

LEVIES SETTLED BY SUPERVISORS

Special Meeting For Further Consideration Next Tuesday

—Dog Tax Fund.

County and district levies for the current year were considered, the dog tax fund was settled, $100 was appropriated to the Clifton branch of the Florence Crittenton Mission and a host of accounts were approved for payment Tuesday morning when the county board of supervisors held its monthly meeting at the courthouse. The board also made arrangements for a special meeting on Tuesday, May 4, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of reconsidering the levy. The public is requested to attend "for the purpose of being heard as to said levies."

The settlement of the dog tax showed the collection of $1,704.30, of which $907.54 was paid out for sheep killed and the expense of collection, leaving a balance of $796.76 to be credited to the road funds of the several districts of the county. An itemized statement of the settlement was ordered recorded as follows:

A Virginia Trip in 1800

Introduction by A. W. Ewell. The following sketch was found among the papers of the late Mr. George Weems, a prominent citizen of the county, and is a most interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the county. It is a pleasant and interesting account of the time spent in Prince William county in the year 1800, and is well worth printing, especially in this journal.

We are left to guess the author's Christian name. It was certainly a Weems, son of Mr. David Weems of Baltimore, founder of the celebrated Weems line of steamboats, a branch of the Weems family now represented by the "Weems-Williames." One of these, Mr. George Weems Williams, was lately defeated as a candidate for Mayor of Baltimore on the ground of being "too much of an aristocrat"—an unpopular word these days. The "Uncle Mason" of the sketch was Parson Mason Lock Weems, author of the Life of Washington. A christening such as began, lasting three days and nights, must have been a gay affair. Plainly dancing and card playing were not then frowned upon, even by the clergy, nor was prohibition in vogue. The ladies were "dear creatures," not suffragettes. The purchasing power of money must have been in striking contrast to what it is now, if twenty-three families could be handsomely entertained at a cost of $40. Altogether there is much about this glimpse of old times in Prince William to make one sigh for their return.

The Story.

Having arrived at my twenty-first year, I proposed to my father to take a short trip over to Virginia to see a host of relations I had there.

The first night brings me up at my Uncle Mason's in Dumfries. In a day or two I am at Col. James Ewell's in Prince William county. There I fell in with Dr. Solomon Ewell, his son. We spent about six weeks together, visiting from family to family, from county to village, but most of the time in the latter place, where lived my dear Uncle and Aunt Weems, and while there I made acquaintance with twenty-three families; so you may suppose the place (Dumfries) was a pleasant one to visit. Then the neighborhood of Col. James and Col. Jesse Ewell gave a very extensive field for visiting.

Now you may suppose that a man so very fond of the dear creatures as I was could not very long associate and mingle with them without falling in love. This I did in quick time, and with my friend's sister, Miss Fanny Ewell, a beautiful and accomplished girl, and of the first quality. Well, I soon crippled her by long shots, and began to come to close quarters. At all dancing parties Miss Ewell is engaged to Mr. Weems; and as my stay in the state was to be short it behooved me to lose no chance, nor did I—for when I had her just where I wished, and that was in a good way, very pleasing and pleasant.

My dear Uncle Mason gave a christening at his father-in-law's (Col. Jesse Ewell's) commencing on Thursday and holding up to Saturday night. I stood godfather for this child, and to be sure I made good my promise—basically speaking—for I never saw him again from that time until he had gotten up, married and was a minister in the Methodist church. Then at a conference I saw him, and I suspect a better man than his godfather. All I can do in this case is to say God forgive me!

Well, back to the party, from Thursday to Saturday night, dancing, playing cards and feasting, and I playing my cards well with Miss Ewell. By this time I had won two games out of three, and the cards dealt for the conqueror. "We will not play the hand till after our return to Dumfries."

Now a fine snow for sleighing had fallen, and two sleighs were rigged up for the ladies and the doctor and myself were given charge of them. So after dinner, and both of us well primed, we hopt in and started, in fine spirits indeed and in jolly style we went down to Dumfries—a distance of seven miles—in less than one hour.

After our arrival there we landed the party at a Mrs. Hewey's, a very fine lively lady, and the first thing was to "splice the main brace," the marriage's term for taking grog. This kindled the coals of the lust taken at Belle Air. We all got into a general snafu, and to tell how it happened I cannot, but a difference of opinion arose between Mrs. Hewey and myself about the weight of a snowbird. She said it would not weigh two ounces. I contended it would. Forthwith a hot war was made. If I should lose my bet, viz., that the bird would weigh two ounces, I was to give a party for all the families I had become acquainted with since my visit to Dumfries.

So the next morning Mrs. Hewey was to catch the bird and have it picked ready for the Doctor and myself to witness. Accordingly, up we got and all in readiness. The bird was caught and brought in. It weighed three ounces. I had the party.

throw me back but I had to say yes, and forthwith made the appointment. I thought I could be assured how I left for Dumfries made the acquaintance of twenty-three families, and all my money nearly gone, when to have the party at the Tavern would cost from $80 to $100, and nothing to meet it. All this put me in a hurry, you may suppose—"all on a lee shore and among the breakers." Truly it was character or a party. But I conferred with my friend the Doctor and we soon arranged the matter. My credit was good and my aunt was good, and the Doctor told me he would introduce me to his cousin, Mr. Jesse Ewell, Jr., a merchant from whom I could get anything needed, even money, too, if I wanted; and on application it would not do so.

Well, so far so good, but at a tavern it would not do, so we thought of my aunt's house, which was very spacious indeed—four large rooms and a hall below and five or six above and a basement. So we waited on my aunt and told her my fix, when unhesitatingly she offered me her house, and did not stop there but her own services and servants, her place and everything about her. Further still, there were three young ladies staying at her house, Miss Mary Ewell, Miss Sallie Bell Ewell and my girl, the very beautiful Miss Fanny, all these tending their services to make the cake and attend to the party. And they did it with cheerfulness.

Now I begin to see daylight and down we go to make it known to Mrs. Hewey, when the evening was appointed and arrangements made. Then the next thing to communicate to my father my fix. Well, I did it, and wrote him my honor was at stake, and nothing under $40 would relieve me. So the dear old gentleman sent the money and requested me to come home soon, as he was leading the schooner Sidney for Richmond.

Now, all is prepared for the party. The tickets are written and sent around, twenty-three families in number. The requisites are carried to my aunt, and all preparations are in making. In due time and to the hour all things are in readiness. The evening turns out, for February, very fine indeed, and twenty-one families out of twenty-three, most or less (the others being sick) are present, besides some invited personally. There were two of the best performers on the violin in town. These came off with the best, for after enjoying the concert and sipping themselves with good things they got such $4.

Well, about 3 or 3 o'clock they begin to break, and all depart in peace, orderly and in the highest spirits—not one "how come you are?" It was said afterwards to be the largest and most agreeable party that could be remembered. Indeed I never was at one before or since that matched it. None spoke of it but with credit to the young Marylander, not because I had given it but because it turned out so full and fine. But how could it be otherwise when I had so splendid a house and four of the finest ladies, so conversant with cakes, jellies, etc.? And to cap it all as regards the Doctor and myself, both of us had all we wished, namely, our girls to assist in entertaining and be our own partners besides. You may easily guess how we felt when talking with them on the somewhat subject to get a pleasant squeeze of the hand and a glance of approbation, with it a smile. So you see everything was designed to make us happy, and I was "aspart from religion."

Well things went on fine indeed, but the clearer the sky the nearer sometimes the rain. In a few days I am now all about. Just as we all began to feast ourselves on the expected enjoyment of the 22nd of February, Washington's birthday, and my sweet little Fanny, my partner for the ball, a vast amount of pleasure anticipated, oh murder, murder to it all! A letter comes from my father, sent through an old family servant, saying I must come home immediately. The schooner or Sidney is loaded and all hands shipped, all waiting for me to see off to Richmond.

Well, how I felt I can't now, nor could I then, tell, but you do know it must have been bad, and indeed it was so. The thought of enjoyment with the Dear Creature and the contemplation of happiness of the 22nd, but a few days off. Filled with all this, how could I sob myself of it? I cannot, said I, and told Thomas, the servant, so. The old chap replied, "Master Gosta, old Master says you must come, and I must not come without you." Still I told him I wouldn't go in the morning.

Well, now comes on the horror, or blue devil. I told my aunt my trouble and how sorry I was to be turned out so. I passed the evening I know not how, and when I went to bed I took the matter up fairly, and the more I thought it over the more I became satisfied I ought to go. I thought of my dear old parent's kindness to me, his indulgence. Then I thought how much longer I had been over than promised—just double time. And then to keep the vessel waiting at so much expense! Finally, it would so hurt my parent's feelings if I did not go. So when I came down in the morning I told Thomas to get the horses ready—that I should leave immediately after breakfast.

"and we bought 'em both at the same time"

LOOK at us now, Jim. We've been doing the same work. Your overalls are good as new—and mine have gone to pieces.

"What's the answer, Jim?"

"I took a chance when I bought mine—just took the first overall that fitted."

"And you—you looked for an overall that you knew would wear right—be comfortable—look right. You picked Blue Buckles."

"There's heavy work at the U. S. Shipyards. That's why I stick to Blue Buckles. They're sure to give long wear and comfort."
Edward Nelson
Chief Engineer
U. S. Shipyards

Long wear is built into every pair of Blue Buckle overalls. They are made of the toughest denim—with broad, double stitched seams that don't rip. Every pair is comfortable—lots of room everywhere and extra wide suspenders. First-class workmanship means each detail is right. Blue Buckles have a strong, solid back-band—big reinforced pockets, so arranged you never sit on them, and the best buckles and loops made. Heavy brass buttons are riveted on the cloth.

Be sure what you're getting next time you buy overalls. Ask your dealer for Blue Buckles.

CHEESE FACTORY INVESTMENT PAYS

Farmers Get Good Returns from Cows With Little Labor—One Purpose Cow Best.

(H. S. Merry, Cheese Specialist, Extension Division)

The cheese factories have brought money to the farmers in the sections where they are located and have saved much food that would have otherwise gone to waste. Even if butter had been made it would have brought a small price and that is true in the country also. The cheese, being in a cash income and the farmer has money to pay for a new dress for his wife or daughter or a suit of clothes for himself.

There are sections in the mountains of Virginia where people have made their money on the timber that was on the place and now that this has been cut and sold the land is being cleared up and they have to turn to something else for cash crop and a living. This is one of the best things that they can do. In these sections grass grows, if given the least chance, and thus milk can be produced rather cheap and turned into cash through the cow. A market made for this milk in the way of cheese has proven to be successful.

The following facts and statements may be of interest:

One farmer has received $19 per month per cow for nine months for the milk delivered at a cheese factory, and received the whey back as feed for pigs. Add to this $19 per cow the value of the whey and the value of the milk which would make this more than $19 per cow per month. Of course, this man is happy for all he is worth. He made this statement: "I can make more money milking my cows the hour or two it takes nights and mornings than I can during the rest of the day." Another farmer said, "If the cheese factory did not run I would starve, as I am old and cannot do much work on the farm, but I can milk cows and for a little work I can get good money."

The making of cheese has made the farmer realize that he should have cows that would give more milk, or improve the cows he has. A farmer had three grade beef cows this last season and a Holstein grade cow was bought and her milk kept separate and sent to the factory. The one grade Holstein gave nearly as much milk per day as the three grade beef cows, and was a good example in that neighborhood. This will show the farmer that he needs more cows and better cows and must give better feed for them, as he realizes that the cow can change plant growth into cash through her milk.

When the factory first started some of the farmers decided that they would keep the dual purpose cow and they bought some milking Shorthorns. But these farmers since they have received their milk checks have changed their minds and have bought Holsteins or other dairy cows. There are a few herds that are either all Holsteins or grade Jersey cows. They have decided that the dual purpose cow is best, either a beef cow or a dairy cow.

BRANTVILLE

The farmers are busy trying to get the corn and gardens planted, but the weather conditions are very much against them.

The community was shocked by the death of Mr. Michael Sperry, formerly of this place, who recently moved to Manassas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Egan and Mrs. Lucy Holinger spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Egan, near Brantville. Mrs. Kerlin, of Aden, recently visited her daughter, Mrs. K. M. Bradshaw. Miss Goldie Beavers, of Bradley, visited recently at the home of her aunt, Mrs. R. H. Keys.

A few people attended a party given at the home of Mrs. Charles Beaver, of Manassas, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bear passed through Brantville Sunday on their way from Washington, where they had been visiting for some time, to their home at Aden.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Counts have moved from the Holzman property to the place formerly occupied by Mr. J. M. Kern.

Mr. J. H. Fox and family are moving to Sperryville, Page county, where Mr. Fox will be engaged in the lumber business.

Miss Sallie Cooper, accompanied by her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fogle, and their children, all of Washington, spent Sunday at Miss Cooper's home here.

Mrs. Hugh Bell and J. W. Hedrick, who were here on business several days, returned to Washington Sunday.

Mr. Emory Smith, with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dunbar, of Dumfries, was here on business recently.

1/3 Less Coal 1/2 More Heat

You can save from a third to a half of your fuel and have a much warmer home than ever before if you will install a CALORIC.

The CALORIC is the remarkable furnace that heats without pipes, through only one register. It circulates heat by Nature's own method, forcing warm air up into the ceiling space and drawing cool air down into the furnace to be reheated and pushed.

The CALORIC heats practically all types of homes, bungalows or three-story homes, up to eighteen rooms. It heats kitchens and back bedrooms just as comfortable and warm as the rest of the house. Also heats attics, basements, stores and other business buildings. More than 50,000 already installed.

The CALORIC can be installed in new or old houses—no cutting of walls for pipes and no interference with present system of heating. It burns coal, coke, gas wood or lignite, and saves from one-third to one-half the fuel.

ANOTHER FAVORITE
 The favorite poem corner continues to find favor with Journal readers at home and in distant states. Mrs. E. L. Byrd, of Manassas, sends the poem which appears today, "Abram and Zimri," written by Clarence Cook, art critic and poet and a native of Massachusetts. This poem, which is linked with memories of Mrs. Byrd's school days, is based on an old Hebrew legend which is less familiar than the favorites which have preceded it.
 The copy reprinted here is taken from the Holmes' Fifth Reader, a well known text book in the school when the present grown-ups learned their R's.

Abram and Zimri.
 Abram and Zimri owned a field together.
 A level field hid in a boggy vale.
 They ploughed it with one plough, and in the spring sowed, walking side-by-side, the fruitful seed.
 In harvest, when the glad earth smiles with grain,
 Each carried to his home one half the sheaves,
 And stored them with much labor in his barn.
 Now, Abram had a wife and seven sons;
 But Zimri dwelt alone within his house.
 One night before the sheaves were gathered in,
 As Zimri lay upon his lonely bed,
 And counted in his mind his little gains,
 He thought upon his brother Abram's lot,
 And said, "I dwell alone within my house,
 But Abram hath a house and seven sons;
 And yet we share the harvest sheaves alike.
 He surely needeth more for life than I:
 I will arise, and gird myself, and go
 Down to the field, and add to his from mine."

So he arose, and girded up his loins,
 And went out softly to the level field.
 The moon shone out from silver bars of clouds,
 The trees stood black against the cold blue sky,
 The branches waved and whispered in the wind.
 So, Zimri, guided by the shifting light,
 Went down the mountain-path, and found the field.
 Took from his store of sheaves a generous third,
 And bore them gladly to his brother's heap;
 And then went back to sleep, and happy dream.
 Now, that same night, as Abram lay in bed,
 Thinking upon his blessed state in life,
 He thought upon his brother Zimri's lot,
 And said, "He dwells within his house alone,
 He goeth forth to fall with dew to help;
 He goeth home at night to a cold house,
 And hath few other friends but me and mine."
 (For these two tilled the boggy vale alone):
 "While I, whom Heaven hath very graciously blessed,
 Dwell happy with my wife and seven sons,
 Who aid me in my toil, and make it light,
 And yet we share the harvest sheaves alike.
 This surely is not pleasing unto God;
 I will arise and gird myself, and go
 Out to the field, and borrow from my store,
 And add unto my brother Zimri's pile."

So he arose, and girded up his loins,
 And went down softly to the level field.
 The moon shone out from silver bars of clouds,
 The trees stood black against the starry sky,
 The dark leaves waved and whispered in the breeze.
 So Abram, guided by the doubtful light,
 Passed down the mountain-path, and found the field.
 Took from his store of sheaves a generous third,
 And added them unto his brother's heap;
 Then he went back to sleep, and happy dream.
 So the next morning with the early sun
 The brothers rose, and went out to their toil.
 The olive-branches whispered in the wind.

And when they came to see the heavy sheaves,
 Each wondered in his heart to find his heap.
 Though he had given a third, was still the same.
 Now, the next night went Zimri to the field,
 Took from his store of sheaves a generous third,
 And placed them on his brother Abram's heap.
 And they lay down behind his pile to watch.
 The moon looked out from bars of milk white clouds,
 The cedars stood up black against the sky.

Then Abram came to see the heavy sheaves,
 And, looking in the right and left, went on;
 Took from his ample store a generous third,
 And laid it on his brother Zimri's pile.
 Then Zimri rose, and sought him in his arms,
 And went upon his neck, and kissed his cheek;
 And Abram saw the while, and could not speak;
 Neither could Zimri. So they walked along
 Back to their homes, and thanked their God in prayer
 That he had bound them in such loving bands.

A Reminder!

Washington, March 7.—Plans for reducing the American family's meat bill were announced today by the Department of Justice, which will urge housewives to turn from the high-priced cuts to less costly portions of the steer.

Fair price commissioners in every state will be asked to direct educational campaigns with the co-operation of retailers and wholesalers, and the department will undertake to see to it that the consumer receives good meat at low prices and that no abnormal profits are taken on the low-priced portions.

"The housewife holds in her own hand the remedy for very high meat prices," said the department's announcement. "By turning from the expensive to the inexpensive cuts she not only will lower her own meat bills, but will drive down the price of the choice cuts and make it possible for meat to be merchandised more economically."

May we not be pardoned if we say, "I told you so!" Let us show you some of our meats that you can save big money on. We know you'll not be disappointed for SAUNDERS' SANITARY SERVICE SATISFIES

Mr. Farmer, much of your success this year depends on the way you treat your stock. Don't let the price worry you, but become a "crank" about quality, and demand it. A cheap feed in price may be very expensive in results. Let us fill your requirements with a product of quality, and insure you against an unsuccessful year.

VALUABLE TIMBER BURIED

About 5,000 cords of cut pulp wood, valued at $75,000, is reported to have been destroyed by fire at Volcano station Friday afternoon. The fire is also reported to have swept through between Ravensworth and Springfield and to have done thousands of dollars of damage to standing timber. According to reports printed in an exchange the fire was started by sparks from the engine of Southern passenger train No. 42. It was difficult for train No. 21 to pass owing to the intense heat.

RAIN DELAYS CAMPAIGN

Clean-Up on Wednesday was not the one-day success its proponents had planned, as old fog refused to cooperate until the day arrived. Household-ers, on account of the steady rain of the preceding days, were forced to delay their preparations and as a result the clean-up campaign was informally continued until the work can be completed.

Trucks manned under the direction of the civic league have collected refuse throughout the town, charging each household 25 cents for the service.

Last House for Horses

The Estagraves section of next Sunday's Washington Star will contain an exclusive half-page photograph of the burial of nineteen horses of the American expeditionary force at Arlington national cemetery. SENATOR SWEANER IN SENATE

Virginia Senator Cleggman at Close of Rented Speech.

Shortly after making a speech in the Senate last Tuesday afternoon on the rivers and harbors bill, Senator Swanson, of Virginia, was stricken with a sudden spell and collapsed in his chair. He was carried to the cloak room and the Senate, not knowing how serious the attack might be, at once adjourned. Senator Ball, of Delaware, who is a physician, administered a remedy and Senator Swanson quickly revived. He insisted upon returning to his desk in the Senate chamber, but upon doing so found that his colleagues had adjourned the session out of courtesy to him.

Senator Swanson refused to leave at once, but later went to his residence unattended. He has been under a nervous spell on account of the illness of Mrs. Swanson, and in addition, of late has had an unusual amount of public work to look after. No serious results are anticipated from the attack.

MY SUNSHINE

I have the dearest little girl With sunny golden curls, And eyes as blue as summer skies, And teeth like rows of pearls. She says the wisest, outest things In such a serious way, She brings me laughing half the time, Her smiles drive cares away.

One day her little brother Jack Had teased her quite awhile, Until the frowns had chased away Her happy, sunny smile. Just then I said, "Oh, I must go And fix those deviled eggs, They are a treat for which you know Your Papa often begs."

She said, "Now, Mama, please tell You just what you must do: You boil the eggs till very hard, Then cut each one in two, And then call Jack, he is so bad, So very full of sin I know that he without your help Will put the devil in."

One Sunday eve she went with me, And tho' we searched with care, We could not find a single egg, Though we looked everywhere. "Say, Mama, don't you know the home All went to church to day, And were so busy being good They all forgot to lay?" Margaret H. Bowen, November, 1919.

Buy the Best and Breed Them Better

The sale of Registered Holsteins at Woodstock, Va., May 4th, will contain some of the best young animals that have ever been offered for sale in Virginia.

There will be several granddaughters of King Komdyke Sadie Vale whose dams have records as three-year-olds from 18 to 22 pounds of butter in seven days.

Three granddaughters of King of Pontiacs have 27 and 32-lb sires and their dams have records up to 23 pounds as three-year-olds.

King Segis, Spring Farm King Pontiac, King Segis Pontiac Alcartra and Sir Veeman Hengerveld each have granddaughters that will be sold.

Eleven young cows have a sire whose dam made a record of 28 pounds as a four-year-old and are exceptionally nice individuals.

Many of the animals offered are coming with second calves in the summer and fall and there are six especially fine mature cows. One cow weighs 1800 pounds.

Remember, these are all Federal Tested and sold subject to sixty days retest.

Write for catalogue.

Mr. Arthur Posey, of Token, was the guest of his father-in-law, Mr. N. E. Ennis, Sunday. Mr. Wilford Pearson, of Sower, was an Orlando visitor one day this week.

GENERAL

The ladies of Sunday are giving their Sunday eggs for six weeks, beginning April 7, to a fund from which furniture for the Sunday School rooms of the new church will be purchased. Mrs. E. N. Patten, who was appointed custodian of the Sunday eggs, reports that they have been coming in in generous numbers and a handsome sum is already in hand for those which have been shipped. Those living at a distance, for whom it is inconvenient to send the eggs each week, are said to be reserving the money for their Sunday eggs and will forward the receipts after the second week in May.

A large congregation attended Sunday church on Sunday and heard an excellent and timely sermon by Rev. Homer Welch. His text was "Is the young man from Absalom safe?" II Samuel 18:29.

Messrs. Paul Wilson and W. Dowdy, of Washington, spent Sunday with Mr. E. N. Patten.

Mr. Louis Lynn, of Round Hill, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lynn.

The Catharps Good Housekeeping Club was entertained at the parsonage at Gainesville on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Homer Welch.

Messrs. Cora and Jack Robinson, accompanied by Messrs. White and Lunsford, of Fauquier, were guests of the Misses Robinson's sister, Mrs. W. W. Allison, on Sunday.

Mrs. L. B. Patten and her daughter, Miss Edmondia, and Mr. Loy Patten visited on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Patten's sister, Mrs. Wm. M. Wheeler, of Wellington.

Mr. W. M. Wheeler has been quite sick recently.

Mr. Willard Pearson visited his home at Gainesville on Sunday.

Our local fishermen are having great luck, a bass caught last week weighing two pounds and ten ounces.

WATERFALL

Mrs. G. A. Gosson spent the week with her mother, Mrs. James Pickett, of the Springfield neighborhood.

Miss Margaret Shirley and Mr. Carroll Shirley were the guests of relatives in Warrenton on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Clarke were Manassas visitors on Wednesday.

Mr. C. S. Shirley, who spent the week at his home here, returned to Washington on Sunday.

Mr. W. A. Shumate, of Camp Humphreys, spent the week-end with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Anderson and Miss Frances Anderson, Mr. J. W. Shirley and Misses Irene and Ruth Shirley and Messrs. Shirley and Chester Maxwell, all of Warrenton, were guests at Oakdale on Sunday.

The entertainment given by the athletic association at the school on Friday evening was pronounced a great success, the boys making about $30 above expenses.

The April meeting of the Community League will be held at the school on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The program committee is composed of Miss Flora Smith, Miss M. L. Rector and Mrs. Omar Kibler. Mrs. H. H. Thomas, Mrs. W. M. Pyle and Mr. O. E. Kibler are to be in charge of refreshments.

THOROUGHFARE

Miss Sallie V. Mount spent a few days in this neighborhood last week, returning to Manassas on Saturday.

Mr. Carl Garrison, of Alexandria, visited his home here during the week.

Mrs. C. C. Nalls, who was hurt while coming from a train a short time ago, is slowly improving.

Mrs. C. O. Spillman and her son, Charles, of Washington, visited here recently.

Mr. I. C. Jacobs has been confined to his home this week.

Mrs. Amanda Rambo, of Alexandria, who has been spending some time with Miss May Garrison, returned to her home on Wednesday.

A number of Thoroughfare folk attended an entertainment at Waterfall school Friday evening.

Miss Ethel Griffith, of Washington, and Miss Annie Griffith, of Manassas, spent the week-end at their home here.

Special Meeting at Gainesville, May 8, 1929, at 8 o'clock p. m. in the School Building.

A meeting will be held at the time and place mentioned above for the purpose of securing further subscriptions to the Warrenton and Fairfax Turpentine Company, in order to complete the work on the road between Ball Run bridge and Haymarket. Hon. E. Walton Moore and Judge Latham Fletcher have been requested to speak on this occasion.

Dr. E. D. E. CLARKSON, Engineer.

IN WHICH WE INTRODUCE "ANN"

Now you will want to know who "Ann" is and just to show you there's nothing mean about us we are going to tell you. Draw closer.

It's anticipation!
[We have anticipated your wants this year by getting in a nice bumper crop of Martha Washington candy. Now it doesn't matter whether her name is "Ann" or "Another"—get right with her and take her a box.]
[Then "Ann" is also at our fountain. You can bring your "Ann" here and buy her the best drink in the world.]
[But "Ann" has been working overtime in the whole arrangement of our store. We have painted and decorated until she's spick and span. Now come on in and let us hear those cheering words.]
[Get acquainted with "Ann".]

"The Men Who Come Back"

This isn't the name of a play; it's what we base our business on. Our ambition is to give you such good values every time you buy here you'll "come back for more."

That's why we sell such good lines:
Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes,
Walk-Over Shoes, Stetson and Knox
Hats, Interwoven Socks, Arrow
Shirts and Collars. It means more business for us; it means greater economy for you.

You'll see the economy in the service they give. If you don't you get your money back.
