STATE FARMERS TO MEET

Information for Prince William Grangers Who Desire to Attend.

(C. A. Montgomery, County Agent)

The Virginia State Farmers' Institute—August 15, 16 and 17—is for all farm men and women who will attend. No one is ever too old to learn, and some say that there is something to be learned upon the farm every day in the year. The Institute is being especially adapted for farmers. Experts will be on the program to give methods of handling stock, seed growing and selection, the use of lime, the preparation of meals, conservation of foodstuffs, and equipment of the home. Everyone who attends will be expected to ask questions and participate in the discussions. A most interesting program is prepared for both men and women. The first address will be by the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, at 10 o'clock on the morning of August 15. This meeting is to be held at Blacksburg at the State Agricultural College, and anyone attending will have the opportunity to visit all parts of the School and Experiment Station grounds. The expense will be low. Reduced railroad fare has been promised. Meals will be served in the college dining hall to visitors for $1.25 per day. The dormitories will be open, furnishing rooms, mattresses and cots free; and will be quite comfortable to those who take their own sheets, pillows, towels and necessary toilet articles.

Some counties have reported already, one hundred or more farmers who expect to attend this meeting. How many will go from Prince William? Let me know at once if you expect to go so that I may have a room reserved for you.

A FEW FACTS—NOT FANCIES

JOHN P. KERLIN

As Mr. C. J. Meetze has made a number of statements, not in accord with the facts, with reference to the action of the democratic committee, the public may be interested in knowing the truth.

In the first place, Mr. Meetze was given a full hearing before the democratic committee June 28, at which time the following eighteen committeemen were present, and participated in the meeting:

- Thos. H. Lion, J. P. Leachman, A. A. Hooff, W. N. Lipscomb, M. G. White, O. C. Hutchison, J. P. Kerlin, J. P. Manuel, J. M. Keys, B. W. Storke, S. R. Lowe, C. A. Barbee, William Crow, L. E. Merchant, S. T. Cornwell, W. H. Keys, Dr. F. W. Hornbaker and Tyson Janney.

To suggest that all, or even a majority of these men lent themselves to a fraudulent scheme is an absurdity.

Mr. Meetze states in the Democrat of July 12: "My attorney, Hon. G. L. Browning, of Orange, and Mr. Bryan Gordon, of Manassas, who were permitted to represent me, were not permitted to be heard, although a motion by Hon. Thos. H. Lion to that effect was made."

Had Mr. Meetze conferred with either Mr. Lion, who he says offered the resolution, or with Mr. Gordon, who he says was his attorney, surely he would not have made this remarkable statement. No such motion was made by Mr. Lion, or any one else. It was at no time intimated that Mr. Meetze had counsel, or that either Mr. Browning or Mr. Gordon desired to address the committee, or that either of them had any business before the committee.

While Mr. Janney was reading the primary law to the committee, Mr. Lion stated that Mr. Hutchison, (referring to Robert A. Hutchison) was familiar with the election law, and he suggested that he be asked to read the law to the committee; that Mr. Browning, who was a member of the Legislature and a lawyer, was present, and he then offered a resolution asking that Messrs. Hutchison and Browning be asked to give the committee the benefit of their views on the primary election law. This resolution was lost.

But at no time was it intimated that either of them desired to address the committee, or had any business before the committee.

But Mr. Meetze himself desired to be heard, and was heard fully. Mr. Meetze also criticizes the legality and regularity of the action of the committee in calling a primary: First, because he claims only five committeemen were present at the meeting when the primary was ordered; and second, because he claims the notice in the papers of this action of the committee was insufficient.

Both of these matters were fully thrashed out before the committee of eighteen, July 26, when Mr. Meetze's complaint was fully heard; and it was ascertained that this action was strictly in accord with precedent, and with the ruling of former committees.

It was further ascertained that two years ago, Mr. C. J. Meetze was declared the nominee under the same circumstances under which Mr. C. A. Sinclair was declared the nominee this year.

At a meeting, held in the office of C. J. Meetze, May 29, 1915, (which was less than a week before the lists closed), a primary was ordered by a committee, presided over by Thos. H. Lion, chairman, and consisting of the following nine members:

- Thos. H. Lion, J. P. Leachman, D. J. Arrington, O. C. Hutchison, W. N. Lipscomb, J. M. Hooe, M. C. Holmes, S. T. Cornwell and C. A. Barbee.

The action of the committee was published in the Democrat the following Thursday, and in THE JOURNAL the next day, which was the very day the lists closed.

Yet when Mr. Meetze was declared the nominee under these circumstances, he made no complaint. Nine committeemen could order a primary then. One day's notice in the paper was ample then.

But when this precedent is followed, and another becomes the nominee, the committee becomes the object of his attack.

Mr. Meetze cannot complain of lack of notice, as he admitted to the committee of eighteen that one of the committeemen notified him of the action in calling a primary several days before the lists closed. In fact, he himself says he at once began to take steps to qualify in this very primary, whose regularity he now attacks.

It requires no lawyer, or judge, or court, or newspaper or schoolmaster to count sixty. Mr. Meetze may argue till the price of ink and paper becomes prohibitive, but he can never convince intelligent readers that fifty-nine makes sixty. From June 9, the day on which he says he tendered his papers, until August 7, the date fixed by law for the primary, is fifty-nine days.

In fact, Mr. Meetze admitted in the letter which he wrote the county chairman when he sent him his papers that he knew he was a day late, but said he overlooked the date. And he admitted to the committee of eighteen that he was a day late.

The committee did not fix the date; but the law fixes the date of the primary; therefore, as soon as the committee declared for a primary under the state law, every one had notice of the date.

Mr. Meetze urges that he had announced his candidacy in the paper, and that should have saved him.

In the first place, he did not announce his candidacy for the democratic nomination; nor did he announce his candidacy subject to the action of any primary, or of the party.

In the second place, Mr. Meetze knows that the law provides expressly that a candidate in a primary shall pay his fee to the treasurer of the county, before he files his declaration of candidacy; and it further provides that a receipt for such payment shall accompany and be attached to the declaration of candidacy; otherwise the same shall not be received or filed.

Now he admits he did not pay his fee to the treasurer till June 9,—a day too late. So no declaration, no matter where filed or offered, could legally be received.

He could file no declaration till his fee was paid. His fee was paid one day too late. But it was not the business of the county treasurer to call on him, and ask him to pay this fee. Yet this was the first thing he had to do.

Not only it was not the business of any member of the committee to call him up, and ask him to file his papers; but his papers could not have been received, as he had no treasurer's receipt.

Mr. Meetze asked the committee to bear his cause. He wrote to each member of the committee beforehand, so far as he knew their names. He was given a full hearing. His cause was argued ably by Mr. Thos. H. Lion, a member of the committee.

But, as Mr. Lion very forcibly said in his argument: Each one should regard himself bound by the decision of the committee. As he expressed it: It was a family matter, and no matter how the committee might decide, each one must stand by and support the nominee, whoever he might be.

That committee after giving Mr. Meetze the fullest hearing, decided against him. And it decided against him, on the law which Mr. Meetze helped to make. This committee of eighteen men from all parts of the county, after argument lasting perhaps for hours, participated in by Mr. Meetze himself, decided that under the law, Mr. C. A. Sinclair was the nominee of the democratic party. Adv.

SIGNALMAN IS INJURED

Railway Truck Jumps Track—Wounded Man Carried to Alexandria.

C. M. Foster, twenty-two years old, assistant signal maintainer for the Southern Railway, was seriously injured about the head Saturday at the thirty-first mile post, between Blooms and Manassas. It is supposed that his motor truck jumped the track. He left Manassas alone on the car about one o'clock and was found half and hour later walking about in a dazed condition.

His wounds were dressed by Dr. W. F. Merchant and he was taken to Alexandria Hospital for further treatment. His condition is said to be favorable.

Mr. Foster came here from Remington and has been boarding at the home of Mrs. Margaret Lewis.

ADVISES PARTY CHAIRMAN

Mr. James Says Voters in Primary Election Assume Certain Obligations.

The following letters will be read with interest by persons who contemplate voting in the democratic primary on August 7:

Manassas, Va., July 19, 1917. Hon. Rorer A. James, State Democratic Chairman, Danville, Va.

My Dear Mr. James:

I want you as Chairman of the State Democratic Committee to advise me as Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for Prince William county on a matter of party interest.

Our county democratic committee has met and declared Mr. S. the regular democratic nominee for the House of Delegates of Prince William county.

Mr. M. is opposing the said democratic nominee in the November election.

Do parties voting in the democratic primary of August 7, 1917, under the primary law, obligate or pledge themselves to support in the November election all of the parties nominated in said primary including Mr. S., the party declared the regular nominee for the House of Delegates by the said county committee?

And can a person who has announced himself a supporter of Mr. M. vote in the said primary? I shall greatly appreciate a prompt reply.

Yours truly, (Signed) W. N. LIPSCOMB, Chairman Democratic Committee Prince William County.

Mr. James's Answer to Mr. Lipscomb.

Danville, Va., July 21, 1917. W. N. Lipscomb, Esq., County Democratic Chairman, Manassas, Va.

Dear Sir:

Your inquiry of 19th inst. received.

I beg to say that every one voting in the democratic primary of August 7th proximo assumes an obligation to vote for all the democratic nominees in the November election, whether said nominees were duly declared such by the party authorities in advance or were voted for in the primary. Certainly no one should vote in a democratic primary who reserves the right, tacitly or expressly, to vote against a nominee of the party in the following election.

The party has not deemed it necessary to impugn the honesty or good faith of a voter participating in its primary by requiring him to subscribe to an expressed pledge, which makes the obligation, in my opinion, more binding.

Yours very sincerely, (Signed) RORER A. JAMES, State Democratic Chairman.

TOWN BUYS NEW PUMP

Will Reach Depth of 450 Feet and Improve Water Supply.

At a called meeting of the Town Council Tuesday morning the town purchased the following supplies for the municipal pump, the expenditures aggregating $311.51: Double action brass cylinder, 450 feet of 4-inch galvanized steel pipe, plugged and reamed; 450 feet of heavy hollow rods of suitable length for the pipe; quantity of steel guide couplings for rod, length of galvanized steel pipe and set of leathers for cylinder.

When the new equipment is installed the pump will reach the water at a depth of 450 feet instead of the present depth of 100 feet, which is expected to give the town a better water supply.

The council authorized the purchase of 25 feet of land east of the cemetery from Mr. George W. Hixson—less than a quarter of an acre—at the rate of $400 per acre and on the same terms on which the cemetery was bought.

The proposed extension of the sewer on Quarry street was referred to the public utilities committee.

The Next Moves In the Draft Of Uncle Sam's Big New Army

Many Anxious to Get to France. One Bet That He Would Be Chosen First and Won

IN one of the large newspaper offices of the country a linotypier was hammering out the draft numbers on the keyboard in front of him. No. 11 appeared on his "copy." He kept on tapping the keys. keeping track of a world's series game on a bulletin board. Most persons, particularly those whose low numbers in the drawing made the call for their examination for the draft a certainty, behaved soberly.

Here and there was a young patriot so anxious to get to France for a whack at the foe that he laughed exultantly and even bragged about his number being among the earliest drawn. There is even one record instance of a man who wanted so to be conscripted and was so sure he would be that he had made a bet that his number would be the first one out of the globe at Washington. With the odds 10,000 to 1 against him he won. His number was 258. He threw up his hat and went home to break the good news to his father. This man, who may fairly be called as happy as any in New York today, has not a Yankee name. He is Nicola Scotelario, a medical student, twenty-two years old.

The lottery was held in the public hearing room of the senate office building, with war department officials in charge of the actual drawing and with members of the senate and house military affairs committee as witnesses. Through the day there was a small crowd of spectators, but altogether probably less than a thousand persons saw any part of the process.

To Call 1,374,000 At Once.

As a result of the drawing every registered man is given a definite place in the liability for service list. Already 687,000 have been ordered to the colors to fill to war strength the regular army and national guard and to constitute the first increment of the national army. To secure the total, 1,374,000 men will be called for examination within a few weeks, officials estimating that two registrants must be called for every soldier accepted. These 1,374,000 will be taken from the head of the liability list, every local district furnishing a fixed quota.

Many Dramatic Incidents.

There were many intimate and dramatic episodes in the drawing. In the first place, Representatives Dent, Gordon, Nichols, Garrett and Meritt, members of the military affairs committee, who witnessed the first stages of the the table, and his pencil was busy again on his pad of paper in a fraction of a second.

The revised system of drawing and the fact that the first numbers drawn appeared to run to the highest numbers left the first call in doubt up until a late hour. The higher numbers drew only a few men into the service, while the lower numbers brought in at least 4,500. By 8 o'clock, however, there was no longer doubt that the number then being drawn would not be included in the first levy, and those keeping track of the tally sheets knew about where the young men in whom they were interested stood in the draft.

No. 1 Causes Interest.

There was a great deal of interest over No. 1 and when it would come out of the jar in the gamble for military service for flag and country. It was the four thousand two hundred and sixty-ninth number drawn, and it is probable that none of the No. 1's—a card held in every one of the 4,501 districts of the country—will be called in the first draft.

Some Interesting Incidents.

"Ah, well, it's the first that comes first and it's the last that comes last," declared Walter J. Hitchins, a canny Scotsman, twenty-nine, of Brooklyn, when he learned his number was number one. Hitchins is the first of the draft in Brooklyn.

"I'm willing to do me bit," Hitchins went on to say, but he explained he might have trouble because of his wife and three-year-old child whom he declared he will first have to look after. "Now, I won't claim exemption because of my being here from England but four years, but I'll ha' to go R for me wife and baby's sakes."

These to be possible incidents from the mother of Joseph B. Reeb of Brooklyn, whose name was first also. She said: "My boy Joseph is just twenty-two years old, but he is ready to go. I've kept him home as long as I could because his older brother, John, is already in the guard, a member of the Seventh regiment.

"If you believe me, he is the real apple of my eye."

One Blank Discovered.

When the ten thousand and fourth draft capsule was drawn it was found service. The possibility of exemptions will necessitate the examination of two or three times as many men as are needed.

The war department's bulletin for the information of registrants says: As soon as quotas are assigned to each state and each board, each board will call upon persons whose cards are in its jurisdiction instructing them to present themselves for examination. This call will be posted at the office of the local board and the papers will be requested to print it. A notice will also be mailed to you, but the posting of the list at the office of the board will be deemed sufficient notice to charge you with the duty of presenting yourself.

The law therefore makes it your duty to inform yourself when you are called. The mailing is for your convenience, but the letter never reaches you you cannot make that an excuse.

Watch the lists at the office of your board and see when you are called for examination. You must report for physical examination on the day named in your call. (a) If you are found physically disqualified the board will give you a certificate which will explain to you what your further duties are.

(b) If you are found physically qualified and file a claim for exemption within seven days after your call you will be given ten days after filing your claim of exemption to file proof in support of your claim of exemption. (c) If you are found physically qualified and file no claim for exemption or if you do not appear for physical examination your name will be posted to the district board as one who was called for military service and was not exempted or discharged.

On the eighth day after call or within two days thereafter copies of the list of persons so posted to the district boards will be given to the press with a request for publication. It will be posted in a place at the office of the local board accessible to the public view, and notice will be mailed to you at the address on your registration card.

Therefore watch the notices posted in the office of the board about ten days after the day you were called and make arrangements for the prompt receipt of mail.

The above instructions from the war department therefore put it up to you.

RED CROSS WAS READY FOR WAR

Forty-four Base Hospital Units Already Organized.

SOME ARE ALREADY ABROAD

Great Size of These Hospitals Can Be Appreciated When It Is Stated That Regulation Buildings In, the Most Compact Form Cover an Area of Eleven Acres.

By LEO ARNSTEIN, Vice Chairman Military Relief Committee, New York Chapter American Red Cross.

TO the general indictment that the American nation was and still is unprepared for war there is one notable exception—the base hospital service of the American Red Cross. When war first broke out in Europe and farsighted men and women saw that this country might ultimately become involved the directors of the Red Cross began to prepare on a large scale for such an emergency. Up and down the land went organizers urging public spirited citizens in cities all over the country to establish units and raise funds for hospital equipment. As this meant in each instance the raising of from $25,000 to $30,000 for something whose usefulness was in the minds of the general public very problematical, the task was no light one.

But the workers persisted. As a result when this country declared war the Red Cross was prepared and has already organized forty-four base hospital units—thirty-nine for the army and five for the navy, which will be ready to be turned over to the government with their equipment as fast as they are asked for. Already seven of these have been sent abroad for the use of the allies, and the balance are ready to go at a day's notice.

The base hospital is housed in a substantial, permanent structure anywhere from twenty-five to a hundred miles away from the firing line. The wounded are taken from the trenches by stretcher bearers and carried to the dressing stations immediately back of the line. Here they receive emergency dressing and attention and are then carried back to the field hospitals in ambulances. From the field hospitals, as soon as possible, they are carried by ambulance and hospital train back to the base hospitals, where they are surrounded by the best hospital equipment known to modern medical and surgical science. Portable hospital buildings have been devised, so constructed that they can be easily packed and shipped and set up quickly.

The great size of a base hospital can be appreciated when it is stated that the regulation buildings, in as compact a form as can be arranged, cover an area 1,000 feet long and 500 feet wide, eleven acres in all. The equipment alone when stored occupies 19,000 cubic feet. The cost of mobilizing a unit with its equipment at Philadelphia recently, aside from transportation, was over $5,000. One base hospital will care for 20,000 men.

The portable kitchen, which feeds 750 persons three times a day, is a new type especially designed for the Red Cross. The portable X-ray outfit is even fitted with a generator to provide its own current, as there is never any certainty as to whether direct or alternating current or any adequate current at all will be found already supplied at the point of destination. Then there is the laundry equipment, complete even to a drying room; fumigating, sterilizing and incinerating plants, a completely equipped operating room, laboratory, etc. There is the light and refrigerating truck, which is a complete unit in itself, not only producing two tons of ice a day, but running a battery of cooling plants. Connected with such base hospitals are three ambulances and a two-ton truck for carrying supplies.

The base hospitals are under the direction of the department of the military relief of the Red Cross until moved into service, when they become a part of the army organization. Forming another very important branch of this department are the ambulance companies. Each company consists of ninety-one men, including five medical officers.

Still another branch of the department of military relief is made up of the hospital units. Each unit is composed of twelve doctors, usually specialists, who may be shifted from point to point wherever the need is greatest.

Aside from this active service in the field, the department maintains a bureau for providing the soldiers with the comforts of life not regularly a part of the government's military supplies, such as extra medical supplies, literature, tobacco and other comforts.

Another important unit is the sanitary training detachment for the methodical teaching of first aid. Groups of men are trained for service with the army, resembling the voluntary aid detachments organized with such success in England.

In short, by its activities in caring for the well being of the soldiers the Red Cross probably doubles the efficiency of the fighting forces.

POULTRY AND EGGS

INSECT POULTRY

Remedy For the Numerous Species of Lice That Infest Fowls.

Of the numerous species of lice in the United States seven are commonly found on chickens, four or five on pigeons, two or three each on geese and ducks, three on turkeys and several each on guinea fowl and peafowl. Lice have a flattened form and are fitted with spines and peculiarly modified legs, which assist them in moving about through the feathers. Certain species which remain on the larger feathers have a very narrow elongated form, which enables them to find protection in the grooves between the barbs of the feathers. Lice are not fitted for sucking blood. They feed on portions of the feathers or on the scales in the skin, but their presence in any considerable numbers is responsible for serious injury.

The Orpington breed is of English origin and is classed as a general purpose fowl. The hens are good layers of large eggs and as table birds they rank with the American breeds. The fowl shown is a Single Comb Buff Orpington male.

The seven different species of lice found on hens are spoken of as body lice, head lice and feather lice, according to the places in which they usually are found, but since the different species intermingle to a considerable extent it is not possible to separate them absolutely on this basis. Usually three or more species are to be found on one fowl.

The head louse is undoubtedly the most injurious species to young chickens. It is a dark gray species, about one-tenth of an inch in length. The body louse is found on the skin of the fowl rather than on the feathers. It is rather large, straw yellow in color with some dark spots, due to food within the digestive tract. It is probably the most injurious species on grown chickens, but it also infests young fowls. The shaft louse is the species spoken of by most writers as "small body louse," a name which does not fit the habits of the species. Normally it occurs along the shaft of the feathers and does not remain on the body of the host for any length of time. It resembles the large body louse somewhat, but is smaller, rather lighter yellow in color and somewhat less spiny. Although this species is probably the most common found on chickens, it is considered of less importance than the large body louse, chiefly because it stays on the feathers the greater part of the time and probably feeds exclusively on the barbs of the feathers and on scales along the shaft. It is not known to occur on young chickens. The wing louse, which is closely related to the head louse, is dark gray and has an elongated body. It is more slender, however, and rather darker in color. Three other species are found more or less commonly on chickens. These are the fowl louse, the large louse and the brown chicken louse.

Among the four species found on turkeys is the common body louse of chickens. The shaft louse of chickens also infests turkeys but probably does not breed on that host. The other two species seem to be native to the turkey, probably existing on this fowl in the wild state. The large turkey louse probably is most abundant. It occurs on the feathers on various parts of the body, especially on the neck and breast. The slender turkey louse is a species of good size, though rather elongated, and resembles in shape the head louse of chickens. Normally neither of these species is excessively abundant, but on crippled or unthrifty turkeys they may cause serious annoyance, and undoubtedly they are injurious to poultry. While considerable numbers of lice are found on domestic geese and ducks, they seldom become sufficiently numerous to cause noticeable injury. Destroying the fowls with sodium bicarbonate will rid them of all lice.

Swat the Rooster. Hens without the presence of the males will lay more eggs, will be better plumaged, moult better, be better content and lay eggs that will infinitely keep better. In fact the latter is the great reason for this campaign against the rooster. For without him eggs will be sterile or infertile. Now, infertile or sterile eggs stand heat much better—in fact, under the influence of any temperature, henhouses, depot platform, freight car en route to corner grocery. Above 90 degrees, if the egg is a fertile egg, the germ is quickened or life started. Later this dies, and there is a spoiled egg.

Fill Your Silo With The PAPEC Ensilage Cutter

Mr. C. H. Robinson, North Franklin, Conn., who operates a 16-in. 2-knife Papec cutter with an 8 H. P. gasoline engine, writes:

"In one case there were 22 men and 2 two-horse teams, and I was without corn about one-third of the time. Another case had a harvester and two extra men and they could not keep me busy. Filled five average size silos in five days. Have had slower wheel running as low as 500 revolutions without a clog."

The fast-cutting and unusual elevating ability on little power makes the Papec economical and popular. That's why more Papecs are sold each year. There is a Papec for your needs.

HAYMARKET

A letter from Mr. Wilbur, who is spending the summer in Otsego and Delaware counties, New York, states that if it were as pleasant in winter in the north as it is in the south he would be tempted to make Davenport, Delaware county, his permanent home.

Speaking of the war, Mr. Wilbur says that he does not hear it discussed as much as he did in the south. He says that there are not many of the enemy nationality there.

Mr. Wilbur will remain in New York until the fall.

Another severe rain storm visited Haymarket Wednesday, but fortunately did no damage.

A hotly contested game of ball was played Saturday afternoon when the Lenah boys came to Haymarket for the return game. In the first inning it looked like they were going to hand defeat to Haymarket for they easily scored three times to Haymarket's one and for about three innings kept the lead of two points, neither side scoring a run.

CATHARPIN

A very interesting meeting of the Catharpin Community League was held on June 22, when the audience was addressed by Dr. Wade C. Payne and Miss Mary Price, of Haymarket, on Red Cross work. Dr. Coleman, of Haymarket, sang. Refreshments were sold and subscriptions were received. The total amount, $18, was presented to the Haymarket branch of the Piedmont Chapter, American Red Cross.

The July meeting, which was held on Friday, was made instructive by addresses by Mrs. Walter Sanders, who spoke on "Food Conservation," and Mrs. R. H. Willis, who spoke on "War Conditions in Europe" and also gave a solo "Dannie Boy."

MRS. SANDERS' REPORT

Mrs. Sanders, who was aided in the canvass of the community by Miss Mildred Smith and Mrs. C. C. Lynn, reported that only four women in the community had refused to sign the food conservation cards. Every housewife seems to be taking greater interest in the preservation of foodstuffs, which means not only a saving of expenditures in our own home life but also a larger food supply for our soldier and sailor boys and the starving nations across the sea.

Mrs. Sanders deserves much credit for her wide interest in public affairs. The writer was much impressed by her reminder that it is just as much a woman's duty to promise to try to be more saving in the food line as it was for our men to register in answer to their country's call.

MEETING NEXT FRIDAY

The president, Miss Mildred Smith, has announced that a special meeting will be held at the school building next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. While the men are welcome, every woman and girl is especially invited to attend. Members of the community are urged to make a special effort to attend and be ready to tell about their methods of canning. Much good can be accomplished by the exchange of ideas, so bring your note book and pencil if you wish.

Mrs. W. L. Sanders has announced that she has nine enthusiastic members in the Junior Agricultural Council of Safety, and that she expects to secure as many more. The children are planting late beans and other vegetables in order to "do their bit."

HELPS THE REST ROOM

The Catharpin league has paid its annual dues for the upkeep of the rest room at Manassas.

Under the supervision of Miss Minnie L. Swart, an Epworth League is being organized at Sudley M. E. Church. Meetings are to be held every Sunday evening, song services beginning at 7:30 and league at 8 o'clock.

Miss Swart has organized a music class at Catharpin for the instruction of pupils of the primary grades.

A large congregation was present Sunday morning at Sodley Church to hear the sermon of the pastor, Rev. C. K. Millican. A temperance lecture will be given Sunday morning by Mrs. Weech.

GOES TO FRANCE

Mr. J. Ray Akers was the guest of his aunts, Mrs. C. L. ...

ing the past week. Mr. Akers is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hill Akers, of Washington, and has been employed for several years in the Post Office Department. He has recently been appointed to a position in the government in France and England and probably has sailed for Europe.

The Misses McCutcheon, of Franklin, Southampton county, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McDonald, at Oakwood.

Mr. Frank W. Brower, son of Dr. and Mrs. Brower, while playing ball recently with a Portland, Me., team, broke his ankle and will have to spend several weeks in a hospital.
