A TREASURE HOUSE OF RESOURCES

The daily Mexican news tells of death, destitution and paralized of wealth is tied up as the result of human folly.

Possibly then the Demo had its fields instead of its mines been developed.

The wasting of the forests by this profligate race is almost unbelieveable. The nomadic tribes of Cuernero are accustomed to burn over rich lands yearly to obtain fields for their sickly gardens. The next year they move into some new locality, and destroy more of these wonderful trees for the same temporary purpose. Great trees will often be cut by the Mexicans to get a single board.

Mexican civilization has had many fine aspects, and there must be elements of stability that at last will assert themselves. Irritating and costly as is the present turmoil, there will be a rich reward if peace can be restored. A country that for many years under Diaz had a regular treasury surplus ought to be a valuable neighclub women were ultra conservative. They feared to give offense and they were inclined to move with caution. Religion and politics are strictly tabooed at the sessions of the club women, consequently it has required much time to secure an indersement of suffrage. However, as the federation did not declare in favor of either political party the women have not violated their rule to keep out of Churn politics. The fact that club women, composed of the cream of American womanhood, have declared in favor of suffrage will assure a speedier settlement of the question by the politicians who are always watching to see which way the wind blows. Another great problem was acted upon-temperance. The women voted unanimously that liquor was the country's greatest curse. They want to see the liquor business driven from the land. The signs of the times point to a fulfilment of their desire. The cause true temperance is gaining every hour. The aid of club women should be welcomed by the real temperance workers, if not by the politicians who use prohibition in order to secure political preferment. The liquor question should be clear cut, and there is but one answer and that is that it must be exterminated. All honor the Federation of Women's Clubs and to the magnificent women who compose its membership and who have elected a corps of officers of which any organization might well be proud.

In this issue appears an announcement, quoting extracts of a speech delivered by Royal E. Cabell recently before a large and enthusiastic audience of Virginia citizens. Mr. Cabell is a native of Virginia and for four years was United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue. During this time it was Mr. Cabell's duty to see what the conditions were in the so-called prohibition states. The Cabell's of Virginia are known from one end of the state to the other as men of excellent ability and intellect of good morals and good citizenship. At this meeting a platform was adopted favoring local option and against State-wide prohibition. This large audience was composed of prominent and leading business and professional men from throughout the State-men who stand well in each community of the Old Dominion in legal medical profession-leaders of business and finance. They were enthusiastically in favor After a fight of twenty years the Federation of Women's Clubs of local option and against State-wide prohibition. Under this plan t was shown Virginia is better off than the States that have tried State-wide prohibition. The election will be held next September
