Fighting gamely to the last minute of play, the Manassas Athletic Club met its first defeat of the football season here last Saturday, when they went down to defeat before the Eastern High School Eleven, of Washington, by the score of 12 to 0.

The Fifth Annual Convention of the Prince William Sunday School Association will be held Friday and Saturday, October 24 and 25, in the Manassas Baptist Church.

At 11:30 Mr. Westwood Hutchison, of Manassas, was introduced. Mr. Hutchison, in his very pleasing and forceful manner, occupied this period in a thoroughly practical presentation of the work of the Virginia Anti-Saloon League.

The Directors of Agriculture of the ten Agricultural High Schools in the State met at Burkeville, Va., on Monday and Tuesday to discuss the usefulness of the Agricultural High School.

The game Saturday started with a change in the backfield. The new comers were of great material aid in the first half and Williams at right half and stopped many of the runs made by Eastern.

At 2 p. m. the convention proper was called to order by the S. S. Superintendent, Mr. McDonald. The house was crowded to the gallery all in eager expectation of the good things which followed in rapid succession.

It was decided to carry on more extensive work among the farmers, to ask the railroads for lower rates of transportation, to enable the children farther out in the districts to come to school, and to ask the next legislature to appropriate a sufficient sum to erect dormitories.

The course of study were thoroughly gone into, and a committee composed of C. H. Yarborough, of Manassas Agricultural High School; C. V. Campbell, of the Hampton Agricultural High School; and P. S. Blagden, of the Drivers Agricultural High School, was appointed to arrange and outline a definite course of study to be followed by the Agricultural High Schools of the State.

Other matters were discussed, and the meeting adjourned Tuesday. The next meeting will be held in Lynchburg in November.

5th ANNUAL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Every Sunday School in County Urged to Send Delegates—Public Cordially Invited—Interesting Program.

One of the most enjoyable and profitable meetings ever held at Sudley was the Sunday School Convention held at that place last Sunday. The day was beautiful, apparently in full sympathy with the occasion.

At 11:30 Mr. Westwood Hutchison, of Manassas, was introduced. Mr. Hutchison, in his very pleasing and forceful manner, occupied this period in a thoroughly practical presentation of the work of the Virginia Anti-Saloon League.

JOINT CELEBRATION ON PATRON'S DAY

OF HIGH AND GRADED SCHOOLS

'Patron's Day will be celebrated by the Manassas Schools this year on Friday, October 24. The Farmers' Institute will hold its first session for the year on the morning of the 24th, and the afternoon will be given to a joint celebration of Patron's Day by the High and Graded Schools.

The object of Patron's Day is to awaken greater interest in the work of the schools, and to bring people to realize what effective agents they can be made, not only for carrying out their recognized purpose of educating the children, but also for bringing the members of the community together, and thus arousing a more active public spirit.

The many friends of Dr. Quarles will realize that he may have much of value to say on the vital question of parental co-operation in the schools.

Dr. Heck, of the University of Virginia, whose address at the High School commencement last June made so favorable an impression on our people, has been one of the most active workers in the State in the matter of the medical inspection of schools, and has done very valuable work already along these lines in several of the Virginia counties.

When the far reaching effect is considered of securing for the children the right hygienic supervision in their early formative years, the importance of the matter can hardly be over estimated, and all parents and friends of the schools are urged to come and to lend to the movement their interest and support.

The next Farmers' Institute will be held in the Court House on Friday, October 24, one week from tomorrow. The morning session will be given up entirely to the farmers. Prof. C. H. Yarborough, of the Manassas Agricultural High School will give a very interesting and instructive talk on "The Selection of Seed Corn."

The afternoon session will be given over to the Women's Auxiliary. Speakers have been provided for and an enjoyable time for everyone is promised. It is expected that the institute will be largely attended.

AN ENTERTAINMENT OF STORY TELLING

EASTERN COLLEGE, OCTOBER 21

Mr. Richard T. Wycle, Master Hand in the Art of Telling Stories, to Give Manassas People Rare Entertainment.

Mr. Wycle is a master hand in the art of telling stories. Old Greek and Roman stories, Hiawatha, Uncle Remus and folk lore tales charm his hearers. He is known far and wide as the most humorous, the most entertaining and instructive of all story tellers.

Everybody laughs, the little children no less than the grown-up mothers, who were delightedly entertained last night by the pleasing, unaffected manner in which Richard Thomas Wycle told the famous Uncle Remus stories to the large audience in the Tamm Court House.

Mr. Wycle's way of telling the stories written by Joel Chandler Harris leaves nothing to be desired. He goes into the spirit of the negro folk tales, and easily that the atmosphere of the old South goes with him completely. The children in the front seats closed their eyes upon him as he began the yarns of Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox. Each successive victory of Brer Rabbit met with the approval of the youthful auditors and equally pleased their elders.

At least 1,400 persons were charmed with the stories told by Mr. Wycle yesterday afternoon, among whom were 1,200 children, who remained quiet while the speaker told stories for nearly two hours.

Hunters in the District of Columbia, Maryland and the two Virginians will find little difficulty in obeying the Federal regulations providing for the protection of all migratory birds, which are now operative.

The demand for dairy products is increasing much faster than the supply. Our southern cities could easily use the products of $200,000 cows equal to the average dairy cow. Why do we southern farmers, who need the benefits from dairying so badly, begin with a small dairy or a large one, if there is capital sufficient? I might state as a few reasons why more of our farmers are not attracted to this line as (1) lack of good cows, (2) lack of food (3) lack of trained men.

"First, we have but one way of obtaining better cows, that is, by selection and breeding for the desired type, by testing the individual cow, and eliminating the boarders. In starting on the road toward better cows, the first and most important thing to do is to get the very best are possible of the Jersey, Holstein, or Guernsey breed. MORE DAIRYMEN NEEDED IN SOUTH

Some Things that a Cow Can Do Under Intelligent and Judicious Management—Great Opportunities.

By W. M. BROWN, Field Agent Southern Railway Company. The south needs dairymen—more of them—men who are awake to their possibilities and who know their business. The dairy cow has made Denmark rich in the last 20 years; she has made the Dutch prosperous and progressive farmers; she has built up thousands of worn-out soils in the eastern states; she has built up many poverty-stricken southern farms. She has accomplished this and under intelligent and judicious management. She could, under the same careful directive control, do the same thing for thousands of other southern farms, where poverty is now lurking about.

"The people of Virginia buy of butter from Ohio and other states. Other southern states are importing dairy products on a corresponding scale. Should this condition exist? Let us look at the reasonableness of this. We are shipping thousands of tons of cotton seed meal to our northern neighbor, and buying in return the products of the cow, to which he feeds the cotton seed meal. In the food products we are directly sending him the vital part of our soil (its fertility) and he is feeding this present of the fertility for his own soil, and is sending us his butter that contains only to his cows and retaining the greater part of 36 cents worth of fertility, notwithstanding the fact that we pay above $600 for it. In short we are sending away from home the very heart of our soil, and receiving the products of air and water in return. Our northern sisters are becoming rich and making their farms fertile; we are, in a sense, becoming poorer and reducing our soil to poverty. Would it not be much wiser to change all this and keep both our money and fertility at home?"

"The south offers great opportunities to the dairymen. The climate is as near ideal as can be found, which does not necessitate very expensive barns like those needed by the northern farmer. We can grow a greater variety of crops than he; we can grow two crops to his one; we have a market near home, while he must ship his hundreds of miles.

"The demand for dairy products is increasing much faster than the supply. Our southern cities could easily use the products of $200,000 cows equal to the average dairy cow. Why do we southern farmers, who need the benefits from dairying so badly, begin with a small dairy or a large one, if there is capital sufficient? His talk was very pleasing and instructive, injecting here and there a little anecdote which added very much to the enjoyment of the audience.

Mr. Rector, president of the organization, was introduced for the first time to a Sudley audience. His general remarks were classic utterances which long remained in the memory of the audience.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT Tendered the Tenth Day of October, 1913: WHEREAS, God in his great wisdom has seen fit to remove from time to eternity one of our loved ones, Mrs. Elizabeth Schragus Cunningham, thus bringing sadness to the heart of one of our students and co-workers.

RESOLVED, That we as teachers and students of Hebron Seminary express to Mr. W. E. Cunningham, the husband, and to her bereaved parents, our deep sympathy and condolence in our sad hour, when the loved companion and daughter has been called away.
