BUSINESS COURSE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Third of a Series of Five on Courses Offered to Students at Manassas High School.

(Miss E. H. Osbourn)

The following article on the commercial course given at Manassas high school is the third one of the series appearing in the Manassas papers this year descriptive of the five courses offered at Manassas high school—the college preparatory, agricultural, home economics, commercial and general or elective.

The first two articles, published during the fall, described the Smith-Hughes agricultural and home economics courses. The commercial course about to be described runs through four years and leads to a diploma like the others. This course includes six units of commercial subjects and ten of academic, thus making the sixteen usually required for graduation—a unit corresponds to a subject which is given daily for a forty minute period throughout the school year (science units require more class time), and which calls for preparation out of class.

The business part of the course covers mainly the same ground as that given in the standard city business college, and consists of two units of bookkeeping (including spelling and penmanship); one of business arithmetic; one of typewriting, and two of shorthand, the latter including a course in business English. It is planned also to add soon a brief course in commercial law.

The arithmetic unit reviews the fundamental operations, covers the business section of the subject and gives about half of the time to intensive drill in rapid calculation. No part of the whole commercial curriculum has proved of greater practical value in office work than this rapid calculation drill, according to the testimony of students going into the business world. The bookkeeping course comes single and double entry, retail grocery, shipping and commission, wholesale dry goods, and corporation and manufacturing business.

The shorthand course covers the Gregg shorthand manual, and requires for final credit 95% in spelling and 90% in punctuation, and a dictation speed of a 100 words a minute with 100% accuracy. In the typewriting course a speed of 50 words a minute and 100% accuracy is required before final credit can be obtained. Office practice also, listed in some schools as a separate half year subject, is given in connection with the shorthand and typewriting courses.

The academic part of the commercial curriculum calls for ten units: four of English, two of a foreign language, two of history, American and general, one of mathematics and one of science. The greater part of this academic work is given in the first two years, the last two being mainly devoted to the business subjects. The aim of this arrangement of the work is to give the commercial student as much general education as possible before beginning the specialized business work. The importance of this cannot be too much emphasized; for too often, students preparing for office work or other business undertake the commercial subjects without the maturity necessary to do the work successfully, and without even a little of

WANDER ALL NIGHT

Washington Youngsters Picked Up Here Tuesday Morning.

Two youngsters, who said they lived in Washington and that they were brothers, giving their names as Raymond and Elmer Saunders, aged 13 and 8, respectively, decided to see "America First," and, inspired by the spring-like weather Monday they crossed the Potomac and tramped into Virginia.

On Tuesday morning an employee of the railroad here saw them as they were trying to board a freight train and thinking that the diminutive hobos belonged in Manassas he deposited them with Town Sergeant Miller. When asked where they lived they gave their home as in Washington and said that they lived with their father, who is a shoemaker on 429 L street, S. E. Their mother, they said, died several years ago.

The boys, who were wet and cold from their night's exposure in the rain, were kindly taken by Mr. W. E. Athey to his home, where they were fed and put to bed while their clothes were being dried. Sergeant Miller made arrangements to send them back to Washington and on Tuesday evening they were started on their homeward journey.

RELIC OF BYGONE DAYS

Interesting Facts From Almanac Owned by Mr. Hutchison.

Rev. Westwood Hutchison has left at this office an interesting copy of the American Almanac, printed at Baltimore in the year 1833. This relic of a bygone day, was once in the possession of Mr. Hutchison's grandfather, Capt. John Hutchison, the latter being at that time the presiding officer when county court was formed of magistrates, and when the courthouse of Prince William county was situated at Dumfries.

It might be interesting to note a few facts of that time as compared with those of today:

In 1831 the public debt of the United States was only $39,123, 191.68.

From the year 1830 to 1833 there were a total of 540 patents issued, this being an increase over former years.

In 1830 the population of Washington city was only 18,827.

In 1833 the legislature of Massachusetts passed a law exempting from imprisonment for debt all debtors for sums under $10, and all females for debts of any amount contracted after the passage of the law.

The postage on a letter for this period, for a distance of from 30 miles to 400 miles, inclusive, was from 6 to 25 cents.

OPPOSES ISSUE OF VA. ROAD BONDS

Hon. C. A. Sinclair Constrained to Be Against Such Issue at Present Time.

Richmond, Va., March 6, 1922. Editor Manassas Journal.

Dear Sir:—Since the very pronounced activities of the Virginia Good Roads Association, aided, no doubt, by the recent utterances of Governor Trinkle on the subject, in support of the movement for the issuance of twelve millions for road improvement, I have gotten a good many letters from residents of this county touching the matter. As it is not possible for me to answer each letter and petition, I am asking that you publish this communication so that the people of Prince William county may know my position in the premises.

You may, perhaps, recall that the present chief executive, in his pre-election speeches, said that he was opposed to a state bond issue under the then existing conditions.

I am constrained to be against such an issue under present conditions. It is true to some extent that conditions have changed favorably within the past six or eight months. Labor and materials are somewhat cheaper, and farm products have made some advance in price, but the farmer, who must be recognized as the chief taxpayer, has not benefited because his last crops were planted with high labor and expensive materials, while his crops were sold on a much depressed market. I think we cannot expect the farmer's condition to improve much for the better until our trade relations with the Old World countries can be resumed under conditions approaching something like normal.

The State Highway Commission is to be reorganized and it appears to me that it would be the part of wisdom to wait until the personnel of the new commission is known and the reorganized body begins to function until bonds are issued.

The present proposed issue is but an opening wedge, and if twelve millions are issued at this time it will be but a matter of a few years before the state will have road bond issues of fifty millions or more. It is estimated that the state will have from ten to twelve millions to spend on highway development and improvement up to the period ending December 1, 1923. I feel

DAIRYMEN REORGANIZE ALLIANCE

Maryland-Virginia Milk Men Plan Pooling Contract to Meet Coming Situation.

(W. L. Browning, County Agent)

There was a meeting held in the directors room of the National Bank of Manassas on March 1, called by John R. Hutcheson, of Blacksburg, Va., director of extension work in Virginia, in the interest of the new pooling contract and plans of the re-organization of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association. This meeting was attended by the director and assistant director F. A. Bushanan, dairy specialist; county agents representing the counties shipping milk to Washington; representatives of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, and also directors of the association representing the Northern Virginia counties. The object of the meeting was to have a more thorough understanding with each other of the proposed plans of the organization, and the part the Extension Division were expected and could take in this re-organization.

It is the duty of every dairyman shipping milk to the Washington market to sign the new contract in order that the association may not have its hands tied, and that they may feel sure that you, as producers, will do just as you say you will do when the time comes for the association to deal with the milk situation. It is true that some of the shippers feel they have not had a square deal. Part of this may be true and part of it is your own fault, mistakes have been made and the quickest way to rectify them is for every body to come in and help put the association on a sound business basis.

If the farmers producing a specialized crop, such as milk, will not stick and set an example, how do you expect the farmer producing a diversified crop to organize and stick?

WED IN ENGLAND

ONCE CHAMPION WALKER

Mr. Libeau Receives Old Awards From New Zealand.

Mr. Donation Libeau, once champion professional walker of the world for two miles, who now lives quietly on his farm near Blandsford Bridge, yesterday received from his sister, Mrs. John Sergison, of New Zealand a handsome silver loving cup which he won on December 16, 1885, as sports champion of Australia. On this trophy is inscribed "D. Libeau, Sports Champion, 1885." Mr. Libeau is also in receipt of a silver medal which he won in the same year when in a two-mile walking race he covered the distance in 14 minutes, 18 seconds and in so doing defeated the best walkers in the world in that day. The present world's record for the two-mile walk is held by G. E. Lerner, of England, who covered the distance in 13 minutes 11 2-5 seconds, on July 13, 1904.

In every day life one would be called a swift walker to cover a single mile in the time which Mr. Libeau made in covering the two miles.

EASTERN CLAIMS VIRGINIA TITLE

Hands Another Decisive Defeat to Martha Washington, Former State Champions.

The Martha Washington basketball players, of Abingdon, Va., met their second defeat at the hands of Eastern this season when, last Saturday night, they were downed by the local team in the Eastern gymnasium by a score of 13 to 32.

Skill in offensive play, much superior to that of their opponents, gave Eastern her victory over Martha Washington, which team has laid claim to the state collegiate championship for the past five years. This fact coupled with the fact that Eastern has either played or challenged every college girls' team of any consequence in the state should give her the undisputed collegiate championship of Virginia.

Eastern entered the game with a shifted line-up necessitated by the absence of Miss Sarles, regular center, who has recently undergone an operation, and by having to play a one division court game. Misses Thelma Wolfe, Jack Morgan and Grace Blevins played at their usual positions while Miss Thelma Bell, for the first time in her basketball career, played at guard and Miss Grace Monroe played at center.

The visitors, who chose the stage-end basket for the first half, seemed over-anxious at the beginning of the game and they committed a number of foals before the game was well under way. During this half Eastern scored a total of 12 points while Martha Washington scored only 5 tallies. After the rest period between halves the visitors seemed to improve in their playing and scored 3 more points before a goal was registered for the home team. After this crisis, which the Eastern girls met in a veteran fashion, the local team took on a new life and came back with a rush which carried with it a total of 20 more points while they held their opponents down to 8 points in the last half. This brought the final score up to 32 for Eastern and 13 for Martha Washington.

Miss Wolfe, who threw 11 out of Eastern's 14 field goals, and Miss Monroe, who "played everywhere," were the outstanding figures in the Eastern line-up, although special mention should be made of the playing of Miss Bell at guard, who held down an unfamiliar position to her. Misses Morgan and Blevins both played well although not up to their usual standard.

A fine crowd turned out to see the game and to root for the home team, while Eastern's cheering section, led by Miss Dick Hyde, gave a good account of itself with snappy cheers and school songs.

The playing of the individuals and the team work and play of the team as a whole which Eastern has shown this year goes to prove that they are fortunate in having in Mr. Holliday a coach who thoroughly understands the making of basketball players and the making of a winning team.

—Mr. Jones Jasper, of Detroit, Mich., who has been spending the winter at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jasper, of near Manassas, left Sunday for Washington, where he has accepted a temporary position with the Fuller Construction Company.

BONDS ON INACTION

If the people of Virginia have ever given an unmistakable expression of their will on any matter of public importance, an instance is to be found in their united appeal for an early amelioration of the burdens imposed by frightful road conditions. No one may cling to the delusion that the state of our roads is anything but appalling. The winter now ending has been a veritable nightmare for thousands of Virginians in the rural districts and small towns; perhaps not within a generation has the general road condition throughout the state been so bad.

The people of every part of the state are demanding relief. It would be beyond understanding if they were not doing so. In many places they have spent the past few months in the most embarrassing and humiliating isolation; business has suffered seriously, social contacts have been broken. The condition, in short, has become intolerable.

Virginia looks to the General Assembly for appropriate action. Progressive leaders, including the Governor of the state, propose the issuance of bonds; others propose nothing. The issue, then, is reduced to this: bonds or inaction. The State Senate has registered its opposition to the latter alternative, and it is almost unthinkable that the House of Delegates will refuse to join in the stand against perpetuation of a state of affairs so ruinous in its effects upon the happiness and prosperity of the people.

It would be absurd for our legislators to hold stubbornly to a position assumed under conditions materially different from those now known to exist. It would be equally unjustifiable to vote against bonds because of some preconceived aversion to the word. There is nothing inherently wicked or revolutionary or treasonable in a bond issue; and those who are disposed to shy at a shadow must, if they would deal fairly with the people of the state, consider the highly advantageous aspects of the bond proposal now pending. It is manifestly fair and safe. It involves no necessity for a general tax levy. The cost will be borne by the users of gasoline, by the automobile owners of the state—somewhat after the manner in which the protection of game in Virginia is being financed by those who hunt and fish. Protest against the bond issue not being raised in the name of the motorists, for they are not disposed to protest. It is being raised in behalf of those who will share the blessings of good roads, but who will not be required to pay one penny additional to sustain this bond issue. Opposition to bonds under these conditions can be explained on no grounds that will impress the minds of reasonable people. The House should consider well the serious conditions throughout the state before rejecting this plan to afford relief.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

JAZZ MUSIC

One of the typical signs of these times has been jazz music. Formerly ordinary music lovers were fond of sweet and flowing, or bright and snappy airs, as the case might be. They wanted some pronounced tune that they could remember and whistle or sing. And people who had gone into music somewhat deeper, were fond of original harmonies, combinations of tones and chords that gave impressions of force and emotion and seemed to interpret human feeling.

Before the war the kind of music called ragtime became popular, in which ordinary musical forms were modified and the rhythmic accent came at irregular and unexpected times so as to create an impression of unconventionality. In the hands of a master of music, this form of expression can be used to thrilling effect. But a commonplace composer creates a kind of ragged incoherence that becomes tiresome.

Then came the jazz, which went one step farther in the direction of incoherence, and satisfied the demand for mere noise. There are some folks who would rather get out on the streets and yell than hear a fine orchestra perform, and such persons enjoy the thumping upon and blowing into eccentric instruments, and the general noise and confusion of jazzy music. The African savages beating on their tom toms should think that jazz is fine.

Some people feel that this tendency has grown out of the war, and show the natural reaction that occurs after a period of strain. Others think that jazz is immoral, tending to lead people to act in a disorderly way and break down the barriers of decency. But that view is no doubt exaggerated.

There is nothing harmful about mere noise, only it is a phase of enjoyment that sensible people usually outgrow. The kid enjoys his tin drum tremendously at Christmas, but by and by he gets sick of hammering on it and he wants something sweeter.—Culpeper Exponent.

OPPORTUNITY

Any man who has a job has an opportunity. One-half of all jobs are filled with men and women who are indifferent to their work. They are not developing their jobs or themselves; they are just trying to get by.

For instance, a young man walked into an office the other day, and told the manager he would like to go into the publishing business. He made a good appearance, spoke convincingly of his ambitions and altogether made an excellent impression. An investigation of his reference, however, revealed that he had been fired by each of his last three employers because of indifference toward his work.

On his second call, this information was presented to him and he was asked to make an explanation.

His excuse was that the work was not congenial, that he was not temperamentally fitted to the employment he had had. But he was certain that this new job was just what he wanted and that he would make good. He asked for a chance.

The boss turned him down, and this was the way he reasoned it out:

Any man who is on a payroll owes it to his employer to give his full interest to the work he is paid to do. It is up to the employee to boost the house and do the best he can on the job—or get out. Anything less is dishonest and unfair.

Uncongenial surroundings are not an excuse for indifference.

A man who has a job is like a peddler who has one foot inside the door. He has at least a chance to be heard, a much better chance than if he had both feet on the back door steps.

Once a man is taken into an organization, the house recognizes him as one of the family. He has the ear of everyone in the place, up to and including the boss. He may not be able to break into the boss' office, but he can reach him more easily than an outsider.

Just because a man doesn't like the job he has is no reason why he should lie down and howl. Let him pick the job he wants, and fix his eyes on it, and as a stepping stone to this better job let him do his present job just as well as he can.

Healthy discontent is the germ of progress. Sourness and indifference get nowhere.

The young man who was fired three times because of indifference wanted the plums but he didn't care to climb the tree to get them. Any job except the one he had looked good to him. He wasn't willing to wash the breakfast dishes in order to enjoy clean china for dinner.—Type Metal Magazine.

THE BURDEN BEARER

I know who bears the burden in all that time makes true,
 Ah, brothers of the battle, 'tis neither I nor you.
 But one who bears it bravely, the great heart of our clan—
 The woman bears the burden, and she bears it for a man.

We fret and toil and worry and think we do so much,
 'Tis we who think we manage the lever and the clutch;
 But what we do is trifling to all she bears who sings—
 Against the night at gates of light where love through twilight swings.

Our troubles send us whining, she takes her own with cheer;
 She makes the home a haven that shall shelter us from fear;
 She watches as the sentry guards the king's highway,
 And on her heart the burden, is borne with grace each day.

Down through the years that totter around us with their drift
 Of grief and joy commingled, it is her shoulders lift
 The sorrows and the heartache, and showing us the truth
 Brings back into our souls the faith that freesens like one's youth.

I know the burden bearer—the woman, she that smiles
 Beneath the darkest shadow and along the weariest miles;
 The keeper of the castle of the home, that stays her ground
 When we in weakness falter and our sad surrender sound.
 —Bentstown Bard in Baltimore Sun.

Peace Time Patriotism

¶ The American people were fairly started on the road to National Thriftness during the war. They learned how to get along without a good many things that had theretofore been considered necessary, and many who had never saved before managed to lend money to the government.

¶ It is to be hoped that the people will not forget the war's lesson of economy and thrift, and that those who have fallen back into the old ways of extravagant living will soon come to realize that patriotism can be exemplified as well in peace as in war.

¶ Patriotism demands thrift.

LETTER OF THANKS

Mrs. Bywaters Answers Those Who Commended Article.

(Mrs. L. Bywaters)

To Readers of The Journal:

I take this means of thanking you for your words of commendation and letters of appreciation of my article which was printed in this paper several weeks ago. I have no aspirations to become a famous writer, but I am glad, as we all are, for words of encouragement when we realize we have in a small way contributed any good. I believe when any good is accomplished it reflects God. The word good minus the letter "o" spells God.

One lady writes that she is glad that The Journal will publish spiritual articles which are much needed just now. The newspapers are so full of vice and crime that it is a pleasure to find a corner in a paper given to good reading. I have found in the Journal office a staff of workers who are kind, considerate and ever courteous, which means much for the success of their publication. We often find folks in newspaper work who will not always publish articles sent or brought them. They seem to have a "full house" of their own articles. But we must ever remember that "He who who helps others is best helped himself." So let us give others an opportunity of sensing their ideas, which may be as good as our own if not better, and to you who have asked me to write again I shall say, perhaps, but you do your part in making the Manassas Journal the best paper by reading, writing, contributing and subscribing to it. Any good that you have, send it so that it may pass on, for it is better

To carry a single flower
To a friend at any hour
Than to heap up roses white and red
On their casket when they are dead.

OPPOSES ISSUE OF VA. ROAD BONDS

that this amount is all that can be wisely and judiciously expended during that period.

Virginia's portion of the national debt was approximately twenty-three millions. In all the years this debt has been reduced but a few million, while the state has paid millions upon millions in interest, and is now paying approximately eight hundred thousand dollars as an annual interest charge on the state's bonded indebtedness.

The total bonded indebtedness of the state and its political subdivisions is now more than one hundred million dollars. Can the people stand the interest charge on an additional fifty millions?

I think the following situation should be cleared up: The bonds, if issued, would be expended on state or through roads and localities would get no part of the money for local roads. The money would be used to construct roads already embraced in the state system. There are approximately 3000 miles of the system yet to be constructed. A twelve million bond issue would probably mean that high priced boulevards would continue to be built adjacent to the cities while the country districts would continue to get water bound macadam roads 12 feet wide and 8 inches in depth, provided they got any benefit at all from the bond issue.

The utmost benefit that Prince William county could possibly receive from the bond issues, under the law as it is now written, would be the completion of route 21. Work on this route is now under way and it can be reasonably expected that the entire route will be completed within the next few years. That portion of route 21 within Prince William is all of the unconstructed road that the county has in the system. As a local proposition, can the county afford to increase her already heavy tax burdens by assuming her share of a state bond issue when a few more years will see this route entirely constructed with funds provided out of ordinary revenues?

If the bond issue money could be used where the taxpayer would derive the greatest benefit I might be of a different opinion on the subject. I do not believe, however, that it is fair or just to the taxpayer—and by taxpayer I mean the by far larger portion of them—to compel them to build roads for the benefit of the tourist and bootlegger.

Yours truly,
C. A. SINCLAIR.

BUSINESS COURSE AT HIGH SCHOOL

(Continued from First Page) the general education so essential to success in the higher and better paid office and commercial fields.

Another most important feature of the commercial course is that—like all the other courses offered at Manassas high school—it is in large measure standardized. That is, the work is required to come up to certain standards of thoroughness and efficiency that are universally recognized throughout the business world. The Underwood Typewriting Certificate conferred by the Underwood Typewriter Company, the Palmer or Locker Penmanship Certificate, and the McIntosh Rapid Calculation Certificate given by the Palmer Locker and McIntosh Publishing Companies, must all be obtained by the student before credit is given by the school in any of these lines of work. Here it may also be said that the obtaining of these certificates and the completion of the sixteen units referred to, confers a full diploma, and that the completion of the full course with the exception of either shorthand or book-keeping confers a general certificate that is nearly equivalent to graduation.

The value of this standardization is immediately seen when the student applies for a position; for the possession of these certificates conferred by great business firms gives general recognition to their work and makes the securing of good positions an easy matter.

The high school also aims to make the business department as flexible as possible in order to provide for the needs of those not expecting to graduate, or for those who can only take up certain lines of work. Provision is therefore made for mature students to undertake, upon the payment of a small fee, any subjects in which they are interested. Also, part time work may be taken by students having outside employment.

It was seriously feared last spring, and it is by no means certain yet, in view of the very precarious condition of the school finances, that the business department can continue to be maintained, as it is wholly dependent upon local support, and not taken care of by the state as is the case with the agricultural and, in considerable measure, the home economics courses. But to do away with this highly efficient and valuable department of the school for the sake of saving the few hundred dollars it costs would be a most suicidal thing for the best interests of the town and community. For, other than as a trade centre for a part of the county, and as a residential suburb of Washington, Manassas has little means of developing; and for this reason, it is vitally important that its schools be efficient. Moreover, the high school must not only be efficient, but it must offer a variety of work, else how can it prove an attraction to any but a limited part of the community? Not all of its young people will be farmers, and few can afford the long preparation required for the professions. By having an efficient business department, the considerable percentage of our young people who want a business training either for use in the home town or Washington can easily obtain it. Otherwise they must do without it and thus remain misfits for life.

This brings out another valuable feature of the business department; for, apart from the fact that it is able to train so efficiently for business life a number of capable students, its work is attractive to a number who, without it, could not be kept in school at all. These latter can see the value of a business education in dollars and cents when they can perceive no value in other kinds; and are therefore induced to remain longer in school, and are thus carried further on the way that all education makes for—an intelligent and useful citizenship. The community, therefore, as well as the school, would be so much the poorer if deprived of this most helpful side of the high school work.

COUNTY BOARD FOR BOND ISSUE

Supervisors at Last Meeting Resolved to Request Representative to Favor Bill.

At a meeting of the board of supervisors of Prince William county held at the courthouse on Tuesday, February 28, the following members were present: J. L. Dawson, chairman; J. R. Larkin, McDuff Green, O. C. Hutchison and T. M. Russell.

The following orders were entered:

Ordered that the sum of $985 be appropriated out of special road fund for an Avrey No. 1125 tractor for Coles district and that the present tractor in said district be turned over to said reduced price of said sum of company in consideration of the $985.

The board adopted the following resolution: Whereas, there is now pending a bill in the General Assembly, Senate Bill No. 364, having for its object the issuing of bonds to the amount of $12,000,000 for permanent road improvement, and while this board is of the opinion that it is unwise to increase the burden of the taxpayers, it is believed that by issuing bonds it will extend the time of payment over a long period and give the present generation the benefits to be derived from road construction; therefore be it

Resolved, that our senator and delegates be requested to support said measure.

Ayes: J. R. Larkin, McDuff Green, O. C. Hutchison and T. M. Russell. J. L. Dawson, not voting.

Ordered that the highway department be requested to advertise for bids for improvements proposed on Road No. 3 of the county system and that this board approve and accept the proposed plans and specifications made by the State Highway Commission. The said road is known as the Nokesville road and lies between Kewitt's corner and Fitzwater gate.

Ordered that the clerk be directed to prepare a general index of the several judgment book docket of the clerk's office, beginning with Docket No. 2, at 4 cents per judgment or case, said indexing to be done as the law provides.

(Editor's Note—These judgments number about four thousand and date back to 1888.)

It was ordered that the bid of the trustees of the Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, of Haymarket, Va., of $130 for the iron fence around the courthouse lot be accepted. It was further ordered that the clerk notify said trustees of this acceptance and arrange for settlement and removal of the fence.

It was ordered that if St. Edith's Academy and others will expend, in money and labor, a sum of $7,500, or more, towards improving the county road from Chappell Spring to St. Joseph's gate, as proposed, that the $1,000 heretofore appropriated for a macadam road shall be available for such improvement when and as such work shall progress or be completed.

It was ordered that Palmer

Smith be directed to repair the county roller and be it further ordered that said Smith make an inventory of the county machinery and tools and their condition and make report to this board. Ordered that J. L. Dawson be paid the sum of $35, being the amount advanced by him as cost of securing three trucks for county purposes.

CHEESE PLANT AT HILL

Plan to Start Operations in Few Weeks—Site Chosen.

Farmers of the Independent Hill neighborhood, at a meeting held Tuesday evening, organized a cheese manufacturing company and decided to erect their plant at the forks of the roads adjoining the farms of Messrs. Gaber, Sullivan and Merrill. The plant which they hope to have ready for business sometime during the latter part of April, will be operated by Mr. Leslie Merrill.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mr. Fred Webber; vice-president, Mr. L. F. Merrill; secretary, Mr. Michael Oleyar, and treasurer, Mr. Edward Keys.

This plant should prove a great asset to the Independent Hill community as it will furnish a close market for their dairy products.
