Mr. Aris Buckner, six miles from Dumblane. My father went to see him and found that his leg had been amputated. He was too weak then to be moved to our house, though my father wished it. A few days later his removal to a safer place became important.

We were informed of his coming and began hasty preparations. My mother thought our parlor, a large room on the ground floor, the most suitable room for an invalid. Part of the furniture was taken out and a bed and bedstead of the old-fashioned, four-posted kind, imposing with tester and valance, put in place. Capt. Campbell Brown, the General's Aid and future stepson, preceded his coming, and soon after appeared the litter on which the wounded man lay. It was borne with anxious care. But at our very door a difficulty presented itself.
 The litter could not be got into the parlor, owing to the narrowness of the hall leading to it. Our house fronted east. The room selected for Gen. Ewell was on the south side of the said hall, on the north another room, the two doorways opposite. My mother, knowing the plan of the house had a bright idea. She asked Captain Brown to measure the width of the litter. He did so and gave the line to her. She measured the width of all the doors belonging to our four ground-floor rooms. They were wide enough. One at the end of the short narrow hall, in the middle of the house, was engaged. The litter was lifted and borne through into a spacious west room; then turned into a northwest room; then turned east and finally reached its destination through the two opposite doors. I stood with my sister Alice, an interested spectator. I remember well the maimed
 face upon the pillow. The keen blue eyes were however wide open, and seemed to note everything. He spoke not a word, but one had an impression that nothing said or done escaped him.

The wounded man safe in his room we returned to other duties. Dr. Morrison, the General's own physician, proceeded to make his patient comfortable. Alas for that imposing bed!
 It was too high and too wide, and had to be taken away. The General's own little camp bedstead was brought in. The curtains were taken from the windows, which were opened wide.
 A man who had slept for months in tents or on the sod, needed air.

Our guests at dinner that day were Dr. Morrison, Captain Randolph, (a brother of the Bishop) Captain Brown, and several of the other officers. My father being absent, attending in many cases the wounded, my mother invited Dr. Morrison to take the foot of the table and carve. The post was accepted, but it soon appeared that this expert surgeon could not carve a joint of mutton. Not one of the other officers would attempt it. They could wield the sword but, it seemed, not the carving knife. My mother left her seat and made the first cut, amid a general laugh at the surgeon's expense.

A day or two later General Ewell's brother arrived, Col. Benjamin S. Ewell, of William and Mary College, and the Rev. William Stoddert, the eccentric Presbyterian clergyman who, in compliment to his mother's family, had dropped the name of Ewell. For the first time these three brothers were together at our house. My father was several years the senior; but the four had lived in one household when he was a youth and they children. All now took pleasure in being again a family party.
 My father visited the General every morning before starting off on his usual round, and again in the evening. At one time he feared that the wounded man could not recover, but a turn came for the better. All grew more hopeful and cheerful.

I dwell somewhat on this episode as being much more pleasant than most other periods of the war. General Ewell's bodyguard of cavalry were quartered at the entrance to our place, in the grove at "Ewell's Chapel" on the Carolina road. The footsoldiers who bore the litter had tents under some trees just outside our lawn. Officers and private soldiers met in the shade and talked informally. There was also in attendance the General's valet, John, a very dignified personage, and an Indian boy named Friday, an Apache, whom General Ewell when on the frontier had bought out of captivity for twenty dollars. His principal duty while at Dumblane was to fan his master, but once off duty and out of doors Friday was again the little wild "Injun."
 His daring feats of horsemanship, riding without saddle or bridle with arms extended and sometimes standing upright, were the marvel and admiration of our colored people. One evening while at tea I felt my foot twitched under the table and looked down to behold Friday thus impishly amusing himself; but this was an Indian Brave who inspired no fear even when he later crept out. The elegant John was also an object of much interest to our negroes. He served the General's meals. My mother conferred with him, and gave anxious attention to every detail.

We felt as if all were living at a common headquarters, and were glad, almost happy. With so many brave hearts and swords around us we felt safe. As the day wore on, many and went; also many others. Among them were Alfred Kandolph, afterwards Bishop of Virginia, the Hon. Mr. Morton, a member of Congress, and Mr. Arrel Marsteller, a friend and near neighbor of the Ewells at "Stony Lonesome," the General's old home in Prince William. From this last came afterwards a fine gift of fruit for the invalid. In this pleasant atmosphere we lived for about a fortnight; but it was not to last.

One afternoon Mr. George Belt, a neighbor in whom we had confidence, came and asked to see Col. Ewell. He gave information which caused the brother to exclaim: "By George, Dick must be taken away from here!" It was to the effect that our armies had retired to such a degree that Dumblane was no longer safe from a possible approach of the enemy. It seems strange that no official notification of this had been sent, but of this omission I know nothing. It was suggested that a stand might be made by the small force in hand; but Col. Ewell replied, "Oh, no! it would not do to risk a battle here."

An anxious consultation was held. General Ewell, though at first unwilling to be moved, consented on hearing a full statement of the case. A capture just now would be disastrous. Our distress may be imagined. The wounded man was improving, and liked being with us. But he must go. Orders were given, and preparations made that night for an early departure next morning. When daylight came the tents had been struck. An early breakfast was hastily eaten. Mounted men had gone on before when the General was lifted again from bed to the litter, and borne from the house in the same roundabout way by which he entered it. The men moved quickly with grave faces, realizing the importance of this new journey. There was no time for final leave-takings. Only my mother followed the litter a few steps from the door and silently pressed the hand that lay on the white sheet. I was again an interested spectator.

The Rev. Mr. Stoddert took a seat by me, and said, "I will stay here till Dick is out of sight. I don't want to see which way he goes." I asked "Why not?" "Oh, when I go from here I may have questions asked me, and I can say truly, 'I don't know.'" I knew what road was to be taken but, of course, withheld the information. Silence was best. An hour or so later Mr. Stoddert also said good-bye, and took a different road from the one his brother had gone.

All was quiet that day after this departure. My father returned to his patients. We all had our duties. The household returned to its usual routine? The parlor furniture was again put in place. Dinner was a dull meal. We missed the clever table talk of Col. Ben Ewell and the Parson; we missed the light-hearted sallies of Captain Brown, a great favorite with children as well as elders. We missed all these pleasant things, but worst of all we missed the man whose fortitude and patient endurance had drawn our hearts to him. He impressed us all as not only heroic and strong but as having the nicest consideration for others. Though so ill, he was one day overheard reproving his future stepson for carelessly throwing away some waste paper that "might give trouble to the ladies of the family."

We heard afterwards that as the litter was being borne southward along the Mountain road, it passed the home of Mr.
 Belt. His sister asked, "Is it a dead man that you are taking away?" "Not dead yet," was the reply. The bearers went rapidly on in spite of the very rough road, going through a mountain gap to halt at "Kinloch," the home of Mr. Edward Turner.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Philadelphia women have raised $50,000 for the campaign in that city to secure the ballot for women.

American railroads are showing a marked increase in their net earnings, according to the returns filed by them with the Interstate Commerce Commission and made public in Washington Monday.

The naval construction plans which will be submitted to the next Congress will call for the construction of a submarine fleet equal to that of Germany, in the opinion of high officials of the Navy Department.

A census of the animals in the National Zoological park will be taken at the close of the fiscal year. The total number of animals in the park June 30, 1914, was 1,362, and no surprising increase is expected this year.

Money heretofore expended by American tourists in Europe, estimated by Secretary Lane at $100,800,000 or more annually, is this year being spent in the United States, according to a statement issued by him last week.

Yearly promotions for more than 12,000 postal employes in different parts of the country will be authorized by the Post Office Department July 1, despite the failure of Congress at its last session to pass the postal appropriation bill.

Officers of the State Board of Health are busy in completing their annual round of the summer hotels and expect, before the vacation season is in full swing, to have completed the inspections necessary for the protection of the health of the traveling public.

A farm tractor, to be sold for $700, is the latest undertaking of Henry Ford. If Mr. Ford succeeds in this project, and he is not in the habit of failing, such a tractor within the purchasing power of the small farmer, will be of incalculable benefit to the farming industry.

Leroy L. Sawyer, one of the corn club boys of Great Bridge, Norfolk county, has been awarded a certificate for having produced the largest yield in the state, 166 bushels on a single acre.

It is said that the amount of intangible property taxed this year in Virginia will be not less than $2,000,000,000, while last year it was only $131,000,000. It is expected that the intangibles will grow each year. The tax is only 65 cents on $100, this reduction having been made at the special session of the legislature last winter, held for the purpose of revising the tax laws.

Railroading is now no more hazardous an occupation than that of farming, according to estimates by the United States Department of Labor, as to the number of fatal industrial accidents among American wage-earners. At the same time railroad employment and agricultural pursuits contribute the greatest number of fatal accidents, each group being responsible for approximately 3,000 each year.

That the world may soon be given a curative agent for cancerous growths is the encouraging report brought to the members of the Medical Society of New Jersey by Dr. W. Homer Akford, who is connected with the Polyclinic Hospital at New York City, where experimental treatment with 200 so-called incurables proved the value of the new drug, which was discovered two years ago by Prof. Alexander Horwitz, of Cornell University. The secret has not been revealed.

Tie Up All Sick Dogs.

With 11 persons given anti-rabic treatment by the State last month and with a death from hydrophobia reported recently from Danville, the State Board of Health recently issued a special warning for the confinement of sick dogs.

"There is apparently," says the Board, "no more hydrophobia in Virginia this summer than in 1914 but there is always the liability to infection where stray dogs are allowed on the premises and where no effort is made to restrain sick animals. At the very least, every farmer should drive stray dogs from his place and should tie up any of his domestic animals that show signs of sickness. It is far better to confine a dog, sick with some disease other than rabies, than it is to allow a rabid animal to run at large, to bite valuable animals and to force citizens to take anti-rabic treatment.

The State, as in previous years, will continue to give free anti-rabic treatment to persons to whom the payment of the charges of regular Pasteur institutes would be a hardship, but it is far better to obviate the necessity for this."

Where Farmers Waste Money.

When we buy at 25 cents a pound a strip of bacon or a ham that we might raise at home for 10 cents a pound, what goes with the 15 cents a pound difference? The man who grew the meat and the middleman get it, you say? Quite true, but in so far as you and I are concerned, doesn't this 15 cents a pound represent waste? Might we not as well throw the money in the fire and be done with it?

Then how about the fellow who buys canned stuff instead of getting it from his own garden and orchard, who buys corn, hay, lard, syrup, and even butter? This is pitiful waste—waste that has held the farmer in bondage to the supply merchant and the farmers of the North and West.—The Progressive Farmer.

A New Bulletin On Weeds.

Commissioner Koerner has just issued a new bulletin on "Weeds and Their Eradication." This is a very practical bulletin to the farmer, as it gives him valuable suggestions, in the first place, to sow seeds of all kinds that are free from weed seeds and in the next place how to get rid of the weeds that are already growing on the farm. There is no profit to the farmer to grow weeds and the farmer who buys any kind of seed that are cheap which contain weed seeds is making a serious mistake, for the presence of weeds cuts down the yield of his crop and also reduces the price of the crop on the market.

This bulletin is well illustrated and is very helpful to the farmer. Any farmer can obtain a copy by writing to Commissioner Koerner at Richmond.

SEALED PROPOSALS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned Street Committee of the town of Manassas, Va., at the Town Hall, on the 3rd day of July, 1915, at noon, for furnishing material, grading and laying a five-foot concrete sidewalk on the west side of Canal avenue, beginning at the court house lot, in the said town, and running north to the north corner of the land owned by Mr. C. P. Nelson on said avenue. Specifications for the said work will be furnished by the undersigned committee who reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Respectfully,

HAYMARKET HAPPENINGS

Miss Nannie Williamson is at home, after a visit of several weeks to friends in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Clarkson and little son spent the weekend with relatives here.

Misses Ethel and Thelma Moffat, of Washington, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. O. C. Hatchison.

Miss Frances White has returned to Richmond, after a stay of several weeks at her home, near Haymarket.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertson, of Falls Church, motored to Haymarket on Sunday and were the guests of Mrs. S. R. Belight.

Miss Mary Walter, of Washington, is a visitor at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Rector.

Mrs. P. L. Burwell, of Manantec, Fla., is here for a few weeks.

Miss Etta Rector and Miss Mary Louise Rector are attending the Summer Normal at Harrisonburg.

Mrs. Gilliss, of Washington, is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilliss.

Mr. S. B. Sanders has recently sold his farm, "Mountain View," to Mr. and Mrs. Amphlett, who are now located in Haymarket.

Miss Reber Bridges, of Tarboro, N. C., is expected next week to visit her sister, Mrs. Robb White, at St. Paul's Rectory.

Admiral and Mrs. Thom Williamson, of Annapolis, are with their daughter, Mrs. Carvel Hall for the summer.

Mrs. F. H. Sanders Hostess.

Mrs. F. H. Sanders entertained the Catharin Good Housekeeping Club and numerous visitors at her hospitable home Thursday, June 24th.

Following this a very interesting program was given for the entertainment of the guests.

The Misses Sanders played several very pretty duets to which every one listened with much pleasure.

Mrs. McDonald, in the roll of club artist, displayed a cartoon of each member accompanied by a very cleverly related story of each picture.

Miss Elma Latham followed with the club paper and proved herself to be adept in the editorial line.

At the conclusion of this mental feast, the hostess served a luncheon that appealed to the artistic sense as well as to the appetite.

After a delightful social hour, the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Brower in July.

SECRETARY.

Bethlehem Club Entertained.

The Bethlehem Good Housekeepers' Club met June 19th at the home of Mrs. Snow.

All the members were present except Mrs. Hodge, and associate members, Misses Isabelle Hutchison and Emily Johnson.

Mrs. Finnell, of Warrenton, was the guest of the club.

The meeting was opened by Miss Pearl Snow, daughter of the hostess, with a beautiful recitation of "Mischievous Daisy."

Roll call followed, each member responding with a quotation from Lowell.

After the conclusion of the business, an hour was spent in readings and recitations from Lowell, after which all adjourned to the dining room, where a most delightful lunch was served by our charming hostess.

The table decorations were dainty and lovely—fully carrying out the colors and flower of the club.

After a rising vote of thanks, we repaired to our several homes, feeling that the remembrance of the evening would be as an oasis in life's journey.

"Flowers and Their Culture" Discussed.

The Fairview Good Housekeeping Club was to have met on Friday, June 18, but owing to the interest which the members had in the closing of the graded schools the meeting was postponed until June 25.

The meeting held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Cornwell was opened by a roll call which showed that most all were present.

The topic for discussion was then announced, "Flowers and Their Culture. The culture of roses, dahlias, etc., was entered into and also the subject of Bordeaux spray mixture.

At the close of this talk Master Simon, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornwell, presented to each guest a pretty calendar—just by coincidence it read "Among the Flowers."

Refreshments following the club's color—the pink carnation—were pleasantly served by Mrs. Cornwell and her little son and daughter.

SECRETARY.

Are Any of Your Cows Fooling You?

We should test our cows so that we will not fool ourselves. We sometimes form a liking for a cow because of what she looks to be doing rather than because of her ability to do.

The testing of cows has often proved a favorite to be a star boarder.

We should test our cows to find which is best; that is, which one can produce the most butter fat or milk, or both, within a year or from year to year.

Test to find which cow can produce a pound of butter fat or a hundred pounds of milk most economically. With the price of Commercial feeds sky high we must look close to the ability of the cow that consumes it by keeping close watch of the feed consumed and the amount of milk or butter fat produced.

We often find that the largest milker is not always the most economical producer. Bulletin of Virginia Department of Agriculture.

WOODS COST $25,000,000.

Iowa's woods cause farmers a loss of not less than $25,000,000 a year, according to a bulletin on weeds just put out by the agricultural extension department at Iowa State College.

"This loss," says Dr. L. H. Pammel, author of the bulletin, "could be avoided in large part if more thorough steps were taken with weeds."

He says: "Weeds are harmful in a good many ways. They consume plant food that should go to the agricultural crop. They take the moisture so essential for a crop, especially in a dry year. Weeds like the morning glory, pull down a crop like corn, wheat or oats. Many of them harbor bad insects."—Ames (Iowa) Dispatch.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, G. W. Rosenberger, who departed this life one year ago to-day, June 21, 1914.

Circuit Court for Prince William county to-wit: June term, 1915. John Phillips and Shelton Phillips

W. M. Jordan, as executor of Richard Phillips, and as trustee under the will of Mrs. J. A. Reid, John A. Reid and the heirs and distributees of James Phillips, deceased.

The object of this suit is to have construed the will of Richard L. Phillips, and the legacies to Mrs. J. A. Reid and to John A. Reid as well as the residuary legacy described in the last disposing clause of the said will, declared void.

And that the said legacies may be declared to be the property of the distributees of the said Richard L. Phillips, Jr.; and that the said W. M. Jordan, as such executor, may be required to administer upon the estate of the said Richard L. Phillips, Jr., under the direction of this court; that the legacy of two hundred ($200) dollars, described in the first disposing clause of the said will, may be decreed to the complainant, John Phillips; and that the legacy of one hundred ($100) dollars, described in the following clause "to the widow and children of my deceased brother John, one hundred ($100) dollars, if they be living," may be decreed to the complainant, John Phillips, and that proper counsel fees may be allowed the complainants out of the funds belonging to the distributees of the said Richard L. Phillips, Jr.; and that for such other further and general relief, as the equities of their cause may require. It appearing by affidavit that the names of the heirs and distributees of James Phillips are unknown, and that they are not residents of the state of Virginia, it is hereby ordered that the said heirs and distributees of James Phillips appear within fifteen days after the publication of this notice in the clerk's office of our said court and do what is necessary to protect their interests.

"SWAT" THE ROOSTER

"Swat" the rooster. The summer season is coming on and with it the question of the quality of summer eggs. "Swat" the rooster campaigns have done more than any one thing to improve the quality of summer eggs. "Swat" the rooster and sell infertile eggs is the right thing to do. The producer gets more for his eggs, the dealer can afford to handle them with less per cent profit, and the consumer will have better eggs, which will increase the demand.

All great campaigns to benefit humanity have some negative results, because of some people taking advantage of the situation for selfish motives. One of the undesirable effects is that both producer and dealer think because an egg is infertile that it will keep indefinitely under all conditions, and, therefore, treat it that way. The infertile eggs should be handled just as carefully and marketed just as often as the fertile eggs. Then the consumer gets the better eggs.—American Farming.

Tribute from a Former Teacher.

Having been a teacher in the public schools of Prince William county when Dr. Clarkson was superintendent, I feel that I express the sentiment of all his teachers when I say that in his death we have lost a true and noble friend. Many of us can look back to the times when we went to him for advice and encouragement, which he always unstintingly gave.

The interest he manifested in the teachers and his appreciation of their work was so great, it seems but fitting that they should perpetuate the memory of their beloved friend and co-worker by raising a fund to be known as the Clarkson Memorial Fund, it to be used for the purpose of educating a young woman from Prince William county.
