

NEW SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

WELCOMED INTO OFFICE

E. D. Howe, of Catlett, New Hanis Industrial School for Colored Youth.

A special service was held in the assembly hall of the Manassas Industrial School for Colored Youth, on Thursday of last week, when Edw. D. Howe, of Catlett, was inducted as principal of the school.

In spite of the rain and mud a large number of friends gathered at the school to welcome the new principal and the meeting was both impressive and interesting. Of the members of the board of trustees there were present Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard, of New York; Adeline Penn, of Manassas; T. C. Walker, of Gloucester courthouse, and Rev. W. J. Howard, of Washington. The invocation was led by Rev. J. D. Pair, of the Mount Zion Baptist Church, of Warrenton. Hymns and melodies were sung by the school and a solo, with violin obligato, was given by Maude Warfield, a member of the senior class.

It is a well-known fact that T. C. Walker never misses an opportunity to raise a collection. Aided by Rev. F. E. Pree, of Leesburg and Ocoquan, he exhorted the audience until a substantial collection of $85 was in hand. As the recent cold weather has done considerable damage to the water pipes at the school, this is a particularly welcome assistance.

Emma Lee Williams, who has acted as principal this session, made an apt little talk in which she welcomed the new principal to office, and five-minute talks were heard from many of the visiting friends who pledged their active support to the school under the new administration. A number of letters were read from friends who could not be present at the meeting, and a number were received by the president of the board too late to be read. Among the last was a letter from Ella Bailey, of Ocoquan, a sister of the late Jennie Dean, the founder of the school, expressing her great pleasure at the selection of the new principal.

In accepting the position as head of the school Prof. Howe stated that the two great needs of the institution are management and money. He pledged himself to supply the former and appealed to the audience to aid him in securing the latter. He pointed out the educational necessity of a well-ordered plant, stressing the fact that no matter how efficient the management the school cannot be maintained without funds.

He spoke feelingly of his association with Jennie Dean and of their joint efforts in the early days of the school.

G. G. Burlingame visited the school on Saturday to confer with Prof. Howe and the farm manager as to plans for the school farm.

NEWLYWEDS ALSO BARRED

Takes a Bride Five Years to Learn to Care for a House.

Kansas City landlords have sprung a new wrinkle in apartment restrictions. They are barring Mr. and Mrs. Newlyweds from their apartments and placing them in the same class with children, dogs and birds.

One landlord declares that it takes a bride about five years to learn to take care of a house and to learn to unwrap every package that comes from the grocery store, including paper on canned goods, under which bugs, roaches and what-not get into a house. They also drive nails into the walls and tacks into the floors, causing much damage.

Work of Health Service.

From a small beginning, the United States public health service has grown into one of the great branches of the government. Every man, woman and child in the country is being benefited by the work of the Surgeon General Rupert Blue and his co-workers. Read the story of this great service in the magazine of The Washington Star, Sunday, January 11.

THE DEMOCRATIC IDEAL

The new ideal of the school is the fitting of our youth to enter into reciprocal and co-operative relations with their fellowmen in an intelligent manner. The ideal in the past, at least in the city schools, has been the fitting of pupils to do the work of the next grade or to be promoted into the next higher school.

The aim of the modern school is to develop initiative, good judgment, and right attitude toward one's fellows (good will).

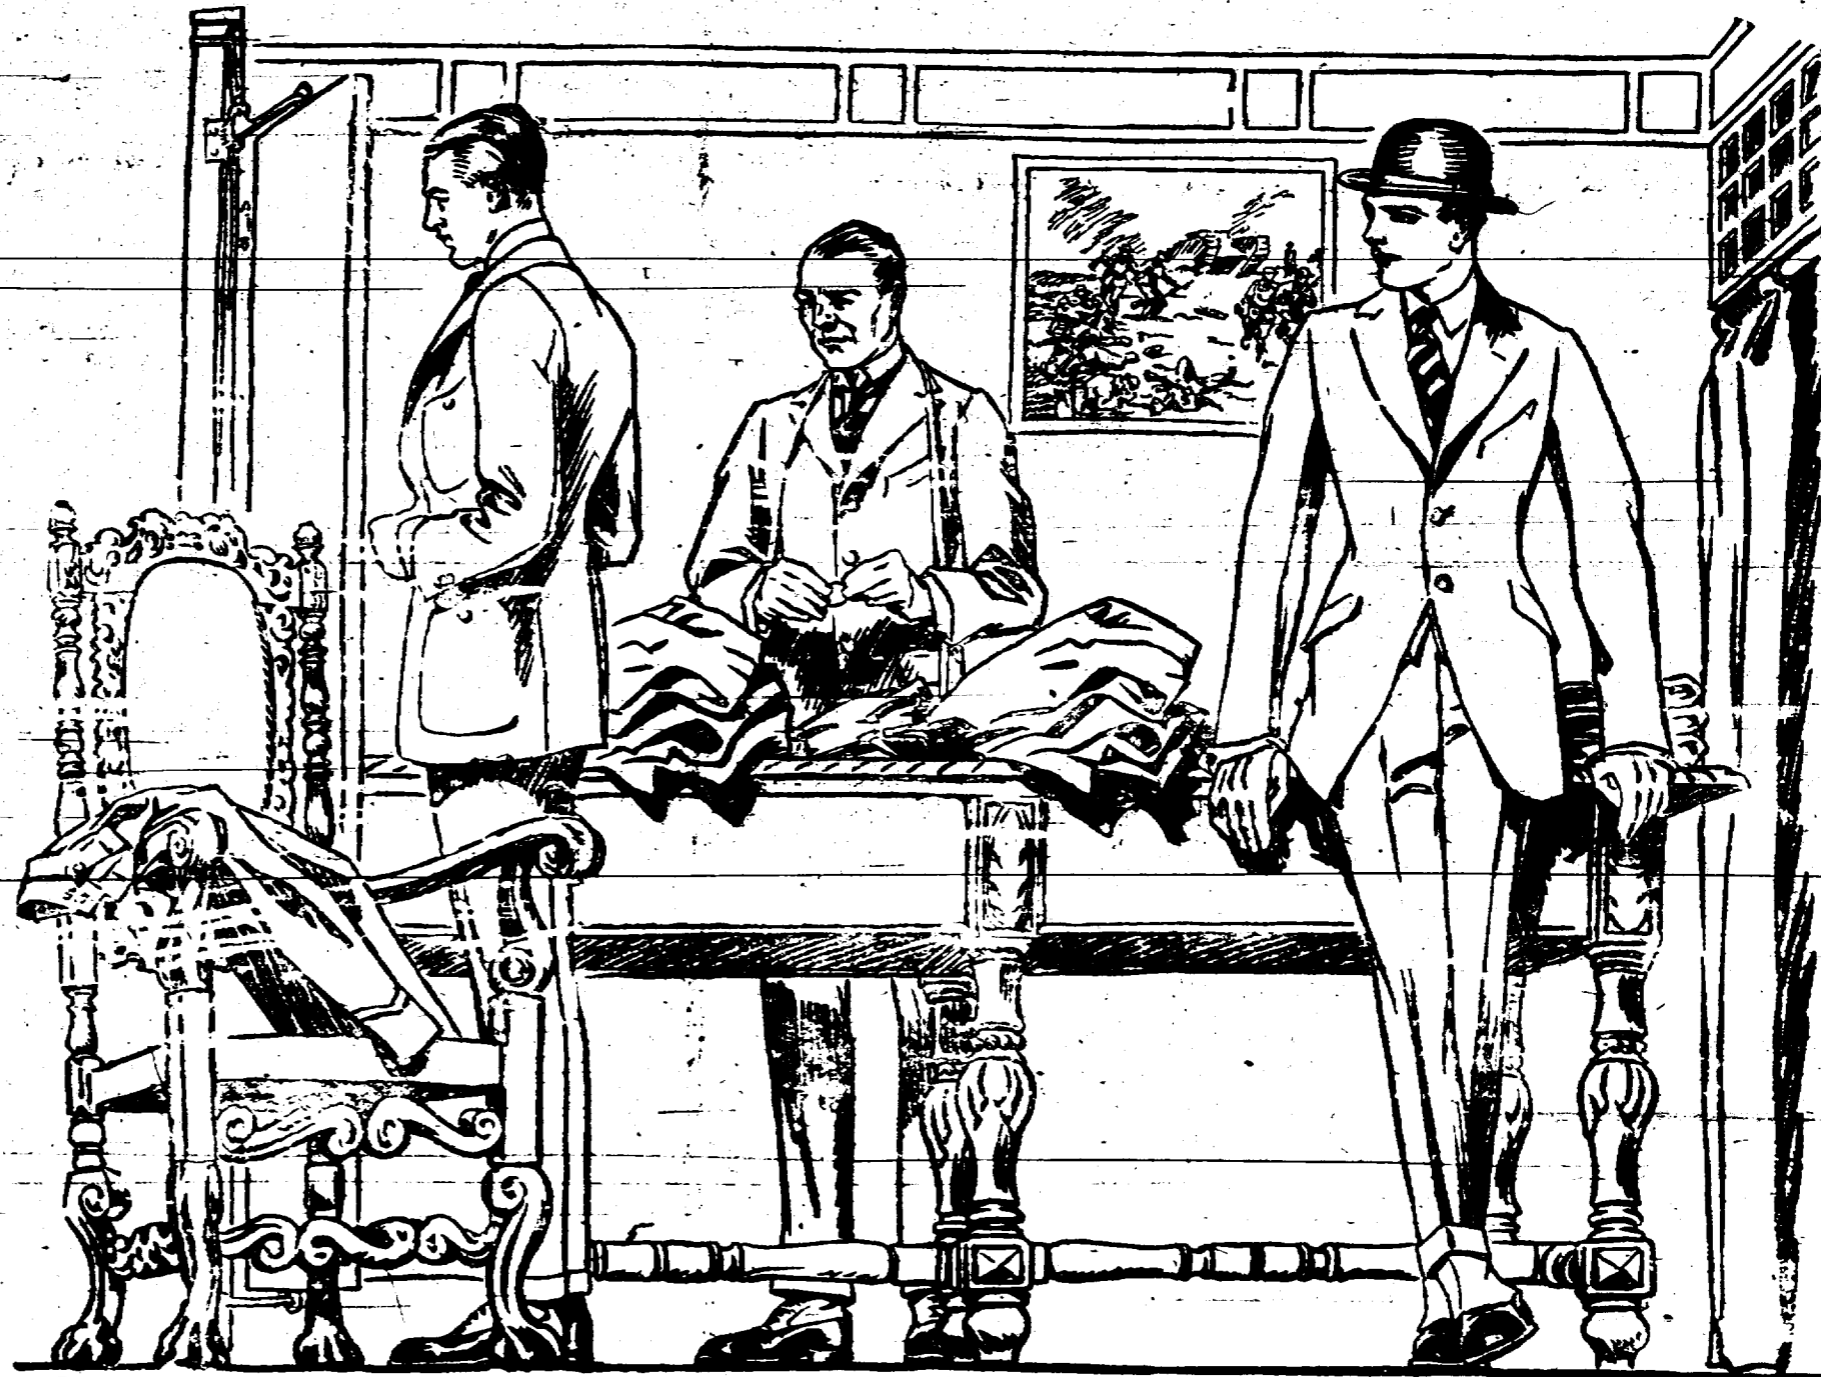

To develop initiative pupils must be given opportunity to initiate; to cultivate good will requires active co-operation with others; to develop skill of any sort requires activity under proper guidance.

A good school is an active school, but its activity is not flawless or disorderly. In its activity it is economic, intensive, joyous. As actualities, such schools are not numerous, but the spirit is abroad in the educational world and is bringing forth fruit often in the most unexpected places.—C. P. Cary, in the Educational News Bulletin.

Buy It Here—You'll Get Your Money's Worth

If you're going to have a new suit this winter, you want to get as much for your money as possible; you'll buy it here. We're making a business of seeing that our customers get what's best for them; we know that if we do that we're doing what's best for ourselves.

When we sell an overcoat or suit, or anything else, the supposition is that it's a good thing for us. Maybe it is and maybe it isn't. Depends on how good it is for our customer. That's why we're so particular about what we sell.

OPPORTUNITY AND YOUR BOY AND GIRL

That a Prince William poultry club boy last year sold more than 270 dozen eggs will be a little news item of interest to many parents throughout the county. This is only one of the practical and profitable results of membership in the county agricultural clubs. The material side of club work, more than its stimulating effect on social and moral life, community betterment projects and the mental outlook of the club individual, will appeal to the parent. It is not that the parent is not interested in the proper development of young citizenship. He is. But the abstract qualities of good citizenship are more difficult to identify, and a concrete example of industry, thrift and achievement presents a statement which admits no argument. The club enrollment campaign is on next week. Give your boy and girl the best sort of home encouragement. Invite them to join the agricultural clubs.

SAVE THE DAY

The alumni guardians of school interests, who have been studying the school situation among themselves and with the school board and others interested, have come to several definite conclusions, the most important of which is that a real get-together movement on the part of citizens can save the day. They have appointed a day for a get-together meeting, when the citizens of Manassas district are invited and urged to show their colors by coming together and making the plans by which the day may be saved. "Saving the day" is a good way to look at the situation. An old-time, contracted school term with the hazard of losing faculty, appropriations and standards—the high lights of the school system, of which all our citizens are justly proud—is a poor look-out for Manassas. Our young citizenship deserves a happier vista. Get together and give them a square deal.

ANOTHER WARNING

The public is again warned against imposters traveling about the country and seeking contributions for various benevolent agencies. The American committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief has announced that it employs no one to tour the country independently to collect money. Manassas has been visited by so-called agents of such societies, but so far as is known few contributions have been lost through them. Citizens have had the good judgment to appoint a local treasurer to receive such collections, remitting to headquarters and obtaining official acknowledgement of the remittance.

TO THE FRONT AGAIN

The south has reason to be proud of her pre-eminence as a live stock country, as evidenced by the capture of eight grand championships at the 1919 International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago. The southern climate and southern feeds are particularly well adapted to the production of the highest type of all domestic animals. Important contributing factors are the long grazing season, the abundance and variety of forage crops and the location of the principle distributing markets of the country.

A SAFE HABIT
 Nineteen-Twenty brings to American citizens continued opportunity to pursue the thrift habit. United States government war savings stamps, which are to be issued again this year, offer a steady means of saving and profit, particularly to the small investor. He may buy thrift stamps at twenty-five cents each, a $5 stamp or more, according to the funds he may have to invest. The usual limit of $1,000 has been prescribed. At this time, when so many securities of doubtful value are flooding the market, the war savings habit is a safe one to cultivate.

MORE LIBERAL PROVISIONS
 Good news for ex-service men is contained in a recent announcement from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, which states that United States government insurance (converted insurance) may be paid in a lump sum at death instead of in the monthly installments that formerly obtained. Congress has recently passed a law, which has been signed by the President, enlarging the list of beneficiaries and otherwise extending the privileges sought by service men who desire to continue their government insurance.

Better pay your subscription in advance before the price advances.

BOOSTING THE LIBERTY LOANS
 It was a happy thought on the part of Liberty Loan authorities, who have no facilities for the handling of large sums of money, to demand Liberty bonds as bail for the release of the Reds after the preliminary hearings have been completed. While it is not to be expected that the Reds have been Liberty Bond investors, it is reasonable to assume that the value of a Liberty bond has risen perceptibly in their estimation.

HORSE AND MULE CLINIC
 Special attention is called to a notice elsewhere in this issue of a clinic for free treatment of horses and mules, which is to be established at Quantico in connection with the Marine Vocational Training School. Any resident of Virginia is entitled to this service and horse and mule owners of this section should be greatly benefited by the opportunity.

The contest was a close one, the opponents to the bond issue winning by only eight votes. It is stated that those friendly to the bonding of the town are not discouraged by their defeat.

The freshman English class of Manassas High School, taught by Mrs. W. L. Sanders, held a debate in the English period on Monday on the subject, "Resolved, That reading is more educational than traveling." The affirmative speakers, Geo. The judges were Miss Mary Knevels, William Hill Brown and Walter Sanders, members of the junior and senior classes, which were invited by the freshman class to hear the debate.

L. Browning, county agent. "This will also be an opportunity for the dairy farmers of the county to get some high class purebred stock, as we want to get a carload of calves when the club calves are gotten, thereby minimizing the cost, as we are going to have to go out of the state for this class of stock."

"Going Up—Pay Now" is the important message of The Journal to its subscribers for the rest of the month of January. A great many of our friends are paying their subscriptions in response to the extended notice of the advance in price which appears again in this issue. Several, however, have asked for receipts and The Journal states that receipts are not mailed for subscription remittances. The new date of expiration should appear on the wrapper of each copy of the paper within a few weeks after the receipt of the money. If you fail to receive proper credit on the address slip of the wrapper of your paper then it is time to investigate.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PARTY

Mr. F. A. Kirkpatrick, of Washington, entertained the boys of his Sunday School class from Foundry M. E. Church during the Christmas holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Smith, Kirkman apartments, 1918 18th street, northwest. Mrs. Smith arranged a beautiful Christmas tree in the large bay window, which added much to the occasion. The boys had games and other amusements, after which they were invited to the diningroom, where refreshments were served. The decorations were poinsettias and holly. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

THE SHELF BEHIND THE DOOR

I came to Jesus long ago all laden down with sin. I sought him long for pardoning grace, he would not take me in. At last I found the reason why—right came more and more; I had a shelf with idols on just in behind the door.

But quickly clean that corner out from ceiling to the floor; For Jesus wants his temple clean, he cannot bless you more, That shelf behind the door—don't use it any more; Unless you take those idols out from in behind the door.

I tore it down and threw it out and then the blessings came; But o'er I got the victory and felt the holy flame, Beelzebub came rushing up and said with awful roar, "You cannot live without a shelf right here behind the door."

So many people of today are destitute of power; 'Tis plain to see they cannot stand temptation's trying hour. By way of an apology "my weakness" is their cry; 'Tis all because of idols that they are using on the sly.

Some smoke and chew tobacco, some like their filthy snuff, Others have wronged their fellow men, refusing to confess; They wonder why they are not blessed in the days of year; The reason why is on the shelf just in behind the door.

That little shelf behind the door will cause you much distress, Especially about the time you think of being blest; While pleading for the victory before the Lord in prayer, How many times you think about the idols hidden there.

Your soul is dark, you surely know you have no peace with God, You daily tremble lest you feel the chastening of His rod; The blessed Holy Spirit puts this question o'er and o'er, What are you going to do about this shelf behind the door?

Some hypocrites may look like saints—from men their idols hide, But what about the judgment day beyond death's fearful tide; That hidden spot behind the door will be a public place Where God and men and angels too, shall every idol trace.

WHERE OUR IMMIGRANTS COME FROM

During the last 100 years something like 33,000,000 people have come to these shores. Nearly one-fourth of them have come from the United Kingdom—8,205,675, to be exact, or 24.7 per cent.

The German migration to this country comes second, with 5,494,539 or 16.6 per cent. Italy has sent us 4,000,000; Austria-Hungary, the same number in round figures; Russia, 3,360,000; Scandinavia, 2,100,000, and all other countries combined, nearly 6,000,000.

Prior to 1882 immigration was practically unregulated; no attention was paid to the fellow who came here, farther than making a record of where he came from. Anybody could come who desired to do so, and no questions were asked as to his qualification as to citizenship. After that date we enforced such immigration laws as we had, but until recent years such laws were of little avail. It has been only within the last six or eight years that we have begun to regard those who came here seriously.

But we are going to regard them more seriously in the future than we have ever done. We are not going to try to keep out the worthy peoples of other nations; America will always be a harbor of refuge and a land of opportunity for worthy people from all nations. But we are going to pay some attention to worthiness; we are going to ask more questions and insist upon a closer scrutiny in the future—to the end that we protect this great nation from the undesirable of other lands.—Columbus Dispatch.

A CEMETERY—AND A SERMON

It was a neat little country cemetery, much like most little country cemeteries, yet there was something queer about it. There was the arched gateway and the customary weeping willows by it. The clipped hedge was like most cemetery hedges. The tombstones were about the average run of tombstones. But withal, there was something queer—even shocking. Then you discovered what it was. These were truthful tombstones. Consoling platitudes—"Too pure for earth," and that like—found no place. Instead, there were such epitaphs as these: "Mother—walked to death in her kitchen;" "Sacred to the memory of Jane—she scrubbed herself into eternity;" "Grandma—washed herself away;" "Susie—swept out of life with too heavy a broom."

The people who saw that cemetery—and there were thousands of them—may have been shocked for the instant, but they came away with the thought that one might be better for seeing such a cemetery. For, you see, it was a miniature cemetery, 3 feet square, and it was part of an exhibit at the Montana State Fair. Such levity with the most solemn thing that mankind knows, could not be justified merely on the theory that the things said were true—but those who saw it came away with the belief that it was justified by way of keeping just those things from being true. And that was the purpose of the exhibit, placed there by the agricultural extension department of the State Agricultural College of Montana. It was meant to emphasize the need for home conveniences, for lack of which many a farm woman has gone to her grave before her time.

There were other exhibits designed to drive home the same hard truth. One was a model showing a bleak farmhouse on a bare hill. At the bottom of the hill ran a little stream, and by the stream were barns and cattle. Struggling up the hill toward the house with two heavy pails of water was a bent old woman. And the legend was: "Convenient for the cattle—but not for mother." Then there was a farmhouse with the water supply as it should be, the woman in the yard sprinkling her flower beds with a hose. And the inscription read: "Convenient for mother—and the cattle, too." Another model showed a kitchen as it should not be. And there was the legend: "A long-distance kitchen shortens life." The lesson taught by the exhibit is one that the state agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture are trying to teach by every means at their command—greater convenience and a larger measure of comfort in the farm home.

DOCTOR REMOVES HEART

Physician Performs Marvelous Operation on Bullet Victim.

Some days ago Surgeon Stranek, of St. Joseph's Hospital, at Omaha, Nebr., took the heart out of Steve Zakich, an Austrian who had shot himself, removed the bullet from the heart, where it was imbedded, replaced the organ in Zakich's body and sewed up the incision, says an Omaha dispatch.

Zakich has eaten solid food and is on the high road to full recovery. He is practically out of danger. The operation was performed last Saturday, after the bullet had been in Zakich's heart nearly 36 hours. When surgeons arrived they thought he would be dead in a few minutes. After he had survived 36 hours the operation was performed.

WOMAN PREDICTS BAD YEAR AHEAD

Dr. Kates Says Little 1920 Has Rough Road to Travel—Foretells Many Things.

Little babe 1920 received an awful spanking at the hands of Dr. Zeida B. Kates, who delivered her annual predictions of events during the year, at Unity Spiritualistic Church, in Washington, said the Washington Herald.

The poor kid will have a staggeringly heavy pack of terrible things to bear, if the prophecies of Dr. Kates receive mention at the hands of chroniclers at the close of the present year.

"This will be a year of change and trial," said Dr. Kates, and forthwith began to startle her hundreds of listeners, who filled every seat in the hall, stood up against the sidewalls and peered in through the doors.

Great confusion in political circles was foretold. Furthermore, she said; there will be many competent and several incompetent candidates for the Presidency. The American people are looking for a man of high ideals, who is above squabbling in party issues—a man who can grasp the hearts and minds of the people, said Dr. Kates.

Bryan Too "Silky."

The oft-wolloped William Jennings Bryan came in for a gentle rap at the hands of the speaker, when she admitted he had sufficient mentality to be President, but was too "silky" for the people.

A number of governmental officials "will find themselves under a cloud of suspicion" when an account for the millions spent by America during the war is asked, Dr. Kates declared.

Food will be scarce, and there will be many disastrous fires; more prominent men will die this year than in any previous like period; America will hear "the thunder of arms near her shores," within the year; strikes are not settled, and will continue throughout the year; an epidemic of sickness, which will baffle physicians as the "flu" did, will sweep over the country; the United States will be a duplicate of Russia if individuals of radical tendencies are allowed to proceed along the even tenor of their way. These are a few predictions.

The league of nations is all wrong, said Dr. Kates. America should not get mixed up in it. Sisterhood of Women.

"The new year will see a great brotherhood of men and a great sisterhood of women," predicted Dr. Kates. "Kings are dead, and thrones have crumbled."

Out of the haze of reconstruction days, powerful nations with republican aspirations will take their place on the earth.

Aerial transportation will see great improvement. Instruments of war, which for ferocity and power have not yet been seen, will be invented and used.

Speech through space will reach such perfection that a conversation by word of mouth, and without the aid of telephones may be carried on between airships and steamships with the same ease and naturalness as speaking on the street, it was prophesied.

Dr. Kates declared herself for Americanization of foreigners, and said that no new American should vote unless able to speak the English language.

On January 5, of last year, Dr. Kates predicted trouble for firemen and policemen during the year, and struggles between capital and labor, political parties and the military faction. Strikes and fires were foretold. The league of nations was declared a pleasant, utopian dream.

Dr. Kates, in past years, foresaw the beginning and end of the world war, and disclosed many other future facts which the common people had to wait for.

A SQUARE DEAL FOR THE FARMER

Senator Capper Says Party Failing to Recognize Agriculture Is Doomed.

(Published by Request)
Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, said today that the political party which refuses to accord to agriculture a square deal is doomed. The Senator said the National Board of Farm Organizations and other great bodies of agriculturalists had made certain demands, all of which he regarded as reasonable and proper. The future of the Nation is inextricably tied up with agriculture and statesmen who refuse to give it the consideration to which it is clearly entitled would have their political careers cut short.

Senator Capper said the time had come when all economic problems, especially those relating to agriculture should receive congressional attention. There should be established a national agricultural policy which would be controlled by men who understand farming and not by officials who only have theoretical knowledge of the great subject, Senator Capper said.

"We should make a beginning in the present congress by passing the Capper-Herman bill, a measure which gives the farmers the unequivocal right collectively to dispose of their products," said Senator Capper. Then the National Conventions of the great parties especially the republican party, should fortify congressional action by giving its approval in their platforms. I am hoping that the bill of which I am joint author will be a law long before the national conventions meet, but if I am disappointed in this, I trust each big convention will issue its mandate to congress calling for speedy action on the matter."

Senator Capper said he was sure the nation as a whole would give its hearty support to an agricultural policy calculated to increase production, while at the same time giving the farmer an opportunity to more scientific-ly market his goods.

"My ambition is to bring about a more complete working agreement between the ruralist and the city consumer," said Senator Capper. If this can be done the problem of distribution will be met and more scientific and less expensive methods of getting agricultural products on the market found. The political party which stands in the way of such an achievement will not be able to live.

"My information is that farmers in every part of the country are organizing and they will prove to be an immense corrective power. They are asking that the instrumentalities through which co-operative business can be carried on be made fully available for them through affirmative legislation. Agriculture makes no idle threat when it promises to politically discipline the man or party who is unwilling to recognize its importance and help take away the obstacles to its development.

Hay, Grain and Feed

Mr. Farmer, much of your success this year depends on the way you treat your stock. Don't let the price worry you, but become a "crank" about quality, and demand it. A cheap feed in price may be very expensive in results. Let us fill your requirements with a product of quality, and insure you against an unsuccessful year.

MEET IN IOWA

Student Foreign Mission Volunteers Hold Eighth International Convention:

The eighth international convention of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions was held at Des Moines, Iowa, from December 31, 1919, until January 4, 1920.

Some of the prominent speakers were Dr. John R. Mott, Dr. Robert Speer, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, Mr. Zwemer, Mr. Mackenzie, Dr. J. C. White and Dr. James I. Vance.

Here are a few quotations from Dr. Robert Speer's address on "The Imminence of God and the Immediacy of His Working":

The messages delivered and the spirit of the convention is for every church member in every church to receive.

The Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, which had its rise at Mt. Hermon, Mass., in the summer of 1886, has rounded out in the year just closed the first full generation of its life.

The 8,140 volunteers who have sailed have gone to virtually all the battlefields of Christianity throughout the entire non-Christian world.

Dr. John R. Mott says: "The movement has ever stood, not denominationalism but in denominationalism. If the message of Jesus Christ is to be taken to every part of the world, it is absolutely necessary that the entire body of Christ be present."

The watchword of the Movement is "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation."

CONFEDERATE MOTHERS TO RECEIVE GIFT PINS

Memorial Association Members Desire to Offer Recognition to All Survivors.

The subject of searching out and trying to locate every living mother of a Confederate veteran was enthusiastically taken up at the Atlanta convention of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association, which went on record as warmly endorsing the movement.

Already a far-reaching interest has been made manifest and at present there are four Confederate mothers on the honor roll, each of whom will receive a gift pin, which souvenir is the happy thought of Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, the president-general.

The first name sent in with proper credentials establishing her right to one of these recognition pins was that of Mrs. Mercedes G. Brent, aged ninety-eight years.

Florida's second veteran mother is Mrs. Joshua Allen Crosby, of Westville, Fla. Mrs. Crosby is ninety-seven years old, her birthday falling on December 25.

It is hoped that every state where there is a Memorial Association will endeavor to locate the mothers of Confederate veterans and take advantage of the opportunity to honor them, for they remain but a very small remnant of the mighty force that stood behind the men in the trenches and fulfilled the expectations of those who believed in them as the most gallant fighting force that ever answered the call to arms.

Names of Confederate mothers in this vicinity should be sent to Mrs. Westwood Hutchison, Manassas, Va.
