HALL CASE NOL-PROSSED

Jury in Third Trial Failing to Agree Attorney for Commonwealth Makes Motion to Enter Nolle Prosequi—Jury Stood Ten to Two in Favor of Conviction—Trial Lasts Week

The third trial of W. C. Hall, a former state prohibition inspector, charged with the unlawful killing of Lawrence Hudson, began on Monday, the first day of the February term of the circuit court of Prince William county, and the proceedings have continued throughout the week.

The case, which has attracted state-wide attention, occupying the entire time of the court for the week, has resulted again in a failure of the jury to agree. The poll of the twelve men at the time the verdict was rendered this morning (Saturday) was ten in favor of conviction and two for acquittal.

The commonwealth's attorney for Prince William county, Hon. Thos. H. Lion, immediately after the verdict was rendered by the foreman of the jury, Mr. E. N. Pattie, made a motion to nol-prosequi the case and the nolle prosequi was entered at the direction of the court.

Mr. Lion stated in his motion that on account of the improbability of ever obtaining a jury that would agree in this case, and in view of the high character of this last jury and the great expense that the state has already been subjected to, he asked that the nolle prosequi be entered.

Judge Samuel Brent replied that in the opinion of the court Mr. Lion's view was well taken and as said above directed the clerk to enter the nolle prosequi.

The thanks of the court were extended to the jury for the patience and attention of that body and it was formally discharged.

The session on Monday with a part of Tuesday's session was consumed in the selection of a jury. The initial venire of forty-five was exhausted before the requisite number of "competents" was found and it was necessary to issue another call to supply the remainder. When the competency of twenty had been adjudged by the court, two of these, Mr. M. J. Hottle and Mr. J. L. Bushong, were questioned by the commonwealth's attorney with reference to certain conversations they were alleged to have had, after they had been summoned for jury duty, in which, it was alleged, that they had expressed themselves to the effect that the prisoner should be acquitted. Mr. Hottle admitted that he had discussed the matter with a Mr. Hixson after he had received his summons, but stated that he did not "remember" having expressed himself. Mr. Bushong said, that he had discussed the case frequently, but, like Mr. Hottle, he did not "remember" having given expression to the views in question. They were adjudged competent by the court, but when the time came for counsel on the opposing sides to exercise their prerogatives in reducing the number to twelve, the gentlemen mentioned with some others were stricken off, leaving the following to compose the jury to try the case: S. R. Clark, T. H. Sinclair, H. S. Bell, E. N. Pattie, Charles Caton, G. C. Brady, W. E. Varner, Hooker Davis, L. F. Merrill, R. H. Duvall, P. C. Wigglesworth and J. C. Gordon.

The prosecution was represented by Thos. H. Lion, commonwealth's attorney for Prince William county, Judge F. S. Tavener, of Woodstock, and J. M. Bauserman, the law partner of Judge Tavener; and the defense by Louis O. Wendenburg, of Richmond, F. M. Walton, of Woodstock, C. J. Meetze and T. E. Didlake, the last two from Manassas.

It appears that some time before midnight on March 25, 1919, a car containing W. C. Hall, Harry F. Sweet, W. B. Dunlavy and J. H. Sullivan, prohibition officers, and Joe Williams and Harry F. Sweet, Jr., who were called upon to try the case, taken a position on a bridge over Tumbling Run in Shenandoah county in the neighborhood of Fisher's Hill and near the intersection of the Valley pike with the county or Tumbling Run road. The object of the officers is said to have been to intercept and arrest persons engaged in the unlawful transportation of liquor. At about three o'clock in the morning of March 26th, according to the officers, a car was seen approaching some distance up the pike, with spot light sweeping the road as it advanced. Two of the inspectors having previously left their car and gone forward a short distance and concealed themselves in order to inspect passing traffic and give a flash-light signal in case a vehicle should appear looking suspicious, promptly gave the signal agreed upon, and the officers' car after seeing the signal moved forward to meet the oncoming stranger.

The two cars approached to within two or three feet of each other at the intersection of the two roads when the alleged liquor car halted, reversed a little and then went forward down the incline to the side of the pike towards the Tumbling Run road, though trying to escape. In meantime Hall, leaving the officers' car, had approached the other side of the bridge, and, claiming that he saw cartons of liquor piled in the rear of the tonneau, pulled aside the curtain and recognizing Raymond Shackelford as the driver and Lawrence Hudson as the passenger, told them to consider themselves under arrest. It is claimed that the car then moved forward as said above and Hall sprang upon the running board with gun in hand.

Three shots are said to have been heard, then a fusillade of shots, and then two more. No one seems to have been able to count the number of shots fired but as a result, Raymond Shackelford was almost immediately killed and Lawrence Hudson had received two gun-shot wounds, either of which would have proved fatal and death followed in a Winchester hospital shortly after.

Several hours after the shooting took place, the prohibition officers surrendered themselves to Sheriff Borden of Shenandoah county. After a preliminary hearing it was decided, at the request of counsel for the accused, to try the case in the circuit court of Prince William county on account of alleged public sentiment in Shenandoah against the officers.

The first trial began Tuesday, September 2, 1919, and at 2:45 on Saturday, September 6, the jury was discharged, being unable to reach an agreement, and a new trial was set for December 29 of the same year.

The second trial, beginning on the above date, continued until five o'clock on the following Thursday, when the case was given to the jury and at noon on Friday, this jury was also discharged for the same reason as the first. The jury in the first trial stood six for conviction and six for acquittal; that in the second, nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

The opening address of Judge Tavener for the prosecution marked the beginning of the trial which has been in progress during the present week. He implored the jury not to let the question of prohibition enter into their minds in considering the evidence or in forming their opinions, but to arrive at their conclusions from the evidence as testified to by the witnesses and in accordance with the law as expounded by the court. He reminded them that the case they were called upon to try was that of the Commonwealth against W. C. Hall for the killing of Lawrence Hudson and no one else. He then proceeded to state what he would attempt to prove by witnesses, and said that it had never been shown to his satisfaction nor did he believe that Shackelford had fired a shot on the morning of March 26, 1919, and was certain that Hudson had not.

Mr. Wendenburg, for the defense, in his opening statement also requested the jury not to allow the question of prohibition to enter their minds in forming opinions, and stated that he expected to prove that Hall shot and killed in the lawful discharge of his duties, after he had been fired upon by Shackelford and that he believed himself to be in danger of death or at least serious bodily harm at the hands of Hudson when the defendant turned his gun upon Hudson and fired the fatal shots.

The most important witness for the prosecution was perhaps Alfred Bly, who lives about two hundred yards from the scene of the tragedy. Mr. Bly stated that he had arisen very early in the morning, probably before three o'clock, to get water, and after returning to bed was startled by the sound of pistol shots in the direction of the bridge on the pike over Tumbling Run. Leaving his bed and hastening to a window that looks towards that part of the pike, he saw the head lights of two cars, that appeared to be facing, one northwest and the other southwest, and not far apart.

The car facing the southward appeared to move back and then go ahead. He heard more shots and distinctly saw men moving about in the road, and heard talking and shouting.

The car that had taken the by-road had gone but a short distance, when it ran into a bank on the roadside. Mr. Bly then heard two shots and then three more shots; after the two shots he heard some one say: "Oh, my!" then another voice cried out, "Harry, hurry up and bring the car down." Cross examination by Mr. Wendenburg failed to shake Mr. Bly's testimony to any appreciable extent. Mr. Wendenburg endeavored to show that it would have been impossible for Mr. Bly to hear these cries at so great a distance.

Miss Racy, Mrs. Bly's sister, who occupies a room in the house facing the pike, corroborated the testimony of her brother-in-law, saying that she heard the shots and saw the flashes from the pistols. Miss Racy was evidently not a seasoned witness as upon cross examination she displayed considerable confusion, but the defense was unable to score, as she held closely to the main portion of her testimony.

Mr. Herman Good, who lives but a short distance from the scene, when called to the stand testified that in the early morning, around six o'clock, he distinctly saw men take bottles from one car and transport them to another, and he also saw bottles passed around and the men hold them up and drink from them. His testimony was corroborated by his brother, Willie Good, who also claimed to witness the drinking scene.

Mr. Funk, an undertaker who embalmed the bodies of the dead men, testified as to the character of the wounds and the probable cause of death. He claimed that he detected the odor of whiskey while embalming the body of Shackelford, the gases given off having an alcoholic odor.

Dr. Ford, who performed the autopsy, said that Hudson received two wounds either of which would have proved fatal, one entered the thigh on the left side, about two inches below the clavicle and a short distance inward from the shoulder joint, the ball passing in a downward, backward and inward, through the upper lobe of the lung and making its exit about an inch and a half from the left side of the spinal column, grazing in its passage the sixth dorsal vertebra. The other ball entered the body on the left side near the sternum and passed downward, backward and inward, cutting both small and large intestine and made its exit at the posterior superior spine of the ilium. Dr. Ford said the man died from secondary hemorrhage of the lung.

Dr. Boyd and the nurses who had charge of Hudson while at the Winchester hospital, were called and their testimony was taken before the judge in the absence of the jury to determine whether or not the ante-mortem statements of Hudson were admissible. The court refused to admit the testimony to the jury but Dr. Boyd stated before the judge that Hudson said that he did not shoot and did not believe his partner did.

Mr. Morrison, a photographer, was a prominent witness and his photographs of the road from different points were extensively employed in demonstration throughout the trial.

Several other witnesses were called by the prosecution, whose testimony was perhaps important to build up the foundation for the argument, but from the point of view of the layman, they did not appear to effect the case materially.

The defense called several character witnesses from Danville to testify to the reputation of Mr. Hall as to veracity, and one, a Mr. Dillard, was asked if Mr. Shackelford's reputation in Danville was not that of a vicious and dangerous man. The witness testified that it was not, and that he had never heard anything against Mr. Shackelford until he heard that he was a bootlegger.

Mr. Sweet, who was one of the four inspectors present at the killing, when called by the defense stated that he and Mr. Sullivan were the two who had gone forward to watch and to give the signal on the approach of a car that appeared to be suspicious. He said that a car passed, tightly closed by the curtains and having the appearance of being heavily laden—the fenders bearing down low above the tires. He signaled with the flash light and followed the car towards the bridge followed by Mr. Sullivan. Before he had gone very far he saw the car halt, move back a little and then go forward down the incline of the by-road and at the same time he saw Mr. Hall jump upon the running board. He also heard shots fired from the car and when within about thirty-five feet to the rear and right of the car, he saw Hall's feet and legs hanging out over the front door on the right hand side, and believing him to have been killed he immediately fired six shots from a .45 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol in the direction of the driver and at a distance of about 35 feet.

On cross examination Sweet held to his story although the attorney for the prosecution asked him if he did not consider it rather implausible that as his friend, Mr. Hall, was as he (Sweet) had stated lying across the front seats of the car with his feet out at the right side, that Sweet should have emptied a gun at a range of only 35 feet in the direction of the driver when it was hardly possible for a bullet to strike the driver without first passing through the body of Hall. Sweet was immovable, stating only that he thought Hall had been killed.

Mr. Ford, who performed the autopsy, said that Hudson received two wounds either of which would have proved fatal, one entered the thigh on the

Mr. Dunlavy, another inspector, was called. He stated that he left the officers' car at the same time as Hall, he going to the left of the booze car and Hall to the right. After Hall had spoken to Shackelford and told him that he was under arrest, according to Dunlavy, he, himself, opened the left hand door and told the inmates to come out. He said the car immediately reversed and then made forward knocking him down, and as the car sped on its way down the incline to the Tumbling Run road he heard shots fired from within the car and saw the flashes from them. He went in pursuit and fired at the tank and tires and then three times in the direction of the driver.

W. C. Hall, the defendant in the case, testified that when he approached the car he saw the cartons of whiskey piled in the rear and pulling aside the curtain, recognized Shackelford, speaking to him and Shackelford returned the salutation. He told the occupants to consider themselves under arrest, when almost immediately the car was reversed and then came forward heading down the incline into the by-road. He jumped upon the running board and placed his head and shoulders within the car when Shackelford opened fire upon him. He fired one shot point blank at Shackelford then two more, the last one going wild as Hudson had taken hold around his neck drawing him down and striking him over the head with a blunt instrument, presumably a bottle partially filled with liquor, which was afterwards found in the bottom of the car. He then turned his gun on Hudson and fired two shots into his body.

The case was here rested and the court issued the instructions to the jury.

Mr. Bauserman for the prosecution opened the argument with a rather brief but interesting address, going into some of the most prominent portions of the evidence and laying especial emphasis upon the weaker points in the evidence for the defense.

He was followed by Mr. C. J. Meetze, for the defense. Mr. Meetze indulged in some criticism of the attorneys, especially the pains taken to reinforce the counsel for the prosecution.

Mr. Lion for the prosecution in a plain but earnest speech told the jury that the true story of the tragedy in his opinion had never been told. He emphasized the fact that it was impossible for Hall to have inflicted the wounds on Hudson, situated as they were, with Hall in the position claimed by him and with Hudson's arm around his neck. Mr. Lion intimated that Hudson was not in the car when killed but the probability was that the two shots heard after the car had been stopped against the embankment and when both Hall and Hudson had left it were the shots that snuffed out the life of Hudson. "Shoot him where you like," cried the speaker, "but not inside of that car." Mr. Lion's remarks made a deep impression upon his hearers.

The last day was marked by the very able and earnest addresses of Mr. Walton and Mr. Wendenburg for the defense and the case was closed by an earnest appeal from Judge Tavener, who dwelt with telling effect upon the irreconcilable points in the evidence introduced by the defense.

The case was given to the jury at about 3:15 p. m. today.

February Clearance Sale!

Beginning Monday, February 7th, we will offer our patrons an opportunity that has not been possible for years. We had almost forgotten the word, "Clearance," as goods had, during the war period, been advancing so rapidly that at times we sold merchandise that could not be duplicated at higher prices.

But that is history now—let us forget all that. We won't even attempt to quote you what a certain article was once worth—that's our hard luck—you want today's prices and you shall have them. Remember, goods are worth only what they will bring on today's market.

You know our methods and you know us, and to our patrons it is superfluous to add that no seconds or shoddy goods will be on sale. We therefore welcome you to a regular old-time Clearance Sale. Everything reduced—nothing reserved.

The Ladies' Store, Manassas, Va.

Is It More Profitable to Shop in Washington?

¶ Ask any citizen of Prince William when out of the county, "Where are you from?" and nine times out of ten he will refer to his home as being about so many miles south or southwest of the city of Washington.

¶ From early childhood we of Prince William have had the Capital City glorified to us, and it has been a point of pride with us to claim proximity to the seat of our national government. And, in a business way, Washington, with its big stores and their heavy newspaper advertising, has impressed a great many as a good place in which to buy goods. Hence the question, "Is it more profitable for Prince William people to shop in Washington than in Manassas?"

¶ Let us make it clear that this message is written in the present tense. We are not going back over a great number of years and arguing on what Manassas was and used to offer. We are writing solely about present-day facts, facts that you do not have to take anybody's word for, but can prove to your own satisfaction at any time.

¶ We, the business establishments of Manassas, know only too well how, for years, our town was not as well fitted for the bulk of Prince William trade as it should have been. We know only too well how many progressive people of the county often felt forced to shop elsewhere, and how many a time they were justified in such a decision. But let bygones be bygones. The present and the future are your concern now. It is not what we might have been able to do for you; but what we can do now, and will be able to do in the future, that is of chief interest.

¶ You have demanded a wide variety of goods from which to make selections. The proximity of Washington has been another and compelling reason for the gradual building up of good, representative stocks at your county seat, until today the business places of Manassas can serve you as you long wished to be served. No longer need you go to Washington or Alexandria to shop satisfactorily. In our stores you will find the goods, as you who deal in Manassas well know.

¶ But, some may say, "How about the prices?" Some things are slightly higher in Manassas; some things quite a good deal higher in Washington. Where you may save money on one article by buying it in Washington, you may lose, without your knowing it, on another. It is obvious that something besides mere volume of sales must help pay the enormous running expenses of the average city business. We, in Manassas, have low expenses and, on the general run of merchandise, do not have to realize as high a profit as the city business house. At times many Washington firms make big reductions on certain goods; so do we in Manassas, though, as a rule, we do not tell you about such cuts so vigorously or so convincingly. And, often, the marked-down Washington price is but little below the regular Manassas price, and sometimes not below it.

¶ To shop in Washington involves certain preliminary expenses, which you are doubtless well aware of, but which it may be well to call to mind. First, there is the railroad fare, going and coming; and the street car fare while there. Then, your meals—if you take the time to get square ones—cost more than in Manassas. To stay over night at a Washington hotel means quite an additional expense. It is not at all difficult to spend several dollars for the privilege of being in Washington to shop—and to shop in Manassas requires but the merest fraction of such an expense.

¶ If time is worth anything to you—and it certainly is at a good many seasons of the year, if not at all times—you know what a saving of this useful "commodity" can be effected by coming to Manassas to shop instead of going to Washington. Any many of you know through experience how tiresome it is to make the trip to the city, to run from one place to another and back again, comparing goods and prices, and at the last minute how you grab most anything and barely make your last train. Such experiences are altogether too nerve-racking and too hard on your pocketbook to be considered as fun. You take them seriously enough, goodness knows, for the first few days after you get back and it dawns upon you that you really did not mean to buy this and that, and that you paid too much for them anyway. Then and there, as likely as not, you decide to exchange certain of these articles and you figure it necessary to go through a similar trying experience, which means the investment of more money and time for your privilege of shopping in Washington.

¶ Why make the buying of goods such an ordeal? Why wear yourself out by an occasional strenuous day or two in Washington when right in Manassas your wants can be satisfied at moderate prices, where you can shop leisurely and without the hurry and hustle always met with in the big city stores? Why not buy along from week to week what you need in Manassas, thus getting the merchandise quickly, at a minimum average expense of money, time and energy, and after deliberate, careful selection on your part?

¶ Do you not agree with us, when you consider the question thoroughly point by point, that it is more profitable for Prince William people to shop in Manassas than in Washington?

CAN GERMANY PAY?

To what extent Germany will be able to meet the obligations imposed upon her by the reparations commission is a matter of debate on both sides of the Atlantic, and will continue to be debated for some time to come. High authorities insist that she will be bled white if her late enemies exact the full toll; that she cannot stand and deliver that which she does not possess and, if she is too hard-pressed, she will collapse as has Austria.

The other point of view is that Germany has enormous potential wealth; she came out of the war more unscathed than any other power engaged, with the single exception of America; she is now preparing to engage in stupendous trade operations with the world, and the price demanded of her will be paid, if the demand is backed up by force, just as the indemnity which she compelled France to pay after the Franco-Prussian War, was paid, although France was then practically a bankrupt.

That Germany will make a loud noise, protesting violently against the decision of the reparations commission, is to be expected. She would protest if the indemnity were no greater than 1,000,000 gold marks. She will willingly consent to no payment at all to her enemies. Her ultimate hope is that she will escape in some fashion with virtually no penalty exacted. What Germany says now or hereafter, therefore, is to be discounted.

All that the Germans recognize is force. They do not know the meaning of justice or right. But they understand what force is, and they will surrender to force and to nothing else. This means that the allies must apply force if they are to expect payment of the indemnity now fixed, or any indemnity which may later be fixed. If these powers are to receive what they believe to be a just reparation, they must keep their armies on Germany's frontier. With each default in payment these armies must move a few leagues further toward Berlin.

That policy will accomplish the desired result, if all else fails. Germany, it will be recalled, kept her troops in Paris after she had defeated France until the French obligation had been discharged. It may be necessary, in turn, for France to keep her army on German soil until the reparation claims have been settled. If that be true, Frenchmen will know how to act in the premises.

Meanwhile the more people that rise up with arguments to the effect that "Germany cannot pay" the more certainly will the Germans find hope in the future. A very allied authority that expresses doubt about the ability of the German nation to meet the obligation, adds that much capital to the enemy's propaganda.

It may develop in the course of time that too heavy a load has been placed upon Germany; that she has been assessed beyond her resources, and some revision of the reparations settlement must be made. But it will be time to act in that direction when the fact has been demonstrated.

It is far too early for the Englishmen or the Frenchmen to assume that Germany is being saved to the point of financial rehabilitation. The part of the world that Germany is being taxed. That opinion should stand until it is refuted by developments, not by off-hand judgment, based on little or no knowledge of conditions.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

LAUGH AND LIVE

Johns and Witty Sayings From The Liveliest Publications of the Country

How It Was Corrected

A certain editor of a country newspaper in Kansas was asked to leave the community as a result of a typographical error in his report of the wedding of the mayor's daughter. After exhausting his supply of big words about the "blushing bride," he said: "The large, elaborate bouquets of roses were punk." The mayor demanded a correction and apology in the next week's issue, all of which the editor was glad to promise. The next issue contained: "We wish to apologize for the manner in which we disgraced the beautiful wedding last week. Through an error of the typesetter we were made to say 'the roses were punk.' What we wanted to say was that 'the noses were pink.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

No Answer.

Father was doing a little work in his "study." It was a rare occurrence, so that the volcanic entrance of his daughter, aged five, seemed something in the nature of an outrage to him.

"Oh, father," she exclaimed, "it's raining!"

Fa looked up, and replied, with that irritation too often found in busy parents:

"Well, let it rain!"

The child turned toward the door.

"Yes," she said; "I was going to!"—Exchange.

Warm Time Coming for Johnnie.

There were visitors at the school, and the teacher examined the class for their benefit.

"Now," he said, "can you tell me anything about heat?"

A small boy held up his hand.

"Heat expands, sir. Cold contracts."

"Very good, Johnnie. Please give me an example."

"In summer the days are long, in winter the days are short."

Then the smiles of the visitors expanded, and the teacher's brows contracted.

Logic.

In the juvenile arithmetic class the teacher asked the children to raise their hands if any one made a mistake. Willie raised his hand and waved it frantically in the air.

"Sammie Wright said that seven and five were twelve," said he in disgusted tones.

"Well, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"I don't know," was the honest reply, "only I know it ain't twelve, for six and six is twelve."

How She Saved.

"I found such a wonderful bargain," said Mrs. Flatter.

"What was it?" asked her husband.

"You know I went down town to buy a hat. Well, just as I got in the store, they put up a sign, 'All hats at half price.'"

"So you only had to spend half of the money you intended."

"Oh, no, I bought two hats instead of one."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Melvin C. Gray, who departed this life two years ago, February 9, 1919. My thoughts are always wandering To the grave so far away, Where our father dear is lying In his peaceful, lonely grave. We will never forget you, dear father, While in this world we stay, The only hope that fills our lives, And guides our gentle way. Is that we'll meet you, father, When we pass away, When we loved, but could not save. In the graveyard, softly sleeping, Where the trees so gently wave, Lies my dear husband, In his lonely, silent grave. A happy home we once enjoyed, How sweet the memory still, But death has left a vacant place, This world can never fill. Sleep on, dear father, and take thy rest Thy willing hands will toil no more; A loving father, true and kind A better father we could not find. Written by his devoted wife and five little children.

Mattresses Greatly Reduced

There are many big reductions in prices throughout our store. As an example we cite mattresses. If you are going to need a new mattress when spring cleaning time comes around, you can get the very mattress you want and at a most substantial saving by selecting it now. Our present stock of mattresses is too large. To move these quickly, we have gone over the entire lot and made a drastic cut in the price of each. Of course, we can sell at these greatly reduced prices only so long as the present stock holds out—but we could not do it at all if we did not sell for cash only—and for less. To buy a mattress now—if you need one—will be to your interest as much as to ours.

What It Did for B. Lynn Robertson's Cattle

CAREY-IZED

STOCK TONIC

Proves Very Valuable in Feeding

Seventy-four Head of Cattle Gain 240 Lbs in 90 to 100 days using Carey-ized Stock Tonic

READ THE RESULTS:

WEIGHT OF SEVENTY-FOUR HEAD OF CATTLE PURCHASED BY B. LYNN ROBERTSON FROM A. LOFFLER PROVISION CO., BENNING, D. C., ON OCTOBER 18, 1920, AND CONTRACTED TO BE FED FOR NINETY TO ONE HUNDRED DAYS

Table with 2 columns: Date, Weight. Includes entries like 'Oct. 18, 1920—74 head of cattle, weighed Benning Stock Yards 72,325 lbs', 'Jan. 17, 1921—24 head same cattle weighed, Gainesville 30,440 lbs', 'Jan. 24, 1921—50 head same cattle weighed, Gainesville 59,680 lbs', 'Total weight of 74 head 90,120 lbs', 'An average of 1,217 lbs per head—Net gain of 240 lbs per head'

THE SAME CATTLE WEIGHED IN BENNING, D. C., AS FOLLOWS:

Table with 2 columns: Date, Weight. Includes entries like 'Jan. 18, 1921—24 head 29,675 lbs', 'Jan. 25, 1921—50 head 57,885 lbs', 'Total weight of 74 head of cattle 87,560 lbs', 'An average of 1,183 lbs per head—Net gain of 206 lbs per head'

The above mentioned 74 head of cattle were fed on a sixty-acre field on "LAWNVALE FARM," near Gainesville, Va., and their feed consisted of Snapped Corn, Cottonseed Meal, Fodder, Straw and CAREY-IZED STOCK TONIC—NOTHING MORE—except during the first week feeding, when the cattle were salted, they were never given any salt but what they received from the CAREY-IZED STOCK TONIC BLOCKS, which were always kept before them. They were given a total of eight 50-lb blocks, that cost $3.25 per block, or a total cost of $26.00, or 35 cents per head. There were 64 hogs and shoats running after the cattle, and these had access to the CAREY-IZED STOCK TONIC, and used it regularly. These hogs and shoats, even during the winter months, did as well as any that I have ever fed. The quantity of CAREY-IZED STOCK TONIC used would probably have been reduced almost half, if it had been kept under shelter, but it was at all times exposed to the weather, and put on the ground with nothing under it to protect it from the dampness, which caused a large amount to dissolve.

Prince William County to-wit: Personally appeared before me, L. M. Jones, a Notary Public for the County of Prince William, in the State of Virginia, whose commission expires on the 23rd of July, 1924, B. LYNN ROBERTSON, who made oath in due form of law that he is the same B. Lynn Robertson referred to in the foregoing or above statement; that the statements therein contained are true, and that said statements are made upon information acquired from personal observation and facts and not derived from others. (Signed) B. LYNN ROBERTSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 31st day of January, 1921, and given under my hand and notarial seal. (SEAL) (Signed) L. M. JONES, Notary Public.

You alone are to be the judge and there are no strings of any sort to this proposition. PRICES:—12 bricks, $2.99; per brick, 25 cents each; 50-lb block, $3.25. For larger quantities get our prices. ### IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear father, Melving C. Gray, who departed this life two years ago, February 9, 1919.

It is sweet to know we will meet again
Where parting is no more.
And the one we love so dearly,
Has only gone before.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a vacant place,
This world can never fill.

By his loving little boy,
BELFERS GRAY.

Rev. C. H. Frye preached in the Baptist Church at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Major, committee on education; Miss Bartenstein, social committee; Mrs. Webb, committee on moral, social and home betterment; Mr. H. F. Myers, committee on food production and conservation; Mrs. J. Beasley, committee on publicity and citizenship; Mr. Major, committee on road and street improvement.

Mr. Major said the school was to have a clean-up day next Saturday from 9 to 12 m. and invited all, both men and women, to come to assist.

Mr. Webb reported that so far he had been unable to have front steps of the school building repaired. After discussing the question, Mr. Webb was retained on this committee with Mr. W. A. Mathers to assist him.

Mr. Josh Buckley, one of the members of the town council, told of plans of the council to have the streets and sidewalks repaired and some street lamps installed.

There were seven new members. There were twenty-two members present and six visitors.

The time of the next meeting being the night of inauguration day, it was decided to postpone it one week, making the next meeting March 11th.

After the business was finished, Rev. C. H. Frye was asked to speak. Mr. Frye told us of an improvement league organized in the Vermont town where he has been teaching and preaching for six years. He stated that the town had so improved in looks that no one would know it to be the same after these six years of activity by this improvement league.

It is reported that Landis Detwiler has married a young lady of Midland, where he is employed.

Seen in the First Glimpse of Spring Apparel---

Interesting Modes---Equally Interesting Prices

REGARDLESS of chic modes there is a magic something which tinges all the new things to wear, giving them a rosy, interesting hue. That something is price. One may go about the ever delightful, engrossing task of selecting the details of a Spring outfit unhampered by the thought of high prices and their accompanying train of inhibited desires for what is pretty and what is needed.

What You Will See When You Come Down to the Store

FASHION has outdone herself for the return of Spring. Frocks, Suits and Millinery echo the paeon of joy that marks the coming of the gayest season of the year. Clever French heads and clever hands wherever smart apparel is created have evolved fascinating and charming modes, some not without a very practical turn, of course, for the delectation of fair women. Inspection discloses a very choice collection of the earliest models for women who desire the new while the bloom is yet upon it.

If One Thinks of Frocks

—Then there are smart cloth models, ornate with the new cut work, embroidered, and in contrasting materials. Moroccan and Canton crepes form many a luscious Frock for diversified uses. Afternoon gowns are quaint or dashing in their use of vivid color and eccentric style.

A Glorious Tradition Is the Spring Hat

—Every year comes the fresh new pleasures of selecting Spring Millinery, every year the delightful query of whether it shall be feathers or flowers, a large one or a small one. This season's modes are charming. It is not a moment too early to select the Hat for your suit, the Hat for sports wear and the Hat to accompany lovely frocks. Sailor, off-the-face and close fitting turban styles that are in demand.

To Be Sure, There Must Be a Suit

—No woman will overlook one. They are as inevitable as Spring itself. This year, because these are very youthful box coat models, or flared back models or coolie jackets or semi-fashioned styles, you will see the necessity of having a smart Suit early in the season. Piquetine is one of the much used new fabrics. Ask to see it.

KANTLEEK

It Can't Leak, Because It's Made in One Piece

EVER been scalded by a leaking hot-water bottle? This can't happen with a Kantleek.

Kantleek Hot-Water Bags can't leak. They are "one-piece" water bags—moulded from pure soft rubber into a single piece—no joints or seams. Most hot-water bottles are made in sections and cemented. Cement cracks—bag leaks!

We guarantee a Kantleek for two years—or a new bag free.

Ask to see the Kantleek. You may need it tonight.

The Retail Store

MANASSAS

THE YEAR 1921

Those merchants who have old established trades should be glad to see the period of unreasonably high prices and inability to secure the proper stocks come to an end.

This Company will start the New Year on its old margin of profit, regardless of the fact that there are many items of expense which are still high and will give its customers the advantage of any further reductions in prices by the producers from month to month.

Having enjoyed a splendid patronage through this section for many years, we welcome the opportunity at this time to restore our business to the old basis which made it possible for us to serve our customers so satisfactorily in the past.
