OLD SCHOOL DAYS WERE RECALLED

Many Former Pupils of Hickory Grove School Spend Day With Venerable Teacher.

The Hickory Grove school house and grounds were the scene of a unique and memorable gathering on Saturday last when the pupils of Mr. Charles E. Skinner gathered from far and near to pay loving respects to their teacher and renew their youth amid scenes and memories of bygone school days. One of the most remarkable features of the gathering was the presence of pupils from his first school and from his last, ranging in ages from twenty to sixty years of age.

The Hickory Grove school is perhaps the second oldest public school in Prince William and one of the first established in the state after the Civil War, having been in continuous operation for about half a century. Mr. Skinner taught in this building for fifteen of the forty or more years of his faithful service as a teacher at this and other schools in Northern Virginia.

Mr. Skinner is a hale and hearty old Virginia gentleman, just eighty years young. He entered into the program with keen interest and enthusiasm, lending himself to the occasion with the spirit that made such a success of his years of teaching, and that endeared himself to his old pupils.

When the Hickory Grove Patrons' League conceived this get-together day they builded better than they knew. The details, as worked out by this organization, made the affair one that will never be forgotten by those who were so fortunate as to be present.

Mr. Skinner, as in days of old, commenced the day with "come to books" and in a moment the schoolroom was filled with school boys and girls, many of whom have become fathers and mothers—say, even grandfathers and grandmothers—since they previously obeyed that call. Then, as if by some touch of magic, the scroll of time was rolled back and again they were boys and girls, in thought, word and deed.

The old recitations were called for, the old "pieces" were said, as the names were called and the trembling scholars one after another stepped upon the platform. There was an un-depicted of tears that made this part of the day all the more impressive, making impossible any thought of levity.

Then followed an arithmetic lesson by the white class, reading and an old fashioned spelling match.

Noon recess soon came, and with it a picnic lunch down in the grove. The social side of the repeat was as enjoyable to the old scholars as the delicious food. After this, a baseball game was played between the married men and single ones, in which the latter won after a very exciting struggle. Thus ended the program.

The invitations, which were sent out to so many of the old scholars as could be located, were responded to in a remarkable way. Many came from long distances and went away deeply touched, deeply thankful that they could thus renew their youth and mingle again with their oldest friends, and pay loving respects to their beloved teacher.

Among the numerous pupils who came from a distance were: Mr. R. Taylor Purcell, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. Hansen B. Tyler and Mr. Benj. C. Tyler, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. R. Conway Taylor, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. T. Ramsey Taylor, of Norfolk; Mrs. George Norman and Mr. Albert R. Weir, of Washington, D. C.; Col. Robt. A. Hutcheson and Mrs. E. M. Weir, of Manassas; Mrs. Eva Hunt Cross, of Waxpool, and Mr. Thomas B. Hutchison, of U. S. M. C., Quantico.

As a forerunner to a big drop in sugar which Philadelphia retail grocers declare to be imminent, the W. J. McCahan Sugar Refining Company announced recently a 2 1/2 cent reduction in the wholesale price.

On the other hand, sugar that was purchased by retail distributors not many weeks ago for 25 and 26 cents a pound, is now being sold at 21 cents a pound.

In other words, according to Edwin Hutcheson, of the firm of Hutcheson Bros., retail grocers, "a sugar panic" is imminent in Philadelphia, and as a result, retail grocers of Philadelphia are now in the process of "swallowing a bitter pill."

"Several months ago" he said, "everyone was made to believe that sugar was scarce and the price was commensurate with the alleged scarcity. That was turning the canning

EDITOR ORANGE PAPER IS SIGNALLY HONORED

Miss Bertha Robinson Appointed Delegate to International Congress of Women.

Miss Bertha Gray Robinson, editor of the Orange Observer, has been appointed a delegate to the International Congress of Women which will hold its quinquennial session in Christiania, Norway, in September. There are only twenty-nine delegates appointed from this country to officially represent 13,000,000 women. The United States government will furnish them credentials which will give them official entry to the government of each country they visit. The trip will occupy a period of three months.

The American delegates will be received and entertained by the King and Queen of Italy, Queen Maud of Norway and Lady Aberdeen in England. They will tour the battle fields of France by auto, and the Council of Women will officially entertain them in each country.

This is a distinctive honor not only for Orange county, but for the state of Virginia.—Culpeper Exponent.

Miss Robinson paid The Journal a fraternal visit Wednesday while in attendance upon the Prince William fair.

MILTON BOOKWOOD TAKES LIFE

Valued Employee of Barrett Farm Despondent Over Ill Health.

Despondency over ill health is supposed to have been the reason why Milton T. Bookwood, thirty-one years old, employed by Mr. John E. Barrett about one and one-half miles north of Manassas, took his life Monday morning about 11:30.

For some time Mr. Bookwood had been complaining. Monday morning he did not go to work, stating that he was feeling badly. Shortly before noon he went to his room in the tenant house and within a few minutes after entering, it is thought, he shot himself. The fatal wound was inflicted by a revolver ball, which entered the breast.

Mr. Bookwood is survived by his father, and two brothers, residing at "Sunnybrook," the Barrett farm, and two sisters living in Washington. Interment was at Antioch at noon Wednesday, the services being conducted by Rev. T. M. Browne, of Haymarket. Mr. Barrett spoke most highly of Mr. Bookwood, proclaiming him a fine young man whose services he will greatly miss.

BOY MISSING FROM HOME

The newspapers of this state are being asked to help to locate Manning A. Tros, 17, missing from his home in Ithaca, N. Y., since June 6. He is said to be a boy of good habits and it is thought probably he was lured away by advertisements of big wages being paid boys. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, dark, weighs about 135, plays clarinet and cannot well enough to take a position in a band or orchestra. His father, A. E. Tros, of Ithaca, N. Y., or his aunt, Mrs. A. T. Hoyt, of Moravia, N. Y., will be grateful for any information concerning him.

Bethel Home Reopens Club Meets

(Mabel L. Fairbanks, Reporter)
The Bethel Agricultural and Home Economics Club met Saturday, August 14th.

The club was called to order by the club leader. It opened by singing a club song. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll called. Before the business was transacted Miss Gilbert gave some helps about the fair. Then plans were made and committees appointed for the lawn party, which is to be held September 4. The club then sang "Auld Lang Syne" and adjourned to meet September 11.

—Polley, the Human Fly, true to advance notices, found the scaling of the front wall of the Masonic Temple Thursday evening, mere child's play. Despite the rain, a large crowd assembled to see the young man, who happens to be a native of Richmond, give evidence of his ability to climb straight up with no other toe and hand holds than afforded by the surface of even the smoothest walled buildings. His chatty comment while performing drew forth much applause. After completing his climb of the Masonic Temple, he climbed the flag pole over the post office building. Later, at the Dixie Theatre, Polley showed moving pictures of himself, as he climbed the 45-story Woolworth building and other skyscrapers in New York City.

TWO FINE TALKS FEATURE PICNIC

National and State Presidents Urge Farmers Thoroughly Organize—Big Crowd.

What is accredited as the greatest gathering of farmers ever witnessed in this county took place Saturday at the courthouse, when the Prince William Farmers' Union held their annual picnic. C. S. Barrett, of Georgia, national president, and A. B. Thornhill, state president, were the speakers.

The session was an all-day one. In the morning Mr. Thornhill delivered a very able address on "Farmer's Organization," in which he pictured very clearly why farmers should organize.

Mr. Thornhill said that when we speak of the "farmer" we refer to the thirteen million people who produce the $15,000,000,000 worth of foodstuffs for the 110 million in this country. "The trouble is," he said, "that these producers get only 40 per cent of what the consumer pays. There are five toll gates that take about 51 per cent of the consumer's dollar, with another 9 per cent which may be classed as necessary expense—freight, etc. Who is going to take down these toll gates?"

"The farmer is spoken of as being conservative, but he is more trifling than conservative, for he allows himself to work for a 40 cent dollar when others are paid the 100 cent dollar. The farmer has been so busy producing food for the world that he has not concerned himself with the other part.

"You should figure the cost of your product, including taxes, etc., and let the consumer pay this. And the other fellow should figure his cost and you pay on that basis. Isn't that fair? You farmers will squirm and assert your individual liberty if asked to pay $5 to aid in an organization that works for a fair division of what is in business.

"The Farmers' Union is now beyond the experimental stage. Last year it did over $200,000,000 worth of business—only about 5 per cent of the farmers are organized. It has statutes for the beneficial welfare of the farmer as the direct result of farmers' organizations.

"If the farmer does not get active and organize an undue proportion of this country's $20,000,000,000 world war debt will be saddled upon him. He must be organized to meet effectively this and many other weighty problems that will soon arise."

At noon the contents of the bountiful baskets provided by the farmers' wives were spread over long tables on the court green and all did ample justice to the great variety of delicious food. Lemonade and ice cream were served liberally by the committee in charge.

The address of Mr. Barrett, which followed the picnic dinner, was a very forceful one. His subject was, "The Temple of Agriculture." He said that organized labor, with one tenth the numbers, got what they wanted; that the farmer has his salvation in his own hands, and he can work it out only through organized effort.

"Every other interest is organized but the farmer. Because of his diversity of interests he is slow to organize; but he must. The man who feeds the world should have the best instead of taking what the other fellows choose to give him.

"The National Chamber of Commerce, the leading organization of the country's business men, is building a large building in Washington. The farmers, too, have bought a building in Washington for national headquarters, for the small sum of $67,500 and it is not all paid for, though this is a small affair compared to what other organizations are doing.

"You ask 'What has the Farmers' Union done?' It has done much and has much yet to do. It has been worth a thousand times the cost. It brought the parcel post. Through just one exchange—that at Omaha—$32,000,000 worth of eggs has been handled. The Seattle, Wash., exchange during the last year transacted $20,000,000 of business for its members."

The various details in connection with the program were well arranged for and carried out, and much credit for the big success of the picnic is due those who were in charge.

FAIR CONTINUES FOR FOURTH DAY

Exhibits of Second Annual Acclaimed Highly Creditable—Fine Cattle.

Highly creditable for a county of all the capabilities of Prince William, is the unanimous tribute paid the second annual county fair, which opened Wednesday and which, due to yesterday's inclement weather, will continue through tomorrow (Saturday).

Perhaps the most impressive exhibit, of the many good ones, is that of beef cattle. One accustomed to attending the best of county and even state fairs must give the Prince William Fair Association praise for the fine cattle exhibited. The showing is varied and the individual entries are of uniformly high grade.

Nearly is a good exhibit of dairy cattle, a branch of farming that has received careful attention in this county during the past few years, and which is destined to grow healthily, if the entries in this class are any indication of what the average farmer is working to.

A small but well selected exhibit of sheep and a very good collection of hogs show what the county is capable of in these directions.

The calves and pigs shown by Prince William boys and girls, members of the county clubs, speak volumes for the greater interest taken in agriculture by the young people of this section of the state since this highly constructive work was inaugurated.

In agriculture and domestic science, the exhibits show decided improvement over last season. Fine specimens of corn, wheat and other grains attest Prince William's adaptability to general farming, while the splendid exhibits of household products leave little room for improvement by the capable housewife of the county.

Years of constructive work on the part of state and county agents who have recognized this section of the state as being especially adapted to poultry raising, show in the fine pens and individual birds. There are also a few hutches of rabbits, one box of Belgian kittens and a Chagton fox, to lend additional variety to the exhibit of animal life.

In addition to the exhibits of farm products, machinery and articles that contribute to the profit or pleasure of farm life, the fair visitor is shown a fine array of horses, which make the horse show feature of the Fair of decided prominence. For many years the Prince William Horse Show was one of the leading outdoor events of Northern Virginia, and lovers of beautiful horses look upon this part of the Fair program as of unusual interest.

And the amusement side has not been slighted in the least. There is Dufour and Tibford's Midway, with merry-go-round near the entrance gate; the daily trapeze stunts of the "Flying Moores"; Una, a clever dog, and his master, who dive from a great height into a small tank of water; the nightly display of fireworks, and exhibitions of sensational riding by U. S. Cavalry troops from Fort Myer. A good band lends a festive air to the daily program.

Owing to yesterday's rain, scoring in a number of departments, has been considerably delayed. A complete report of prize winners will appear in next week's issue.

For the well balanced and representative exhibits, and the general excellence of Prince William's second annual fair, credit must be given to all those who have labored faithfully for its success—particularly to President E. Lynn Robertson, Secretary H. W. Saunders and Prince William Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Lillian V. Gilbert.

Mrs. W. Fowell Merchant was the hostess at a delightful afternoon bridge party Saturday at her residence in Battle street, in honor of Miss Dorothy Johnson. Four tables of bridge were played and later food refreshments were served. Highest score honors were won by Miss Johnson and Mrs. Colin Herrie. Among the guests were Miss Johnson, Miss Louisa O'Callaghan, Miss Amelia Brown, Miss Daisy Brown, Miss Frances Lott, Miss Mary Larkin, Miss Elizabeth Larkin, Miss Maxine Stoofer, Miss Maude Sherlock, Mrs. V. V. Gillum, Mrs. Howard W. Jamison, Mrs. Colin Herrie, Mrs. T. E. Dillake, Mrs. A. Stuart Gibson, Mrs. ...

TELLING US SOMETHING
 As the Washington Post, in its editorial comment Wednesday on Secretary of War Baker's speech at Columbus this week, sets forth, "the average American regards himself as fairly well posted on the history of the United States during the past six years. He will hear with astonishment Secretary Baker's assertion that the chief reason why the United States went to war was to secure the league of nations." To quote Mr. Baker in part:
 "President Wilson was true to the best thought of the highest minds in history when he proclaimed the league of nations as the great object of the war." "The President's program" has repeatedly been denounced to the people of the United States; and in the frankest and most conclusive way stated to the Congress of the United States as the very basis of the whole participation of America, both in the war and in the peace to be concluded at its end."
 This is indeed news. If our recollection at all coincides with the facts, we were told prior to and for months after America's entrance into the European conflict, that it was necessary that we wage war against Germany to preserve the Nation's honor and to cut the Hun low in his path leading to world-wide conquest. This was the line of appeal shouted to us from bulletin boards, posters, advertisements. To the accomplishment of this end we were begged to invest in Liberty bonds.

As we recall it, the talk about a league of nations started in a very feeble way about the time the President laid down the much discussed fourteen points as the basis on which a peace settlement would be considered.

How many of our boys, who made the supreme sacrifice on the fields of France, died, as Secretary Baker so eloquently pictures, as asking "Is it worth while? and smiled thinking of the future his sacrifice was helping to build, a finer future?" How many of us who through business and family ties stayed at home, during the period of active conflict, felt, as Mr. Baker says we felt, that "it was the great inspiration of America that when peace came it should be assured and protected by a league of nations." You know and we know that the war was fought primarily to put the German war machine out of commission. That was the big job before us then—and we should not fail to recall that fact when the league of nations advocates draw in magnified proportions what slim attention was given the league notion prior to November 11, 1918.

If Secretary Baker's address could really be based on historic facts, as the Post remarks, "it would have made a powerful lever in forcing the United States into the league of nations."

Do we want the league essentially as it stands, with a good measure of reservations or not at all? This, one of the greatest questions ever put to the American people, should receive widespread discussion and most careful deliberation prior to that November election day when the solemn referendum will be taken.

THE BIG AND LITTLE ONE-DOLLAR BILL

There was once a one dollar bill that started out to see the world. It went first to a bank where it only stayed a few days before it was taken away by an old man, who kept it until he died. It then fell into the hands of the old man's only son, who only kept it a few days before he passed it on to a pretty girl who handed him his hat, when he came out from dinner at a big hotel. The girl bought a pair of silk stockings with it (that was some years ago) at a big department store, and the cashier there put it in an envelope with a five dollar bill, and on Saturday night gave it to a sad faced, pale little girl, who worked behind a counter for ten hours, six days, each week. The girl took it home and gave it to her mother who was unable to work, and the mother took it to a grocery store that night, and there she bought a dozen eggs for fifteen cents, a pack of potatoes for twenty cents, a loaf of bread for a nickel, a pound of coffee for twelve cents, a pound of good beef for fifteen cents, a pound of sugar for six cents, a half a pound of good butter for ten cents, a big head of cabbage for five cents, and then she went into a next door dry goods store and with the change she bought a pair of stockings for twelve cents. The one dollar bill on Monday was sent by the grocery man to a bank, and there it lay for about five years, when it was taken away by a thrifty housewife.

housewife one day took it down to market to help her out on her Saturday marketing. She gave it to the market man for six cold-storage eggs, marked "Fresh," and with the fifty cents change he gave her she bought a pound of near-butter. The market man, who was noted for being religious, put the bill in the collection plate on Sunday, as it was so badly torn and greasy stained he was afraid it would be hard to pass on to his customers, and on account of its appearance the church treasurer laid it aside and gave it to the janitor in his next pay envelope, and the janitor, considering it of so little value, gingerly threw it into the furnace, through fear of contracting some disease from it on account of its dirty, greasy look.

Hay, Grain and Feed
 Mr. Farmer, much of your success this year depends on the way you treat your stock. Don't let the price worry you, but become a "crank" about quality, and demand it. A cheap feed in price may be very expensive in results. Let us fill your requirements with a product of quality, and insure you against an unsuccessful year.

FAMOUS OLD CAVERNS RE-OPENED SATURDAY

Subterranean Wonderland at New Market Is Now Ready for All Visitors.

Certainly our native state, Virginia, has not been slighted when it comes to the possession of beautiful scenery and great natural wonders. The awe-inspiring reaches and vastness of Natural Bridge, the high conical heights of the Peaks of Otter, the amazing underground wonders of the Luray Caverns, these and more did the great Master of Creation give to the Old Dominion when he went to distribute the rarest gems of his handiwork.

And now we are brought to realize the presence of another such beauty and wonder of nature within the confines of our state, and what is more as far as we are concerned, within the confines of our own county of Shenandoah, the "Endless Caverns" at New Market, Va. For some time past work has been going on preparing the caverns for the eyes of the visitor and Saturday, August 14, the caverns were formally opened to the public. Many people journeyed to New Market on Saturday to visit the caverns and all who visited found them no less wonderful than the thousands who made their pilgrimages to the same subterranean wonderland forty years ago.

The Southern News Bulletin has the following to say of the caverns:

After having been closed for thirty years, the marvelous "Endless Caverns" of New Market, Va., situated about five miles from the Southern Railway station at New Market on the Manassas-Harrisonburg line of the Washington division, are again open to tourist travel. Walkways have been constructed and electric lights installed so that visitors can view the beauties of these caverns in comfort and safety.

This subterranean wonderland was discovered in 1879 and was visited by thousands in the 80's. Among the points of interest to be seen on the three-mile circuit are the miniature Diamond Lake, Alpine Pass and Cleopatra's Jewel Box. Guides are on hand who are thoroughly familiar with the many beautiful scenes to be found.

In preparing the "Endless Caverns" for the reception of the public, the present owners have been careful to avoid the introduction of any material which would mar the natural beauty. Special attention was given to the lighting system which has been arranged so that the caverns are flooded with light while no wires, bulbs or fixtures are in sight.—Woodstock Times.

MALARIA FEVER SPREADS EASILY

Victim Should Take Prescribed Treatment and Remain in Well Screened Room.

In the good old days a man's malaria was supposed to be his own individual property. Nobody else had a thing in the world to do with his particular chills and fever. If he preferred to shake and quake rather than rid himself of malaria by means of unlimited quinine doses, it was his own affair.

That theory has gone the way of many others connected with our so-called "personal liberty," and science declares that the man with malaria may be as dangerous a menace as the one with typhoid fever of small-pox. For, while malaria may be transmitted only through the bite of the anopheles mosquito of the female persuasion, it is quite certain that Mrs. Anopheles cannot transmit the malaria "bug" until she has first imbibed it while feasting on the blood of a person already harboring the germs. Hence, it becomes the duty of the individual already affected to rid himself of malaria by systematic quinine dosage, full particulars of which may be had free from the State Board of Health, at the same time keeping himself from becoming a source of infection by sleeping in an effectively-screened room.

Excessive rains of the past few weeks have created conditions especially favorable for the breeding of mosquitoes and health workers look for an early and substantial increase in the number of malaria cases in a considerable part of the State unless prompt preventive measures are taken. Every place or container, from a tin can to a small-sized lake, where stagnant water is found should either be drained or oiled. Mosquitoes breed anywhere that stagnant water remains ten days or more. A tin-can's output may inoculate a neighborhood. An unscreened rain barrel will produce tens of thousands within a month's time. A neglected gutter will lay a man flat on his back when he ought to be harvesting the corn-crop.

Dr. Emmon G. Williams, State Health Commissioner, urges that careful survey be made of all premises, both in town and country, for possible breeding places of the mosquito, with the view to draining such places as far as may be possible. Where stagnant ponds or pools exist, which it is not immediately practicable to drain, a few cents' worth of kerosene oil will be found sufficient to meet the situation. An ounce of oil to fifteen square feet of surface, renewed each fortnight from now on until frost, will make it unavailable for a mosquito hatchery. In addition to drainage and oiling, every home should be adequately screened, keeping the neighbors' malaria from the home by barring the carrier out.

He Lived and Learned

"Bob Currier! By all that's sacred! Where have you concealed yourself these many moons?"
"Hospital, Billy. And say it certainly is good to be out and around again."
"What was the trouble?"
"Oh, the doctors called it some name with nine syllables and a sneeze, but it was nothing more than a clogging of the intestines. The stuff wouldn't move and it was poisoning me—breeding disease."
"What did they do to you?"
"Why, they were all set to operate for appendicitis. The food waste had accumulated in the large intestine where the appendix is. I had bad pains. Tried to cure them with salts. That only shook my system—flushed it hard—and left that poisonous waste there, dryer and harder than ever. Taking a purgative when you're like that is about the same as driving a car up a hill to clean the carbon out of the cylinders; you only make a bad matter worse."
"You said something."
"Finally the doctor said, 'We'll see if we can't move that obstruction naturally before we operate. I don't want to operate unless it's absolutely necessary.'"
"He put me to bed and tried me out on Nujol. Believe me, there was certainly an anxious period of waiting for 'your turn'. But Nujol proved the goods. It softened that dry mass, moved it on, and after a while I began to be regular."
"Great stuff! How does this Nujol work, anyway?"
"On an entirely new principle. Instead of forcing or irritating the system, it simply softens the food waste. This helps all those little muscles along the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along so that it passes naturally out of the system. It prevents constipation because it helps Nature maintain thorough bowel movements at regular intervals, which is certainly the best habit I know of. And besides that, it's absolutely harmless and pleasant to take."
"Say—that's just what I've been needing. I've been taking pills and salts for months and getting worse all the time. Jump in and we'll buy a bottle of Nujol right now. Me for that, beginning tonight."

Nujol is sold by all druggists in sealed bottles only, bearing the Nujol trade mark. Write the Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 20 Broadway, New York, for booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger."

A family car without an equal in low cost of operation and maintenance. We solicit your order for one. We have the full line of Ford cars. Special Notice To Farmers

One of the most important things ever done by the Agricultural Experiment Station of North Carolina was a test to determine if National Hog Remedy has any value to the Farmer. A bulletin issued about June first tells that in a series of tests some figures were brought out that are startling.

Fifteen pigs of similar weight were bought for a test that was continued at the Raleigh test farm 83 days. One lot of these pigs were given National Hog Remedy and another lot was given the same feed but no remedy.

In the lot where the National Hog Remedy was given the hogs gained .70 of a pound each. In the lot where nothing was given but the feed the hogs gained only .47 of a pound.

Two hogs on National Hog Remedy increased in weight on the same ration as much as three hogs did without it.

Furthermore this test showed and stated that by using National Hog Remedy a saving was realized of approximately $9.00 on each hundred pounds increase in live weight.

National Hog Remedy is sold by all dealers at One Dollar a package. In case your dealer cannot supply you kindly send us your name and we will see you get it. We do not use a filler to enlarge the package and we use high grade chemicals only.

National Hog Remedy removes Intestinal and Kidney Worms.

IF YOU NEED HARDWARE OR FURNITURE
BUY NOW—PRICES ARE ADVANCING

For the past two years many folks have been waiting for prices to drop. They have put off purchasing needed articles that we sell, in the expectation that a little later the cost would be less. But these people have suffered continuous disappointment.

With the demand for steel, hard woods and related materials greater than ever, and with the increased freight rates becoming effective next week, prices on hardware and furniture are destined to go still higher. Latest quotations from manufacturers show considerable advance over July prices.

Is not the present, therefore, THE time to buy, if you need anything we sell?

COAL, LUMBER AND BUILDING MATERIALS

A SENSIBLE INVESTMENT

The most sensible way to invest your money is to keep your property in good condition and to have a home which will make your family comfortable and other buildings which will properly house your belongings.

You get the direct benefit from money invested in this way from day to day, in addition to the actual increase in the value of your property.

There have been some reductions in the price of lumber by the mills and we are reducing our prices to meet these, regardless of the cost of the different items we have in stock.
