

What Is Wilsonism?

(This editorial originally appeared in "The Philadelphia Record" of September 14.)

Republican organs and orators are telling us that the country has had enough Wilsonism. The duty of the hour is to save the American people from a coitus of Wilsonism. To that end a republican president must be elected. Only thus can a radical change of policy be effected. Down with Wilsonism!

The cry has a plausible sound. But the term is pregnant with undefined meaning. Those who seek to rally the country against Wilsonism do not tell the country what Wilsonism is. They impart to the word, by the context of their partisan appeals, a vague and terrifying significance. Upon the ears of the unthinking it falls with an import of menace to the national welfare and assault upon the sacred rights of the individual citizen.

What is Wilsonism? What evils has it brought upon the nation? In what calamities does it threaten to engulf us? The republican proposal to destroy it is a negation which cannot be clearly understood until we receive a positive perception. Let us examine Wilsonism to determine exactly what it is from which we are to be saved.

"The Record" might declare with unalloyed truth that Wilsonism is the introduction of morality, in its broadest sense, into government. Wilsonism is the practical and triumphant application of progressive principles to politics. Wilsonism is the constructive promotion of the just interests of the many at the expense of the unjust privileges of the few. Wilsonism is unparalleled devotion to the welfare of humanity at home and abroad. Wilsonism is the faithful performance of solemn pledges to an aspiring people. Wilsonism is the ungrudging sacrifice of health, happiness, popularity, and it may well be life itself, to the service of thankless and unappreciative millions. In its broader application to international affairs, Wilsonism is an idealistic effort to Christianize Christianity.

Down with Wilsonism and its proponents! Aye, crucify him!

Our republican contemporaries may criticize this outline sketch of Wilsonism as mere assertion. They can pick flaws in the President's character which show us to be blind and idolatrous hero-worshippers. The fowl on under fencerall looks toward a magnificent landscape. A broad green valley, rich with the bounty of Nature, stretches away before him. Through it purrs a crystal stream. A lofty mountain, clad with stately pines, rears its head in the distance, bathed in golden sunlight. Does the fowl see these glories of God's handiwork? No; his perspective does not embrace them. His attention is concentrated upon a dung-hill.

Those who want to save America from Wilsonism will tell us that the President is cold, reserved, self-opinionated, egotistical, autocratic. Without inquiring into the truth of these indictments, let us analyze Wilsonism and see what it has done for the country. Its opponents do not dwell upon concrete facts. It may help the seeker after truth—if such there be in the partisan-mob which has constituted itself into a lynching party—to catalogue a few:

It was Wilsonism that promised justly to revise a tariff enacted for the enrichment of entrenched special interest—a tariff that a republican president denounced as iniquitous even while he was signing it—and did it. Wilsonism destroyed a discredited banking system under which panics were artificially created for the benefit of special interest and replaced it with a system which Wall Street cannot manipulate for the purpose of undermining public credit.

It was Wilsonism that devised and submitted to the States a system of taxation which distributed the burden not in proportion to the power of wealth and influence to dodge it but in proportion to ability to bear it as gauged by income the only practical measure of just taxable capacity.

Wilsonism gave to the worker the Anti-Injunction law, the eight-hour day, the act for the safety of railway employees, the Workmen's Compensation act and the Seaman's law.

Wilsonism gave to the farmer the Good Roads act, the Rural Credits act, the Warehouse act, the Grain-Grades act, the act to prevent gambling in farm products and the Agricultural Extension act.

Wilsonism submitted to the States the constitutional amendment which enables the voters to select their United States Senators; abolished bossism in the House of Representatives and passed the Clayton act to curb the power of the Trusts.

Wilsonism kept the United States out of the world war until it became clearly apparent that the lesser danger was between barbarism and civilization and that without our help civilization must perish. Wilsonism kept us out of war until the conscience of the nation was aroused and the people were ready for the sacrifice.

It was Wilsonism that gave concrete expression to the purpose of the war; Wilsonism that framed in words the thought in every patriot's heart; Wilsonism that supplied the moral stamina which keyed America up to the point of tremendous and unparalleled achievement; Wilsonism that aroused the weary, staggering world to fresh effort, lifted Europe from the abyss of dismay and despair, and spurred democracy on to victory.

It was Wilsonism that prevented America from resorting to the futile expedient of raising a volunteer army officered by incompetent politicians, and compelled reluctant traders and tricksters to adopt principles of fairness and efficiency through the Selective Service act. It was Wilsonism that built 22 encampments each to house 40,000 men, in 90 days. Wilsonism that raised in a peace-loving country 5,000,000 armed men, and transported 2,000,000 of them across the ocean in an incredibly brief period to roll back the German hordes.

Wilsonism raised $37,000,000,000 for the prosecution of the war, and expended $27,000,000,000 of it (the remainder being lent to the Allies) with such scrupulous honesty that after devoting $2,000,000 of public money to futile investigation partisan snooping committees were unable to unearth a single instance of corruption or graft. Oh, yes, there was waste. When lives were worth more than money, when victory was dependent on haste, when science moved faster than the almost superhuman speed of production, and forced new inventions into obsolescence, when speed was at an incredible premium there was waste. But it will become the party which conducted the Spanish-American war to mention it. If there had been no waste there would have been no victory. Wilsonism is human, not divine.

Wilsonism—selfish, arrogant, partisan Wilsonism, which robbed the republican party of the glory of the war—placed General John J. Pershing, a republican, the son-in-law of Senator Warren, a republican enemy of the administration, in command of the American Expeditionary Forces. Wilsonism placed Admiral Sims, a lifelong republican, in high command of naval operations in the danger zone.

Wilsonism put Howard E. Coffin, republican, in charge of aircraft production; E. R. Stettinius, republican, in the War Department in charge of supplies; Major General Goodell, republican, in charge of shipping; Major General E. H. Crowder, republican, in charge of the draft. Wilsonism made a republican, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff of the United States army. Wilsonism turned control of the Emergency Fleet Corporation over to Charles M. Schwab and Charles Pies, republicans. H. P. Davison, republican, headed the Red Cross; Frank A. Vanderlip, republican, was placed in charge of the War Savings Stamp campaign; Harry A. Garfield, republican and son of a republican President, was made Fuel Administrator; Herbert Hoover, republican, was appointed Food Administrator. Of eight members of the War Trade Board Wilsonism appointed five republicans, and it gave five out of eight places in the Council of National Defense to republicans. Republicans seem to have had a very fair share of the places of honor, trust and responsibility in the military and civil tasks incident to the prosecution of the war, but that did not control the Senate or the House. DOWN WITH WILSONISM!

Wilsonism undermined German morale. The Wilson notes, both prior to and following our entrance into the war—the butts of unthinking partisan scorn and derision at home—sapped the foundations of German militarism, until finally the whole edifice crumbled into dust. The German army, beaten to earth by the sledgehammer blows of America and her associates in the field, looked homeward for moral and material support and found that the forces upon which it relied had caved in. Wilsonism had destroyed German faith that might makes right.

Wilsonism carried to Paris a new creed of international faith embodying the highest aspirations of the best elements of the American people, without distinction of party—a program approved, before it was made an issue of politics, by many leaders who are now, for selfish reasons masked in a cloak of pseudo-patriotism, its bitterest enemies. Wilsonism, single-handed, but backed by the world's conscience, crammed this creed down the throats of unwilling European statesmen who had hoped to set up on the smoking ruins another edifice based on a concert of power, secret diplomacy and military supremacy.

HARDING IN ANOTHER HOLE

In the reckless statements to which he is given, in the duplicitous role he is pursuing, in a frenzied attempt to stay the tide of support that has set in for the democratic ticket, Senator Harding has seriously compromised himself before the public by misrepresenting the attitude of France toward the league of nations, of which it is a member.

The predicament in which the Senator has placed himself grows out of a speech made at Greencastle, Ind., in which he made the statement that he had been approached informally by a representative of France, who asked that the United States lead the way for an association of nations. The purpose of this statement was manifest on its face. It sought to convey the impression to the voters of this country that France was dissatisfied with the present league and was willing to abandon it for the proposed Harding plan of a new "world association" as more acceptable to the French nation than the existing league. Further, it implied that a foreign nation had committed the grave impropriety of violating the rules of international intercourse by thus informally approaching a private citizen over the head of his government to effect an understanding regarding a foreign policy to be pursued in the future.

Needless to say, President Wilson was shocked at the extraordinary inference to be drawn from such a statement of French disregard for international obligation, and he immediately addressed a letter of inquiry to Senator Harding seeking to ascertain if he had been correctly quoted in the statement attributed to him. To this inquiry the republican nominee has given out a statement in which, pursuing his customary role of evasion of the plain import of his utterances, he "crawls" as to that portion of his language which conveyed the impression that he had been approached by a representative of the French government. To the extent that the published report of his speech did not make clear that he was approached by a spokesman representative of French sentiment, rather than of the French government, he denies its accuracy. Otherwise, he insists upon the correctness of his statement.

That the whole purport of his statement was conceived in wicked intent to mislead the American public as to the attitude of France toward its obligations as a member of the league, for the purpose of influencing votes for the republican ticket, is plain. But the action of the President in promptly calling him to account has the effect of bringing clearly before the public the disgraceful tactics to which the G. O. P. and its candidate are resorting to prejudice sentiment against the league in the hope of winning the election. The episode is proving a tremendous boomerang, and in the revulsion of popular feeling means an enormous gain in support for the democratic ticket.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

"VIRGINIA'S NEW HOUR"

There is being shown over the state a five-reel feature film called "Virginia's New Hour." It is a pictorial story of the Commonwealth's social and material progress and it is told for the purpose of contrasting this progress with the striking lack of progress in its development of highways. No Virginian should miss this place of inspired propaganda. It has a message for every voter. It gives body and spirit to a movement that began with the special good roads session of the General Assembly, and which will be carried forward to its consummation if the voters register a favorable verdict at the polls on November 2.

Two successive legislatures have approved an amendment to Section 124 of the Constitution enlarging the debt-contracting ability of the state so as to enable it to issue bonds for road construction and reconstruction of public roads. The General Assembly has done its part and it remains now for the people to do theirs. They must by their affirmative vote on November 2 approve the amendment or it fails.

It is to be borne in mind that the ratification of this amendment does not in advance commit the state to any bond issue. It merely makes such a bond issue possible when, in the judgment of the General Assembly and the Governor, it is needed. The authority to issue bonds for road construction purposes is possessed by every administrative subdivision of the Commonwealth, from the humblest county to the proudest city. The amendment merely clothes the state with the power to do collectively what it has always been doing through its counties, cities and towns—placing its credit to raise money for permanent improvements.

With the Constitution thus liberalized, Virginia will be able, as construction and material conditions improve, to take prompt advantage of them and to set in motion a highway improvement program that will provide the state with a network of trunk roads within an estimated six years. Bonds would be issued in amounts to match the federal aid funds as fast as they would become available, with proper provisions for interest payments and for a sinking fund that would retire them in twenty years. They would be issued only as needed and they would be retired as the fund provided for this purpose accumulates.

There is every reason why the voters of Virginia should approve the proposed amendment. It is capable of demonstration that a vast amount of wealth is lost to the state because of its impenetrability except by rail. Tens of thousands who start south in their touring cars are warned against going further when they get to Washington. Automobiles are loaded on freight cars to be shunted across Virginia in the night and unloaded again in North Carolina where hard-surfaced roads are bringing their certain reward. Few states in the union equal Virginia in natural beauty and none in the number and interest of her shrines of history. Virginia can become the California of the Atlantic Seaboard, but first it must have California's roads.—Virginia Good Roads Association.

SMITHFIELD

No rain has fallen here for nearly three weeks. The temperature continues warm and it is very dry and dusty. There has been no frost of consequence as yet. Crops and late pasturage are doing well though needing rain.

The school here is quite small now, on account of sickness, more than half of the children being out of school at this writing. Andrew Lee Holmes, who has been seriously ill at his grandfather's home here, is slowly improving. His little play fellows will be glad to have him with them again. Hilda Barnes, Vernice Posey and the small son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lonsford are also on the sick list. Mr. and Mrs. John Russell and family, of Minnieville, recently visited Mrs. Russell's parents here.

Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Colvin, of Washington, passed through here Saturday evening en route to their country farm at Catlett. They were accompanied by Miss Adine and Mr. Hazen Colvin.

Very few women of this vicinity have registered. National privileges do not seem to interest them.

Remember the all-day meeting at Independent Hill the fifth Sunday in October at the Primitive Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Keys motored to Washington Sunday.

Having sold my stock of merchandise all parties indebted to me are requested to come forward and settle. All accounts unpaid by November 1st will be turned over to my attorney for collection. T. M. Russell. 22-3

SHOWER GIVEN MISS CLARK

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Margaret Clark Saturday evening, October 2, at the home of Miss Ruth Smith. The diningroom was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and black and yellow paper, to represent Halloween.

Among the features of the occasion was the electric dome over the dining table, being shrouded with paper, and when the ribbon leading from each place was pulled the small packages showered down into Miss Clark's place. The gifts she received were of cut glass, silver and linen.

A musical program was rendered and delicious refreshments were served.

Among those present were Mesdames Barbour, Herrick, Hoof, Davis and Sprinkel, and Misses Daisie Hill Brown, Amelia Fontaine Brown, Virginia Lee, Julia Maloney, Louise Maloney, Katie Lewis, Georgia Herrick, Portia Moran and May Simpson.

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES

In its Peace time activities for our civilian population the Red Cross is doing as necessary and as effective a work as in its war service.

Last week, as a result of this, Florence Gardner, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mrs. Agnew Gardner, who lives near Kopp in this county, was placed in Memorial Hospital, Richmond. Here, under Dr. W. J. Graham, she will receive free treatment, and we believe her right arm, which for two years has been practically useless to her, will be treated and cured.

Several weeks ago with the cooperation of Mr. Robert A. Hutchison, we placed Mrs. Minnie Leadman permanently in the Institute for Feeble-minded at Madison Heights and her children at Ivakota Farm until suitable homes can be found for them.

Surely the Red Cross needs and deserves our liberal support, just as much as it did three years ago.—Mrs. W. L. Browning, Home Service Secretary.

BOARD OF REVIEW MEETING

The Local Board of Review of Prince William county, according to instructions from the Auditor, who is a member of the State Tax Board, will meet at the courthouse on October 26, to review the quinquennial assessment of land made by Mr. Van Keys in Colles and Dumfries districts. And on October 27, to review the assessment in Dumfries district. On these dates opportunity will be given to taxpayers who want to be heard as to their assessment.

While the law does not require the presence of members of the board of supervisors, the presence of any member of the board will be appreciated when their district is under review.

WESTWOOD HUTCHISON,
Chairman Local Board of Review.

CLIFTON

Rev. Thomas McLeod presided in the Presbyterian church at 11 a. m. Sunday. Mrs. Irwin and Miss McQuown, of Washington Presbyterian Society, were present. Miss McQuown talked to the Sunday School on Korea. At the afternoon meeting Mr. McLeod presided, introducing Mrs. Irwin after the devotional exercises.

Mrs. Irwin gave us some account of the missionary obligations of the past which had been fulfilled and those of the future to be fulfilled and urged the giving of time, money and above all prayers for the future missionary efforts.

Mrs. Irwin then introduced Miss McQuown. Her talk was on China and was interesting, giving us much knowledge of China's history, past and present, that was unknown to most if not all of her hearers. She had a native dress of a young Chinese girl of the higher cast. She dressed Miss Ruth Richards in this dress, which consisted of a blouse of beautiful blue silk made somewhat like the smock of today, except it had a high collar and belt; the collar and sleeves were edged with a narrow hand-made torchon lace; the sleeves, which were made wide at the bottom and a little short, had cream colored cuffs embroidered in soft colors. All the embroidery was hand-made; the long loose trousers were of the same blue silk the jacket was made of and on the trousers was a black skirt of a beautiful pattern of embroidered silk, with panels back and front lined with white and the sides were pleated. Then there came the shoes which were embroidered in blue, with leather soles and very low, broad heels.

After the meeting in the church, Mrs. Irwin and Miss McQuown left for Ivakota, where they made addresses. Mrs. Irwin gave a good talk on meeting our obligations and opportunities and told a beautiful story of how a worldly man had come back from his worldly life by a little boy giving him a cup of cold water, etc.

Miss McQuown spoke of the silk worn, telling how it had degenerated from a healthy, hardy worm of the forest to a nervous, delicate weakling, all through the extreme care taken of them in cultivation. She then gave the description of the Chinese costume, still worn by Miss Richards.

Mrs. Lizzie Buckley, of Basic City, is visiting relatives and friends here. Quite a number of the Clifton residents attended the fair. The school made quite a showing in the parade. While they did not carry off any prize, they were commended on in a creditable manner by the judges.

Lewis Quigg and Miss Miriam Buckley motored to Richmond last Thursday, coming back Monday, taking in the state fair. While in Richmond they were the guests of Miss Mary Quigg, who is a teacher in the Richmond schools.

Mr. Irwin Quigg is at home enjoying a week's vacation.

Lewis Ensor is home from the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathers are both still on the mend, especially Mrs. Mathers.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Woodyard are moving into their new home in the village, recently purchased from the Dorsey heirs.

The farmers are very busy cutting corn, sowing wheat and rye.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE

other dangerous drugs; by taking measures for the control and prevention of disease and by encouraging and assisting the work of the Red Cross.

Before closing I wish to take up and consider very briefly the criticisms against Article X of the League Covenant, and against Article III.

For purposes of reference, let us read Article X:

"The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all Members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall ADVISE upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

First of all, it must be noted that the League can act only in case of outside attacks on the territory or independence of its members. It has no power to act in cases of rebellion or revolution or Civil War. These are domestic affairs, matters which each nation must deal with inside its own borders. The League cannot interfere with the domestic or internal affairs of any nation. The peace of the world must first actually be threatened before the League can take action to preserve world order—the cardinal purpose of its formation.

It will be remembered that the League Council consists of nine members, representatives of the principal nations of the League, each of these nations having one vote. Now it is expressly stated in the League Constitution that this Council can take no action except by a unanimous vote. So it is seen that the only action the Council can take in the case of an outside attack upon the territory or independence of a member nation is to ADVISE action in fulfillment of the Covenant obligation. This would have to be unanimous. The representative of the United States would have to vote favorably with his eight colleagues to advise the use of force against an external aggressor before this advice could be sent out to any power. The Congress of the United States can accept this advice or reject it; as everyone knows, it is the only power in this country authorized by the Constitution to declare war. Surely Article X is nothing more than the Monroe Doctrine—a guarantee of sovereignty—applied to the whole world. When that great Doctrine was promulgated, alarmists predicted that it would involve us in continual warfare in defense of Central and South American states, who had no claim upon us. Yet the doctrine has stood for over a hundred years, and it has not been found necessary for us to take up arms once to preserve sovereign rights on the western hemisphere.

Article III is the one under which it is asserted by opponents of the League that Great Britain has six votes to one by the United States, because Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, and India are members of the League Assembly. But the Council and not the Assembly is the real governing body of the League. Here Great Britain has but one vote, none of her Dominions is a member. Even if they should be later admitted, all action must be by unanimous consent of the representatives of all the member nations, including the United States. Even in the Assembly all the nations of South America—Cuba, Haiti, Panama, Nicaragua, and the rest—have a vote. Does anyone suppose that these would dare to vote against the interests of their great northern neighbor, any more than Canada or Australia would vote against Great Britain? Counting them, as against Great Britain's six votes, we have twenty-six.

There has been much history written in the past four or five years. Not turning our backs upon that history or seeking an avenue of retreat, we should adopt a forward course as the only righteous one. Our dead upon the battlefields of France yet live and speak to us here in the Homeland, not of trivial things, but of immortal things. They bespeak for us reverence, and pity, and high resolve. They gather about our banners in a great spiritual force, calling up before us the services of the past, the sacrifices of war, and the hopes of the future. They lead the van of that great army of Americans who stand at the gateway of stopped progress, and knock, and cry in the words of the prophet:

"OPEN YE THE GATES, THAT THE RIGHTEOUS NATION WHICH KEEPETH THE TRUTH MAY ENTER IN." (Isa. 26:2.)

"Because You Seem Interested"

¶ This was the reply that a prominent business man gave, when asked why he had sent so much of his business to the Peoples National Bank.

¶ "I like your interested personal service," he said, "and feel that the officers and employees of your institution are endeavoring to facilitate each transaction. I am getting service that goes beyond the confines of mere business, and such service is of incalculable value to me."

¶ Perhaps, Mr. Business Man, this is the sort of service you require; and if you are not enjoying a connection with this bank, your account is cordially invited.

What is Wilsonism?

Wilsonism was handicapped in its efforts to achieve an enduring peace rather than a temporary makeshift by secret plotting and open reactionary defiance at home. Even while the President was struggling to commit European chancelleries to the embodiment of the League of Nations in the peace treaty, the treaty wreckers in the Senate strengthened the hands of lustful imperialism abroad by serving formal notice that the Senate would vote down ratification. Notwithstanding this backfire, Wilsonism emerged triumphant from the Paris conference. For the time being, the power of enlightened public opinion was victorious. The suffering peoples of Europe knew what they wanted; their rulers were afraid to deny it to them.

Wilsonism, having successfully prosecuted a war, which ended in a blaze of glory for American arms, thus successfully framed a peace which kept its solemn pledge to the people that the blood of American soldiers on the battlefields of France should not be spilled in vain. Down with Wilsonism and up with republicanism, which shamelessly proposes the repudiation of the nation's contract with the widow and the orphan, the halt, the lame and the blind!

Wilsonism has sought to lead this country along paths of justice and equity to moral heights which make dizzy the greedy, the selfish and the unscrupulous, whose material interests and illicit ambitions have suffered in the progress of the march. By tireless energy, forced on by an indomitable will, Wilsonism achieved a progressive program of domestic advancement in six years that outstrips the legislative record of any preceding generation. Unable to thwart it at home, the sinister forces that hanker for a return to the good old days of invisible government found a more promising field for their subterranean operations in the peace program of Wilsonism, and have thus far succeeded, at the expense of truth, decency, patriotism and honor, in halting it.

The probability is that the leaders of the Old Guard, the senate oligarchy, do not care a fig for the League of Nations one way or the other. Neither the ratification nor the rejection of the peace treaty would put a penny in their pockets or an additional place on their patronage roll. Their real interests are sordid. They have seen in the League Covenant a convenient means of humiliating and punishing the man to whom they owe the loss of their power as brokers and solicitors for Big Business in the legislative mart, and an easy instrument with which to delude and divert the people. And so, with the league as their putative objective, they raise the cry:

"Down with Wilsonism!"

By all means let us return to the good old days when the reactionaries rode roughshod over the popular will and controlled the making, the interpretation and the execution of one-sided laws. We cannot strike down the man who has served, slaved and sacrificed for us except by striking at his cherished ideals—so let us elect as President the safe, pliant, reactionary Harding, whose every utterance proves his innocence of a single constructive idea and his ponderous platitudinosity. Through him we can smite the forces of progress hip and thigh, crowd our way back to the flashpots and reap the legitimate fruits of "normalcy."

"Down with Wilsonism!"

It is an alluring program. The triumphant return of reactionary republicanism may easily be achieved, if only a sufficient number of voters can be persuaded that black ingratitude is a sparkling virtue, and that it is their solemn duty to reward with an assassin's blow the man who has so ably and faithfully fought their battles and championed their cause.

Is America capable of doing it? Can a little handful of Lodges, Purposes, Smoots, Brandegers, McCarsons, Hardings and Haynes poison the minds and beset the intelligence of the majority of a hundred millions of people? Is white to be voted black to gratify malice and spite? Is Uncle Sam a moral bankrupt, a pitiable defective who does not yet know right from wrong?

Great is the power of partisanship, but we believe that for once it hath essayed too great a task.

Let Wilsonism be tried in the balance—and God help America if honest men and women surrender themselves and permit thieves and slanders to manipulate the scales!
