TOWN PROGRESS

We believe that the greatest ment, national, state and local, is the lack of interest on the part of the individual taxpayer and voter. Vital matters touching upon the welfare of every citizen are almost daily under consideration by public officials who experience the greatest difficulty in getting any reaction or expression from the public.

Virginia law requires public tion of tax budgets and public bearings, but only a handful of citizens respond on these occasions. One of the most import ant meetings of the Town Council of Manassas of the year was held a few weeks ago and matters touching the welfare of every business enterprise in the town were acted upon without the slightest manifestation of public interest.

We are making notable pro

Dixie's Corn Yields Rival Nation's Best

The Corn Belt, long famed for its economical corn production, is in danger of losing some of its

For instance, a Dixie farmer, W. Y. Thrash, of Walnut Grove, Miss., might well contest the honor of producing the highest yield of corn during 1929. In an official contest his average yield on a 3acre field was 180.52 bushels of shelled corn an acre. In making this exceptional record. Thrash made liberal use of fertilizers. He side-dressed twice with Chilean nitrate of soda during the season, using 200 pounds an acre at each application.

A striking filustration in economic crop production was furaished by another southern grower, Paul Simmons, 18-year-old boy of Plant City, Fla., who won the 4-H Club corn contest of that state. He produced corn at a net cost of 18 cents a bushel. His yield on a one-acre plot was 111 bushels. The only fertilizer young Simmons used was 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate, which was applied as a side-dressing when the corn was knee-high.
