

PREDICT VICTORY IN NOVEMBER

Democratic Voters Urged to Leave Everything and Go to the Polls.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16.—With every indication from every section of the state presaging a sweeping democratic victory, caution is nevertheless the watchword among party leaders.

In the days of Nelson, "England expected every man to do his duty!" In the days which are now upon us, "Virginia expects every democrat to cast his vote!"

Virginia does not call alone to her sons, but her voice is lifted also to her daughters. She desires to see the entire democratic population within her confines on November 8th march to the ballot box, leaving plow and theatre behind them, setting aside matters of personal and private interest, dedicating and consecrating enough time on the day of election to register their will at the polls.

The democratic party next month will not be engaged in a "family quarrel," it will not be concerned with matters of domestic, party or private policy. It will be in the face of the enemy. At such a time it is proper that the entire democratic strength of the state rally to the colors.

For the third of a century the democrats have dominated the political situation in the state. They have nominated candidates in convention and had their party fights in primary, after which their nominees were swept into office by acclamation.

This has created a dangerous apathy during general elections. But these conditions will not obtain in November and the danger of this apathy must be removed.

On November 8th the Democratic lines advance to the precincts; let the battle of the ballots begin with sunrise, and let the order to cease firing be given only at sunset.

Virginia expects every democrat to vote on November 8th.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Prizes to Be Given for Best Exhibits at Community Fairs Held This Year.

(Miss Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent)

A very important meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in the high school building Friday afternoon, October 14.—The president, Mrs. Round, was unavoidably detained at home. Mrs. Mae Dogan was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy, and presided in her usual attractive and business-like manner.

At the request of the members present the secretary called the roll, the following members answering to roll call: Mesdames J. F. Dogan, Chas. Lewis, Ashby Lewis, Hodge, Doak, Blough and Misses Osborn and Gilbert. One new member, Mrs. Beavers, was added to the roll.

The secretary read the minutes of the July meeting which were duly approved; she also reported on the success of the joint county rally held the second Friday in August.

In order of business it was decided that the next meeting of the auxiliary, the second Friday in November, be a get-together one and that the members of the county farmers' union be invited to meet with the auxiliary. This meeting will be in the nature of an afternoon tea, and will be held in the assembly room of the high school from 2 to 5 p. m.; cake and hot coffee will be served. The following committee was appointed to have charge: Mesdames C. F. M. Lewis, Hodge, Blough and Miss Gilbert.

Chairman of the Rest Room committee reported that the county supervisors had appropriated $50 for the benefit of the room; that the one-half barrel of flour won by the Bethlehem Club had been placed in the Rest Room in 12-pound sacks to be sold for the benefit of the room.

In order of new business it was decided that the auxiliary offer a prize to the community making the best showing at a joint exhibition of blue ribbon exhibits from the communities holding community fairs. This prize to a two-burner oil stove, same to be used to put hot lunch in the school in the community winning same. It is hoped that these communities will readily respond to the invitation extended by the Prince William News last week.

It will be remembered that County Superintendent of Schools Chas. R. McDonald last spring offered a silver loving cup to the community making the best showing at the county seat from results of community fair; this exhibit to be held some time in November or the first of December. Let's all get busy and show what has been done through the community fair efforts.

MORE DIPHTHERIA IN STATE OF VIRGINIA NOW

Commissioner Issues Warning and Calls Attention to Protection Offered by Board.

Virginia in common with virtually every other State is suffering this year from an unusual number of diphtheria cases. The sickness records for September make this fact only too apparent.

Dr. Ennon G. Williams, State Health Commissioner, sends a message to the two classes of professional people in Virginia who can make the disease far less dangerous if they will exert themselves to that end.

"If the Virginia teachers," said Dr. Williams, "will insist upon the observance of our 'health rules,' will put into practice their knowledge that diphtheria cannot be conveyed from one child to another unless the child gets into its mouth the secretions from another, the disease cannot be spread; and the schoolroom will be the safest place for a child to be.

At all times care should be exercised that a common drinking cup should not be used by the children, and they should be taught that it is dangerous for them to put their fingers or pencils into their mouths. If children could be kept from putting to their lips or into their mouths anything except food or a tooth brush, diphtheria would have very little effect, the cases would be very few."

"Unfortunately, however," added Dr. Williams, "it is not always easy so to inculcate such habits of cleanliness and care that they will be followed outside the schoolhouse. Still that is extremely important. There are many more cases of mild or unrecognized diphtheria than there are active cases; so anyone is a possible source of danger to another; and it is important that there should be no transference of mouth secretions. To use a glass or cup that anyone else has used, Mr. Heinikin Peters and Miss Katharine Peters motored from Washington on Friday and spent the week-end at their Haymarket home "Betavia."

"The Board of Health appreciates that absolute success in impressing this fact is very difficult. Some children are sure to be careless, no matter how careful the teacher may be. The next best thing to prevention is cure; and the Board has made efforts to that end. Any doctor in a country district which is remote from sources of supply of antitoxin may get his supply from the State Board of Health and need not pay for it until it has been used. I sincerely trust that all country doctors in Virginia will take advantage of this offer. Antitoxin, if administered in time, will prevent a fatal ending to the disease; and since ordering antitoxin involves no expense it is really the duty of the country practitioner to order it. It may frequently mean the loss of a life to be without the antitoxin until it is too late."

GAINESVILLE

Recent discoveries in the Luray caverns, where hundreds of yards of new subterranean passageways have been opened to the public, are proving a revelation to visitors, captivating thousands of Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia tourists and even mystifying guides who have been looking at the caverns daily for years.

The recently discovered part of the caverns begins in what was formerly a deep gorge, in which was embedded the "skeleton," which for 43 years has been one of the weird attractions of the cave. When this point is left a passageway easily traversed for about 100 yards leads the tourist to "The Sacred River," a stream appearing, on account of its clearness, to be only a few inches deep, but is in reality several feet in depth. Circling from this point the pathway leads by "The Cardinal's Throne," "The Sunken City," mirrored in fascinating colors at the bottom of "The Silver Sea," the steeples of churches and house roofs being reflected in the limpid waters in realistic fashion.

A little farther on is "The Cameo," an immense rock reflecting all colors under the electric light. Before emerging into the old part of the cave the beholder is greeted by the sight of "Mount Vesuvius," apparently sending out lava and vari-colored material. The discovery has been the means of eliminating retracing in the cave.

PASSES AWAY WHILE ASLEEP

Sudden Death of Mr. Ernest Utterback Shocks Relatives and Friends.

Mr. Ernest Utterback, one of our well known citizens, was found dead in his stable at Laurel, Md., on Wednesday, October 19. He had been in poor health for some time and more or less under a doctor's care.

On Tuesday evening he did not go to Washington for the night as was his custom, but determined to remain at the park for the purpose of exercising one of his horses early in the morning. He retired at an early hour without any indications of illness. Just about daybreak, on Wednesday morning, one of his sons endeavored to arouse him and discovered that he had passed away sometime in the night.

Mr. Utterback was a native of Fairfax county, having been born near Centreville in 1869. He married Miss Margaret Lee of that county and moved to Manassas about thirteen years ago.

Surviving him are his widow and five children—Mrs. E. J. Ramey, of Warrenton; and Jane, Richard, Leonard and Harry; also three sisters, Mrs. Schwickard and Mrs. Whaley, of Washington, and Mrs. Wrenn, of Herndon, and four brothers, Messrs. Robert and Clinton, of Centreville; J. Jackson, of Alabama, and James E., of South Dakota.

The funeral services and interment were held at Fairfax Court House this afternoon; the pallbearers being C. J. Meetze, E. R. Conner, Jas. E. Dorrell, C. M. Larkin, Norman Stuart and W. C. Smith.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

FOR GOVERNOR
HENRY W. ANDERSON
OF RICHMOND

Belvoir, Fauquier County, Virginia.
October 8, 1921.

TO MY NEIGHBORS:

I am supporting Henry W. Anderson for Governor because I know him well and believe him to be the best man who now offers for that high office. I believe also in the platform on which he stands—which in substance is that the administration of the affairs of the Commonwealth should now be changed on the record of management by the party which has been in power under the present Constitution for the past twenty years.

I have not affiliated with the Republican party. My politics are independent. I have, in the past, loyally supported the Democratic party whenever I have voted, though on some occasions I have felt it necessary to stay away from the polls. In the national campaign last year, from deep conviction of national welfare, and after painful moral travail, I voted for a change of national administration, while supporting all the remainder of the Democratic ticket. I was thus one of the four thousand voters in the Eighth Congressional District who did this, with no intention of becoming Republicans. For similar motives I have now turned to Col. Anderson, without thereby deeming myself a Republican to accomplish the same end in Virginia.

I have known Col. Anderson for many years, have worked for Virginia with him and have learned to respect him as a publicist as well as a man of character and force. He is a Virginian of Virginians and has demonstrated his inheritance of the best Virginia traditions in all movements for the welfare and advancement of the Commonwealth in education and industrial progress he has distinguished his career at the bar by solid learning, independence of judgment and high attainment. When war came he volunteered for such service as might be assigned to him and was sent to the Balkans, wearing the uniform of the United States army. There, on behalf of the American Red Cross, he successfully administered relief to the distressed people of a territory as large as our entire South. His native parts, his education and his experience have thus fitted him for further public service, and with large sacrifice of opportunity for mere money making, he is now willing to give his time for you and me.

The platform on which he stands, and Col. Anderson's speeches in elucidation of it, are expressions of real statesmanship, far above the parochial politics and personalities on which we have been fed. Above partisanship, he is convinced that Virginia needs the political stimulus of two parties not only to resume, but to hold, her place in the sun. Being in the prime of life, full of physical vigor, successful in his own affairs, he has, with such ideals, now offered himself as the leader of a movement against the Democratic party machine, after first stipulating for and securing a complete purge of the race question from the Republican organization in the Commonwealth.

Anderson is no man's man. He was not put forward by any one. It was his own inspiration and his own constructive ability which produced the Norfolk platform—that state paper which is destined to be a lighthouse in the history of political freedom in the South. He has, moreover, shown his courage, not only by repelling all suggestions of mere expediency in dealing with the negro vote, but by standing firmly on the responsibility of every true American against the most serious menace of our civilization today—disrespect of the law. To his honor, he has declared himself, in ringing tones, for a vigorous and sincere enforcement of the prohibition law.

Such a man is needed today in the public life of Virginia for Virginia needs courageous and independent leadership, if the State government is to be so administered that taxes may be curtailed, and in local affairs we may return to the Jeffersonian principle of confidence in the people.

Many of you, who voted in the recent Democratic primary and who may respond with sympathy to these sentiments have been disturbed by representations that you are bound in honor, regardless of any opinion you may now have, to support the nominee of the Democratic party. This claim does you credit. I believe I am by tradition and training as tender on the point of honor as any among you. If I felt that you were so bound I would not urge you now to waiver. But I do not believe you are bound at all. No man is bound by a game of cards unless the rules are uniformly enforced on all the players. In the high game of politics at the recent primary the rules, whatever they were, were not uniformly enforced. It is reported that the obligation now urged on you is based upon a resolution of the State Democratic Committee, but it was not published in advance nor was it printed on the ballot. For, one, I asked for access to this resolution before the primary was held, but was unable to see it. As to its enforcement, I am told, by men whose word I can take, that in some localities Republicans, as well as independents, were permitted—nay, in instances, solicited—to vote in the primary without obligation, provided only their intentions to support the machine candidate in the primary were known. More than this, it is known to all that in many parts of the State the rule—as doubtful in law as it was politically inexpedient—of exclusion from the primary of those who had voted "split" tickets last November was sometimes enforced and sometimes not enforced. As these discriminations and variations on a point of the utmost delicacy seemed to be dictated by mere party expediency, they destroyed my confidence, as they did that of many others, in the primary itself.

More than that, it may fairly be asked what, in the present crisis, is our highest political obligation. Is it to anything less than our beloved Virginia? There is no doubt how the men and women of '76 and '61 answered that query. Whatever their previous politics had been they did not consider themselves bound by party ties when they heard the trumpet blast of political freedom. It was a moral issue they faced, and so do you today.

I believe, for these reasons, that all of you are now free to express your convictions at the approaching election.

For years I have heard many of you say that you were weary of existing political conditions. Here is your first real opportunity to assert yourselves—to vote independently. I urge you, therefore, to vote for Anderson and a change of administration in Virginia.

FAIRFAX HARRISON.

Republican Platform

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES FOR STATE OFFICES
TO BE VOTED FOR NOVEMBER 8, 1921.

For Governor:
HENRY W. ANDERSON of Richmond.

Lieutenant Governor:
JOHN H. HASSINGER of Washington County.

Attorney General:
HARRY K. WOLCOTT of Norfolk.

The Republican Party in Virginia, by its delegates in State Convention assembled at Norfolk on July 14, 1921, adopt and proclaim the following platform of principles and policies:

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

We demand an immediate end of the long continued and existing discriminations by fire insurance companies against the people of Virginia which have cost our people millions of dollars and denied them that protection given in other states. We demand a full investigation by the next General Assembly of the insurance conditions in, and operation of the Insurance Department of this State, and that proper remedies be applied to prevent discriminations in terms and rates in future.

TRANSPORTATION AND PUBLIC SERVICE

Under modern conditions the productive capacity of any community is limited by its available power and mechanical forces, while the commerce and convenience of its people are measured by transportation facilities.

We favor a broad and liberal policy towards the transportation and public service interest of this state which will promote the growth and efficiency of these agencies, and lead to the development of the latent resources of the state, under proper state regulation to protect the interests of the people.

INDUSTRY AND LABOR

The world war was largely due to the break down of old economic theories, and the present strangled condition of commerce demands a radical revision of many of these theories and policies.

We believe that the greatest need of legitimate industry is freedom for individual and co-operative effort, and less inquisitorial and restraining interference from government. The purpose of government is to protect men in running their own business, and not to run it for them. The government should keep out of business.

The right of men engaged in commercial enterprise, or performing personal labor, to organize or combine their efforts for the improvement of their condition or advancement of their interests in any lawful manner, is an essential element of freedom and progress; but this right is limited by the similar rights of others and the public, and should not be abused to their injury. We believe that such industrial co-operation is necessary under present conditions to meet the competition of the world and maintain American standards of living.

The right of labor, to stop or change employment without undue interference from any source, is an essential human and property right of free men. The function of government is to provide suitable agencies for the peaceful adjustment of commercial and industrial disputes, and then leave men as free in the exercise of their rights of person and contract as may be consistent with the rights of others, the maintenance of public order, and the protection of the government and those public agencies which are essential to community life.

We believe that the loss due to accidental injury of those in industrial employment is a legitimate charge upon industry, and should not be borne by the person injured, unless such injury be wholly due to his wrongful act or neglect. We believe that the application of these principles in a spirit of mutual sympathy and understanding will go far to solve the industrial problems in this state and promote the commercial progress and prosperity of all its people.

Women have become a permanent factor in our industrial life. The proper regulation by law of the hours of employment and working conditions of women is essential to their own safety and health and the health and morals of present and future generations. We favor adequate legislation to this end. We pledge the Republican Party to the maintenance of these principles.

HAMPTON ROADS HARBOUR

In the harbour of Hampton Roads, Virginia holds one of the great natural assets of the world, open throughout the year, with unequalled climate and conditions for shipping.

We pledge the Republican Party to a broad and constructive policy, in co-operation with the Federal Government, for the development of the harbour and the ports fronting thereon, to provide cheap and attractive facilities for the shipping of the world; to open up direct outlet to foreign markets for the agricultural, coal, mineral and other products of this State, and all that great country that lies to the west of us; to place it in the line of the best European immigration; and to furnish convenient and open port facilities to all sections of this country naturally tributary thereto.

PENSIONS FOR CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS

We favor a liberal policy of State pensions for aged and disabled Confederate soldiers and their dependent widows who bore the burdens of war, to the end that their remaining years may be made comfortable.

CONCLUSION

The Democratic Party in this state is so completely under the control of the office holding machine and local political rings, that no man or set of men, however able or patriotic, can through that party accomplish any reforms which will weaken the power of these machines or free this state from their control. An entirely new personnel, followed by a fundamental reorganization of the government on economical lines is essential to any real or lasting reform. This can only be achieved through a change of the party in control, and a revision of the constitution and laws of the state.

We therefore appeal to the people of this state without regard to past party affiliations to unite with us in the effort to redeem Virginia from these conditions; to restore the political and economic freedom of the people of this ancient Commonwealth; to re-establish a government of the people, founded upon faith in the people, and the right of the people to rule.

The Source of Motor Trouble is not Always Under the Hood

YOU do not look into your gasoline tank to find the cause of engine troubles, but you might find it there.

Automobile motors require a good, steady diet of balanced gasoline. If the distilled product varies because of changing qualities of the crude oil from which it is refined, your gasoline is one-sided. Every oil field produces petroleum rich in certain properties, but lacking in others.

The Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) has eliminated numerous motor troubles and much gasoline wastage by developing a motor fuel which is not only properly balanced, but is the same day after day—to the last ounce—wherever and whenever you buy it. It starts the motor in a hurry, burns up cleanly, and delivers exceptional pulling power.

We have never claimed merits for our products which you could not prove for yourself. We recommend that you get a tankful of "Standard" Motor Gasoline and give it a thorough trial. You will quickly note the advantages of a completely balanced gasoline.

TURNING FORD DOWN

Culpeper citizens read in the daily papers with considerable regret news to the effect that Henry Ford has been refused permission by the Interstate Commerce Commission to lower freight rates on the railroad which he recently purchased, running from Ironton, on the Ohio river, to Detroit. We hope Mr. Ford will go to the supreme court with the case, for we do not believe the commission has power to compel a railroad to charge more for its service than it desires to charge. The motive back of the refusal to allow Mr. Ford to give the shipping public cheaper rates is clear enough. Other railroad lines are charging almost prohibitory freight rates and these rates have been sanctioned by the commerce commission. If Mr. Ford is permitted to charge less for carrying freight, and makes money from reduced rates, then the unreasonableness of the rates the other railroads are permitted to charge will at once become apparent. If Henry Ford can operate a railroad more efficiently and more economically than professional railroad men can operate other roads, then the public is entitled to know it. And if other roads can lower their rates and still make money, as Mr. Ford says he is sure they can do, then the public is entitled to those lower rates, no matter what the Interstate Commerce Commission thinks about it. —Virginia Star.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD

Unknown, the funeral carriage passed,
 Mourned by the colors for the dead.
 Unknown, seemingly in death, alas;
 This sacrifice of life and blood was shed.
 Measured music, the dirge, with muffled drum;
 Comrades in arms passed on with solemn tread,
 Through the victory arch, to the battle won;
 In their last sad rite to their unknown dead.

Unknown, through streets with mart of strife,
 The cortege passed with their unknown,
 Unknown, the toll which claimed this life,
 This comrade in the casket bourne.
 Unknown, "nay, not unknown, the spirit which has only flown,
 With other countless dead.
 Where fields of grain again are grown,
 These fields of crimson red."
 —Edward P. McNally.

LAUGH AND LIVE

AWFUL

"I've never seen anything like the fix Jones has got himself into."
 "With his wife, of course?"
 "Naturally. She caught him telling the truth and he's having the dickens of a time trying to lie out of it." —Times-Dispatch.

THEY GO TOGETHER

"The rapidly increasing divorce rate," remarked the wit, "indicates that America is indeed becoming the land of the free."
 "Yes," replied his prosaic friend, "but the continued marriage rate suggests that it is still the home of the brave." —The American Legion Weekly.

EXACTLY SO

IN LUCK

A fellow who has nothing to eat is in luck. The stomach really needs a rest now and then. Again, if there is something to eat three miles away and he has no carfare, again he is in luck, for a three-mile walk will help any man's appetite. According to how you look at it, there ain't no such thing as up against it.

CAUTION

"Why, George, you're dressed like a tramp! You can't face papa and ask for my hand in such awful clothes!"
 "I can't? Watch me. Think I'm going to risk getting my best clothes all mussed up?"

THE INSULT

"Beelzebub!"
 The Devil's right-hand man approached.
 "Sir?"
 "Prepare papers against General Sherman for libel, slander, damages—everything you can think of," said His Satanic Majesty. "Make 'em strong. I'll tolerate no such scandalous attacks!"
 "Against Sherman, Sir?"
 "Yes, against Sherman—that guy who said war was like hell! I've got to keep this place half-way decent!"

HOW ENGLISH AND AMERICAN DIFFER

"I speak four languages," proudly boasted the door man of a hotel in Rome to an American guest. "Yes, four—Italian, French, English and American."
 "But English and American are the same," protested the guest.
 "Not at all," replied the man. "If an Englishman should come up now, I should talk like this: 'Oh, I say, what extraordinarily shocking weather we're having! I dare say there'll be a bit of it ahead.' But when you came up I was just getting ready to say: 'For the love o' Mike! Some day ain't it? Guess this is the second food, all right.'" —The Youth's Companion.

PUBLIC OPINION AND THE STRIKE

The threatened railroad strike has directed attention to the transportation act, which seems to be misunderstood by many persons. It appears to be assumed that Congress made a mistake by not providing a penalty for disregarding the decision of the railroad labor board. Hence the oft-hand statement is made that the law is without teeth and cannot operate effectively in the present crisis.

Further consideration, however, will cause a reversal of this hasty opinion. The law could not penalize violations of the railroad labor board's decisions without constituting the board a supreme court of arbitration with power to compel disputants to accept arbitration and obey arbitral decrees. This would be a mistake, as it would attempt to substitute the opinion of a board for public opinion itself. The people, not the labor board, must be the arbiters of any dispute which reaches the magnitude of a county-wide railroad strike, with its effects so closely resembling calamity and war. So Congress wisely refrained from providing a penalty for violation of the labor board's decisions and the fact of violation in case of such an event. This furnishes the material upon which the people can form a sound judgment and render a decree. When the people have rendered their verdict there need be no fear that it will not be accepted by all parties concerned.

That the labor board shall have the power to fix the wages of railroad employes is clearly the intent of the transportation act, which says that "all the decisions of the labor board * * * SHALL establish rates of wages and salaries and standards of working conditions which in the opinion of the board are just and reasonable."

In order that the board may arrive at a just decision in any case, it is given the same power to subpoena witnesses and send for books and papers that a court of justice possesses, and it can compel attendance of witnesses and force them to testify. It has the right of access to books and papers and penalties are provided for obstructing the agents of the board.

Thus it will be seen that the labor board has ample powers under which to proceed in the investigation and consideration of a complaint. But the punitive powers of the board cease with the rendering of its decisions. Nowhere in the act is a penalty provided for compelling obedience to its judgments. On the contrary, Congress left to public opinion the power to decide whether there should be compliance with the board's rulings. Section 313 covers that point in the words:

"The labor board, in case it has reason to believe that any decision of the labor board or of an adjustment board is violated by any carrier or employe or subordinate official or organization thereof, may upon its own motion after due notice and hearing to all persons directly interested in such violation, determine whether in its opinion such violation has occurred and make public its decision in such manner as it may determine."

Congress reasoned that public opinion would be potent enough to restrain either party to an arbitration by the board from disregarding its decisions. It was assumed, no doubt, that any body of employes or carriers who availed themselves of the services of the board would customarily abide by its judgments, and that in case of a violation the people would decide whether the violators were justified or not.

This is a salutary and effective law. Applying it to the present emergency, it is found that it rebolds them accountable at the bar of public opinion for any violation of the labor board's decisions. It also recognizes the right of carriers to cut down wages, but if they violate the labor board's decisions in doing so they must justify their acts before the bar of public opinion or lose their case.

Every strike is essentially an appeal to the people, even when the disputants deny that the public is the judge and jury. The public statements of contestants, their appeals for public sympathy, their denials that they are encroaching upon the people's rights, &c., all prove that they rely upon public opinion for victory.

The people have made clear that they will not support the railroad employes in a strike at this time, nor will they support the railroad managers in forcing another cut in wages. Both sides would do well to heed public opinion.—Washington Post.

"MAID OF THE WEST"
It's the story of a girl reared on a western ranch, going east to inherit a fortune and entering society, where her aunt is to pick out a husband for her. The girl, however, has her own ideas about husbands—and therein lies the big point and the humor of the story. Also Esop's Fables. Admission, 11c-17c.

"THE KENTUCKIANS"
The late John Fox, Jr., whose novels have endeared him to the reading public, wrote, "The Kentuckians," it being one of the last stories written by him. He wrote such powerful novels as "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "Ereskire Dale, Pioneer," all of which gained wide popularity. The scenes of "The Kentuckians" are laid in Mr. Fox's native state, Kentucky, and most of them were photographed on the spot. This doubtless will add great value to the production. Also Pathe News Review. A Paramount Picture. Admission 11c-22c.

"THE PRICE OF POSSESSION"
The story deals with a young woman whose husband, a brush rider in Australia, meets a mysterious death. She finds some papers which seem to prove that the husband is heir to a vast English estate, and the widow goes to England and showing her proof is awarded the estate. But the real heir appears and it is only after several stirring developments that the widow comes to a realization of the truth. She is about to give up the estate when the real heir avows his love and both are happy. A Paramount Picture. Admission, 11c-22c.

TUESDAY, OCT. 25
A Super-Melodrama of Love and Intrigue with An All-star Cast.
"THE HOPE"
"The Hope" has several spectacular scenes that will be of especial interest to the picture fan. An earthquake in Italy is shown in action, as well as a skirmish between British troops and Afghanistan natives that is supposed to take place within the famous Khyber Pass in India. And woven throughout the scenes of thrilling melodrama is the most charming love story. The screen version was made by A. Shelby Le Vain, and the elaborate art interiors were designed by A. W. Alley. Herbert Blache was director, with the whole production under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, Metro Director General. Also Fox News. Adm., 11c-17c.

STATE NEWS NOTES

Henry C. Chesley, 78, Confederate veteran, member of wholesale grocery firm of Chesley & Garner, and former Treasurer of Stafford county, died at his home in Fredericksburg Sunday night. Two sons, one daughter and one sister survive.

Henry E. Briscoe was fatally shot on Saturday night on the Camp Humphreys' road, about three miles from Alexandria. William L. Oehlert, of Alexandria, was arrested charged with the crime and is in jail at Fairfax courthouse, the shooting affair having occurred in that county. Briscoe was from North Carolina. He leaves a wife and six children.

Policeman George D. Chinn, of the third precinct, Washington, D. C., was shot and probably mortally wounded as the result of a shooting affray on Monday. The policeman was shot when he attempted to stop a brawl between six negroes, a sequel to a craps game. George D. Scott, colored, who was arrested, is said to have admitted the shooting. The wounded policeman is about twenty-four years old, and a native of White Oak, Stafford county.

Ambr. B. Kyle, forty-five, special Campbell county officer, was found dead in a shanty on a farm near Lynchburg Saturday, the back of his head having been almost blown away with a shotgun. The gun was found lying across the man's legs, in a position almost impossible for him to have gotten to after being wounded. The police authorities have expressed no opinion as yet, but the circumstances seem to indicate murder. Kyle has not been active as a policeman for several months.

A spring near the top of the Blue Ridge, on the line between Page and Rappahannock counties, has within the last few days caused great surprise among residents of that section. The spring is directly in the line of the dry belt that extends across Page county from Shenandoah and Rappahannock counties, and in former arid seasons has remained dry. No dependence has ever been placed upon it as a source of abundant water, its fluctuating stream driving the people of that section to rely upon other sources.

Now it has suddenly burst forth with a great volume of water that is coursing down the eastern side of the Blue Ridge and leading to Hughes river in Rappahannock county.

It is a significant fact that our esteemed fellow-townswoman, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, was able to carry her resolution in the recent convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, endorsing the Confederate Park at Manassas. It is significant in its indication that sectional lines are being wiped out, and an auspicious augury that some day the heroes of the Confederacy will be enshrined in the heart of the Nation. Dr. Barrett is to be complimented on her good work in getting the distinguished body of women composing the D. A. R., lined up behind the Memorial at Manassas. That she should be re-elected State Regent of The Daughters was a foregone conclusion.—Alexandria Gazette.

In the presence of a great many relatives, some of them coming half way across the Continent, Mrs. Diana Dovel celebrated her one hundred and third anniversary yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mettie Huffman, near Grove Hill, this county, 18 miles south of Luray. The anniversary, like those which have been held for several years in her honor, took place in a grove near her home. Mrs. Dovel is still in good health, possessing all of her mental faculties. She is able to recall the time when there was not a railroad in the Valley of Virginia and when a two-wheel pleasure vehicle was unknown. She is the mother of a large family of children whose ages range in the seventies and the eighties. She was married when she was fifteen years old.

Members of the Virginia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in annual convention in Richmond, raked the Ku Klux Klan fore and aft, going on record as being strongly opposed to the "sacred name of the Ku Klux Klan" being applied to any organization except that of the Reconstruction days in the South. Mrs. A. A. Campbell, of Wytheville, a sister of former Gov. Henry G. Stuart, offered the resolution. Mrs. Newton McVeigh, of Richmond, sister of Mrs. Charles Sneff, of New York and Whitestone, L. I., and mother of Charles S. McVeigh, a New York attorney, moved that the body declare its disapproval in the strongest terms.

The daughters drew a sharp distinction between the present order and the one which "saved Virginia and the South from the carpetbaggers."

FOR MIDSUMMER
Lyons Velvet Hats

—If history is to be believed, women at one time wore straw hats in summer and velvet hats in winter. Woman is a creature of moods and by no means dependent upon the weather man to tell her what to wear.

—In winter she wears hats of straw or lace—in summer, behold, she dons the chapeau of velvet.

—Because it is becoming almost always, and because it seems peculiarly adapted to seaside wear, we excuse the inconsistency of lovely woman's fads, and applaud her in her chic velvet hat though the weather be 100 degrees in the shade.

—These new models are in large, medium and small shapes. The color list includes blue, brown, pheasant, cherry, taupe and black.

—The trimmings are of pin ostrich, in fancy effects.

He Tried SUNOCO Oil

And this is what he said:

"That SUNOCO OIL I got from you proved to be fine; especially for the Haynes. It has worked better than it ever has since I bought it. I have been trying to buy some more of the oil since my return, but no one seems to handle it out here. I am writing to the factory today to have them send me some. Tell Ludd (I think that is the name of the fellow that works there with you all the time) that all I have to do with the Haynes is give it lots of Sunoco oil and gasoline and drive it like Sam Hill."

The writer is Mr. J. B. Gibson, who recently left here in his Haynes for Webb City, Mo.

What Mr. Gibson thinks is the opinion of many other SUNOCO users. Have you tried it on your car?

MAY BE A CRIMINAL OFFENSE TO JOKE ABOUT VOLSTEAD

A campaign to suppress mirth in theatres aroused by jokes on prohibition is being planned by enforcement officers in New York, according to Sherman A. Cuneo, director of information of national prohibition headquarters in Washington.

A statement by Mr. Cuneo intimated that invitations might be sent to theatrical managers for a conference looking to action to "inculcate respect for the Constitution."

"This invitation," the statement declared, "will be in response to complaints reaching E. C. Yellowley, acting federal prohibition director for New York, from patrons of theatres and movies that pictures and performers incite disrespect of law by derisive remarks or scenes depicting violations."

DON'T BETRAY YOUR CITIZENSHIP

Voters throughout Virginia are manifesting a keen interest in the present campaign for State offices because this is the first time in a generation that the Democratic party has been confronted by serious, determined and aggressive opposition or been faced by a formidable array of Republican candidates.

In former years Republican opposition for State offices has been practically negligible, but today the situation is different. Thinking Democrats and party leaders have a most wholesome respect for the G. O. P. ticket, headed by Col. Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, because it is composed of outstanding candidates and represents the crystallization of a State-wide protest against one-party domination in Virginia, which will reach its crest at the polls on November 8.

That the Republican party of Virginia is a power to be seriously reckoned with and will be responsible, in one way or another, for better government in Virginia, is admitted on all sides. The vote cast for President Harding last November was approximately 80,000 which is equal to the number of votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in Virginia for candidates of all parties. The Republicans have numbers, determination, organization and a platform that is bound to equal to all those who take the trouble to familiarize themselves with its progressive, humanitarian, economical planks.

The campaign is being waged throughout the length and breadth of Virginia on the highest possible plane by the Republican candidates whose position is simply this: "We point out to thinking men and women the evils of one-party domination, the stagnation and extravagance that have developed during thirty years of misrule by the Democratic party, which has constantly increased the number of officeholders, and we say to the voters, if you want this State of affairs to continue to return the Democratic candidates to office, but if you believe, as we do, that Virginia needs a house-cleaning, the Republican party wants your vote on November 8th."

The Republican party of Virginia, is a militant, forward-looking, hope-inspiring organization, whose ranks are constantly increasing, and which is destined to free the voters from political bondage and assist them to assert the power of their citizenship.

"Parties are necessary in free government," says Col. Henry W. Anderson, who has been enthusiastically received everywhere he has spoken during the campaign, "but they are only voluntary agencies for the expression of the will of the people, looking always to the higher interests of the State. When any party fails to serve this purpose; when it fails to provide for the free expression of that will; when it subordinates the interests of the State to the selfish aims of party by those in control; then it becomes the instrument of oppression, a danger to free government and, whatever its name or service, it should be overthrown."

"While there may be personal or party loyalty, there can be no personal or party allegiance among the free citizens of this State. A Virginian owes allegiance only to the United States and to Virginia, and this must be supreme over all personal or party ties, even unto the giving of life itself. 'THOSE WHO WOULD URGE UPON YOU THE CLAIMS OF PARTY ALLEGIANCE AS PARAMOUNT, WHO INDUCE YOU FOR ANY REASON TO VOTE FOR ANY PERSON OR PARTY AGAINST YOUR CONVICTIONS OF THE INTEREST OF THE STATE, ARE PROPOSING A BETRAYAL OF YOUR CITIZENSHIP AND URGING DISLOYALTY TO VIRGINIA.'—Advertisement.

"Roanoke Times" Bolts the Primary

The Roanoke Times, the leading Democratic paper in Southwest Virginia, has bolted the primary and refused to support the Democratic nominee for important City office. In an editorial October 7th, 1921, it says:

AGAIN WE DISSENT

"Evidently the S. O. S. call has gone out. And the leading lights of the party have responded with praiseworthy alacrity and readiness to lend assistance where assistance is manifestly and palpably needed.

"Come over into Macedonia and help us"—that is substance is the cry that has gone down to Richmond from the hard pressed organization whose efforts to hold the Democrats of Roanoke in line for City Sergeant Mayhew's candidacy for re-election are not meeting with the success that had been hoped and indeed anticipated. And the State organization has heard the call of the distressed and has been quick to answer it to the best of its ability. Witness the statement of Messrs. Trinkle, Flood, Sale and H. M. Smith, Jr., carried elsewhere in this issue.

For Messrs. Trinkle, Flood, Sale and Smith The Times has naught but kindly feeling and cordial regard. But it does not propose to take its construction of moral obligation from these or any other four men either within or without the Democratic party. The fight for and against Mayhew involves issues that have no bearing on the party organization in Richmond and therefore the best thing for that organization to do is to keep out of it.

Mayhew's record is the important issue in the campaign and the Democratic voters of Roanoke have had no opportunity to express themselves on the record, more especially as it has been developed since the date on which the primary was closed to any other aspirant for the office he holds.

The Times isn't making a fight against Mayhew, insofar as Mayhew's candidacy for re-election is concerned. It may be well to emphasize that point here and now. It isn't concerned with the question of whether Mayhew shall or shall not be the next City Sergeant. The Times holds no brief for Tillett and doesn't propose to get behind his candidacy. Let that be clearly understood. The fight The Times is making in connection with the Mayhew-Tillett contest is in behalf of the right of the voters to express themselves in the November election on Mayhew's record. If the voters want to re-elect Mayhew in the face of the lax conduct of the city jail that is their privilege and we shall not quarrel with them for exercising it. But we do insist and shall continue to insist that Mayhew must not be rammed down the throats of the voters of this city by James F. MacTier and his associates on the City Democratic Committee. The Democratic party is bigger than the City Hall. It doesn't have to take its orders from the City Hall, and we have a strong suspicion that in this particular case it isn't going to do so.

Whatever party organization has become arbitrary and tyrannical, it has been smashed. That has happened repeatedly elsewhere. It can happen in Roanoke.

The Times contends that in case of a Democratic voter who considers City Sergeant Mayhew to have been derelict of duty to a degree constituting unfitness to occupy the office he holds, that voter is absolved from any obligation, whether legal or moral, to support Mayhew as the party nominee. To argue otherwise is to argue, in effect, that because Mayhew is the nominee, even if he should go out and cut a man's throat on the street it would still be the duty of the Democratic voters to support him as their candidate. Such a position is manifestly absurd and silly. Yet such is the position the City Democratic Committee has taken, and such is the position in which we strongly suspect it has appealed to the party leaders in Richmond for support. Mr. Trinkle, Congressman Flood, General Sale and former District Attorney Smith can issue statements until they are black in the face, but it won't alter matters a bit. The Democratic voters of Roanoke will not be misled by any such tactics. They are sufficiently intelligent, sufficiently honest, sufficiently fairminded, to judge for themselves as to the extent of their obligation to support Mayhew for re-election. They don't need guidance from the City Hall, Richmond or any other quarter to determine the question of their moral obligation.

Do not the same principles apply to the State primary? If a citizen should refuse to vote against his convictions or take orders from the machine for a City office, why should he vote against his conviction, or take orders from the machine in the larger affairs of the State?

MRS. HOUSEWIFE

Did you ever stop to think that when you buy your meat from SAUNDERS you are not just BUYING MEAT?

SAUNDERS' SPECIALIZED SANITARY SERVICE gives us another valuable product which we sell with every order ABSOLUTELY FREE. This valuable product offered FREE is PROTECTION.

That meat is highly sensitive to germ infection, and that sometimes the most dangerous contamination is not easily detected, every intelligent housewife knows.

No housewife is prepared to judge entirely for herself that the meat she buys for the nourishment of her family has been slaughtered in a 100 per cent sanitary slaughter house and has been cared for in a 100 per cent sanitary way from the time that it leaves the slaughter house to the time that it reaches her home.

THIS IS SOMETHING SHE EXPECTS OF HER MEAT MAN. She wants to be sure that he knows his business, that he attends to it in a 100 per cent sanitary way, providing for her table nothing less than 100 per cent sanitary meat.

For the health of her family this is to her a priceless guarantee.

And so, Mrs. Housewife, when you go to market, we shall ask you to remember that SAUNDERS' has studied the business twenty years. Meats have been our one commodity, and our time has not been sacrificed to a study of countless products which would divide or minimize efficiency and thoroughness in our chosen line. Our knowledge and experience are at your disposal—and you are not asked to Pay More.

There are no cheap prices to advertise—we do not sell cheap meats. We cannot reduce the price of old wares and advertise a bargain. Our stock is practically new every day. You do not want old meats. When you market for your family you want strictly fresh, pure, sanitary meat. We have it. Think it over and let us serve you.
