In 1895, President William McKinley was shot and killed at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, New York. The assassin, Leon Czolgosz, a socialist, shot McKinley twice, once in the stomach and once in the chest. The President's body was brought back to the White House, where he died a few hours later on September 14th. The shooting and subsequent events are a significant moment in American history, marking the end of an era and setting the stage for future events such as the election of Theodore Roosevelt and the rise of the Progressive movement. The investigation into the assassination involved the use of new technologies and methods of investigation, such as fingerprinting and ballistics, which helped to identify Czolgosz and bring him to justice. The incident also highlighted the need for improved security measures and the importance of vigilance in the face of political threats. The broad public interest in the case led to a flurry of newspaper coverage and speculation, with many newspapers devoting significant space to the story. The event had a profound impact on American society, as it reminded citizens of the fragility of the democratic process and the need for vigilance in the face of political threats.

A "HILARIOUS" SCANDAL

The most recent ceremony on the Capitol steps was that of the official opening of the new Senate Chamber. The Senate is reported to have been "entertained" by a musical entertainment, consisting of songs and skits, which were well received by the members and the public. The Senate Chamber was decorated with flowers and flags, and the members were dressed in their best clothes. The entertainment was followed by a banquet, at which the members were served with a variety of dishes, including roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, and fruit salad. The atmosphere was one of gaiety and good humor, and the members seemed to have enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

THE BEST WAY TO BUILD A TOWN

The most satisfactory way to build a town is to start with a solid foundation. This is the opinion of many architects and builders, who believe that a good foundation will make the building strong and durable. The foundation should be laid with great care, and the materials used should be of high quality. The superstructure should be built in such a way that it will not put too much strain on the foundation. The building should be allowed to settle slowly, and the walls should be braced to prevent them from cracking. It is important to make sure that the building is insulated properly to prevent drafts and drafts.

Have You a Policy?

Yes, I have a policy. I have a life insurance policy that will provide a death benefit of $50,000 to my beneficiaries in the event of my death. The policy has a cash value of $20,000, and I can borrow against the cash value to meet my financial needs. I have also purchased a savings bond, which will provide me with a small income in retirement. I believe that it is important to plan for the future and to save for the future.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

"I can't understand why you want to look at the thing. I'm not going to let anyone look at it or show it to anyone." He was very serious.

"Because that's the way it's supposed to be," she said. "I'm a collector, you see. And you've got to keep things private.

"But I've never seen anything like it before," she said. "It's so unique. I've never seen anything like it before."

Jack Hillard was a wealthy New York citizen, known for his "historical" collections, and he was the owner of the mask in question.

"What's all this about?" he asked. "What's going on?"

"It's just a mystery," she replied. "I don't know what's going on."

Wherever Hammond Dairy Feed has been sold for any length of time, 90 per cent of the largest and best dairies are using it.

Why is this?

Because they get more and better milk for less money. Dealers do not buy this feed from the manufacturers to please them, neither do the farmers and dairymen buy it from the dealers to please the dealers.

Why is this?

Because they get results. You can take a sack of chaff and add a shovelful of cotton seed meal and have the per cent of protein, but you would have a great balanced ration, wouldn't you?

MAN AND WOMAN DROWN IN THE CUDDLE.

A man and woman died in the Cuddle yesterday. The man was killed instantly, while the woman survived for a short time. The cause of the accident was attributed to the faulty construction of the ship."
A few months after the news reached the river town that the cashier had been found dead, there was the sad sight of a man's body being removed from the poorhouse. The man was the owner of a small business, and his death was a loss to the community. The cause of death was a stab wound to the chest, and the death was ruled a suicide.

The man's family was shocked and devastated by the news. They had always thought of him as a hardworking and respectable member of the community. They could not understand how he could have taken his own life.

The police investigation revealed that the man had been under a lot of stress at the time of his death. He had been struggling to make ends meet, and his business was in financial trouble. It was discovered that he had been planning to commit suicide, and that he had written a note to his family expressing his love and regret.

The family was comforted by the knowledge that their loved one had taken steps to end his suffering. They also took comfort in the fact that he had been taken care of by the poorhouse, and that his body would be properly buried.

The community mourned the loss of a respected member, and the news spread quickly throughout the area. The police continued their investigation, and the case was eventually closed.

"Isolating" IsWrong, He Says.

"Isolating" is wrong, the President said, "for Isolating is a bad thing. People are not to be isolated, but to be brought together."

SYNOPSIS

Jack Holiday, wealthy New York jeweler, has a surprising and unexpected guest in his office. He is Celeste Martinet, a French adventuress who has been terrorizing the streets of Paris. She demands an interview with Mr. Holiday, and he agrees to see her. Celeste's presence in the office causes a stir, but Holiday is not deterred. He invites her to his home, and she accepts.

CHAPTER II

On the way to Holiday's home, Celeste asks him a question. "Where are the jewels?" Holiday tells her that they are in his safe. "Then I will have to take them," she says. Holiday is surprised by her sudden change of heart. Celeste explains that she has been working for his rival, the Count de la Caille, and she knows where the jewels are.

At the house, Holiday warns his wife that Celeste is a dangerous woman. His wife, in turn, tells him that Celeste is a spy for the Count. Holiday is determined to find out where the jewels are, and he confronts Celeste about it. She tells him that the jewels are hidden in an old safe in the basement.

CHAPTER III

Holiday and Celeste go to the basement to find the safe. They search for it, but they cannot find it. Celeste tells Holiday that she will tell him where it is if he will give her a large sum of money. Holiday agrees, and Celeste leads him to the safe. Holiday opens the safe, and Celeste takes the jewels.

CHAPTER IV

Holiday is furious when he realizes that Celeste has taken the jewels. He follows her, and they have a shootout. Holiday manages to shoot Celeste, and she drops the jewels. Holiday takes the jewels and leaves the scene.

Boost for Civic Improvements

People least encouraging signs of the Business League reprimand Dwight Lyon for his part in the spirit of pride, a distinc-test evidence of enterprise citizenship, fundamental in the history of any town destined to realizing its possibilities. When a body of residents and business men have such knowledge that it obtains progress of their town, and, better yet, when resolution is drawn by design, the youth foundation the highest achievement.
Buildings activities. Any work a city is inspired by enthusiasm. Faith is required to create the plan, and and unwavering devotion to purpose to mold it into form. The enthusiasm was atmosphere, spreading until it was inspirational to every citizen in the assemblage. It was the optimistic expression of the strong current of determination born of it. Had nothing else been accomplished the meeting would have fulfilled its purpose in establishing new and stronger bonds of unity and of reciprocity between citizens of Manassas. It emphasized the idea, the purpose of Manassas, and it resulted in a united co-operation with the Business League for civic improvements.
Up to favorable public sentiment the League will never fail in its devoted efforts for the good of the city.

All other improvements are subsidiary to the establishment of adequate water facilities, the protection of life and property from fire, and the maintenance of funds from which instant grants may be attached to improvements when the water supply is deficient or when a water system is totally lacking. All other improvements of a permanent nature are dependent on water supply. Manassas enjoys the advantages of a permanent water system. Other improvements will follow in the course. The water system will turn a splendid success in the future.

MANASSAS is a city of many improvements. There is absolutely no argument which can be brought to bear against the proposition. The slight increase in cost, the excess in maintenance, are coincident with the advances in property values and other benefits which will obtain.
