CITIZENS ON UTILITIES PROPOSITION 33

Citizens of Manassas are in earnest on the public utilities proposition to tax electric companies. The work of the town shall not be set within limitations, and that its developments shall not be checked by lack of water and electrical facilities. Our streets are now being laid out and our utilities are being installed, and it is anticipated that the investment will be for some source. Unavoidable, it is asserted, was the failure of Charles A. Ford, the individual who sold the franchise to the state. Reverse of plans that make for public welfare is of more vital moment to the community than any other interest. The occurrence was regrettable for the promoter, and citizens, appreciative of the advancement of the enterprise almost to point of realization, are expressing desire to offer consistent encouragement and assistance. It is the kind of civic spirit that is the creative force of progress toward the building.

Communications from T. F. Perry, of Philadelphia, associate of a Ohio corporation, encourage the business men of Manassas to hold on to the franchise that is the legal and proper plan and have resulted in increasing citizens favorably for a reasonable extension of time. It is stated on good authority that Mr. Perry will lend his influence to cooperate with citizens financing a company to install the utilities. The proposal can be more clearly defined when the status of the present situation is determined. It is hoped that a reconciliation between Mr. Perry and the committee from the Bullence League will result in clearing existing conditions that definite plans may be outlined. As the arrangements stand, the franchise men never wore brighter for the utilities. Now, all citizens, as well as the promoters, are greedy for the latest in electric and telephone facilities to this town. It is anticipated that electric and telephone companies will give Manassas those needed improvements. Prevailing is the greatest confidence in the ultimate success of the enterprise. Truly it may be said that the citizens of Manassas are thoroughly behind the franchise work. That bond of confidence was not lost in the other "job" was not due to any transient human impulse in the Manassans. As it appears, the plan of laying electric and telephone lines is sound and consistent to the townspeople. It is anticipated that the town will have modern, adequate facilities and the result will be a boom. The town will be these.

FINISH IN PIEDMONT SECTION

Piedmont, Virginia, garden spot of the old tidewater region, is truly described as "the finest and most prosperous agricultural region in the country." That section tributary to Manassas is without an equal for productivity of its soil and for the yearly maintenance of thousands raised on the old farm. The Fortner farm, solicited by M. D. Pitts, and Richmond Stock Farm of which W. B. Bullen is proprietor, are examples presented in the following account of The Southern Farmer.

Around Manassas, Va., scenes in history as the battle of Bull Run, are today fertile farms, green with growth and verdant with the promise of future, verdant and productive, and the present telegraph line and telephone connecting it as the most wonderful of modern times. It is an advantage of both the present and the future.

The country is in transition but the trend is definitely toward the new and productive. The town itself in 1860 was 1,980 people. The present population is one-fourth larger.

Paragaphs:

A NOOKER is an example of success. Do not delay the Christmas shopping. Next month buy the best. Look before you loop. Villa's have taken to writing memoirs. How dare they? Three hours for a walk has been suggested that Theafering is a health giver.

Good roads into Manassas would prove a valuable commercial asset. The varied heart of man is the place the devil's in. -Sir Thomas More.

The National Bank of Manassas will have public utilities, event if the public has to supply them.

A man up in New York begged a sentence to workhouse. Why doesn't he go home? The very facility of the surrounding suited it with greater homes—clean the alley.

Taste in musty custom makes Christmas a hazardous season for the citizen. Table full, plate full, and there are no rushes in the kitchen.

Fur hat, fur muff, fur coat, fur everything. That is the theme this Christmas taken by the town. He status he knows he is no better section for frying hams and he has tried in many a section of the other countries.
