KAehler SKIPS FROM JAIL HERE

Man Wanted in Richmond Takes French Leave to Avoid Capias—Leaves Letter.

Robert F. Kaehler, who under the name of R. F. Taylor was serving a term in the jail here for violating the liquor law, escaped from custody on Saturday with only a few weeks more to serve of his sentence.

A capias had been issued at Richmond for his return there to answer a charge of non-support brought by his former wife, and it was to avoid service of this paper that he effected his escape.

Kaehler was a man of excellent personality and had won the full confidence of jailer Robert Jarman who treated him as a trusty and gave him light work to do about the jail premises. He was unable to work with the road force because he had a crippled leg. On Saturday he was told to clean up the jail yard, and it was while engaged in this task that he disappeared. It is thought that he boarded a passing automobile and was soon miles away from Manassas.

The man confined here was a prominent and highly respected business man in Richmond a few years ago, a Journal man learned this week. He is said to have gone to Richmond about 1916 and opened an automobile business on Broad street which was so successful that a short while before the outbreak of the World War he is reported to have been worth around $1,000,000.

He had exclusive agencies for the Ford and Buick cars in Richmond and Norfolk. He also accumulated large amounts of real estate and much commercial paper.

However, the tide of his fortune soon turned. As the war progressed, and the demand for automobiles decreased, he was soon separated from his wife and occupying a sumptuous bachelor apartment which was fitted up near his place of business, according to the information furnished by the Journal man. This condition continued for some time, finally culminating in a divorce which was granted Mrs. Kaehler in the Richmond Chancery court based on charges of extreme cruelty, desertion and non-support. Kaehler soon left Richmond penniless, he says—and was lost sight of until arrested here for transporting intoxicating liquors.

Kaehler left a letter in his cell, the contents of which are denied by his wife. The letter follows:

Dear Mr. Jarman and Sheriff Barbee: I learned some time ago that at the expiration of my time here I am to be turned over to the Richmond authorities on a capias for non-payment of alimony to my former wife, from whom I have been separated for seven years.

I have been held in jail in Miami and Manassas because of the local violation of the liquor law, ever since May 1st, and, of course, during that time I have been unable to pay any alimony.

In some way my former wife found out where I was and had a warrant issued for non-support because of my failure to pay her $50 a month set by the court.

She does not really need the money but she wants the satisfaction of having me locked up for non-payment.

Several years ago she sold for $12,500 a home I bought for us. I put it in her name and she claimed it as her separate property. I also turned over to her another piece of property as trustee for the children. She claims it is not salable but I know she has been offered $6,000 for it. She wants to hold on to it so as to keep me obligated for more alimony.

Her extravagance and unfaithfulness were partly responsible for my failure in business and when I left Richmond she had these two pieces of property and $2,400 of my money tied up in bank for alimony and I actually had to borrow the money for a decent suit of clothes so as to go to Baltimore and get a job.

According to law, however, she can still have me put in jail and kept there for non-payment of alimony.

I would not mention these things except to explain why I am leaving Manassas. Otherwise, I would stay out the three months to cover my fine and costs, although Mr. Lion gave me to understand at my trial that these would be remitted in my case. My three months' sentence was up August 3rd.

It is my intention to get a job and pay you my fine and costs ($50 fine and $69.50 costs), just as soon as I can again earn some money, and I feel that this would be more acceptable to the local authorities than keeping and feeding me here for another month and a half. Being crippled makes me unfit for the road camp and necessitates keeping me in jail.

This is a case where law and justice conflict and I feel sure that if the local authorities knew of what I have already suffered because of a faithless and revengeful wife they would not willingly turn me over to her for further punishment, but would turn me loose so that I could earn and pay the amount of my fine and costs, which it is my intention to do.

I especially wish to thank Mr. Jarman and Sheriff Barbee for the kindness and courtesies they have extended to me and I sincerely regret that other conditions for which you are not to blame make it necessary for me to violate the trust you have placed in me.

I assure you, however, truthfully and sincerely, that no just God would subject me to further persecution to amuse and satisfy my former wife. She knows I have no money, but she wants the satisfaction of having me put in jail. She is that kind of a woman.

I trust you will forgive me for leaving you in this way, and if you know the circumstances, I feel sure you would.

Keep my grip and things it contains until I have paid my fine and costs and I will then advise you where I want it shipped.

Again assuring you of my kindest personal regards and regretting the necessity of leaving you in this manner, I am,

Sincerely,
R. F. TAYLOR.

When Mrs. Kaehler was seen by a Journal man and shown the above letter she made the following statement:

"Mr. Kaehler's failure in business and in many other respects was not due to my extravagance or unfaithfulness, as claimed by him, but was due to his own intemperance and to the disregard of the most common obligations which a man owes to his wife and his family."

She explained that the property spoken of by her former husband as having been turned over to her was not all unencumbered, and that there were various costs and expenses that had to be met out of the proceeds. The net amount, she said, had been used for the maintenance and education of her three children.

While Mrs. Kaehler certainly considers herself deeply wronged by her former husband her attitude is not one of extreme bitterness. She seems to think that the rapid accumulation of money weakened his moral fibre and intimidated that his mentality may have suffered also.

She said that she had no desire to have him kept in jail, and referred to the fact that he was not confined here on her account but because he was caught transporting liquor. She admitted employing legal means to collect her alimony because she felt that he was legally and morally obligated to support his own children.

A striking evidence of the rapidity with which the scenes of life can shift is seen in the fact that this man, who is now a fugitive from justice, and penniless, a few years ago was the owner of fine yachts, fast motor boats, expensive automobiles and thoroughbred horses, and was esteemed a prince of good fellows by a host of quondam friends.

Kaehler was highly respected during his successful business career, but, according to his former wife, the age-old and deadly combination, "wine, women and song" were responsible for his downfall.

Dorrell, of the firm of Larkin and Dorrell here, while driving his automobile by a silo on the farm of Mr. Joseph Hale at Nokesville on Tuesday, and in trying to avoid a frightened horse, ran into a guy wire attached to the silo, smashed the windshield to his car and received severe cuts on his left hand necessitating his carrying that member in a sling. JAPHET TALKS ABOUT ADVENT

Washington Evangelist Stirring Great Crowds at Tent Meeting Here Nightly.

Interest in the series of tent meetings being conducted here by Evangelist M. R. Japhet, of Washington, has increased nightly and on several occasions this week immense crowds of people who could not find room within the tent have lingered on the outside to hear the earnest evangelist deliver his message.

Actual conversions at the meetings have not yet attained large proportions as far as numbers are concerned, but people qualified to judge have expressed the opinion that an unusually fine spirit pervades the meetings and that a world of good is being done whether the results appear early or late.

On Saturday a band of "Crusaders" from Harrisonburg came to participate in the services. These were men who have had deep spiritual experiences and have handed themselves to God for Jesus' testimony and work wherever they can be of service in the cause of Christ. They came at their own expense, and those who heard their remarkable testimonies to the power and efficiency of the gospel to save men from the power of sin will not soon forget them.

The Crusaders, who are all business men of Harrisonburg, remained through the afternoon meeting on Sunday, returning to the Valley town that night. Unquestionably they added much to the fine work that was already in progress.

Last night Mr. Japhet preached to a large audience on the Second Coming of Christ. He warned his hearers against those modern philosophies which would discount the belief in the actual bodily appearance of the Savior, and pictured vividly his appearance in the heavens and the subsequent triumph of the righteous and doom of the wicked. His appeal to the unconverted to turn to Christ for salvation was one of the most effective ever heard in this community. The meetings will continue each night, beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

SWAVELY OPENS SESSION HERE

Local School Has Good Enrollment And Fine Outlook For Coming Session.

The Swavely School opened on Wednesday for the 1926-1927 session with an enrollment much larger than that at the opening last year. Quite a large number of the old students are back and many new faces are seen on the campus also.

Formal opening exercises were held in the Assembly Hall at 2 o'clock, beginning with the invocation by the Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, and followed with an address by the Headmaster.

Mr. Swavely outlined for the students the benefits they may expect to receive from the school and told them in turn what the school would expect from them. He assured them that everyone connected with the school would at all times be ready to help them with their problems and invited them to seek the counsel and advice of the school authorities.

He also made it plain that the school expected a hearty co-operation on the part of each student, and laid special emphasis upon loyalty both in the school room and on the campus.

The exercises closed with the singing of "America" and the benediction by the Rev. H. J. Leinbach.

THIS IS BIG DAY FOR NOKESVILLE

Fair Opens With Fine Weather and Large Crowds Attending—Band There Also.

Early this morning from all sections of Brentsville district and from other sections also crowds were traveling towards Nokesville for the great agricultural fair which opens on the White Hall farm there.

If this is not the greatest exhibit of the county's resources ever held it will not be the fault of the fair officials who have labored incessantly to this end.

An excellent band from Harrisonburg is on hand to enliven the occasion and strains of sweet music will fill every gap in the interesting program of the day.

The food and refreshment arrangements are in charge of the Community League and everything good to eat is in abundance. Many visitors from a distance are here and nearly all of the away-from-home folks have returned for the great event. While the fair will close at nightfall numerous social affairs have been planned for the late evening, and nothing has been forgotten that will help to make the day one long to be remembered by those who attend.

The exhibits of the public schools are more elaborate and better executed than any seen in the county heretofore. Local teachers have encouraged their pupils to do their very best and coached them in every legitimate way, and the results are certainly manifest in the excellent work displayed. Those schools that lay stress on athletics are particularly interested in the competition for the basketball that has been offered as a prize.

The live stock and horse exhibits are pronounced above the average by competent judges and the animals have excited much favorable comment.

Much credit is due President Lloyd and County Agent Curtis for the zeal with which they have labored and for the fine exhibition they have given the patrons this year. The Journal, which prints all the news in Prince William that is worth printing, will carry next week a list of the prize winners in the various classes.

Both Prof. Pearson and another occupant of the car escaped serious injuries.

The negro, whose car was badly torn up, was placed under arrest and later fined $100 and costs, and given thirty days on the road for driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants.

LOCAL SCHOOL TO BE SOUTH'S MODEL

Farm Department Here Will Be Demonstration School For Entire South Says Molby.

That the Agricultural department of the local high school has been selected as a demonstration school for the entire South is the statement made before the Kiwanis Club Friday night by D. R. Molby, Federal Agent for Vocational Agricultural Education in the Southern States.

Mr. Molby spoke in high terms of praise of the local institution, sketching briefly its development during the past several years, and then made the above announcement which means that special attention will be given the school here by the federal department and many interesting experiments conducted, all of which will be of immense benefit to the students of the school.

Mr. Molby referred to the principles of Job Analysis which was first worked out at this school and said that the federal department was so favorably impressed with the results that a bulletin was prepared explaining the system and sent to similar schools throughout the country. This was fine advertising for Manassas.

The principle of Job Analysis referred to is a method of teaching in which a pupil is assigned a project to develop and the work is analyzed as to its several steps. Accurate records are kept of the procedure in each step and of the results obtained from them. A summing up of the methods and the results in the several stages of the work is what is known as job analysis.

Mr. Molby told the Kiwanians that experts from the federal agricultural department would visit the local school regularly and exercise a general supervision of its work. He also asked the club to give its moral support to the work of the school.

Mr. A. P. Williams, Federal Agent for Vocational Agricultural Education for the Northeastern States, was also present and addressed the club. He will be associated with Mr. Molby in the supervision of the school here.

Mr. Williams made an excellent address in which he traced the development of agricultural methods from the dawn of history to the present time and showed how economic, social and political conditions have brought about changes in these methods from age to age.

He stressed agricultural education as the only certain means by which the rural community can hold its young people and thus save for itself the best mind, talent and character, so much of which is now drifting to the cities.

Professor Pullen, in charge of the local school, told a Journal man this morning that the school this year will work out another experimental method—that of project planning. The boy is taught to work out in advance a specific plan of the work he is going to do. This initial plan is afterwards compared with the procedure followed and the results obtained as showed in the job analysis.

This training, Professor Pullen says, will be invaluable to the boy, not in agriculture alone, but in the general business affairs of life.

Clayton, home agent, will visit Haymarket Monday morning, September 27. The club organization will be perfected, the officers elected and Miss Hughes will help the program committee in planning the work of the club for the next six months.

The Nokesville, Bethel, Woodbridge, Greenwich, Catharpin, Waterfall, Gold Ridge and Manassas clubs have met this month. The 1926 projects are being completed and plans for the club exhibits at Bethel and Nokesville have been made.

AN URGENT APPEAL

The state, the nation and the world bow before the awfulness of Florida's tragedy. Like a bolt out of the blue the tropical hurricane swept from the south taking fearful toll of life and property and leaving desolation and despair in its wake.

Actual suffering of the injured and homeless in the devastated section is described as heart-rending, and every emergency agency in the country is working night and day to relieve this suffering.

The relief work, at the President's suggestion, is heading up through the Red Cross organization and the officials in charge are asking the people of the nation to provide quickly the necessary means to carry on this work so that its merciful mission may not be delayed for lack of funds.

The Journal gladly gives space on its front page today to the communication of Miss Loretta McGill asking the people of Prince William county to do their part and do it at once, and the paper heartily endorses this appeal.

Whether you are able to give much or little, give something and do it now. Give because the gift will reflect its unselfish sweetness upon your own character, but most of all, give because men, women and little children are suffering for food, shelter and healing drugs.

A WISE MOVE

The Chamber of Commerce of Fairfax county has voted an appropriation for an advertising campaign to be conducted in co-operation with the Alexandria and Arlington county chambers of commerce, the enterprise to be known as the Northern Virginia Bureau and to be handled by a Washington advertising concern, according to a news item in the Alexandria Gazette.

Somebody has been giving good advice to our friends over in Fairfax. Advertising is as essential to modern business as gasoline is to a Ford. A flier will run on kerosene, but it will not go far and it is poor running. And a merchant may struggle along with very little advertising, but he knows and everybody else knows that he is a back number.

The same thing is true of a county, town or city. If it fails to tell the world that its location is superb, its natural advantages unsurpassed, and its business outlook as radiant as a cloudless sunrise, the man who has money, talents and the wealth of a life to invest will go elsewhere. He will take them to a community that wants these things badly enough to put forth an effort to get them.

The Journal believes that Prince William should be associated in this enterprise. It believes that our neighbors in Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria would be glad to have this county co-operate in it. And we suggest that the Kiwanis Club investigate the matter and determine what are the interests of the county in it.

ALEXANDER BURGHALTER CLARKE

Alexander Burghalter Clarke was born November 1, 1875. He was the son of John A. and Almira E. Clarke. He spent most of his life at Gainesville, Va., where he engaged in farming. In August, 1903, he married Miss Nellie Irene Byram, of Washington, D. C. They had one son, Byram, whose sad and sudden death by drowning at Carney's Point, N. J., was a sad blow to his beloved parents.

Mr. Clarke was stricken ill in December, 1924, with a disease that baffled medical skill. He was carried to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md., and other hospitals in Washington, D. C. His suffering was intense, but he was patient and bore his sickness without complaint.

Mrs. Clarke was his constant companion. Anxiety and worry over Mr. Clarke's condition undermined her health, so she went to Washington for treatment, where she died very suddenly in Providence Hospital, December 29, 1925.

Mr. Clarke stayed for a while with his sister, Mrs. Lila B. Jeffries, of Warrenton, Va., but he grew worse and was carried to Washington to the hospital, where he remained until about two weeks before his death, which occurred at the home of his sister, Miss Mary B. Clarke, August 5, 1926.

The same minister who performed his marriage ceremony officiated at his burial service. At his request, Mrs. Clarke was removed from a temporary grave and both were buried in the same grave at Rock Creek cemetery, Washington, D. C. He has passed to the Great Beyond there to await the resurrection.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of Clay Arnold, who departed this life twelve years ago, September 24.

It is not through tears at the moment shed,

That tells how we loved you, dear Clay;

The hearts that loved you through life Love you through death just the same. It grows with every year that passes by.

Your dear face we cannot see. My empty arms miss your charms; For you are now a shining star In the home of fadeless beauty; Above the vaulted blue, angels whispered the message of love; Now, rest in peace, dear Clay, Your troubles are o'er, where parting is no more.

BY HIS MOTHER.

NEWS OF WEEK IN OLD VIRGINIA

A joint meeting of the social service committees of the Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and Christian churches of Strasburg was held Sunday to consider the possibility of establishing a curfew law for the town.

The Commonwealth's attorney and two special prosecutors conducting the investigation of the lynching of Raymond Bird, negro, in Wythe county have ordered the release from custody of Herbert Huddle, the first and only arrest made in the case.

Causes that led to the death of two Marines, critical injuries to another and serious injuries to a fourth member of the party when a machine driven by Gunner Charles H. Burton, crashed into a party on the Triangle-Quantico road last Thursday night, are already under investigation by a special board composed of Marine Corps officers and if the results obtained warrant it, a courtmartial of the Marine who drove the death car will be ordered.

Statements have been made that the quartet drove practically all the way from Fredericksburg to Quantico without lights.

The entire state was shocked at the tragic news of the tropical hurricane which swept over Florida Friday and Saturday involving a frightful loss of life, great suffering and a destruction of property estimated at sixty millions of dollars.

A large number of Virginians are in the state and from every section came anxious inquiries concerning relatives and friends who had not been heard from.

Relief measures were immediately started in Richmond, and other cities and towns fell rapidly into line. The first relief plane to reach the devastated area was an army plane from Langley Field carrying tetanus antitoxin from Richmond.

Two persons were killed outright and another seriously injured just outside of Richmond when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a concrete bridge on the Broad street road as a result of speeding to escape an officer who was pursuing them in the belief that they were transporting liquor. Miss Mildred Clarke and Robert Lee, said to be a grand-nephew of General Lee, are dead, and Miss Ada Chappell is in Memorial Hospital with a fractured spine. The automobile ride followed a party which the young people attended accompanied by Mrs. Clarke, mother of the dead girl. F. O. Green, 25, of 205 South Pine street, Richmond, was booked at police station on charges of careless and reckless driving, transporting spirits, and driving after his permit had been revoked.

A continuous performance

Nothing is permanent in railroading.

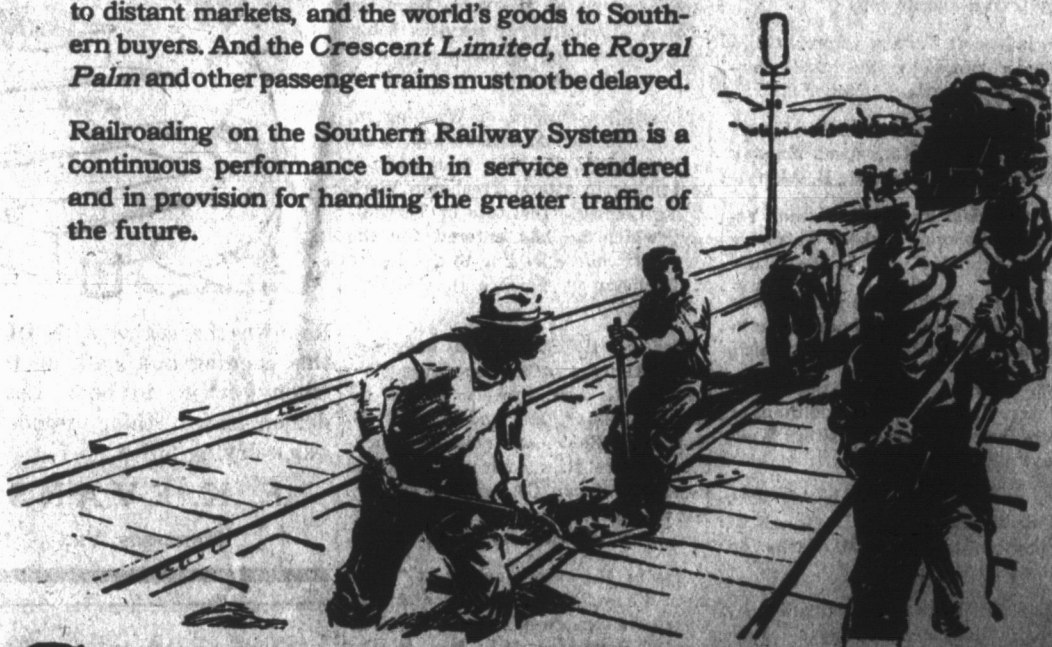

Larger cars and engines must be bought to handle greater loads; the roadbed must ever be kept in good condition, new ties and heavier rails must be laid to support heavier trains at high speeds; and in places the course of the line must be changed to reduce curves and grades.

Shop facilities must be enlarged, terminals improved and bridges rebuilt to carry the ever-growing trainloads. New signalling devices are being installed, and new tracks, yards and sidings built to handle the growing traffic of the South. This process of change, improvement and renewal goes on day in and day out throughout the year.

But the service must never stop. The way must ever be kept open for the great freights as they rush through the night carrying products of the South to distant markets, and the world's goods to Southern buyers. And the Crescent Limited, the Royal Palm and other passenger trains must not be delayed.

Railroading on the Southern Railway System is a continuous performance both in service rendered and in provision for handling the greater traffic of the future.

Everything used on a railroad wears out. Last year about $90,000,000 was spent by the Southern in replacing things that had worn out.

"Haste makes waste"

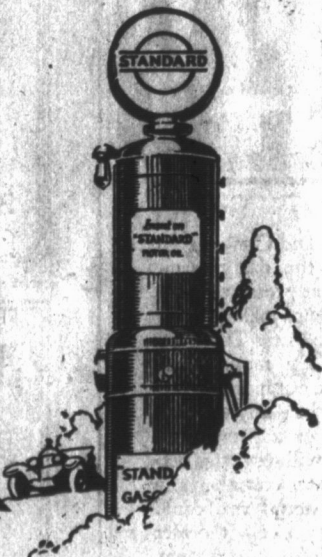

"I have never yet seen persons really get anywhere who were always in a hurry with never time to care for their motors—picking up gas, all kinds—here, there, and everywhere. They soon find this policy makes their car shy at a hill-climb—whine for second gear—pine for a rest.

"Best to make haste slowly. Play safe. Always fill up with 'Standard' Gasoline. It's the result of fifty-six years' experience—always dependable. Right handy everywhere."

ABSOLUTELY ASTOUNDING!

That's the only way we can describe it! Never before have you seen anything like it! Imagine a group of men and a woman trapped—imprisoned in this lost world. Where ape men roam—where animals the size of 15 elephants, and flying reptiles the size of an aeroplane, monsters of 10,000,000 years ago still live, battling each other and this group of adventurers. And after a series of hair raising adventures, escaping with a captured monster and carrying it back to London where it breaks its shackles and raises havoc in the city streets. Now these marvels are bared to your eyes. You will gasp with astonishment and wonder. Something never to be forgotten.

NEWS OF WEEK IN OLD VIRGINIA

High Lights of Happenings in State Told in Short Paragraphs

Mrs. C. P. Jones, prominent society woman of Covington, was found dead in a half-filled bath tub in a Richmond hotel on Friday. As she was partly dressed and the body half way out of the tub it is thought that she was taken suddenly ill and died while preparing to bathe.

Two school girls, Ellen and Mabel Bell, disappeared mysteriously from the Main street public school in South Boston last week. The police think they were taken by their mother, now Mrs. Howard Ingram, of Norfolk, who lost custody of the children before the juvenile court at Henderson, N. C. Custody of the children was given to Mrs. J. McN. Stover, of South Boston, sister of their father, Joseph Bell, by the Henderson tribunal.

Governor Byrd left Richmond Friday for a two weeks' vacation in the Valley of Virginia. This is apple-picking time and the executive will spend most of the two weeks in his orchards. He is regarded as the leading apple grower in this section of the country.

The congregation of Main Street Methodist Church in Danville, is preparing to wage an active fight for the reappointment of Dr. Thomas A. Smoot as pastor of the church. He is understood to be in favor of rigid adherence to this rule.

FAUQUIER FIRM WANTS PRINCE WILLIAM CREAM

Plant at Warrenton Seeks Business of Dairymen of This County—Business Good.

An interview with officials of the Fauquier Creameries, Inc., discloses the fact that business is developing nicely. For the present the plant at Marshall will be used for manufacturing the product of the company. Arrangements have been made for the location in Warrenton on Main Street in front of the post office of a cream receiving point. With the advance in the market and the outlets for butter, producers are receiving extremely good prices for their cream.

The following statement by one of the officers of the Fauquier Creameries, Inc., is of particular interest. "This Company was organized to provide for the ever increasing interest in dairying and butterfat production in the Northern Piedmont Section of Virginia. The returns to producers are controlled—First—by the quality of cream delivered. Second—by the efficiency of the plant. Third—by the volume of cream available. We have met the second point in our plant at Marshall. The first and second factors are largely in the hands of the producers. We are meeting the first by assisting farmers to produce high quality cream and by paying the premium for quality. With regard to the third factor our volume of cream is increasing at the present time and as time goes on and the producers realize that the more cream they are able to deliver to the Creamery the more will be its possibility of paying them increasingly high prices for it. It costs proportionately very little more to manufacture 300,000 pounds of butter than it does to manufacture 200,000 pounds of butter. The benefit of such economies can be passed on to the farmer. In other words if the farmers of Fauquier county will furnish us with 400,000 pounds of butterfat during the next twelve months we can pay them one to two cents more per pound even than the present high price basis on which we are operating. Our plant is equipped to handle this amount of business."

"Fauquier Creameries, Inc., desire to be a large factor in agricultural development of Prince William county. We are now buying a large quantity of butterfat in Prince William through our station in Manassas and on our truck routes. We appreciate this business and want Prince William producers to know that we are greatly interested in furnishing them with a market for their products, second to none."

NOTICE!

While absent from Manassas and engaged in my work in Cumberland, Md., on August 21, 1926, Deputy Sheriff J. P. Kerlin, at the instance of Mr. Robert A. Hutchison and Mr. C. A. Sinclair, attorneys for judgment creditors of mine to the extent of approximately $550.00, advertised and sold my entire office equipment and library, notwithstanding an offer on the part of my friend, Mr. A. S. Boatwright, who was present at said sale, to bid an amount sufficient to pay the entire amount of judgments and costs, as a lump sum bid for the effects. On my return to the office, I found my personal papers dumped in a pile in the center of the room and all other fixtures, furniture and equipment removed.

Many of the articles sold have a peculiar value to me, and I take this means of asking those who made purchases at said sale to communicate with me and advise whether I can repurchase the articles purchased by them, and at what price. This request does not apply to Mr. Robert A. Hutchison, and Mr. C. A. Sinclair, who, I am informed, purchased most of my law library, and other articles. 19-2* C. J. MEETZE.
