We announce today as a candidate for State Senator from this District, Alexandria City, Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William counties James Sherier of Chesterbrook, Fairfax county.

He has the presence; he has the honesty; he has the learning and experience to make a most useful and progressive law maker. He is careful, conservative, thorough, industrious, attentive to duty, sober, home loving, faithful, energetic and true to his ideals as a Christian gentleman. He is popular wherever he is known and widely known by his advocacy of Franklin Williams for Delegate in his successful race last year. He believes in Democratic organization, yet wearing no man's collar.

He is "dry" and stood so in the "wet" Democratic convention that nominated Cox and sent the party to ignominious and overwhelming defeat. We believe he can beat "wet" Walter Oliver even in his strongholds, if we can get out the vote.

Let's try!
We love Frank Ball, with his many good qualities not less; but James Sherier more.—The Commonwealth.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN
More and more business men realize the necessity for true audits, for efficient recording systems and for real knowledge concerning profitable and unprofitable departments of their enterprises.

From the smallest retail business to the billion dollar manufacturing corporation, comes the demand for proper accounting.

During the past few years changes in business have taken place and extend to every quarter of the civilized world.

The very rules of business have changed and we are face to face with conditions we never dreamed of before.

If a business enterprise would survive and prosper under the new order it must know the details of its business, not only through the medium of annual or semi-annual audits, but in many cases, week by week, and day by day.

I will be glad to have any work along this line, which will be honestly and loyally done.

THOS. H. COBB,

Public Accountant.

RAG-DOLL TESTER IS SATISFACTORY

All Interested Corn-Growers Are Asked for Further Samples of Corn for Testing.

The community rag-doll germinator, located at the agricultural high school under the supervision of Mr. H. W. Sanders, has been running for the past nine days. Readings were made on Thursday, April 5, by Mr. Sanders, County Agent Browning and James Godkin, of Blacksburg.

The results of these readings, in brief, are as follows: Six hundred and forty-five ears were tested which came from the thirteen different farmers of Prince William county. Of these, one hundred and fourteen ears were relatively free from diseases, three hundred and seventy-five were just fair, and one hundred and fifty-three were badly diseased and unfit for planting.

These results may be taken as a fairly good average of the general run of corn for the county. They show that at least twenty-five per cent of the corn planted is diseased and unfit for planting. Germination alone, however, does not always tell the complete story, since ninety per cent of the corn tested showed good germination. A marked improvement of the corn here in this county can certainly be brought about by use of the modified rag-doll test for both disease and germination, and the yields increased at least fifteen per cent in time. Work elsewhere in the state will confirm this statement.

In fact, the methods and practices advocated by us for eliminating corn root rot diseases are no longer in the experimental stage, and only recently the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experimental Station, after three years of investigation, state that their results indicate that the use of the modified rag-doll germinator is advisable in connection with a better corn growing program. Delaware reports an increase in yields due to the elimination of weak and diseased ears by the use of this test. Recent experimental work at the Ohio Agricultural Experimental Station has shown an increase of thirty per cent in one experiment and sixty per cent in another where disease and disease-free seed were planted which had previously been selected and tested by the use of the modified rag-doll tester.

We are asking again that all interested corn-growers bring in further samples for testing in this manner. We suggest that all who are on the wrong side of the stream come across. Be sure you plant the best corn obtainable. An old adage summarizes briefly corn-growing in the past as follows: "Plant one for the catbird, one for the crow, one for the disease and two to grow." But we won't admit that we are in this class.

In which we tell a story while not original is, we believe, appropriate to our business

¶ In the city of Bagdad lived Hakum, the Wise One, and many people went to him for counsel, which he gave freely to all, asking nothing in return.

¶ There came to him a young man, who had spent much but got little, and said: "Tell me, Wise One, what shall I do to receive the most for what I spend?"

¶ Hakum answered: "A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contains THAT WHICH CANNOT BE BOUGHT OR SOLD. Look for the priceless ingredient."

¶ "But what is this PRICELESS INGREDIENT," asked the young man.

¶ SPOKE THEN THE WISE ONE: "MY SON, THE PRICELESS INGREDIENT OF EVERY PRODUCT IN THE MARKET PLACE IS THE HONOR AND INTEGRITY OF HIM WHO MAKES IT. CONSIDER HIS NAME BEFORE YOU BUY."

¶ MY NAME AND MY HONOR ARE BACK OF EVERY PRODUCT I SELL. MY PATRONS MUST BE SATISFIED.

LABOR THAT IS TOO RAW

At this time of disclosures of communist plots against the government of the United States the American people are not likely to be responsive to the propaganda of steel mill owners and other large employers of "raw" labor for a letting down of the immigration bars. The kind of immigration the steel mill owners want is not the kind that is good for this republic. It is entirely too raw to be digestible.

Contention that continuous importation of low-grade labor is necessary to the welfare of American industry is an insult to the inventive genius and engineering skill which have made American industry what it is today. If it were true that fifty years of progress in substituting machinery for manual labor had come to a stopping place, industry would, indeed, be in a bad way. But it is not true, and it is a short-sighted policy which persuades the steel men to place immediate profits above permanent national well-being. Even if social and political considerations make no appeal to them, they ought to know that no general and enduring prosperity can be founded in this country on the debasement of labor. Instead of clamoring for the unlimited supplies which they never again can have they would do better to set their inventors and engineers at work devising ways to use a smaller number of a higher grade of workers.

Any changes in the immigration laws to which the American people will assent are likely to be in the way of more, instead of less, stringent regulations. The notion of this country as a "melting pot" no longer appeals to them. Too much refractory material has been dumped into it. If they favored any present change at all it would be to move back about a quarter of a century the basis for the reckoning of percentage. This would let in a larger proportion of immigrants from the British Isles and northern Europe generally and fewer from the races in the southeast of Europe, which have been demonstrated to be non-fusible with the American stock.

The time is not distant when the demand will be for still further restriction and gradual extinction of immigration. Conditions which once made a generous immigration policy logical are rapidly passing away. This no longer is a country with seemingly unlimited resources waiting to be developed; and with natural increase adding a million or more a year to its inhabitants the day is coming inevitably when population will so press on food supplies that emigration will become as necessary a policy to the United States as it now is to the over-populated countries of Europe.

Looking forward to that time, there is growing conviction that it is our duty to save as much as possible of what we have left for our children and our children's children. In future years the human race must feed itself by conquering the waste places of the world, as our fathers came to America when it was waste, conquered it and made it fat. But now the law of diminishing return has begun to operate, and the fatness is giving way to lean. Each future generation will find the struggle for existence more difficult, and it is becoming a serious question whether we have a right to continue longer to divide a diminishing heritage. There is no injustice in asking that those who are forced to quit their homelands should now undertake to do what our fathers did before us and what in time our sons must do—go out into the hard places of the world, subdue them and bring them into harvest.—Washington Star.

OLD BLACK MAMMY

Congress has authorized the erection of a monument in Washington to "perpetuate in bronze or granite the memory of the faithful colored mammy of the South." Monuments have been erected and will continue to be erected for the purpose of immortalizing valor and bravery, genius, philanthropy, achievement, all forms of greatness. But this monument to "the faithful colored mammy of the South" is an enduring tribute to a rare and beautiful fidelity.

The old colored mammy is associated with the golden warmth of southern days, with the silvered beauty of southern knights drenched with the perfume of flowers, with honor, chivalry and exquisite courtesy in men, with patrician beauty, perfect poise and fastidious refinement in women. But she is more than a picturesque figure. Where will be found today fidelity like that of the old colored mammy? It cannot be found. It passes with her passing. Her "white folks" were dearer to her than her own flesh and blood, their pride was her pride, their joy was her joy, their sorrow was her sorrow. Her love began when she cuddled to her breast the new-born white child, and no sadder tears than hers were shed above the still form of those of her loved ones who went before. What mattered face or color?

The dusky face of "mammy" was dear and beautiful in the eyes of her "chillen." Upon her face baby eyes looked with the dawning of love, baby lips gurgled response to her quaint and tender endearments, fell asleep to the melody of her lullabies, childish griefs vanished in the magic shelter of her arms, and upon her breast were wept tears of sorrow. In mammy's eyes the "white folks" could do no wrong. She possessed a marvelous ingenuity in turning faults into virtues. During the Civil War no mother or wife or sweetheart sorrowed more deeply than "mammy" when her "ole massa" or her "young massa" laid down his life for the South. To her disloyalty had no meaning. She had the greatest contempt for the "free nigger." In her eyes he was a creature branded. In the sombre picture of poverty and sorrow and ruin that the Civil War has painted upon the canvas of time, the figure of the old colored mammy stands typical of all that was faithful and loyal, unselfish and tender. And now, in the capital city of the United States there will rise a monument to do her honor. Is there any more worthy?—Emma Howard Wight, in the Winchester Star.

THE LITTLE WHITE ROSE

It was peeping through the brambles,
The little wild white rose,
Where the hawthorn hedge was planted
My garden to enclose.
Beyond was fern or heather
On the breezy open moor;
Within were sun and shelter
And the wealth of beauty's store;
And I did not heed the fragrance
Of flower or of tree.
For my eye was on that rosebud,
And it grew too high for me.

In vain I strove to reach it,
Through the tangled mass of green;
It only smiled and nodded
Behind its thorny screen.
Yet through that summer morning
I lingered near the spot;
Oh, why do things look sweeter
When we possess them not?
My garden-beds were blooming,
But all that I could see
Was that mocking little white rose
Hanging—too high for me.

So, in life's wilder garden,
Are buds of promise too,
Beyond our reach to gather,
But not beyond our view.
And, like the little charmer
That tempted me astray,
They steal out half the brightness
Of many a summer day.
Oh! hearts that fail for longing
For some forbidden tree,
Look up and learn the lesson
From my white rose and me.

'Tis wiser far to number
The blossoms at my feet
Than ever to be sighing
For just one bud more sweet,
My sunbeams and my shadows
Fall from a pierced hand;
I can better trust His wisdom,
Since His heart I understand,
And maybe in the morning,
When His blessed face I see,
He will tell me why my white rose
Grew just too high for me.
—ELIZA FLETCHER.

LAUGH AND LIVE

JUST A MISUNDERSTANDING

"Now," said the colonel, looking along the line of recruits. "I want a good, smart-looking bugler."
At that, out stepped a dilapidated fellow with a thick stubble of black beard.
"What!" said the colonel, eyeing him up and down, "are you a bugler?"
"Oh," he answered, "I thought you said a burglar."—Los Angeles Times.

INEFFICIENT OFFICE BOY

"Where's your office boy, Dave?"
"Fired him Saturday—never did anything but stand around, looking wise."
"Well, he won't be in your way any more, I reckon, now you're rid of him."
"Don't be so sure about that. He may turn up here some day as an efficiency expert."—Everybody's Magazine.

CLAIM FIRST HONORS

A doctor, an architect and a bolshevik were discussing the priority of their occupations.
The doctor said: "When Adam's side was opened and a rib removed to make woman there was a surgical operation—medicine was the oldest trade."
The architect: "Yes, but when the earth was made out of chaos there was the building process, the use of materials according to a plan—the architect is still older."
The bolshevik smiled and said: "But who supplied the chaos?"—Farm Life.

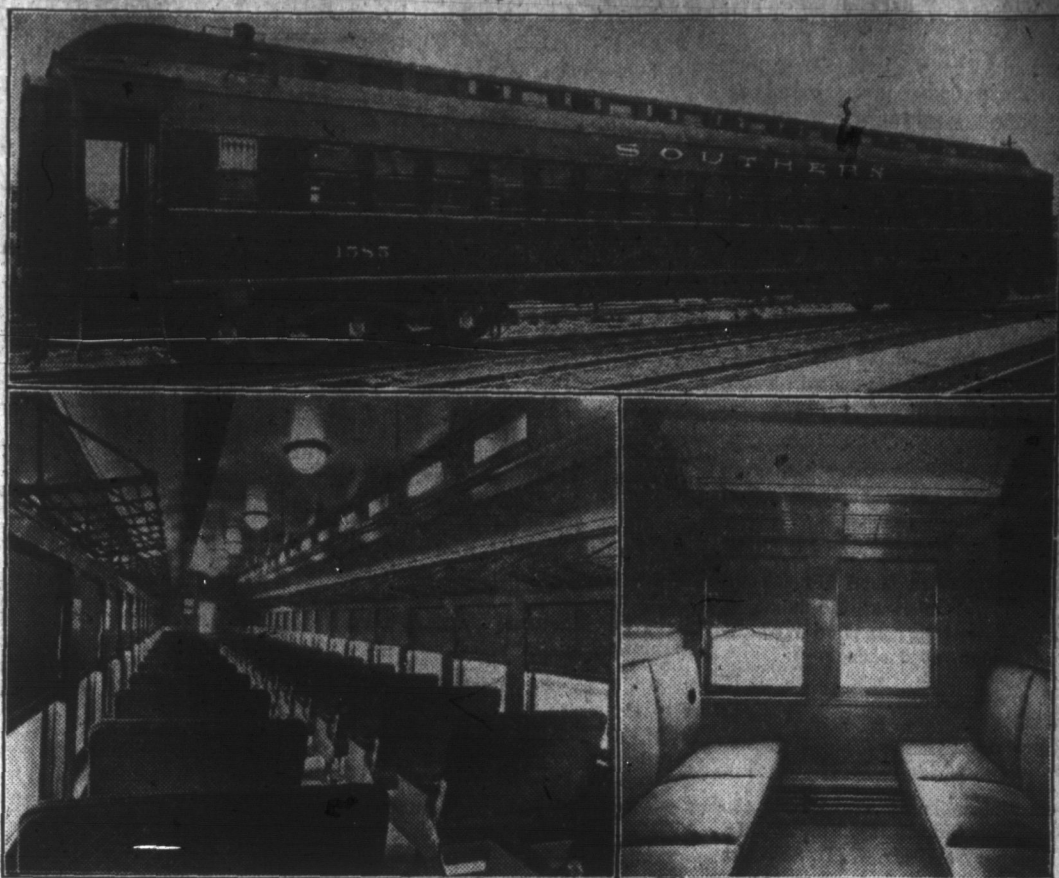

DREW THE LINE ON DOGS

"Well, my man," asked the magistrate, "what have you got to say for yourself?"
"Don't you be 'ard on a poor man, your honor. The wife and kids is starvin' or I wouldn't 'ave stole that leg o' mutton. Hadn't 'ad notin' to eat for three days, they 'adn't."
"But the policeman tells me that you keep three dogs. A man who can do that can't be starving," returned the magistrate.
"Oh, well, gov'nor," replied the prisoner, "if you expect as we're going to eat dogs, I ain't no more to say. What's the sentence. Yer might as well put me out of my anxiety."—Houston Post.

Widow (gushingly)—Really, you look so much like my dear departed husband.
"Zat so? As he was or as he is?"

"William, haven't I told you not to play with your soldiers on Sunday?"
"I know, mother, but on Sunday I play that they're the Salvation Army."

New Southern Railway System All-Steel Passenger Coaches

Safety and comfort of passengers have been assured in every feature of the construction of the fifty all-steel new coaches and combined passenger and baggage cars which have just been placed in service by the Southern Railway System in its through limited trains.

Built at the shops of the Pullman Company from designs of the world's leading passenger car experts, these coaches represent an investment of $25,000.00 each, no expense having been spared in providing the best to be obtained in the way of passenger train accommodations for the people of the South.

Built entirely of steel, the coaches weigh 135,000 pounds. They are 76 feet long and are mounted on six-wheel steel trucks. The air brakes are of the latest high-speed type with two shoes on each wheel, permitting the engineer when applying air to put retarding pressure on two sides of each of the twelve wheels. This provides both safety and comfort, as the cars can be brought to a stop with a minimum of vibration while, in case of emergency, they can be halted in a very short distance, even when traveling at high speed.

Additional safety features include friction buffers, draft gear of the friction type, steel diaphragms instead of the usual canvass type, the roofs are of steel galvanized before painting, even the frames of the seats are of steel.

With seating capacity for 82 passengers, the coaches are provided with many devices insuring comfort. All windows are screened and sash are counter-balanced, making them easy to raise and removing danger of their dropping.

Ventilators of a new and improved type provide an ample circulation of fresh air in both summer and winter weather. Electric fans installed at each end, will give additional circulation in summer while just the right temperature will be provided in winter by the vapor system of steam heating.

The interior appearance of the coaches is very attractive, the ivory ceilings together with electric lights of the direct flood system, giving ample illumination for reading both day and night. The floors are of sanitary composition. The seats in the body of the coach are upholstered in a handsome green plush while the smoking rooms are upholstered in leather.

The trains in this territory served by these new coaches are: The "Memphis Special," trains 25 and 26; the "Washington-Atlanta and New Orleans Express," trains 35 and 36; the "Birmingham Special," trains 29 and 30; the "Augusta Special," trains 31 and 32; the "Atlanta Express," trains 137 and 138, and the Washington-Chattanooga and New Orleans Limited," trains 41 and 42.

PUBLIC SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Under and by virtue of a deed of trust executed by James Phillips and wife, under date of March 8, 1919, of record in the clerk's office of the County of Prince William in deed book 72, pages 191-2, the undersigned trustee therein named, having been requested so to do by the holder of the notes therein secured, in the payment of which default has been made, will, as provided in said trust, proceed to sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, on Saturday, April 28, 1923, at eleven o'clock a. m., in front of the Peoples National Bank, in the Town of Manassas, aforesaid county, all that certain lot or parcel of land, with dwelling, out-buildings, etc., lying in Bentsville District, on the Bentsville-Haymarket road, between Chappell Spring and Linton's Ford, adjoining the lands of Rollins, Wright, and others, composed of two lots, aggregating more or less, four acres. This is valuable property, being on the improved road, and should be examined before day of sale.

H. THORNTON DAVIES, Trustee.

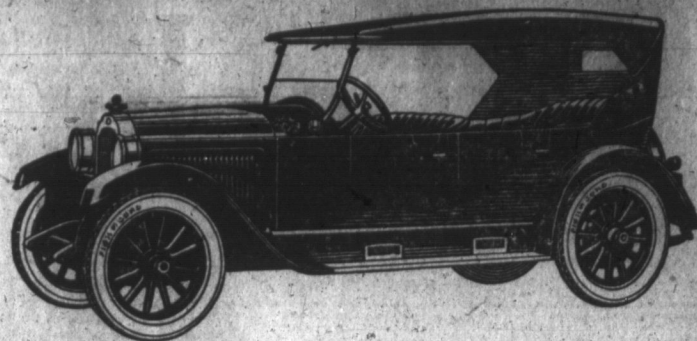

EGGS EGGS EGGS

Beginning Tuesday, April 10th, I will be in the market to buy "certified" eggs to ship to the Northern markets. I will pay a decided premium over the local "huckster" price for these eggs, ranging from two to six cents a dozen, depending upon size, color and shape. These eggs should be cleanly gathered—not washed—of good size, sound shells, and strictly fresh. By "certified" eggs, we mean eggs whose producer is known so if, upon candling, they are not found as represented, they will be made good. I plan on being at home, one mile southeast of Manassas, regularly on Tuesdays and Fridays, prepared to give cash check for the eggs. Bring them in lots of five dozen up. I will gladly explain further to those who want to realize the most for their eggs.

J. H. DODGE, Manassas, Va.

Worthy of Its Praise

The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine actually improves with use. It is even smoother and more powerful at 5,000 miles than when new. Carbon only makes it better. Many owners report 50,000 miles of brilliant performance without engine adjustment. And a Willys-Knight engine has never been known to wear out.

TAKE NOTICE

To the Farmers of Prince William County:

I would like to call attention to the fact that I am field agent for the Farm Bureau. If you have anything either to sell or to buy you will do well to get in touch with me.

I am traveling every day and see men who would buy what you have to sell. I can quote you prices on fertilizer, seeds and various other things in which I can save you money.

If you will co-operate with me, I will deliver the goods and keep in touch with you.

The larger our membership the easier we can do business, and the more money we can save the farmers of Prince William.

Give me a trial and let me prove that I can be of service to you.

I trust that every farmer of the county will see fit to join us and thereby save the money heretofore paid the middleman.

Yours respectfully,
ROLFE ROBERTSON,
Field Agent of the Farm Bureau.

"We Never Disappoint" in the Quality of Our Job Printing

BRENTSVILLE

Rev. J. R. Cooke held divine services and administered Holy Communion last Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church. Sunday School met as usual.

The Easter social held at the school house last Saturday night was a success, though not as well attended as it would have been, had the weather not been so unfavorable.

Mrs. J. W. Hedrick and son, Billy, of Washington, visited Mrs. I. W. Liskey for the Easter holidays.

Mrs. A. L. Huffman is nursing her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sailor Deihl, at whose home a fine baby girl arrived last week.

CLIFTON

Rev. H. T. MacLeod, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, delivered a splendid Easter sermon at the morning service here Sunday. The special music by the choir, appropriate to the day, was well rendered and much enjoyed by those present.

The Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church met Thursday night at Mrs. Quigg's with a good attendance. There was not much business transacted. Mr. G. A. Hall sent in his resignation as treasurer, which was accepted with regret. Miss Elizabeth Detwiler was elected to fill the vacant office.

Mr. Joshua Buckley entertained quite a company of the young folks last Friday night at the home of his brother, Mr. R. R. Buckley.

There was a dance given in the hall Saturday night.

Among the Easter visitors at their respective home were Misses Violet and Nina Ford, Christine Ferguson, Ruth Quigg and Messrs. Irvin Quigg, Ford Merchant, John Ferguson and Robert Buckley.

Miss Cora Hudson, principal of the high school, spent Easter in the city. Mrs. Roger Cross visited her parents in King William county.

Miss Hitt was too ill with a severe cold Monday to fill her position in the school, but she was able to be on duty Tuesday. Miss Elizabeth Detwiler acted as substitute for Miss Cross the days she was absent.

Mr. Robert Cross is able to be home from the hospital after a minor operation, from which he has recovered.

Miss Davies, who teaches the first grade in the school, gave an Easter egg hunt to her pupils Monday.

Mr. A. D. Bauserman was called to Edinburg, Va., recently by the death of his mother.

This was the coldest Easter in the recollection of the most of our people. The farmers are plowing and preparing to plant corn as well as their oats and gardens.

Easter passed very quietly; most of the schools gave holiday.

Mr. Paul Clarke, formerly of Minnieville, but now of Washington, had his tonsils removed at Providence Hospital recently. At the last report he was doing nicely.

Mrs. Tyson Reid and Miss Maxine Reid, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Daniel Reid and two sons, William and Mack, of Hoadly, spent Sunday at the home of the Clarks.

Miss Osie Bailey and Miss Arcelia P. Dane have gone to the city.

Safe Investments

Rest assured of this: The greater your chances of gain on any investment, the greater your chances of losing all that you have invested.

This is a poor time to speculate. Good investments usually bear a low rate of interest. That's why the rate is low on farm loans, Liberty bonds, municipal bonds and other like securities. The safer your investment the lower the rate. It pays to be on the safe side, even if the income is low.
Our Bank buys and sells bonds, mortgages and other reliable securities in which your surplus funds may be safely invested. Ask us about
