AIR FIGHTING AND THE MECHANIC

Accounts of aerial operations have been so common a feature of the daily war reports that the thought of combat in the air has almost lost its novelty. News of the great Zeppelin raid over England, however, and, more particularly, the story that forty-eight aeroplanes were shot down on the western front within twenty-four hours, stimulate interest in aerial warfare and in the manner in which it is waged.

So far as may be learned from official reports, the losses to Germany by destruction of her giant Zeppelins have outweighed the damage inflicted by them. So, apart from the question of humanity involved in the slaughter of noncombatants, the use of Zeppelins in harrying England seems not to be justified. The aeroplanes, on the other hand, have been proved to be of incalculable value, both as scouts and as fighting machines, and their operators in all the armies seem to be imbued with a spirit of good sportsmanship, as well as with courage in a high degree.

It seems, also, that by far the greater part of the credit for successful air fighting belongs to the pilot, rather than to his observer—when he has one—who aims and fires the arms with which the craft is equipped. For victory goes not to the best shot, but to the best maneuverer. The ordinary war biplane is so equipped that it can fire in almost every direction, except below and behind it. Therefore, when an air fight is in progress, both machines constantly jockey for such a position, which not only gives momentary safety from attack, but the best opportunity for effective shooting. This is so well recognized that when an enemy machine is brought down, it is the pilot to whom the feat is credited. Thus, in aerial warfare at least, neither the man behind the gun nor the commanding officer gains glory, but the man responsible for many more victories than are recorded in his book—the mechanic. Times-Dispatch.

CAMPAIGN OF HUMBUG

Forget, slur over or belittle the great and fruitful acts of Mr. Wilson's administration at home, assail his foreign policies without giving any practicable substitute, throw about adjectives and nouns, harp on the superiority of the Republicans, wipe out a splendid record and write a series of Republican "ifs" in its place—that is the Republican campaign. "Great is humbug, and it will prevail," is the Republican motto. Even the eleventh-hour issue, the Adamson eight-hour law, is humbug. The majority of the House Republicans who dared to vote on it voted for it, and, as Mr. Olney points out, a single filibustering Republican Senator could have blocked its passage. And Mr. Hughes is trying to make an issue of it, having taken good pains not to protest against it when it was before Congress. "A pettier and more ignoble game of politics was never conceived," in Mr. Olney's estimation. A suitable addendum to a canvass of humbug and nothing but humbug.—New York Times.

DANCING REFORM IN ORDER

No clear-eyed and unprejudiced observer of the contemporary social dances has failed to recognize the urgent need of reform in the direction of grace and dignity. Surely the time has come for athletic youths to stop propelling young women around or across the ballrooms as if they were wheelbarrows or pushcarts. There is authority for the belief that the women are getting tired of being treated in that way, yet in nearly all the approved dances of the summer that backward propulsion of the lady by her partner has been the characteristic movement. The dancing masters in convention assembled have expressed an earnest desire to reform the social dance, but there is not much encouragement in the names of some of the new dances and the published descriptions of their movements. The jitney bus, the corkscrew glide and walking the dog seem to be mere variants of the popular dances that have prevailed since the one-step came to mark an epoch in the history of dancing and to enable those to dance who had never danced before.

COMMERCE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

Our commerce with South America is growing, but it shows some surprising fluctuations with the different countries. Naturally South American trade with the United States has increased, while that with Germany has been practically cut off. Recently we have been exporting to South America just twice as much as we did in the same periods last year. Brazilian trade has shown the most extraordinary development. In the first six months of this year her total trade was almost equal to the whole of 1914, and it grows better each month. On the other hand, there has been a decided falling off in the exports of Argentina, though a slight increase is shown in imports. Chilean commerce is improving, especially since the reopening of the Panama Canal, and that of Peru is better, although internal financial disorders are a disturbing factor in international trade. But a survey of two years shows that all of the South American nations have been cleaning house and depending more and more on their own energies and less upon those of foreign nations. Money is being borrowed in this country to refund national debts and to conduct important enterprises. When it is remembered that exactly two years ago South America seemed in the depths of despair, the present situation is highly encouraging. The war has not been an unmixed evil for South Americans. They have learned to rely much more upon themselves, and have also learned that in the United States they find their best customers and the best prospects for future development. With a reduction in ocean freight rates, commerce is expected to develop rapidly between the two continents of the Western Hemisphere.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"YOU-ALL"

When a newspaper, which for the purposes of this observation may be referred to as foreign, displays so intimate a knowledge of the shadings, the delicate nuances, of the Southern language as was manifested the other day by the New York Times, the incident must excite congratulatory comment, if only to encourage further research among those unlearned in our flexible tongue.

Though, like every other outlander publication, the Times has frequently sinned in quoting us as using that excellent pronoun "you all" in the singular number, it now confesses its error and, in an article that must prove informative, deplores the lack of a word of precisely similar meaning in any of the stiff and incomplete dialects common in the countries north of the Mason and Dixon line. For the benefit of those generally known by us as Northerners, the Times explains what is clear as day even to the youngest children of all the tribes in the South: that "you-all" is a plural pronoun, and is never employed in speaking to an individual, unless it is meant to include all his family, his friends, his fellow-countrymen or his clan.

Under the guidance of the philologistic Times, there is reason to hope that the Southern-dialect anecdotes, now manufactured in large quantities in the North, will in time be couched in phraseology more nearly imitative of the flowing beauty and exact precision of the Southern tongue.—Times-Dispatch.

UNIVERSAL TRAINING POSSIBLE

When such a man as Frank A. Vanderlip, of New York, says, "I once thought you could count universal military service as an economic waste. I feel confident, in the light of events of the last two years, that it is not only a military necessity of superlative importance, but that our national life would draw a unity which could be obtained in no other way," it is time for everybody to begin to think more seriously about giving all young Americans military training. It may be true that it will be many a long year before Americans generally will favor it, because of the fear that it would be on the order of the much-dreaded militarism of the Teutonic variety, but since Mr. Vanderlip has been converted from opposition to it, evidently there is at least a possibility of its being adopted soon or late as one American result of the great European war.—Savannah News.

PROFITS FROM PEANUTS

In the decade 1899-1909 the peanut acreage in the United States increased 68 per cent, the yield increased from 11,964,000 bushels to 19,415,000, and the value of the crop from $7,270,000 to $18,271,000. It is estimated the output for 1915 will be considerably larger than for 1909. These figures attest the development of an industry the beginnings of which were almost ludicrously trivial. "Peanut" has been a synonym for "paltry." But the peanut and its byproducts, now highly valued for their food properties, bid fair to become more and more commercially important.—Atlanta Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Yates, Miss Ruth Fisher and Mr. Roy Bauserman left recently on an automobile trip through the Valley of Virginia. They are visiting at Penn Laird, Rockingham county, and will attend the fair at Harrisonburg. PORTRAIT ARTIST COMING On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week Manassas is to be favored with a visit from an up-to-date portrait and landscape artist. The Virginia Photo Concern, of Warrenton, Va., announces that they will be represented here by Mr. Roy D. Goodrich, who was formerly connected with a studio of reputation in Washington, D. C. The occasion of this visit will afford an excellent opportunity for any who desire high class portraiture made at their own homes. It is no longer necessary to journey to the artist's studio. The most convenient and most up-to-date, as well as the most artistic and satisfactory way, is to have your portraits made in your own home. Mr. Goodrich will also be prepared to take views of residences, interiors, and animal photographs—in fact, almost anything in modern photography. Those interested are invited to arrange an appointment with Mr. Cassel, a very pleasing and hustling young man, who is sent in advance of the artist, and who has charge of his engagements. Your Wife Should have a bank account and pay her bills by check. It's the modern, business-like, economical way. It tends toward careful management, gives a better idea of the relation of income to outgo, provides a receipt for each payment, as well as a record of date, amount, etc. And it often leads to the creation of a substantial reserve fund with which to realize a fond ambition or meet an emergency. The lady of the house is invited to call and learn how easily she may open an account in this strong bank, and the conveniences which we place at her command absolutely without charge. The Dixie Theatre SHOWING THE BEST THERE IS IN MOTION PICTURES Showing Paramount Pictures Tuesday, Thursday, Friday. Fox Pictures Monday, Wednesday, Saturday. Matinee on Saturday at 3:15

MONDAY "THE THIEF," with Dorothy Donnelly, Fox picture. Dorothy Donnelly, creator of the title part in "Madame X" and America's favorite young tragedian, is peculiarly fitted both by nature and temperament to play the difficult leading role in "The Thief." The gowns worn by Miss Donnelly in this play are worth more than five thousand dollars.

TUESDAY "TO HAVE AND TO HOLD," with Mae Murray, Paramount picture. One of the most widely read novels, "To Have and To Hold," by Mary Johnston, is here related in photoplay form with Mae Murray, who in it makes her first screen appearance. Wallace Reid, a favorite of the screen, will appear in Miss Murray's support.

WEDNESDAY "SAMSON," with William Farnum, Fox picture. A play of tremendous force and sustained dramatic action, with climax following climax in startling succession. Roused to wrath by the falseness of his friends and by the fact that the wife he worships spurns his devotion this modern Samson rises triumphant and sets his face towards a new beginning.

THURSDAY "FOR THE DEFENSE," with Fannie Ward, Paramount picture. No star of the legitimate stage has achieved in so short a time the success that has come to Fannie Ward. This is Miss Ward's fourth appearance in pictures. She will be well remembered in "The Cheat" and "Tennessee's Pardner." This is a story of great suspense from beginning to end.

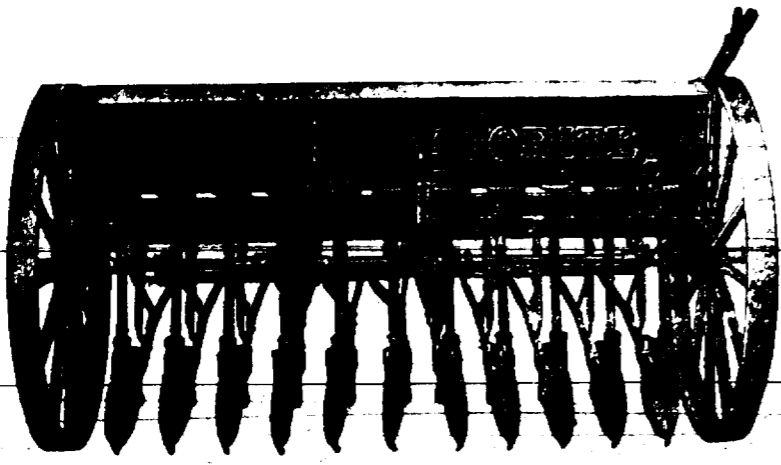

FRIDAY "THE LOST BRIDEGROOM," with John Barrymore, Paramount picture. This picture is one of the most laughable and yet thrilling stories possible to conceive. The role of a young society favorite who is struck on the head, thereby losing his memory, and who becomes a thief and tries to rob the house of his fiancée, gives him opportunity for unlimited expression of his comic and dramatic abilities.

The Farmers' Favorite Grain Drill

The "Farmers' Favorite Grain Drill" has the "plowfur" disc furrow opener, which spreads the grain in a wide trench—seed is wider apart and has more room to grow, which means a stand. The "plowfur" will not clog up bearing, can always be adjusted with one set screw, will be replaced free of charge during life of drill and one oiling lasts a season. Double run grain feed, which sows anything from alfalfa to corn.

"Wizard" fertilizer force feed, sows from 10 to 1480 pounds per acre. Grass seed can be sown in front, rear or through the tubes.

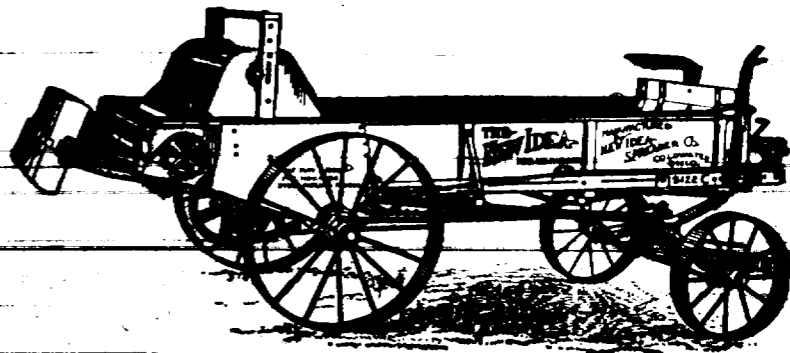

The De Laval Separator

When we say "De Laval" you know that means the separator that gets all the cream, the one that a woman can turn, the one with a low repair upkeep. We have sold twenty-six De Laval Separators and we have three months yet to finish this year.

$1720 Worth of Separators in Nine Months is proof conclusive that our farmers know what they want and know where to get it. We have replaced twelve competitive makes of separators by letting the users judge for themselves.

The New Idea Manure Spreader

The "New Idea Manure Spreader" increases your profit by saving you $75 on every 100 loads of manure you spread. A thin, even coat over your land not smothering out your crop as done by hand methods. It has a tight bottom that saves your liquid manure, a distributor that saves you a half-mile driving on every acre of ground you spread.

Has no clutches, worm or bevel gears to wear out. Over 40 of these spreaders in use here, many of them from five to eight years and our repair sales less than $3.00, and that for chain links only.

Fairbanks - Morse Oil Engine

A Fairbanks-Morse Oil Engine belted to your cutter, wood saw, pump and feed mill is the cheapest and best hired man you ever had. Mr. W. T. Thomasson, who purchased a 10-h. p. oil engine, tells us that he used only one gallon of kerosene oil per hour while filling his silos.

Only 9 1/2c Per Hour for Fuel

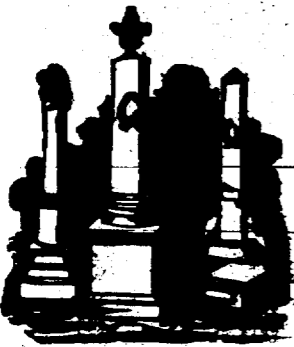

It uses no batteries, no water pump, no packing around igniter to blow out, all bushings are renewable and wear easily taken up.

We have just received a 6-h. p.—the greatest engine value the world has ever seen. Price, $125.00.

NEW LAW UNREASONABLE

Writer Says That Statute Is An Injustice to the Small Town Butcher.

is in a position to grow and distribute its supply of meat and bread, without the levying of a dozen tolls by big corporations.

If we are wise we will insist on feeding ourselves, because we can do it cheaper and better.

I have been through Mr. Conner's slaughter house at Manassas and consider it fully up to the average for county seats, both in construction and management. I have also been through stock yards and abattoirs of Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, and even in these big plants, the would-be critic may find just grounds for complaint.

The local butcher has a very important, helpful, and at the same time, difficult place to fill. It is infinitely easier to criticize than to improve on it yourself. I certainly do not indorse the doctrine that we turn over this matter to the big city packer, or allow squeamish notions about incidents essential to slaughter of domestic animals, or arbitrary and unnecessary demands from government officials to break up the business of small dealers. We suggest that the presidents of the Farmer's Institute and Business League, each appoint a committee to see to it that no unreasonable action is taken. Men interested in any animal industry should consider the extreme hazard introduced into every phase of this business, when the idea creeps in that the big business must be fattened, even if the local butchers go hang!

Grave dangers attend the concentration of a nation's food supply in the hands of a few men and at points not always, or readily accessible. Redistribution may be upset without warning by any one of many causes. Consider the meat situation when railroad strike was imminent. Washington and other cities only had a day or two's supply on hand. But for Wilson, thousands of people would be suffering now for meat and bread.

Even in times of peace, the tendency to allow packers a controlling influence in our stock yards, abattoirs and markets, has proved to be a constant menace to the public health and welfare. Right in Chicago, where the Federal Government maintains its most expert and complete system of inspection, the foot and mouth, and other epidemics, have passed through and out, right under these veterinarians' noses, and spread over the country. Some very ugly charges have been in circulation (yet undenied) about collusion between the big packers and this same set of inspectors, and tons of meat from Argentina carry that "U. S.," which never had a pretense of inspection. Not content with an arbitrary influence on trade in fat stock, the packers, through their allies—the middle men—now gather and re-sell from two or three centers, the bulk of feeders, thus thinning the thin end for both the producer and the feeder.

I do not mean to convey the idea there should be no inspection over the slaughter and sale of meat, and meat making animals; rather it should be made more thorough and dependable. When this is done, it will be found that much iniquity has been cloaked at the big yards by connivance between big business and our sanitary (?) experts.

Some will recall a statement made by a dairy and food commissioner during an institute meeting. A poor man had a dairy near Richmond which did not meet specifications in cement floor, stanchions or some other so called sanitation. His permit was recalled. He succeeded, after much trouble, time, and expense in having a practical test made of his milk, which proved to be much more wholesome than milk coming from the most perfectly equipped dairy in the state. The large plant was run by wealthy men, with every convenience. They had to hire a lot of help and take most anybody they could get. Investigation showed they were spreading a malignant disease. In fact, this public official stated positively in the courthouse that the very best milk coming into Richmond right then, was made by a dairy scored too low under a strict score card system, to be admitted at all. He had a shabby outfit, but a healthy family.

Meat eaters should bear in mind the constant deterioration, how after a animal leaves the farm and is killed while in incipient stage. Injury from goring and bruises occur en route. Often they refuse to eat or drink, causing fevered conditions. That our health and prosperity both lie in the direction of home production and consumption, must be admitted. Freight rates are eliminated both ways. Loss by drift and injury in transit is avoided. Spread of disease is a menace. If these are not sufficient reasons for consideration, the several profits incident to this very much involved system may call a halt, by touching the local pocket book. The more economic and efficient method devised by Moses would not be so far wrong today.

Putting a local enterprise of this sort out of business invariably results in injury to the small farmer, who thus depends on a buyer for one or two head. Mark my words, the time will come when people will rise in their wrath and demand just consideration. Butchering is being abandoned all over the country. I have an uncle who once salted down several thousand hogs every winter, being dubbed "the baconest man in all Grainger." He attributes the abandonment of his business to the over rigid requirements, the plant now being in the hands of a bigger concern. In some lines, large factories and mills are more efficient, but we need and want to keep our local meat men. Authorities need not be afraid that many diseased animals will be palmed off on the village townspeople, even if the butcher were so unscrupulous—trust inquisitive neighbors to report any thing wrong.

NOT UNLIKE THE RED CROSS

Mr. Wilson Gives Valuable Information for People Here to Heed.

Mr. Wilson in a statement said the new medicine, Tanlac, was not unlike the red cross in relieving suffering. It has helped thousands and will help others who give it a trial.

Upon being interviewed at his home at 206 East 25th Street, Norfolk, Va., Mr. W. T. Wilson said: "I had a constant pain in my chest and a pain that started in my left shoulder and continued through my body down the left side and ending in my hip. I saw Tanlac recommended in the papers and after trying it the pains have gone and I have not been troubled with them since. I am sleeping much better and my general health is much improved. Tanlac have proven a wonderful remedy and I hope that everyone who needs relief will try it."

Those who turn away from the advice told in this paper are doing very unwisely for surely when thousands of people recommend it to you there must be merit. Go today to Dowell's Pharmacy, Manassas, Va., and get a bottle and at least give it a trial. Adv.
