WILLIAM EWING DIES SUDDENLY

Found Dead in Bed Tuesday Morning at Metz's Inn—Burial at Yonkers.

William Cox Ewing was found dead in his room at Metz's Inn, about 10:30 a. m., Tuesday. Mr. Ewing was born at Lancaster, Ohio, October 8, 1856. His father was the late General Thomas Ewing, son of the Thomas Ewing who was famous in Ohio as a lawyer and Whig statesman. His mother was a daughter of the Rev. William Cox of Ohio, a Presbyterian minister.

Mr. Ewing was a graduate from the University of Wooster, Ohio, in 1879. Thereafter he spent some years in Washington, then still a territory, where he owned and edited a newspaper at Mt. Vernon. Later he returned to the east and did journalistic work for the New York World and other newspapers.

Mr. Ewing never married. After his father's death, which occurred in 1896, he lived with his mother and an unmarried sister in Yonkers, New York, until his mother died in 1919. He had for twenty years spent much time here where he owned a small farm, and for the last eight years has made his home here, spending a part of the winters in Washington. For a time he taught in Eastern College, now Swavely School, in Manassas.

Mr. Ewing is survived by two brothers and a sister, who resides at Yonkers, and by a married sister, who resides in Ohio.

Mr. Ewing was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church from early manhood. He was very companionable, and because of his high character and his friendly nature and his remarkable fund of information, he was admired and loved by all who knew him well.

Death came wholly unexpected, as he had been in his usual good health. Apparently he died in his sleep, without warning or pain.

Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church, at 1:45 p. m., yesterday, the Rev. W. A. Hall officiating, and the remains were taken on the 2:26 train to Washington, where services were held this morning from the Central Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member, conducted by the pastor, Rev. James H. Taylor, after which the body was taken to his old home in Yonkers, N. Y., for interment.

KIWANIS CLUB HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

Colonel Archer Holds Members Spellbound in Address on Sanitation Friday.

The Kiwanis Club had a most interesting evening at its last meeting. The routine business of the club was transacted during the meal and after the business of the evening was completed the President presented to the club Colonel John Archer of the National Trade Extension Bureau, who addressed the club on the subject of Civilization and Sanitation.

Colonel Archer held the members of the club spellbound for nearly an hour. His talk was illuminated by many personal reminiscences. During the Great War Colonel Archer was in the Intelligence Service of the A. E. F. Immediately after the close of the war he was sent, first, to Russia, next to Turkey, and finally to Arabia. In each of these places he had ample opportunity to study conditions not only as they existed at that time, but also as they existed in times past. He traced in a very interesting fashion the various civilizations of the world and showed in a conclusive manner that only those civilizations which paid special attention to sanitation were able to survive and that filth and uncleanness bring disease and crime.

HAS SMALL DEATH RATE

Warwick Has Lowest Per Thousand of Any County in State.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—Warwick has the smallest death rate per 1,000 of the total population of any county in the state, her deaths averaging 5.85 per cent of every 1,000.

James City with a death rate of 25.74 of every 1,000 persons has the highest figures in the state. Dinwiddie is next with a death rate of 20.91 of every 1,000 persons. Sixty-six counties have a mortality rate of more than 10.00 per cent and less than 20.00 per cent of every 1,000 of the total population.

TOWN COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION

Town Sells Rural Electric Lines to Rivers and Streams, Inc., For Sum of $13,000.

At the regular monthly meeting of the town council Monday night the offer of Rivers and Streams, Inc., to purchase the rural electric lines and equipment for the sum of $13,000, was accepted.

The matter of burying space in the local cemetery for inmates of the District Home was discussed but no account of insufficient room, was declined.

Councilman Davis reported the installation of the police dog, and that the Telephone Company would have to make a small charge for the use of a drop at the telephone switchboard, and the town is to pay the sum of $2 per month for the drop.

Councilman Davis also called attention to the importance of a night sergeant for the next few months, and it was ordered that a night man be appointed for a period of three months, beginning December 1. The selecting of a suitable party and the salary was left with Mayor Sinclair.

The question of parking on Center Street was discussed and an ordinance was submitted, Councilman Davis moving that same be adopted. The motion was lost. Then Councilman Whitmore offered a motion that the present parking ordinance as effecting Center Street between Main Street and Grant Avenue be rescinded. This motion was also lost.

The request of Mr. Corum for an increase in salary of $25 per month was referred to Councilmen Davis and Parrish for their recommendation.

The following councilmen were present: C. A. Sinclair, chairman, E. G. Parrish, H. P. Davis, D. J. Arrington and M. Bruce Whitmore.

The meeting adjourned to meet in regular session Monday night, December 26.

DEPARTMENT PROTECTS SHEEP

Increase Due Primarily to Curbing Depredations of Worthless Cur Dogs.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—Information received from the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture indicate a noticeable increase in the number of sheep being raised on Virginia farms during the last eight-year period. An important factor in this increase, in the belief of State Game Commissioner A. Willis Robertson, is the activity of the county wardens throughout the State.

Since 1918 the Virginia Game Department has been charged with the enforcement of the dog law. Virginia farm statistics, gathered from the sources already mentioned and published in 1927, show that from 1918 to 1926 horses in Virginia decreased from 394,497 to 314,141; cattle from 762,544 to 617,441; hogs from 501,948 to 295,218; whereas sheep during the same period increased from 268,406 to 309,077.

The above increase in the number of sheep is due primarily to the services of the State Game Department in controlling and curbing depredations by worthless cur dogs and in providing from the dog tax a fund for the payment of claims for damages to sheep by dogs. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, game wardens destroyed approximately 11,000 dogs, and during the past month of October, which is regarded as an off month for the crusade against worthless dogs, they eliminated an additional 800 curs.

Every roving and homeless cur dog is a potential sheep killer. If each of the worthless dogs killed during the fiscal year 1926-1927 had cost $10 dollars, the economic and property loss to the State would have been $110,000, which would have amounted to more than the combined salaries of the entire field force of the Game Department.

Any man now engaged in the sheep industry will gladly admit that it would probably be impossible to raise sheep in Virginia but for the protection afforded by game wardens, which service alone is worth more to the farmers of the State than the cost of the whole department. And, yet, not one dollar is spent from the general treasury of Virginia for the support of this department.

Virginia permitted its wild-life to reach a distressingly low ebb before creating a state game department in 1916, but even in the short period of ten years and with limited funds, the department this fall is enabled to offer to the citizens of the state for a membership fee of from 1 to 3 dollars the privileges of one of the finest hunting clubs in the entire United States.

The game commission has made a study of quail, turkeys and grouse in other states of the Union and feels justified in claiming that the opportunity for taking all three of these splendid species of game birds in Virginia today is the equal of that of any state in the Union and Virginia exceeds that of any state north of the Mason and Dixon line.

CHICAGO MALE QUARTET

The first of the series of Swavely School entertainments will be presented on Friday evening, December 2, by the Chicago Male Quartet.

This excellent quartet is playing a return engagement. All who heard it last year were highly entertained. The quartet presents a great variety of selections ranging from classical to popular.

In the person of its leader, Mr. Robert Herrick, it has a fun maker par excellence. He has a pleasing baritone voice and is inimitable in many character impersonations.

The other members of the quartet are artists whose voices and personalities are admirably suited to one another.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Rev. Westwood Hutchison received a letter of appreciation, yesterday, from Mr. O. J. Sands, State Chairman of the Near East Relief, stating that $142 had been collected for the cause at the union service held on November 20, at the Baptist Church.

WAVELY TAKES CLOSING GAME

Local Team Wrests Victory From Tech on Thanksgiving—Score 12-7.

The Swavely Preps football team closed its season Thanksgiving morning by beating Tech High of Washington 12 to 7 on their varsity field. The locals played mostly a strong defensive game, opening up in the first and third quarters to put the pigskin over Tech's goal line, while Tech's last counter came in the final period. Lochrie was directly responsible for Swavely's first goal reeling off 40 yards around end and carrying it 20 yards on an off-tackle play for a touchdown the next play. Lochrie's end runs were one of the spectacles of the game.

The next touchdown came in the third quarter after Clark dropped on a fumble made by one of Tech's backfield men. Tarbutton, with his marvelous ability to buck the line, took the pigskin for three plays straight and brought it within scoring distance. On the next play Lyons took the ball across the line for six more points.

Tech's lone touchdown came in the fourth quarter when the ball-toater came around the end and had a clear field.

Marringer, Tarbutton and Bassett starred for the white team on the defense, Barringer running down punts and nailing his man most every time, while Tarbutton and Bassett got in and threw Tech for a loss several times.

The Swavely team has had a very successful season this year, losing only one game out of 8. Their schedule was as follows: Swavely, 12, Bassett, 13; Swavely, 8, George Washington Fresh, 30; Swavely, 7, Randolph-Macon Academy, 0; Swavely, 13, Eastern H. S., 0; Swavely, 0, Tome, 46; Swavely, 18, Alexandria H. S., 0; Swavely, 12, Tech H. S., 7. Total points Swavely 111, opponents 11.

Barringer, who has played fine at end all season and who has acted as captain for most of the games this year, has been elected the titled captain of the season by his team-mates. It is the first time that the captain has been a first year man at the school.

AN URGENT APPEAL

Inasmuch as there are a great many children in the town and county who do not have as happy a Christmas as other children, I am again asking you good people who helped so much last year to make a search of your attics and send to me what discarded toys, dolls, clothes in way of hats, shoes, coats and sweaters, so that we may pass them on to the children in the town and county.

Last Christmas we gave toys and candy to 168 children, and as good people, we should not let these little ones go wanting on Christmas morning. You must act quickly if you want to help for the toys must be repaired and it will take quite a little while to have them properly placed. Please notify or bring toys to F. R. Hynson, chairman Kiwanis Christmas for children.

GUILD TO HOLD SALE

WATER POWER DEVELOPED

Virginia is Twenty-Third in Development From Streams.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—Virginia is twenty-third in the amount of water power she has developed from her streams, in comparison with the other states of the Union. Her developed water power today amounts to only 138,046, only 30 per cent of the amount which is potential. These figures are shown in the Statistical Survey of Virginia which is just being completed by the University of Virginia and released through the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

According to these figures, which were compiled for all the states at the same time, the average developed water power horsepower in the states of the Union is 244,187 and for the southern states, 207,603. The total developed water power is 11,720,983 horsepower, just 34 per cent of the available power in the United States.

ASK PROTECTION FOR DUMB BRUTES

Humane Society Solves Problem of Neglect to Animals Caused by Poverty.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—With the coming of each winter, reports pour into the Humane Society at Richmond and to the National Humane Agent, of animals suffering from lack of proper food and shelter on farms in Virginia. Case after case, say these agencies, have fallen under the observation of their workers where mules, horses and cows have been turned out during the winter to subsist as best they may on the sparse pickings of frozen fields and swamps, frequently without any sort of protection from the weather.

Appeals to sheriffs, say these agents, frequently elicit no response, although specific cases are pointed out and although the enforcement of the humane laws is directly in line with the duties of these officials.

Section 4554 of the Code of Virginia reads in part:

Any person who overrides, overdrives, overloads, tortures, illtreats, or cruelly or unnecessarily beats or maims, mutilates or kills any animal whether belonging to himself or another, or deprives any animal of sustenance, food or drink, or causes any of the above things, or, being owner, permits such acts to be done by another, etc.—shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

The time has come, in the opinion of those directing the activities of the Humane Society, when every right-minded person and every progressive community, should awaken to their responsibility for the protection of dumb animals and beasts of burden, and they very earnestly suggest that careful investigations be made in every county for the purpose of ascertaining whether farm animals are properly conditioned and provided for against the approaching winter. In no case should wanton neglect, say they, be permitted to pass without protest.

The problem of what is best to be done where poverty is the cause of neglect can best be settled by the local community. They realize that there may be times when an arrest and fine might not help the animal or better conditions. In some instances, say they, it may be better to purchase the animal for a small amount and then put it humanely to death. Some way, they feel, should be found to keep dumb brutes from suffering from cold and neglect.

DETAILS OF NEW CAR ANNOUNCED

Manassas Motor Co., to Hold Reception Tomorrow to Introduce New Car.

Manassas will get its first full description of the new line of Ford automobiles tomorrow.

A public reception to be held by its local dealers, The Manassas Motor Co., is part of the national introduction of the new Ford models. In thousands of communities all over the United States tomorrow this new line of moderate-priced light automobiles will be introduced to millions of people.

The doors of the show rooms are to be opened promptly at 8 a. m. and attendants will be on hand throughout the remainder of the day to explain the new and interesting features of the car which is expected to make a new chapter in automotive history.

The new Ford cars are said to be the product of several years of study and planning by Henry Ford and his engineers in the great Ford laboratories at Dearborn. Mr. Ford himself has announced that "there is nothing quite like the new Ford car" and has stated that it will prove just as great a pioneer in the present field of low price light cars of quality as the famous Model T was a pioneer in its field for more than nineteen years.

Among the visitors to the reception tomorrow will be many city officials, executives of business, civic and professional organizations and other leaders in the life of the community, who have been specially invited.

The performance of these new cars, it is said, will be starting when viewed in the light of automobile performance.

Local dealers have been notified by Ford officials at Detroit that the factories throughout the country are now preparing to produce the new cars in numbers exceeding even the tremendous production records achieved in the manufacture of the Model T line.

Company officials at Detroit also repeated their early announcement that production of the new Ford line will not make the Model T line obsolete. The manufacture of new parts for Model T replacements will continue to be an important factor of the Ford plants as long as any of the Model T cars are still in operation, the local dealers were advised. Because of this policy, present owners of Model T Ford cars will be able to keep their cars in perfect order as long as those cars remain in commission.—Adv.

RECEIVE TAX ON PISTOLS WITH ENTHUSIASM

Proceeds Will be Used for Care of Diseased and Crippled Children.

It is unusual to speak of any tax as being received with enthusiasm, but such is the case with the recently created tax on pistols and revolvers. The proceeds of that tax will be used for the care of diseased and crippled children, and the reports from the country and city tax collectors show that the idea back of the tax has already met with sympathy and approval.

This is certainly not strange when one considers as a single illustration of the work being done for crippled children, the annual report of the Capital District of Kiwanis International.

Individuals examined, 2273; plasters applied, 722; cases sent to hospital, 304; educational training, 18; visits by nurses, 3168; examinations made, 5934; treatments, 7032; operations performed, 365; vocational training, 9; physiotherapy clinics, 74; number of pieces of apparatus supplied, to patients, 641. A total of $120,472.76 was spent.

That shows the great need of the children, the Kiwanis being only one of many organizations aiding towards helping them.

To the public the work possesses always strong appeal. So after all it is not remarkable that those who pay it will feel and offer no objection to the tax on pistols and revolvers.

KICKING THE DEMOCRATIC DONKEY

The Democratic Woman's Club of Philadelphia is about to spread consternation in the ranks of the party. They had a meeting last week, and when things in general had been discussed from every possible feminine angle, a member got up and said that she had been giving a great deal of thought to the party emblem. She was sure every lady present would agree with her that a horrible donkey was no fitting emblem for their party. There was the American Eagle—a noble bird, and graceful withal. Why not swap the donkey for the eagle?

The idea struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the club members, as they sipped their tea and daubed at the shine on their democratic noses. Speech after speech was made in which every angle of the donkey's ugliness was portrayed. They said he was "unsightly" and not a suitable representative of the "virtue" of the organization, and finally decided that a movement must be started at once to replace the donkey with the eagle. So every democratic club in the country will soon get a perfumed note, setting forth the donkey's deficiencies as a party emblem and the splendid "virtues" of the eagle.

It has always been the policy of The Journal not to disagree with the puzzling sex, either individually or in organized organizations. Years ago we bowed beneath the feminine yoke and have faithfully followed the line of least resistance ever since. But we must protest the proposal to supplant the faithful old donkey as a party emblem. Why, as far back as we can remember he has led the hosts of faithful through the thick of political fights. We have followed his majestic figure in torch-light parades when there seemed to be several of him. We will admit he is not beautiful. He has had very little to encourage him in the way of personal attraction. But the insinuations on his virtue are both unwarranted and ungracious. The eagle is not to be compared with him on that score.

We are willing to concede anything in reason to the democratic women. They can have our wages, share our jobs, adopt our vices and wear our clothes. But we refuse to sacrifice the faithful old donkey on the altar of feminine aestheticism. Not until the republican party swaps the elephant for the skunk.

SOMETHING ABOUT WRITERS AND WRITING

With the growth of educational facilities and the consequent larger enlightenment the urge to write has become an almost universal affliction. Every high school graduate and quasi-intellectual cherishes the idea that he (or she) will some day produce a masterpiece that will set the world by its ears. Naturally, they must practice up for the great achievement, and so tons and tons of the sheerest dribble are dumped on the literary market daily.

The small number of authors who secure publication for their work soon discover that they are in a field of the closest competition, where only the fittest survive. Publishers, from the weekly newspapers to the field of the magazine and the book, have masses of matter to select from, and naturally, they select the best. A good article will have style, personality and originality. To achieve notable success in these competitive times a writer must go even further. He must invade a field that has not been fully threshed.

Most writing is commonplace because thousands and thousands of people are trying to do it, and most of them are consciously or unconsciously trying to imitate an ideal. Readers today want a fresh viewpoint. Kipling told the story of the English army abroad; O'Henry painted the joys and sorrows of the "Four Million"; Jack London, Gene Stratton Porter, Harold Bell Wright, Octavius Cohen and a host of others have achieved both money and fame by specializing in fields that were virgin—or, at least, not overworked.

In the wild scramble for fresh literary material, things ranging all the way from the pitiful to the grotesque are brought to light. Some of them achieve a brief life—literary "fads,"—and then pass on into the limbo of forgotten things. Many of them are resurrected and reshaped in subsequent literary periods. A current example which comes to mind is the "debunking" fad. The word "bunk," in modern slang, means fiction, not fact, and a class of writers has sprung up within the past year or two who have found it more or less profitable to strip history and biography of all legendary accretions, and reveal idealized heroes as mere commonplace individuals.

Rupert Hughes is at the present time the outstanding representative of the "debunkers." He has just published the world with a second volume proving that George Washington was a weak, insignificant and sinful man. Of course, we all know that "debunking" is simply the ancient iconoclasm in modern dress. It will pass on, as other fads do, when the public is tired of it. Now if some enterprising literary genius would turn about and debunk the debunkers, all would be well, and another block would be worked into the wonderful mosaic of modern literary achievement.

THE OUTSTRETCHED HAND

I saw on the sea—on far Galilee
A man who was sinking in fright,
The stormy waves rolled, the breezes
grew cold,
And he sank in the terrors of night.
But One there was near, who can conquer all fear,
And terror-dead hearts understand;
That Friend unafraid, I saw lend him aid.

And give him the outstretched
hand.

I saw in the swirl of life's raging whirl
Another man sinking in woe.
He had lost in the fight, and was sinking from sight
In pains that a lost soul must know.

But I saw there a friend, who had power to lend

To one who was too frail to stand,
And the man in defeat was placed on his feet

By the man with the outstretched
hand.

There are many who fail where life
hurls a gale,
And are caught in the wild stormy waves,

When the sturdy heart quails and all fighting fails,
And only a friendly hand saves.

And this be my prayer, may I always care

When a brother's deep need makes demand;

Lord, grant I am he, with power from Thee,

A man with the outstretched hand.

CHILD MANAGEMENT

By D. A. THOM

Syndicated from the revised, edition of Child Management.
Study Your Children.

In dealing with children it is necessary to find out their reasons and motives. Many times what seems like flagrant disregard for the parent's requests is to the child only an earnest desire to help mother or father, as the case may be.

The little girl of 4, who had been told time and again not to play with water, when found in the kitchen dripping wet having spilt water all over herself, was punished for her disobedience. Later it was learned that what she had done was to climb up on the sink to get a basin of water and a cloth with which to wash the finger marks off the doorway as she had seen mother do. She slipped, the water spilled, and punishment followed. To her it must have looked as if she were punished for trying to help.

Another little boy had learned that he must never pull up the plants in the garden. He watched his father at work getting out the little weeds in the flower bed, and a few days later, in an attempt to be helpful, he pulled up all the little new growth of carrots and left standing the tall, well-developed ragweed!

Some restrictions are placed on children that it is nearly a physical impossibility for them to carry out. "Sit still" and "Be quiet" are very easy to say, and yet to a healthy youngster, full of life and vigor, such commands are extremely hard to carry out for more than a few minutes at a time. Little children are growing and developing new muscle power all the time, and they must have freedom to run, jump, shout and play. Nature demands it. Perhaps some special part of the house or yard may be set apart as theirs—a place with few dangers or hampering restrictions where they may safely "work off their steam" unchecked by continual nagging.

CURRENT HUMOUR

A confirmed hypochondriac, meeting his personal physician on the street, said to him: "Doctor, I have just come from a popular medical lecture and I am much afraid that I have kidney trouble."

"But, my dear fellow," said the doctor, smiling, "the curious thing about that disease is that the victim does not experience the least pain or discomfort."

"I knew it!" gasped the hypochondriac. "My symptoms exactly!"
Fliegende Blätter.

Customer—"What have you in the shape of cucumbers, this morning?"
New Clerk—"Nothing but bananas, ma'am."

"I had to kill my dog this morning."
"Was he mad?"
"Well, he didn't seem any to well pleased."

Mr. Meane—"I have nothing but praise for the new minister."

Brown—"So I noted when the plate went around."

"No, sir," cried the irate parent, "my daughter can never be yours."
"I don't want her to be my daughter," interrupted the young man, "I want her to be my wife."

An ambitious youth came to Washington from the country in order to join the police. He passed the usual examination and was then interviewed. "Well, young man," said the officer, "you look like a promising young fellow. You have a good general knowledge, I hope? Can you tell me how many miles it is from Washington to Baltimore?"
The ambitious youth became alarmed.

A teacher in a certain town had a great deal of trouble to make a boy in her class understand a point in his lesson. Finally, however, she succeeded, and drawing a long breath remarked:

"If it wasn't for me, you would be the greatest donkey in this town."

Teacher—"And now, children, give me the definition of a husband."
Tommy—"It's something no respectable family should be without."

"Gladys, didn't I hear Mr. Fribbon kissing you last night?"
"No, ma, he's too bashful to do such a thing. That was me kissing him."

"There goes young Peterson. He's an awful flatterer."

"Did he tell you that you were beautiful?"

"No. He said you were!"

NEWS OF WEEK IN OLD VIRGINIA

High Lights of Happenings in State Told in Short Paragraphs

Fight Duel Over Rabbit.

Danville, Va., Nov. 25.—Edward Yates and D. T. Fulton are in a Stuart Hospital possibly mortally injured on Thanksgiving Day. They are brothers-in-law. Both shot simultaneously at a rabbit which was killed. An argument developed as to who killed it and they passed words. Yates stooped to pick up the rabbit. As he did so, Fulton is said to have fired at him, the shot taking effect in his side. Fulton then picked up the rabbit and was walking away when Yates took aim and dropped him, his load striking Fulton between the shoulder blades. Other hunters in the vicinity hearing the shots found both men laying wounded and carried them to the hospital.

Make Bombing Records.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 24.—With 5,000-foot altitude record bombing by the second bombardment group completed, indications point to better records than those made in the air corps machine gun and bombing matches, staged here last spring, it was announced at Langley Thursday. Record work was begun last Monday.

To Fill High Offices.

Fredericksburg people, especially daughters of the Confederacy, are interested to know at the annual U. D. C. Convention just closing at Charleston, S. C., two Virginia women were elected to fill high offices.

Mrs. W. C. N. Merchant, of Chatham, Va., was elected President General, and Mrs. B. A. Blenner, of Richmond, Treasurer General. These women have been in Fredericksburg more than once. Both were delegates to the U. D. C. Virginia Convention some years ago, when Fredericksburg Chapter was hostess to the convention and again at a District meeting held some years previous, when Fredericksburg Chapter was also hostess.

Both women will reflect honor in this state in their high offices and it is rather unusual for one state to be represented by two general officers.

Shifflett's Trial Set.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 24.—Judge John W. Fishburne, of this city, will go to Standardsville on December 14, to preside at the trial of Patrick Shifflett and his son, Dewey Shifflett, who were indicted in the Greene County Circuit Court this week in connection with the murder of Bluford B. Johnson.

Johnson, a farmer, met death in the home of Mrs. Millie Shifflett, in Bacon Hollow, Friday evening. Soon afterward, Patrick Shifflett drove to Standardsville, the county seat, with his son, Dewey, and said Dewey had killed Johnson. Sheriff Malone locked Dewey up.

Later on the news came that Patrick Shifflett had had a hand in the homicide. The sheriff then went after the elder Shifflett, who had gone in the direction of Earlysville, this county. He traced Patrick back to the scene of the alleged murder, placed him under arrest and lodged him in the Standardsville jail.

Disturb Snakes in Park Area.

Luray.—Rattlesnake, copperheads and black racers which had gone into their dens in the Blue Ridge for a winter's nap, are being aroused from slumber by the jangle of surveyor's chains clanking over mountain rock. Federal surveyors are determining the acreage that will be devoted to the Shenandoah National Park are finding them in great numbers. At the first sound of the surveyors' chains as they are pulled over the rocks the reptiles emerge from their dens, emitting a dangerous rattle or hiss, depending upon the species of the snakes disturbed. The unusual noise near the dens of the snakes has put them in a fighting humor. The bite of the rattler and copperhead is considered far more dangerous at this time of the year than in mid-summer.

Dogs Cause Heavy Loss.

Luray.—Dogs have caused the loss of between three and five hundred dollars' worth of sheep in Page county within the past month. In the same time the loss to turkeys and chickens from the same cause will run into hundreds of dollars. The dogs causing the most damage are believed to be fox hounds, who, during the day-time locate sheep folds, visiting them at night. A great many of the dogs have been killed.

Floating Theater Sinks.

Norfolk.—The James Adams Floating Theater is sunk in sixteen feet of water a mile and a half off Thimble Shoals and with only a few inches of her deckhouse visible. It is indicated that she will be a total loss. The craft was in tow of a tug, which brought her from Philadelphia. She sprung a leak, which developed so seriously that she could not proceed beyond where she is now resting.

The boat was an old steamer and was made into a pleasure craft some years ago, spending the summer in the south and the winter in the north. She is owned by S. C. Loveland, of Philadelphia. Two men on the boat were taken aboard the tug.

To Establish Landing Fields.

Staunton.—The Secretary of Commerce and other Federal agencies, the Guggenheim Foundation and Colonel Charles A. Lindberg will be invited to cooperate with the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., in establishing suitable landing fields and airports in the Shenandoah Valley and carrying out various plans to promote aviation in this section of Virginia, it was announced by Phineas V. Stephens, of New Market, chairman of the committee on aviation and airports, appointed by President H. J. Benchoff, of Shenandoah Valley, Inc.

Serving on the new committee with Mr. Stephens are W. B. Parks, of Martinsburg, W. Va., Thomas Byrd, of Winchester, and C. C. Loth, of Waynesboro.

Last week when Colonel Lindberg was in the Shenandoah Valley on a hunting trip with Governor Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia; Hugh B. Sproul, of Staunton, and H. G. Shirley, chairman of the Virginia State Highway Commission, a petition was handed to Lindberg, asking his aid in aviation plans of the Shenandoah Valley. The petition was signed by the secretaries of ten Valley Chambers of Commerce and H. J. Benchoff, president of Shenandoah Valley, Inc.

Colonel Lindberg replied to the petition that he was interested in the plans under way in the Shenandoah Valley. He stated that he would offer definite suggestions to the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., upon his return to New York City.

The committee headed by Mr. Stephens seeks to interest State officials and agencies as well as national figures and individual foundations in the establishment of airports in the Shenandoah Valley and the furthering of plans for advancing the cause of aviation in the State of Virginia.

To Present Portrait.

First Royal.—E. Henslow Orchard, a member of the party of British industrialists who toured Virginia last spring with the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce will return to the Old Dominion this week to present to Governor Harry Flood Byrd a portrait of himself, done in oil by Dunwoody, and a personal message from the Minister of Overseas Trade in England. Mr. Orchard's visit will be the third of the year to Virginia, where he is studying further possibilities of trade interchange.

E. Dunwoody, who has painted the portrait of Governor Byrd, is secretary of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce and recently made a report to British business on behalf of the visiting delegation which appraised as very high the possibilities of building up a substantial trade with the Middle West through Virginia.

Mr. Orchard has asked the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce to arrange the presentation of the portrait for him upon his arrival.

Cattle Showing is Good.

Richmond.—The small percentage of tuberculous cattle in Virginia, as compared with much wealthier states, was shown today by Dr. H. C. Givens, state veterinarian, from the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry.

These figures relate to the testing of cattle throughout the United States last month. It is shown that on 1,884 lots, and that only 65 were found to be infected with tuberculosis. In New York during the same period a total of 74,518 cattle were tested, and 5,775 were found to be tuberculous, while in Pennsylvania 3,843 out of 56,277 tested were found to be reactors. North Carolina had a very low percentage, with only ten reactors out of 8,191; Tennessee had three out of 2,506 and West Virginia 22 out of 6,321, while Maryland had the high figure of 1,207 reactors out of 13,707 tested.

Historic House Burns.

Fredericksburg.—The historic Chancellor house, located in the center of the battlefield at Chancellorsville where occurred probably the bitterest fighting of the war between the states, was destroyed by fire on November 24.

The clearing occupied by the house was raked by gun and artillery fire on May 2 and 3, 1863, and repair work where a Federal shell crashed through the west side was plainly visible. It was in this clearing that General Lee rallied his troops after the battle on May 4 and received the great ovation from his men.

The Chancellor house was the last standing structure at the one-time village of Chancellorsville, which stood in the heart of the battlegrounds where in May, 1863, Jackson executed his famous flank movement of Hooker's army, coming up from the rear, crushed the forces of the Union leader between two Confederate armies, only to suffer mortal wounds a few hours later when shot by his own men a half mile from the house that burned.

While standing on the porch of the Chancellorsville house observing the progress of the battle through field glasses, General Hooker was stunned by the explosion of a shell against a near-by pillar.

During the fire, shells collected about the battlefield, which sixty-three years ago were intended for human destruction exploded one after another and greatly impeded the work of those on the scene fighting the blaze. Many valuable relics of the war were destroyed in the fire, though some, with a considerable quantity of the furniture, were saved.

The old house was within the area recently designated as a national battlefield memorial park.

NO. I.

"We understand that one of our employees caught two 'polus kitties' and a 'Possum' on his way to church last Sunday morning. Fortunately, when he arrived at the church the services were over."

Lady—"Is Mr. Brownfield staying here?"

Hotel Clerk—"Yes, first floor, suite one."

Lady—"Sir!"

We know that the public has read so much stuff written by manufacturers claiming that they make the best automobiles, the best darning needles, the best axle grease, the best washing machines, etc., that they are tired of reading it. (Just the same, WE make the best flour, WHITE ROSE, plain and SELF-RISING.)

Hubby—I miss the old cuspidor since it's gone.

Wife—You missed it before—that's why it's gone.

A farmer's wife came to town in their Ford touring the other day to get a barrel of WHITE ROSE Flour. She said WHITE ROSE made better light bread than any flour she had ever used. Isn't that the proof of the pudding?

Son—Our garage man's got a better radio set than ours, Mama.

Mother—What makes you think that, dear?

Son—He said he knew he'd get hell when he went home tonight.

One of our friends was "batching" it last week and he decided to try his hand at making light rolls in order to surprise the Madam when she returned from a visit. Unknowingly, he used flour from a sack of BULL RUN Self-Rising instead of WHITE ROSE plain flour, and set his rolls to rise. On his return later in the evening, he opened the door and stepped into the kitchen. They had to get Mr. W. S. Athey's Horse and a block and fall to extract our friend from the dough.

(This was told to us). Moral: Always use WHITE ROSE plain flour for bread and rolls, and BULL RUN Self-Rising for biscuits, cakes and batter breads.

Save Your Sight

It is not just a matter of seeing plainly, but of seeing without unnecessary strain.

Don't put off having your eyes examined until some chance experience thrusts upon you the long neglected truth. Play safe with your health. Only an eyesight examination will prove whether or not your eyes are normal.

A thorough examination of the eyes made in this office, is a wise preventative measure, the value of which can hardly be measured in dollars and cents.

A STUDY IN ANCIENT HISTORY

(By Virginia Brockett, Occoquan District High School, 4th year, age Seventeen)

Many, many years ago in the little village of Sparta lived the lad Theon. The people of the village were small, stupid, sickly and uneducated.

One day Theon took a walk out towards the country. He thought he heard some one speak. Turning around he saw a large cow. At first Theon was frightened but the cow looked so gentle he stopped and listened to her. She said, "Little boy if you will take me home and milk me and drink my milk I will make you the strongest boy in Sparta."

"Indeed, will your milk do this?" inquired the boy.

"My milk," replied the cow, "contains protein which builds the tissues and makes muscle, fat which is a fuel food, sugar which gives energy and pep to the body and minerals which make the teeth and bones strong."

So Theon took the cow home.

After a few weeks of drinking milk Theon began to feel much better and more energetic. The people began to wonder at this and inquired of him the reasons for his sudden growth in health and strength. Upon his telling them of his recently acquired friend, the cow, many of them too determined to get cows. A large importation of these animals was made from northern Greece and each family bought one.

All the young boys began to dislike Theon because to them fell the duty of milking and staking out the cows. The mothers too claimed that it ruined their boys' dispositions and caused them to lose what religion they did have. Theon was very sad but he went to the boys and asked them their trouble.

"Oh we feel so tired all the time," they said, "and you're responsible for our having more work to do. It's a nuisance having to milk and care for these old cows."

"If you all will only drink the milk," replied Theon, "you won't mind milking because it will make you strong and more athletic. When our rivals come this year to the Olympic games we may be able to beat them."

The boys decided to make the best of a bad business, as they thought, and started drinking milk. Gradually their reward became apparent—strong muscles, rosy cheeks and vim and energy enough to run miles without stopping.

That year at the Olympic games they defeated their hated rival, Athens, and always after that bore home the laurel wreaths of victory.

This is why the Spartans, we study about in history, were so large and strong.

In Top Coats—

MAY WE INTRODUCE THE
"Bonnyknit"

OUR artist gives you some idea of the general appearance of this quietly swagger, three-button single-breasted coat with its easy, flowing lines.

But its undoubted style is only one of the reasons why "Bonnyknit" is one of the season's big favorites.

It is made of the famous "Bonnyknit"—a fabric with wearing qualities unusual even among knitted materials. In addition it is unobtrusively but effectively "Cravanetted" to make it shower proof. Its folding qualities enable "Bonnyknit" to shed wrinkles as easily as it sheds rain.

As a combination of style, durability and utility "Bonnyknit" is all one can ask.
