

HIGH TRIBUTE TO HEROES IN GRAY

Memorial Park Officers Speak at Memorable Inaugural on the Bull Run Battlefield.

Dr. Clarence J. Owens, head of the finance board for the Manassas Battlefield Confederate Park, made one of the memorable addresses at the park inaugural at the Henry House on July 21.

"Virginia has recently presented to Great Britain a replica of the Hoodon statue of George Washington, and it was officially received and given a place of honor in Trafalgar Square.

"A greater and more significant result has followed the War between the States. Instantly after Appomattox, the stars representing the South that for four years had been stricken from the flag were put back into the field of blue, and for years now the figure of Lee has stood on a pedestal, the equal of Washington, beneath the dome of the Federal Capital, in the nation's Hall of Fame.

"I predict that the day will come when the figure of Jefferson Davis will be placed by Mississippi or by the South in the nation's capital and will be respected as the exponent of the theory of government that rested on the Constitution as the fathers who wrote that instrument interpreted its meaning, and his record as a patriot will be cherished, as a graduate of West Point, an officer in the army of the United States, the hero of the battle of Buena Vista, as a United States Senator, as Secretary of War, who really reorganized the army against which the forces of the Confederacy contended, and as the President of the Confederate States of America, and as such the chief magistrate of a nation more populous than that for which Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence and the commander-in-chief of armies far greater than those of which Washington was general. The fact that Davis was never tried for treason, and that the North did not vindicate its position in its own courts, stands as a monument to the constitutional integrity of the South's course."

Dr. Owens detailed many evidences of larger understanding between the North and South. On this theme he said in part: "Judge Alton Parker in an address in New York a few weeks ago said 'there would have been no Civil War had the North understood the South. It was not a question of slavery, but a constitutional question that was at issue. Judge Parker stated that Thomas Jefferson wrote two indictments against England in the Declaration of Independence for forcing slavery on the South, but these indictments were stricken out by vote of the Northern representatives.

"A thrilling example of reconciliation was the reunion of the Blue and the Gray on the field of Manassas on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle. The men who once were drawn up in military lines as enemies, a half-century later approached from their old positions, with outstretched hands, and embraced when they met at the line where once they were engaged in the bloody duel of death. The Confederate South met in reunion in Washington a few years ago, and the Gray veterans, carrying the Stars and Stripes, passed in review before the President of the United States and received his salute. It was the same office, when occupied by Roosevelt, that had recognized the secession of Panama from the United States of Columbia, even before Panama had a recognized head. McKinley ordered that Confederate graves be decorated alike with the Federal dead; Roosevelt ordered the Confederate rank of General Joseph Wheeler to be engraved on his tomb at Arlington; the temple of the American Red Cross is dedicated to the women of the North and the South, and the Lincoln Memorial, now nearing completion, is a tribute of the forty-eight States, with their names engraved thereon.

"Bagley and Hobson and Wheeler are the heroes of the Spanish-American War, and Sergeant York typifies the service and the deathless valor of the hundreds of thousands of Southern boys who were crusaders under

PLANS CONTINUE TOWARD BETTER-THAN-EVER FAIR

Arrangements with Amusement Company Completed—Shuttle Train Service Assured.

Having promised a Better-Than-Ever fair this year, officials of the Prince William Fair Association, assisted by many boosters throughout the section, are bending every effort to that end, and indications point to a fine fulfillment of the pledge.

Representatives of Gloth's Greater Shows, which will provide amusements for fair visitors, were here during the week to complete arrangements with the management.

Another conference was held with Mr. S. E. Burgess, division passenger agent of the Southern railway, at which the association decided not to ask for the special train from Front Royal to Manassas on each day of the fair, as regular trains are expected to take care of visitors on this line. There will be special train service from Manassas to the fair grounds.

The fair management has decided to waive for this year the ruling of the state association of fairs, which requires that all cattle exhibited shall have been tuberculin tested within four months of the fair. Tested and untested cows will be kept apart, and separate watering troughs will be provided.

MAKE BIG APPLE BRANDY HAUL IN FREDERICKSBURG

Charlottesville Man Arrested, Car and Twelve Gallons of "Joy Juice" Impounded.

A big movement of fine quality apple brandy for distribution at Fredericksburg, was nipped in the bud by Officer Tansill of that place. A talkative man chatted with the officer, the odor of apple jack and a loose tongue aroused the suspicion of the officer, who searched an automobile which was parked near-by.

The contents of the machine were found to consist of fourteen half-gallon fruit jars, a three-gallon and a two-gallon jug, all full, making a total of twelve gallons of brandy. The man gave his name as J. G. Ballard, and said he was from Charlottesville.

This is probably the largest haul of apple brandy made in Fredericksburg since national prohibition went into effect. The automobile was taken in the name of the Commonwealth until the trial.—Exchange.

MEETS AT "WILLOWBOON"

Bethlehem Club Entertained by Mrs. Covington and Mrs. Galleher.

(C. E. L. Hodge, Secretary) The Bethlehem-Good Housekeepers' Club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. G. Covington. A heavy rain and electrical storm broke over Manassas early in the afternoon but did not deter fifteen members from replying to the roll call, each of whom was heartily glad that she was able to enjoy the gracious hospitality of the hostesses, Mrs. Covington and Mrs. T. R. Galleher.

The guests of the afternoon were Mrs. Moore, of Norfolk; Mrs. J. C. Meredith and Mrs. L. B. Williams, of the Manassas Good Housekeepers' Club; little Miss Rose White Kenney, of Warrenton; little Miss Lucy Gibson and Baby Wheatley Marshall Johnson. By request, Miss Elizabeth Covington read "The Farmer's Wife," which was much enjoyed by the club.

The meeting was closed by the singing of the club song, "Anid Lang Syne." The social hour was especially enjoyed and the delicious ice cream and cake found an appropriate welcome while exchanging pleasant thoughts and suggestions for the advancement of the club in all its activities. The beautiful view on all sides was the subject of congratulation to the family whose home is so delightfully situated.

Our adieux said to Mrs. Covington and Mrs. Galleher and each other, the members departed to their various homes. Mrs. J. B. Johnson will be the hostess at the August meeting of the club.

FACTIONS MIXED IN STATE FIGHT

Outcome of Tuesday's Democratic Primary in Doubt—Master Mind Missing.

For a quarter of a century there has not been waged in Virginia a campaign for the democratic nomination for governor with the old factional lines of "machine" and "anti-machine" so loosely drawn and carrying so little influence as in the contest which will be decided in the August 2 primary between Henry St. George Tucker, of Lexington, and E. Lee Trinkle, of Wythe, says a dispatch from the state capital. In fact, the present contest strongly shows that the old "democratic organization," with its master hand missing, is going to pieces, if it has not already been badly scrapped.

In some sections of the State the local county organizations, once a part of the "state organization," are holding intact. But in the Tucker-Trinkle fight they are not welded together for any one candidate. Some of these county organizations are supporting Tucker; others are supporting Trinkle. There is no co-ordination nor co-operation between them as there were in the days when the strong personality, remarkable influence and vigorous leadership of the late United States Senator Thomas S. Martin were felt throughout the state.

It is the "anti-organization" in the southwest former Gov. C. Stuart, long identified with the "anti," is supporting Trinkle, although Trinkle has been one of the big spokes in the old "state organization" in the Ninth district. Yet in the Norfolk section many of the old "organization" leaders are with Tucker, while "anti" leaders are supporting Trinkle.

In days gone by Virginia voters were deluged with political discussion of "machine" and "anti-machine." The lines were so drawn in State-wide political contests. There was little discussion of the merits and availability of the candidates and issues. Today a new era has come. The candidates for governor are discussing vital state legislative problems. They are touring the state and telling the people more about the state finances, the (Continued on Page 7)

ASK TOWN TO PAY FOR DEATH OF THEIR HORSE

Owners Claim Animal Was Electrocutted by Faulty Wiring on Manassas Street.

Alleging that a horse belonging to them had been electrocuted on a Manassas street, Messrs. J. J. Conner and C. D. Kline presented a petition for damages Monday evening at the monthly meeting of the town council. Action on the petition was deferred to a future meeting.

The horse fell dead in Battle street near the railroad a few months ago, and its death was due, the petitioners claim, to faulty wiring at an electric light pole near which it stood.

Members of the council voted to furnish free of cost to the Prince William Fair Association electric current for lighting purposes during the four days of the fair.

The usual monthly bills were certified for payment and the monthly reports of Treasurer Davis and Supt. Gos were read. Mayor Brown presided over the session, which was attended by Councilmen Burke, Hibbs, Measer, Newman and Robertson.

MOORE TAKES PART IN TARIFF DEBATE

Protests Against Duties on Materials Which Will Increase Road Construction Costs.

Baring the relation of the tariff and its menace—to good roads, Representative Moore in the tariff debate last week among other things said: "As I understand it, not only may the cost of road construction be materially increased by the duties on explosives provided by this bill; by the duty on cement, which the bill provides; and by the duties specified in the bill on structural steel and reinforcing steel. The matter of highway construction and maintenance is one of prime importance. Is that work explosives are necessary. The Geological Survey states that the amount of stone annually quarried and crushed for road-building purposes and concrete road structures totals between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 tons, and that involves the use of explosives. It is estimated that approximately 20,000,000 of cement are used in the construction of highways, including streets and bridges, every year. So, to the extent of a heavy annual tonnage, enters into the cost of all highway bridge structures. What are the facts, as to the employment of asphalt in highway work has already been detailed."

—A dance was given by the young people of Manassas Tuesday evening at Conner's Hall. Music was furnished by a local orchestra.

WHO CAN VOTE NEXT TUESDAY

Attorney-General's Office Replies to Questions Concerning Voters Barred.

"A person is not eligible to vote in a party primary who voted against any nominee of that party in the last preceding general election," is the opinion given by Assistant Attorney-General J. D. Hank, Jr., quoted by Attorney-General John E. Saunders in response to an inquiry made by Mr. S. T. Hall, of Manassas.

The law—section 228 of the Code of 1919 is given by Mr. Hank as follows: "No person shall be permitted to vote for the candidate of any party unless in the last preceding general election he voted for the presidential electors nominated by such party, or for the nominee of the House of Representatives of such party, or for the nominee of such party for Governor, or the nominee of such party for the House of Delegates; but if he did not vote at such general election, then upon his declaration that he will support at the ensuing election the nominee of the party in whose primary he wishes to vote, he shall be allowed to vote."

For the reason that at no one general election in this state are all of the offices mentioned in this section filled, Assistant Attorney-General Hank declares it was the evident intention of the legislature by the section above quoted to provide that no person should be allowed to vote in a party primary who voted in the last preceding general election but did not vote for such nominees of that party as were voted on at that election; that is to say, a person is not eligible to vote in a party primary who voted against any nominee of that party in the last preceding general election.

"If this were not true," he concludes, "any republican who voted last November for Senator Glass, who was running against a negro named Polard, would be eligible to vote in this democratic primary. Surely the law never intended this to take place, because it was not intended to allow persons who are really republicans to vote in the democratic primary, or vice versa."

"One who did not vote at the November election, 1920, will be entitled to vote, if otherwise qualified, in the primary to be held this August, provided he is a democrat," Attorney-General Saunders said, "or if not previously a democrat, he will pledge himself to support the candidate nominated in the primary in the succeeding November election."

This is not a new ruling, but a ruling accredited by all attorneys-general in the past.

BOBBERS HERE AGAIN

Break in Blakemore Residence and Steal $50 Worth of Jewelry.

Burglars entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Blakemore, on Centreville road, some time in their absence from town last week, and carried off rings and other jewelry valued at $50. Among the missing articles were two rings belonging to Mrs. Blakemore—a topaz birthstone ring and one set with a ruby and pearls—a man's ring, a large gold locket containing photographs, several beauty pins and a small sum of money, taken from a bureau drawer. The stolen locket was engraved with the monogram "M. A. G."

A piece of Mexican paper money bearing the figures "10" and somewhat resembling an American $10 bill was taken from a fancy basket on a bedroom mantel. Contents of trunks and bureau drawers were scattered over the rooms. One trunk which had been locked remained unopened, and nearby it lay a kitchen stove lifter and a case knife taken from the first floor, with which an attempt had been made to pry it open.

The robbery was first discovered when Mr. Blakemore's brother, Mr. Roy Blakemore, returned to Manassas on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Blakemore arrived Wednesday night and found every room in the house in utter confusion. Entrance had been gained through a kitchen window, a small hole having been broken in an upper pane just above the window lock. Until the work of setting the house to rights is completed it is not certain that all missing articles have been enumerated.

Mr. and Mrs. Blakemore live at the property of Mrs. L. A. Larkin, opposite Mr. R. S. Hynson's residence.

During a baby clinic at Winchester last week an alarm of fire from the section of the town in which many of the mothers attending reside caused a stampede, during which some of the women snatched up their babies without stopping to put any clothes on them and hit it up for home to look after other children. The fire was extinguished with no damage to person or property.

Francisco Silva and Marie Frietas, natives of the Madeira Islands, who live in Loudoun county, secured a marriage license in Loudoun and went to Winchester to be married by a Catholic priest, presenting there the astonishing situation of a couple from the strictly English-speaking county of Loudoun needing the services of an interpreter to arrange the necessary preliminaries for the ceremony, according to the Loudoun Mirror. They were safely bound together by Rev. Father Thomas Rankin, of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Miss Parker Payne, of Remington, met with a serious accident on her way to the station to meet her sister who had been to New York. Miss Payne's horse became unruly and she was thrown from her buggy and dragged quite a distance, her clothing having become entangled on a front wheel, says the Warrenton Times. One of her wrists was fractured, three ribs were broken and she sustained many bad bruises about her head and body.

Miss Martha Mills, aged 88 years, died July 21 at her home, near Beres, Stafford county. She is survived by two brothers and two sisters, John H. Mills, of Fredericksburg; Wyatt Mills, of Stafford; Mrs. M. C. Schooler, of Washington, and Mrs. Joseph Ballard, of Stafford.

Fire July 18 seriously threatened the town of Hamilton, Loudoun county, destroyed the Gregg-Copher garage and five cars and the home of a colored citizen and damaged a nearby barn. The trouble began about 8:30, says the Loudoun Mirror, with an explosion of gasoline in the garage while work was being done on a car. Immediate and desperate efforts were applied to check the flames, but they leaped quickly beyond control. In a few minutes the building was in a blaze. The property loss there is estimated at $12,000. All the books of the firm were consumed. As soon as it was seen that the garage was hopelessly afire alarm and excitement developed, as the entire town was in danger. The heat in the neighbor-

Two thousand loaves of bread were destroyed and A. Davis, a route man employed by the Corby Baking Company's branch at Alexandria, narrowly escaped injury when the large motor truck which he was driving was destroyed by flames resulting from an explosion in the gasoline tank at Bailey's cross roads, near Leesburg. Davis was thrown from the machine by the force of the explosion but was uninjured.

Saturday was the 100th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Balch, who was born July 23, 1821, and whose memory his sons, Edwin Swift Balch and Thomas William Balch, are so fittingly and generously perpetuating in the founding of the Thomas-Balch memorial library at Leesburg, according to the Loudoun Times.

A Saxon touring car was set afire by a backfire while in a Fredericksburg garage, according to the Free Lance. The blazing car was rolled into the street and the fire extinguished before any material damage was done. Mr. Garrett, owner of the car, burned his hand and arm when he reached into the blaze to turn the petcock on the feed line leading to the carburetor.

The Guernsey milk campaign just on in Washington July 1 has developed such a demand for Guernsey milk that the Washington distributor is calling on the Loudoun County Breeders' Association for every bit of Guernsey milk in the county, says the Loudoun Times. The producers of this Guernsey milk are receiving 40 cents per gallon for the milk, or 12 cents per gallon above the standard set by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association.

hood of the garage was intense and sparks poured forth and dropped in swarms on everything around. A bucket brigade was formed and did great work. Purcellville sent chemical engines and Purcellville and Leesburg fell in with those of Hamilton to keep all available water in motion.

The annual reunion of the Lake family of Virginia and the District of Columbia will be held Saturday at Fauquier Springs. The reunion is held under the auspices of the lineal descendants of John Lake, who settled near Rectortown in 1754. Elaborate arrangements are being made to entertain a large delegation from Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and California, descendants who left Virginia many years ago. The Lakes are an old English family which left Cowe, Isle of Wight, November 23, 1633, and settled in America in the "province of Maryland." Among the prominent members of the family expected are: Governor

Everett Lake, of Connecticut; Lieut. R. Howard Lake, U. S. N., naval constructor at Hampton Roads; Hon. Simon Lake, of Milford, Conn., inventor of the submarine; Mr. C. S. Lake, of Richmond, a C. & O. official, and Prof. James L. Lake, of Wake Forest, N. C.

A burglar recently broke into the Alexandria residence of Mr. Fred W. Ebbardt and got away with Mr. Ebbardt's watch, valued at $25, and a little more than $100 in cash and a number of checks. The money was in a pocket of his trousers in a room on the first floor of the residence directly under his sleeping room on the second floor.

Miss Alice McElroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McElroy, of Albemarle county, died at the University hospital from injuries received at the McElroy home, when she was thrown from her horse. Miss McElroy was showing her grandmother, Mrs. S. R. McElroy, who had just arrived from California, how proficient her mount was in taking the hurdles. The animal topped the bar sufficiently to toss the rider over its head. Miss McElroy fell on the greensward with such force as to cause concussion of the brain. She died without regaining consciousness.

Two burglaries were committed in Culpeper Friday night. The hardware store of Yowell & Co. was entered and a number of guns, a quantity of ammunition of all kinds, and knives and razors were taken. In the meat market of Herndon & Son, beef, salt meats and other provisions were stolen. In both cases the thieves effected entrance from windows at the rear, prying iron bars apart. The large general store of Mr. C. A. Humphrey at Brandy, six miles away, was robbed the night before.

Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, has been taken to the Faxon hospital, Utica, N. Y., as the result of an accident in the Adirondack Mountains, where Dr. Alderman was passing his vacation. Dr. Alderman sustained a fracture of the left arm just below the shoulder, having fallen near the Rockpoint Inn, according to a special wire received by the Richmond Times-Dispatch. His condition was reported as fairly satisfactory.

The scratching of a slight sore on his shoulder Saturday caused the death four days later of John T. Brightwell, 56, of Danville, blood poisoning developing with fatal rapidity. Saturday evening the slight wound was inflamed and on Sunday Mr. Brightwell went to bed. He was taken to a hospital but died before reaching the operating table.

While playing in a Richmond street within a few feet of her home, Anna May Burton, aged six, was struck by a bicycle and seriously but not fatally injured. She suffered a bad fracture of the right leg, a slight fracture of the collarbone and possible internal injuries.

MR. MOORE WRITES REGRETS

Vote on Tariff Bill Kept Him in Washington Battlefield Day.

"I am writing to say how deeply I regret not being able to attend the meeting that is to be held at the Manassas battlefield Thursday," Representative R. Walton Moore said, in a letter to Major E. W. Ewing, of Ballston, president of the Manassas Battlefield Confederate Park Association. "Unfortunately for me, that day has been assigned for the disposition of the pending tariff bill, and it is necessary for me to be here when the votes are taken. Thus, I am deprived of the opportunity of participation in what I am sure will be an occasion of very great interest in every way."

"The effort to convert the historic battlefield into a park meets with my unreserved approval, and I hope will have very vigorous local and general support. I will gladly do whatever I can to further the project, which, it seems to me, should enlist the sympathy not only of Southern people, but of people everywhere, since the memory of the great events of the civil war, without regard to sectional or other former lines of division, is becoming more and more the common heritage of the entire country."

VOTE FOR JULIEN GUNN FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR

SENATOR JULIEN GUNN
of Henrico County

The name of Julien Gunn is presented to the democracy of Virginia as a candidate for nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, in the August primary, in the knowledge that if elected, as now seems assured, he will bring to that office the personal integrity, experience, and sound judgment in legislative matters so necessary to an efficient and impartial discharge of the duties of that office.

Senator Gunn has served as a member of the House of Delegates and as Commonwealth's Attorney of his county, and he is now serving his second term in the Senate, representing the 35th senatorial district. He is a member of the steering committee and the committees on finance and courts of justice. Called upon to preside over the Senate more frequently than any member, he has demonstrated his intimate knowledge of parliamentary law.

In the full vigor of manhood, standing for the development of Virginia along constructive lines, his candidacy is appealing to those who have the interests of the State at heart.

A VOTE FOR GUNN IS A VOTE FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF VIRGINIA, and your support of his candidacy will be appreciated.

$50,000,000 STATE BOND ISSUE
Senator Gunn, from the time of his announcement, has opposed the bond issue because it means increased taxes for the purpose of paying interest and creating a sinking fund. He is unalterably opposed to any increase in taxation and favors the strictest economy in State expenditures.

TUCKER ANNOUNCEMENT

Col. D. H. Leake, campaign manager for Harry St. George Tucker, today called attention to paid advertisements being carried in the country press by Senator Trinkle's headquarters, in which it is stated that Senator Trinkle had caused Mr. Tucker to shift his position on the bond issue. "As a matter of fact," said Col. Leake, "Mr. Tucker declared against the bond issue before Senator Trinkle made known his views on the subject."

The paid advertisements being inserted in the weekly press by Trinkle supporters also said that State Highway Commissioner Coleman, who favors the bond issue, is a kinsman of Mr. Tucker.

"General C. C. Vaughan, president of the Good Roads Association, is sponsor for the bond issue movement, and is supporting Senator Trinkle," said Col. Leake, "a fact which seems to have been carefully withheld from sections in which opposition to the bond issue is especially strong."

CAN SEALER IS OFFERED TO CANNING CLUB GIRLS

County Agent Urges Girls to Save Everything Possible—Canned Goods Needed.

(Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent)

A Burpee can sealer is offered to the Canning Club Girl in Prince William county who puts up the greatest number of containers of fruits, vegetables, preserves, pickles, jellies, relishes, marmalades, meats, etc., during the season of 1921. This report will not be called for before December 1, so girls are urged to get busy. We all know that the season is not favorable this year, but it is more necessary than ever that we save everything possible. From every side we hear the caution, "conserve everything possible for the winter."

"In the canning counties of our own State three out of every four canneries have closed—thus showing that it is important that more work be done in the homes. No special can is required for this contest, but it is urged that where new glass jars are bought those with glass tops be used. They are more sanitary, and easily kept in order; also, no little holes can come, thus causing spoil.

Another caution is that the very best rubbers be used and that no one trust a rubber for the second season. A number of spoils were caused last year from the use of old rubbers. The Atlas E. Z. Seal jars this year are all furnished with the Good Luck rubbers. These are about the best rubbers on the market, and are easy to get. There has been very little to can and preserve yet, but girls and women are urged to make as good showing at the county fair as possible.

Girls, get busy and get up the exhibit that is offered with the E. Z. Seal jars, if no more. Those who have not received jars for this exhibit may obtain them from the county home demonstration agent for the asking; they are free to girls entering the contest.

Look over your fair catalog carefully and see how much you can do to help make the fair a success.

FARMER IN LOUDOUN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Richard H. Underwood, of Near Purcellville, Hangs Himself While Despondent.

Richard H. Underwood, a prominent Loudoun farmer, committed suicide Monday by hanging himself. He left his home early in the morning, telling members of his family that he was going to salt some cattle in a field near-by.

When he failed to return after several hours, members of his family went to look for him, and about 3 o'clock in the afternoon found his lifeless body hanging from a tree with a half-inch rope around his neck.

He had in his pocket a razor, with which, it is thought, he intended to make sure of the success of his suicidal purpose should the rope fail to do so. He had been in ill health for some time and had become very despondent, and it is thought this was the cause of his act. He was about fifty years of age and is survived by his wife, five sons and seven daughters.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigaretty aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

EVERY THING FOR BUILDING—BUT THE HARDWARE

It's Economy To Have Tires Repaired

Even though you can buy a new tire cheaper today than you could six months ago, you can save perfectly good money by having your blowouts properly repaired.

It is extravagance and a pure waste of money to run a tire with a blow-out patch. If brought to us promptly, we can make your tire as good as new, and at a very slight cost. We know HOW. Bring your tire work to us.

FAMINE REPORT ALARMS OFFICIALS

President Seeks Aid of Public Health Service and Red Cross in Cotton Belt.

Alarmed at reports of a threatened "semi-famine," coupled with an epidemic of pellagra, in a large section of the Southern cotton belt, President Harding requested both the Public Health Service and the American Red Cross to make immediate investigation and report what could be done by the federal government to relieve the situation, says a Washington dispatch.

The fullest co-operation of all federal agencies in the relief measures was promised by the President, who declared that if found necessary Congress would be asked to pass special legislation. He urged that no time be lost in ascertaining the actual conditions and applying to them effective remedy.

The threat of "famine and plague," the President wrote to the Health Service and the Red Cross, seemed to arise from the fact that depressed markets had made it impossible for the people of a large section of the South to sell their stocks of cotton. The resulting shortage of money, he said, apparently had deprived many thousands of the variety of food necessary to ward off pellagra.

The President in his letter to Surgeon-General Cumming said:

"I have been greatly concerned to note the public statement from the Public Health Service as to the menace of pellagra and condition of at least semi-famine in a large section of the cotton belt. That such a condition is obviously a temporary incident to the economic dislocation following the war cannot lessen our concern. Famine and plague are words almost foreign to our American vocabulary, save as we have learned their meaning in connection with the afflictions of lands less favored and toward which our people have as many times displayed large and generous charity.

"Immediate and effective measures of amelioration are manifestly demanded if conditions even approximate the gravity suggested by the public health report. It is unthinkable that we should delay for a single day the institution of such measures. Therefore, I am writing to ask you for the most complete possible report that can be made at once—provided there is anything to add to what you have already made public—especially for suggestion of proper measures to deal with the situation.

"I am also writing to Dr. Livingston Farrand, head of the American Red Cross, in the same tenor, and I wish you both to be assured of my co-operation and of all aid that can appropriately be given through the executive departments, and to know that if full information about the situation shall make apparent that legislative action is necessary, I will on a proper showing be prepared to ask the requisite authorization from the Congress."

In his letter to Dr. Farrand Mr. Harding said:

"Recent reports of a distressing condition among the rural population in a large section of the cotton belt indicate that, due to the depressed cotton market, many thousands of people are unable to sell their one product for money wherewith to obtain a necessary variety of wholesome food and that there is grave threat of an epidemic of pellagra.

"It must bring a shock to the American people to realize that a great section of their own country, which they are wont to think of as immune from such experiences, is actually menaced with famine and plague. For that is what it could be called if it should befall in any country, and we may as well give it its right name. It is, of course, a consequence of the economic disorganization following the war, and it demands instant and vigorous attention. Our people, so long and so often moved by splendid charitableness toward the unfortunates of other lands, will never permit such an affliction here at home.

"Moved by a realization that there must be no delay in coping with such a condition, I am writing to ask you if the Red Cross can make an immediate investigation and report the present situation, the outlook for the future and the measures necessary for prompt and effective relief."

Latest reports received by the Public Health Service were said to indicate that pellagra this year in the cotton belt would claim about 100,000 victims, of whom it was estimated 10 per cent. would die.

The fellow who received a letter from the government telling him that his body had arrived from France must have felt very much relieved to know that he was no longer lying dead on foreign soil.—The Argus (Seattle).

Civilization will never attain its full flower until the band plays thrilling patriotic airs as citizens walk up to say their prayers.

VIRGINIA PRESS ASSOCIATION

The convention of the Virginia Press Association reassembled Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Ocean View Hotel to complete a heavy program in time for the members to be guests of the Chamber of Commerce on an automobile ride in the afternoon and a dinner at night.

Reports showing that the organization has grown to ninety-seven members from thirty-seven in 1919, were submitted by the secretary.

Special committees that have been working on proposed changes in rates for legal advertising and for obtaining a more modern libel law for Virginia submitted their recommendations.

It was recommended that a special committee be appointed to make an exhaustive study of the existing libel laws and to suggest to the next General Assembly the passage of a new law, embodying the best features of those in effect in other States.

Aim of the proposed law, it is argued, should be a clearer definition of the term libel, based probably on the statute now in force in Michigan.

Discussion of the labor situation featured the session. Report on progress in linotype instruction at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and at the School for the Deaf and Blind at Staunton also was made.

Mr. L. E. Pugh, of Newport News, was re-elected president of the association. Mr. James C. Latimer was re-elected secretary-treasurer, Mr. Pugh beginning his third term, and Mr. Latimer having held his position since 1919.

A director of the association was appointed for each of the ten congressional districts of Virginia, in order to bind the association in a more compact organization for the general good of Virginia journalists. Nearly 100 delegates and guests were in attendance at the meeting.

Hon. Kenneth N. Gilpin For Lieutenant-Governor

HON. KENNETH N. GILPIN.

Dr. Edwin A. Alderman
President of the University of Virginia

In a letter under date of December 17th, 1920, addressed to Hon. Kenneth N. Gilpin, of Clarke County, had the following to say in regard to his candidacy for Lieutenant Governor of Virginia:

"I want you to know that I am frankly and deeply interested in your political future. I believe the State of Virginia has need of such a man as you in its high offices, for its own sake primarily. I have no doubt that a great future awaits you, for you possess all the qualities of mind and character to carry off a great career."

THE above tribute is indeed a fitting one to Mr. Gilpin whose record politically, personally and otherwise has never been questioned, and one well deserved if service and straight forwardness counts for anything.

In time of peace as a member of the General Assembly, Mr. Gilpin's position on all important matters was never in doubt. He has always had the courage of his convictions. In time of war he was found seeking service, NOT EXEMPTION, and served in the most hazardous branch, namely, Aviation, and was for nearly a year, on the French Front doing active duty.

Mr. Gilpin favors and stands for a business-like and economical administration of state affairs.

Mr. Gilpin is openly opposed to any STATE BOND ISSUE that will increase taxation, and those who would have you believe otherwise on account of his position on local Bond Issues, do so for political purposes.

Mr. Gilpin's long service in the General Assembly, where he served on some of the most important committees, gives him a broad knowledge of the administration of the State's business.

He is clean, honest and fearless and worthy of your confidence.

Your Ideal of a Flour

¶ There is scarcely a housewife or cook in this whole section who has not had trouble, at one time or another, with flour. And when you can not get just the kind of flour you want, doesn't everything just seem to go wrong?

¶ Many a time you have wondered why there was not a flour to serve every purpose. "Why should it be necessary to have two or three different kinds of flour on hand in order to take care of the various baking needs?" you have probably asked yourself over and over.

¶ B. Lynn Robertson's White Rose Flour is the solver of your baking troubles—the answer to all the questions you have been asking about the merits and adaptability of this and that grade of flour.

¶ In White Rose, we have succeeded in grinding a flour that is an all-purpose baking material—a flour that you will be delighted with, once you have used it. If your home is not acquainted with this popular brand, order it the next time. If your grocer does not have it, we will gladly supply you direct until you can get White Rose at your grocer's.

state governmental agencies, the state tax system, the state highway system, and they do not seem to care if they do step on the toes of some of the state officials now in power.

The biggest issue in the state campaign, which has been developed by the candidates for governor, is the state highway system and the issuance of bonds to build a system of state roads connected together like those in Maryland. Last November the people of Virginia, by 60,000 majority, or 2 to 1 vote, ratified an amendment to the state constitution, vesting in the hands of the General Assembly the power to issue bonds for the building and improving of highways. A remarkable change of sentiment has since convulsed the state. On account of depressed business conditions and the low price of agricultural products, both Tucker and Trinkle have announced their opposition to a state bond issue at this time. Tucker takes the view that all state highway construction at this time should be done with funds available from taxation and the project should not be pushed until normal conditions come again, holding that perhaps in the next few years it may be possible to build three miles of road with the present-day cost of two if the people are willing to wait.

Trinkle holds the same view, but also calls for the reorganization of the State Highway Commission, leaving the impression he wants the wings clipped, if not the job, of State Highway Commissioner Coleman.

There is some material difference between the two men only on about one other state issue—taxation. Mr. Tucker denounces the present taxation of the state as a crazy quilt, saying it is all wrong to assess a hog at $5 in one county and $10 in another, etc. He declares, if elected, he will call a conference of the best minds in the state to work out a scientific taxation system so that taxes will be equitably distributed throughout the state.

On other state issues there are practically no differences. Both favor the enforcement of the prohibition laws and say so most positively. Both favor more compensation for the old Confederate veterans. Both unalterably oppose any increase in taxation. Both favor better schools, especially in the country districts. Both promise the strictest economy in the expenditure of the state funds.

There is another element in the contest—the personality of the two men. The Trinkle forces have disseminated the impression that Tucker, who is 68, is too old to be governor. They have said that in these times a young business man is needed at the helm. Trinkle is 45 and has made a success in business. Trinkle is also rather corpulent and Tucker, who is slender, promptly challenged Trinkle to a foot race, which the latter did not accept. Tucker has replied to this talk with the statement that Trinkle supported the late J. Taylor Ellyson for governor when the latter was in his 70s and supported William Hodge Mann for governor 12 years ago, when Tucker ran against him. At that time Tucker was only 56 and Mann was as old as Tucker is today.

Trinkle, however, has made a remarkable race, and it is a toss-up as to who will win. He has spoken in nearly every county. When he entered the contest, it looked hopeless. He, however, has formed a good working organization. While not saying so directly in his speeches, he has left the impression he will "clean things up" at Richmond if elected governor. This impression has helped him. The people of Virginia, depressed over business conditions, over high taxes, are exhibiting that feeling of unrest and desire for changes which a year ago swept Harding into the White House by an amazing landslide. Trinkle's friends have capitalized this feeling among the people, and it is helping him.

the flag of a reunited country on the fields of France. Perhaps, since the armistice, in a public address, has given to his Tennessee mother the credit for his ideals and his devotion to duty. Woodrow Wilson will live to see that program that he almost gave his life for, translated little by little, as men recede from partisan politics, into national law and international agreement. The treaty and the covenant are live and vital forces in the world and under whatever name it may be styled the United States will adopt substantially the entire program. There will be no half-way ground, and Woodrow Wilson, a son of Virginia, will take his place in the kingdom of man with Washington and Lincoln.

"There are two great wrongs to be righted, two acts of gross injustice against the South for which reparation must be made and these acts were perpetrated by Southern men. It was Montgomery Meigs who was the quartermaster on Lincoln's staff, born in August, Ga., who issued the order for the insult to the South, the lines written by Robert Ingersoll, to be hung on the walls of Arlington, and in all the United States military parks. That tablet was removed from Arlington by Secretary Garrison, a Northern man, but it went back during the administration of Newton D. Baker. It would be a generous and just act if President Harding would issue an order countermanding the order of Meigs. Some day that will be done.

"The other act of gross injustice to the South must be charged primarily to Josephus Daniels and Newton Baker, Daniels, a North Carolinian, Baker, a son of a Confederate soldier. For all time, until they make some just reparation for their infidelity, they will stand indicted before the bar, at least, of the public opinion of the South. They were the ranking members of the Arlington Amphitheatre Memorial Commission. The Congress of the United States set apart a Confederate section at Arlington; the law creating the Memorial Commission provided for a Confederate veteran to be one of the commission to carry out the plan of a general program that would be national and not sectional. Notwithstanding the appeals made time and again to Daniels and Baker, they deliberately forgot the South in their hour of triumph and omitted absolutely the names of all Southern heroes. Daniels always wrote affirmatively, but he never acted. Baker, in his endeavor to side-step, made many conflicting statements. At first he dodged behind the fact that he had had President Alderman, of the University of Virginia, serve on the committee that selected the names for the memorial. There are certain extenuating circumstances that excuse President Alderman, as he states that Baker submitted only the list of Union soldiers, but I have never quite forgiven him for not demanding the recognition of the South or in resigning from the commission."

Owens discussed the nature of the Manassas Memorial as it would serve as a memorial as such, and as an educational force to teach the facts of impartial history, not in bitterness or enmity, but in simple loyalty, teaching the great lessons that are now the common heritage of America. He quoted the lines written by a young Kentuckian during the world war, showing the solidarity of America:

"Here's to the Blue of the wind-swept North

When we meet on the field of France; May the spirit of Grant be with you all As the Sons of the North advance.

"Here's to the Gray of the sun-kissed South

When we meet on the fields of France; May the spirit of Lee be with you all As the Sons of the South advance.

"And here's to the Blue and the Gray as one

When we meet on the fields of France; May the spirit of God be with you all As the Sons of the Flag advance."

Major E. W. R. Ewing, president of the park association, who presided over the impressive ceremonies, said in part:

"This day we are met upon the pivotal point of two of the world's most famous battles. Both were fought between forces of the Confederate States and the forces of the Federal government. Just east yonder on the plateau is the Hillie cedar near which Jackson stood when slightly wounded, and where hereat Ben saw him when he exclaimed:

"See, Jackson and his men standing like a stone wall."

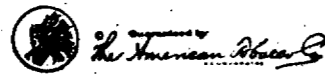

"Right here stood the old Henry house; and on this hillside Jackson's bayonets yet to pursue McDowell's flanking movement, and which enabled the Confederates to inflict upon their foe a victory which has for them yet a bitter sting. That was July 21, 1861.

"But scarce a year later, August, 1862, out yonder to the north some few miles that splendid character and renowned warrior, Robert Edward Lee, led in person a grand charge against Pope's legions, who had gone out to bag Lee and Jackson—an act of much rashness as events proved—and down through the valley over there the tide of battle rolled. Dust and blood mingled; cannon roared, small arms barked and the air for the whole of the day was filled with the deadly leaden hail; and the cries of the wounded and the shouts of the victors mingled in strange discord and rolled out over the land, far and near. Nearer and nearer toward this spot the conflict drew. The sun was going behind yonder distant Bull Run mountains when Jackson's men and other Confederate legions pushed the Yankees up this very hillside, and put to ignominious flight Pope's reserves which rested upon the crest where Jackson formed his lines for the terrible charge at First Manassas! Again the Federal army, in terrible confusion, rolled into Washington!

"Hence, hereupon this land was mainly fought First Manassas and here ended Second Manassas, epochal, brilliant, ghastly, significant, yet at the very top of the roster of really great battles! Here died thousands from the armies of both sides; and here thousands more were wounded! Gettysburg and Chickamauga have been memorialized; and yet First and Second Manassas mean more to history, and First Manassas meant more than all others to the South; and shameless, they have forgotten! Not a monument, not a marker of importance do you see! Where died the gallant Bee? There should stand a noble monument! Where was Wheat's sacrifice made? There should stand a noble tablet! And where did Evans and Hampton and others and yet others so miraculously hold in check the legions and legions in blue, with their rifled cannon and their regulars? Ah, these and here at the Henry house, and at other historical spots should stand memorials placed by an admiring and devoted South!

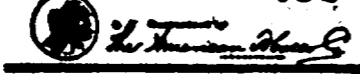

"But since these memorials are not in existence, we are not met today to memorialize the brave men who here died or were wounded. We are met in business conclave to tell you that you may take part in that high privilege. We come to tell you of a movement to build a long-delayed and dearly-earned memorial to the undaunted men who here died during those now famous battles.

"As your agent, Virginia has incorporated an organization that such a memorial may be the more effectively, honestly and expeditiously accomplished. The charter authorized the dedication of the proposed park in memory of the brave men of both armies who here died in those battles; but, primarily, this park will be in honor of the soldiers of the Confederacy and the noble women of the South during that blighting war. It will be a Confederate park. It will be built by voluntary contributions by the South, and the Confederate organizations. No part of the work will be done by the Federal government.

"It is proposed that this park shall be a memorial and more. It will be a great sign-board, as it were, pointing to a full and fair history of those battles and to the truth regarding the secession which preceded them. This great park shall be a reminder that, among other basal truths, the North, largely through ignorance of the facts, yet nonetheless culpable, had produced such conditions that the Southern States had either to secede or to fight the federal government while nominally remaining in the Union. Secession was implied constitutional law; war against the government while nominally a part of its domain, would have been rebellion. Hence secession was chosen; and the conditions which made it necessary were at least three: 1. To preserve government under a written constitution as that instrument from time to time was interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States; 2. To maintain inviolate the sanctity and functions of the sovereignty of the state which the constitutional left with it and guaranteed to it; 3. To preserve the domestic tranquility of each Southern State, and to maintain that tranquility because of the supineness of the federal government and the aggressions of the North. And since domestic tranquility was one of the prime purposes for which the Union was formed, its destruction by the North was a destruction of the Union.

"On the other hand, it is proposed that this memorial shall help that we may not forget that the men of the North, a section at no time more democratic than the South—I wish I had time to prove—fought not for the freedom of the slaves of this country. Mr. Lincoln did not call the men of the North to arms for that purpose. In his inaugural address he said that the slavery of the States was their own affair and that, while it was impliedly recognized by the constitution of the United States, he was willing that it should be made express and irrevocable constitutional law! He went the South one better; for had the South been let alone slavery, for economic reasons, would have disappeared long before now and at no cost of the precious white blood which Northern illegality caused to be spilled! The Northern soldier thought he was fighting for the Union! But he forgot that the Union for which he fought was but a mere nominal Union! He wanted union, but he wanted just the kind of union that suited his views, regardless of the facts of the case; and, unwilling to abide by the decisions of the courts as to what the Union really was, he wanted to interpret it and to define it his way! His Union was, in effect, the will of the irresponsible mob!

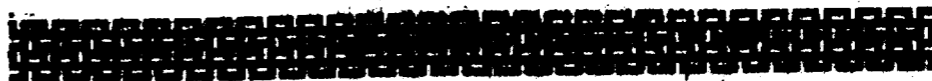

"Such, ladies and gentlemen, are among the fundamentals it is proposed this memorial park, which we offer you the privilege to help construct and beautify, shall represent. Not in malice or through blind prejudice; but in kindness and fealty we shall make the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth our watch-word."

"PRESERVING THE UNIVERSITY"

The controversy over the location of the consolidated medical school under the auspices of the University of Virginia continues warm in spite of the period of months which separates us from the next session of the legislature which is to decide whether the school shall be located on the university campus, continuing the university medical school, or at Richmond, the present location of the Medical College of Virginia.

Statements furnished by Richmond adherents say that Virginia physicians, dentists and pharmacists by a decisive majority favor the location of the merged medical schools at Richmond, placing the Prince William county vote at 9 to 4. Since most Virginia medical men have been graduates of the Richmond school—dentists and pharmacists, at least, for the University Medical School heretofore has not included these branches—it would be only natural to expect a majority opinion among them favorable to Richmond. In fact, the spirit of Richmond would be expected to have a mighty hold upon loyal alumni—perhaps enough to disqualify them as jurors.

The result of this ballot, according to these authorities, "should prove interesting to the people of the county, who will have to pay the taxes." It would seem that other students of the situation, the fathers and mothers perhaps of the coming generations of medical students—taxpayers outside of the thirteen whose votes are enumerated—might hold opinions of equal weight. Doubtless not one of the thirteen who cast their ballots in favor of either location would care to leave the final decision to their judgment—interested in the situation though they are, as every citizen of Virginia ought to be.

While Richmond up to this time has been considered practically solid in sentiment favoring adoption of the commission report and the selection of Richmond, the Times-Dispatch, rated as one of the foremost daily newspapers of the South, in favor of "Preserving the University."

The concluding paragraph of this editorial, which states fully the stand taken by the Times-Dispatch, reads: "The Times-Dispatch is convinced, then—regrettably, it is admitted, for it still hopes to see Richmond the outstanding medical center of the South—that the consolidated medical school should have its seat on the university campus. Thus the best interests of the university and of the state at large will be served, and there is no preponderance of evidence to show that medical education will not go forward as rapidly there as it would if the school of Jefferson were to be dismembered and one of its severed limbs set up in Richmond."

THE "CRIME WAVE"

There are few to gainsay the assertion that a crime wave is sweeping over the country at this time, at this perilous period following the great war. The good ship America has encountered rough weather after setting sail for the port of normalcy.

The situation has been chiefly ascribed to the vast army of the unemployed resulting from the ungradual cessation of wartime activities in American industry.

Judge T. N. Haas, of the Roanoke circuit court, puts forth a new reason for this condition. Failure to punish criminals adequately—the miscarriage of justice—is responsible, says Judge Haas. "It is an indisputable fact that American people and their officials and juries are too tolerant of crime," Judge Haas declares. "They read or hear about it, and are not impressed with its heinousness or enormities unless they actually suffer personally from it."

ARMY OFFICER CLEARED

The ugly charge against an American army officer of accepting a bribe of $5,000 in connection with the escape from military prison of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy slacker, featured the Bergdoll investigation before the House committee, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of the notorious draft evader, being the author of the charge.

While Mrs. Bergdoll's statement at the outset was branded by Major Campbell as "false in every particular," the army officer's deposit of $4,500 with a brokerage firm in New York about the same time that Mrs. Bergdoll alleged that the bribe money was paid to him—a difficult deposit to make on a major's pay—was exceedingly damaging evidence. It was a source of no little gratification to Americans that Major Bruce B. Campbell, the accused army officer, was able to substantiate his denial of the charge.

SAVE THE WATER!

While many Manassas homes are sometimes in acute distress as a result of the temporary water shortage, there are other townspeople dependent upon the same supply who engage at times in watering their lawns and the streets and in washing porches, automobiles, etc. In normal times this use of the water supply is legitimate, necessary and proper. When the water is as scarce as it is today—and as it promises to be for more than thirty days longer—it is not.

There are homes in Manassas where there is not enough water to drink, or to bathe in, or for other sanitary purposes, all of which are matters of primary importance. Some parts of the town are said to have felt no discomfort whatever—sections of the town to which the water flows more readily. This perhaps explains the thoughtless attitude of the water wasters, who have continued the practice in spite of public appeals to conserve to the limit from both Supt. Gué and Mayor Brown. They have failed to realize how acutely the situation has affected their neighbors.

Work on the new well has really begun but we cannot expect relief before September. If a conservatory program is adopted without further delay by every family we have reason to hope that there will be a minimum of discomfort for all concerned.

Let's try this form of neighborly co-operation today. Besides relieving the acute situation of the present, we may be able to create a reserve to help us through the fair in August.

MR. MOORE AND THE TARIFF

Although Prince William missed her distinguished representative, Hon. R. Walton Moore, at the battlefield inaugural on July 21, the duties which kept him in Washington were fully appreciated by his constituency, who may justly harbor a feeling of pride in his part in the successful democratic attack in several quarters during the tariff debate.

Representatives of democracy waged a gallant but losing fight against the collection of duties on the basis of value in the American markets, giving the domestic manufacturer the equivalent of double protection at the expense of the buying public.

They succeeded, however, in defeating the measure which revealed a dye monopoly and prevented a protective tariff upon cotton, asphalt, hides and oil.

DON'T LET YOUR WIFE SEE THIS

An employee of the Marathon Paper Mills Company, tired of hearing men boast of their importance, says the National Safety News, dug up the fact that, according to scientific investigation, the ingredients of man, plus water, are as follows:

- Fat enough for seven bars of soap.
- Iron enough for a medium-sized nail.
- Sugar enough to fill a shaker.
- Lime enough to whitewash a chicken coop.
- Magnesium enough for a dose of magnesia.
- Potassium enough to explode a toy cannon.
- Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas.

This whole collection is worth 98 cents, and that in a day when things are three times as high as they ought to be.

SENATOR WEST CONFIDENT OF HIS NOMINATION FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

To the voters and especially my supporters:
Beware of false statements and reports. The report, unsigned and without date, emanating from the Richmond Headquarters of Senator Julien Gunn and carried in the weekly papers that the contest for Lieutenant-Governor is between Messrs. Gilpin and Gunn, and that my followers are going to Gunn, thus forcing me to the third position, is false, deceptive and misleading. The statement he is sending the papers this week that I favor the proposed $50,000,000 State bond issue for roads is likewise false. I am against this bond issue.
These are the last efforts of Senator Gunn to prevent his humiliating defeat, as impartial reports and a visit to all sections of the State show him to be a poor third in the race. Virginians like fair play, and will not stand for such methods.
Latest reports from every county, city and district, indicate my nomination by a majority over all the candidates. I expect to carry six Congressional Districts by a safe majority and two other districts by a plurality.
Keep up the fight for me and victory is assured.
Years to win,
J. E. WEST

ROOSEVELT'S GLASSES

Ex-President Roosevelt was awkward and stupid as a boy, until he suddenly discovered that he could not see as well as other boys. He tells us that glasses changed his career. Most backward children have defective eyesight. No boy or girl can do well in school who cannot see distinctly. With correctly fitted glasses, nine out of every ten immediately improve in school work. Success in school promises success in later life. Have your children's eyes examined at the first indication of trouble. The eye, the most delicate, the most important of all the special organs, should be first to receive attention.
Thirty years' experience and thousands of pleased patrons is my guarantee to you of competent satisfactory service.
