TOMATO ACREAGE RISES IN VIRGINIA

One Per Cent Increase Is Shown For Year In State Report.

The acreage in Virginia to be planted this year in tomatoes for canning purposes is estimated at 6,060 acres, or 1 per cent more than the acreage of last year, it was stated last week by Henry M. Taylor, Federal-State agricultural statistician. An increase of 5 per cent is predicted for the United States as a whole.

Reports of apple shipments for Virginia show that 43 cars were moved during the week ended April 20, as compared with 21 cars for the same week last year. Total shipments for the season amounted to 19,921 as compared with 8,399 carloads for the same part of last year. Shipments from Virginia were decreasing now, and during the week the State ranked fourth. The rank of second for total season shipments, however, is still being maintained.

Spinach shipments during the week amounted to 135 cars, as compared with 187 for the same week last year. Season shipments amounted to 2,579 cars against 2,352 for the same part of last season. BIRDS RELEASED HERE MADE RECORD FLIGHT

W. N. Merchant, Releases 150 Pigeons For Connecticut Homer Fancier.

A new record for a three hundred mile flight was established by a group of pigeons released here last Saturday by W. N. Merchant, for the Elm City Racing Pigeon Club, of Connecticut.

The birds were shipped here for release on May 11, and Mr. Merchant, caring for the pigeons up to that time, released them at 6 a. m. Word came to him this week that the time made by the birds to the first loft was 5 hours and 27 minutes for the 300 miles. This is ten minutes better than any record over the past twelve years.

1928 POULTRY PRODUCTION VALUED AT $30,540,000

(By CARTER W. WORMELEY) Richmond, May 15—The value of chickens and eggs produced on Virginia farms during 1928, was $30,540,000 according to estimates compiled by Henry M. Taylor, Statistician for the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture. There was a slight decline in poultry production last year due to unfavorable weather conditions and unsatisfactory prices, so the value of poultry products was slightly less than in 1927 when the value of chickens and eggs was estimated to be $31,319,000. These estimates do not include the value of turkeys, geese, ducks, etc., nor the production of poultry in towns and villages.

Fewer Chickens Raised.

The number of chickens raised in 1928 was estimated to be 18,402,000, compared with 21,152,000 in 1927. Cold, wet weather during the spring was one of the causes for the smaller number of chickens raised. Another cause was the fact that producers were somewhat discouraged over the prices received during 1927, and had determined to reduce their operations until prices improved. The value of chickens raised is estimated to be $15,458,000 against $17,133,000 in 1927.

The production of eggs was also less during 1928 than in the previous year, because there were fewer hens on farms, and also the average production of eggs per hen declined slightly. The price of eggs was higher than in 1927, therefore, the total value of eggs was slightly greater than in the previous year. The estimated value was $15,082,000, against $14,186,000 in 1927.

PAGEANT PROVES CHARMING SCENE

Students Show Vigorous Health and Careful Training In Health Matters.

Under blue skies and a bright sun, pupils from all of the schools of the county gathered here on Friday to participate in the Five Point Health pageant presented under the direction of departments of rural supervision and health education.

The schools of Prince William ranked second in the state in the number of five-point health children last year, and it is believed that this year's showing will keep the county schools well at the top. Health five-pointers taking part in the pageant numbered 1,150, while approximately a like number of spectators were present.

The program started with the crowning of the health queen, and was heralded by Miss Catherine B. Smith. The queen was Janet Russel and the prince, Richard Carter, while the maid of honor, train bearers, flower girls and pages all came from the Occoquan District High School.

There were many attractive drills and special numbers done by the various schools, notably "Homage of Nations" by the Haymarket School; Scotland, by Nokesville; Ireland, by Greenwich and Woodlawn; physical education demonstration by Haymarket and Bennett schools; Norway and Sweden by Aden, Brentsville and Brantow; physical education demonstration by Manassas High School; demonstration of 4-H Club work; Italy, by Quantico; France, by Dumfries.

Cherry Hill sang a health song; Spain was represented by Bethel and Occoquan; United States, Minnieville, Bennett, Thornton, Smithfield, Hayfield, Buckhall, Wellington and Catharpin schools, and singing by Gold Ridge, Bradley, Woodbine, Foresthill, Brentsville, Parrot, and Farmington; Maypole dance by Bennett school.

The following banners were awarded:

Five-Point State Banner, won by Fayman School, with 100 per cent Five Pointers. One-room health banner—Fayman, first; Gold Ridge, second, and Hayfield, third. Two-room health banner—Aden, first; Greenwich, second and Catharpin, third. Three rooms and above banner—Bennett School, first; Quantico; second and Nokesville, third.

Blue ribbon for best health record in county was won by Aden School.

ACCREDITED HIGH SCHOOLS GROW

State Had 414 Such Schools Last Year, An Increase of 11 Schools.

Richmond, Va., May 16—For the session of 1928-29 there are in operation in Virginia 414 accredited junior and senior high schools. This represents an increase of eleven schools over the previous year. Although the program of consolidating small high schools is being continued, the steady increase in enrollment necessitates additional schools.

This increase is encouraging, as it indicates a growing interest in education and a willingness on the part of pupils to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the standard high schools of the State. The comparative statement given below is taken from the annual high school report for the session of 1927-28 and shows the enrollment in junior and senior high schools for the two-year period, 1926-27 to 1927-28.

Enrollment	1926-27	1927-28
Four-year high schools, city	19,711	20,040
Four-year high schools, rural	31,295	33,520
Junior high schools, rural	8,121	9,266
Total	59,323	63,045

Under the regulations of the State Department of Education no high school will be placed on the accredited list until it has met the minimum requirements for at least one year. At present there are five white and four colored schools on the qualified list, which will receive full recognition next fall if they continue to maintain the required standards.

NEWS OF WEEK IN OLD VIRGINIA

Incinerator For Harrisonburg.

Harrisonburg, May 15—Harrisonburg is to have a modern incinerator to take care of its garbage problem and to eliminate the nuisance of the odors from the present Red Hill dump. The project will cost between $20,000 and $25,000.

A committee of the city council was instructed to proceed with plans for the incinerator after reporting that it had inspected the Lynchburg and Fredericksburg disposal plants and found them to be satisfactory.

Oyster Program Halted.

Newport News, May 14—Virginia's oyster repletion program for this year has come to a premature halt through lack of funds, it was learned here today at the office of the Virginia Commission of Fisheries.

The work of taking off the crust of oyster shell at Rock Landing Shoals just above Newport News was stopped this week. The commission had engaged several dredge boats to take up the oyster-bearing crust ahead of the government dredges, which are cutting the channel through the shoals in widening, deepening and straightening the James River channel between Newport News and Richmond.

Shortage of funds appeared before the program had gotten well under way, and it is estimated that the great bulk of available oysters and shells will be lost to the state through the operation of the mud dredges in cutting the channel.

Man's Skeleton Found.

Toano, May 15—The skeleton of a man has been found in a thicket on the old War Hill farm. The body had been placed between what had been corn rows years ago, and was barely covered with dirt; a foot and a part of skull being exposed.

Here, in the price range of the four, is offered a smooth, powerful, six-cylinder valve-in-head motor—which delivers better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—and whose smooth, quiet, velvety operation, with its complete lack of drumming and vibration, is a revelation—even to those who are accustomed to driving high-priced automobiles. Here are beautiful bodies by Fisher. Here, in all closed models, are fitments by Ternstedt... rich, deep-tufted upholstery... adjustable driver's seat... and a completely-equipped instrument panel. And throughout the entire chassis are found numerous examples of advanced engineering—such as quiet, non-locking 4-wheel brakes... ball bearing steering mechanism... automatic acceleration pump... and chromium plating on all bright metal.

But no mere recital of features can give you any conception of Chevrolet's value leadership. So we urge you to come in and see for yourself why over 500,000 people have chosen the new Chevrolet Six since January 1st!

COMPARE the delivered price as well as the list price in considering automobile values. Chevrolet's delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Occoquan High School base ball team met the Nokesville team on Thursday last and for the second time took the measure of the Nokesville boys.

The game was fast throughout with free hitting and many spectacular fielding plays. The work of Shepherd and Bryant in the field and of Reid in his tight pitching when necessary featured the game.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear baby, Estelle Marie Breeden, who left us so suddenly four weeks ago, April 19, 1929.

God gave us a precious treasure,
Three months He let her stay.
Then one morning we went to awaken her,
She was gently sleeping.
God had taken her away.
Estelle Marie, your little bed is empty.
Your little cry is stilled.
Your little place is vacant,
Which never can be filled.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who have lost can tell.
Of the grief that is borne in silence.
For the one I loved so well.

Yes, the blow was great,
And the shock severe.
For never did we think
That her end was so near.

Though I know she rests in peace,
Pain my heart can not release.
Flowing tears will never cease,
Until we again shall meet joyfully at Jesus feet.

And my darling I can greet.

MOTHER.

Dear little sister, how I miss you,
How I miss your little cry,
I shall meet you, dear sister,
Some day, above the sky.

SISTER RUTH.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving memory of my dear sister, Maggie C. Calvert, who ended this life four years ago today, May 17th, 1926.

When the one we loved was called away.

God took her home, it was His will.
But in my heart she liveth still.

We have parted, but not forever
There will be a glorious dawn.
We will meet to part, no never.
On that resurrection morn.

We often sit and think of her,
When I am all alone.
For memory is the only thing,
That grief can call its own.

Oft times we sit and wonder why,
The best is always first to die.
But we shall go to our Father's home
in the skies,
And our love no broken ties.
But the joys and hope of heaven for us.

Is my darling sister that died.
By her devoted sister,
MRS. N. S. PEARSON.

SECONDARY ROADS IMPOR-TANT.

Good roads pay dividends. They are a sign of progress and an aid to prosperity.

Industry is attracted to localities which can offer a high class, extensive road system. Agriculture is encouraged and farm values increase. Their importance in connecting distant communities, cannot be estimated.

Road building is a leading item in the tax budget. Coupled with education, it is probable that highways are today the most important aid to social progress.

We have, in the United States, a state-highway system unexcelled. From now on the most important job is to pave tens of thousands of miles of secondary or market roads. Oil and asphaltic materials which can be applied economically will do away with mud and dust.

This is essential to open up back country, relieve congestion on main highways and encourage the building up of small towns instead of draining all the business away from them to larger centers located on improved roads. Few counties in this state need good secondary roads and cross-country roads more than does Prince William. What are we doing toward getting them?

REVERSE THE PROCESS.

President Hoover recently declared that the solution of the problem of law enforcement was more vital to the preservation of American institutions than any other question. All crime, from murder to forgery, he said, had increased in the United States to the point where life and property were relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world. "We are not suffering from an ephemeral crime wave, but from a subsidence of our foundations," he said.

"A surprising number of our people, otherwise of responsibility in the community, have drifted into the extraordinary notion that laws are made for those who choose to obey them. And in addition, our law enforcement machinery is suffering from many infirmities arising out of its technicalities, its circumlocutions, its involved procedures, and too often, I regret, from inefficient and delinquent officials.

"What we are facing today is the possibility that respect for law is fading from the sensibilities of our people. Whatever the value of any law may be, the enforcement of that law written in plain terms upon our statute books is not, in my mind, a debatable question. Law should be observed and must be enforced until it is repealed by the proper processes of our democracy. The duty to enforce the law rests upon every public official and the duty to obey it rests upon every citizen."

President Hoover is right. The remedy is not in the passage of more legislation further restricting law-abiding citizens on the theory that this will curb the crook. Each new law passed makes more law-breakers and less enforcement.

We must reverse the process and have more enforcement and less legislation if we would reduce crime and create respect for law.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

In May, 1820, Florence Nightingale was born in northern Italy. She early became interested in hospital work and decided to become a nurse, although until then nursing was not recognized as an honorable profession, says the Washington Post. It was Florence Nightingale's privilege to elevate nursing and to establish it as a high and noble calling. She laid the foundation of modern, scientific nursing, and her labor among wounded soldiers during the Crimean war, the American Civil War and the Franco-Prussian war marked the birth of the Red Cross movement.

There is some uncertainty as to whether Florence Nightingale was born on the 12th or the 15th of May. The date should be established and marked with appropriate ceremony each year by every civilized nation. The whole world is a debtor to this heroic and saintlike woman.

FIGHTING FARM FIRES.

A bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows that the greatest farm fire risks are those presented by chimneys, the cellar, roofing, fireplaces, stairways and heating and lighting equipment.

This department, in cooperation with fire prevention organizations, has been working to eliminate farm fire hazards and minimize those hazards which are unavoidable.

Prevention is mainly up to the individual. Poor building construction is a menace. Fire-stopping in framework and fire-resistant floor construction are important.

Lack of adequate maintenance is another great danger. Buildings and equipment should be regularly inspected and any needed repairs should be made immediately.

The farm fire loss is high, partly because of lack of nearby fire-fighting organizations. But a little care by every farmer will do wonders in lowering the waste.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR MAY 19, 1929.

The International Sunday School Lesson for May 19 is "Jeremiah Calls To Obedience" — Jeremiah 7:1-26.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

This morning's newspaper tells of two addresses delivered last night by famous scientists, one an anthropologist and one an archaeologist. The former says that "man has been man about 350,000 years". The second says that the white race crossed over from Europe and settled the Nile Valley more than a million years ago. Thus two world-famous "authorities" differ by hundreds of thousands of years as to the age of man. And in hundred thousand years is a longer period of time than mortal mind can definitely envisage.

While chuckling over the vast discrepancies in these surmises of the scientists, and over the very human vanity not to say jealousy, of the one of them whose lecture I heard, I find myself drawing another and more important conclusion. What both men said is of purely academic interest. The newspaper which reported the utterances contained column after column of crime and of unsocial doings by the people of today. It singularly mirrored the problems which beset our present civilization. Yet neither of the scientists had a single word of counsel or of hope concerning human character and conduct. So far as serving their day and generation, they might have been as voiceless as the mummies and bone-fragments about which they talked.

Not Whence, But Whither.

All thinking people are more or less interested in archaeology and anthropology and the physical science and mechanical laws. But every one of us is tremendously and vitally concerned about the behavior of living men and women. The professor who recently called for a cessation of invention and research for a generation, to give mankind a chance to devote itself uninterruptedly to social and moral problems and progress, was prompted by a quite understandable motive.

This world does not just now need any more knowledge. It is in really desperate need, however, of more moral conviction and ethical passion and spiritual discernment. All of our scientific and material and political questions can afford to wait until the hearts of men and women are functioning better. At the present moment we could profitably exchange any scientist or inventor for one great spiritual prophet whose trumpet tones could command the attention of the race. What really bothers society is not whence we came, and how, but whither are we going?

An Old Voice For a New Time.

In a word, the heart of all of our problems is to be found in the Book which it is more the fashion to praise than to read. This present Lesson carries the voice of the Prophet Jeremiah, which has been sounding across the centuries, and his message is more pertinent and timely and important than anything found on today's editorial pages. For old Jeremiah was dealing with the greatest truth of all, which concerns the nature of the Infinite and Eternal God, and what He requires of mortal.

This is awesome. To know what is the first concern of God is basic wisdom; and the possibility of man's understanding such a profound truth is the most significant fact about the race. Centuries later than the events of our present Lesson, Jesus voiced its message in the sublime words, "This is life eternal, to know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent."

To know God—that is the oldest, newest, ceaseless quest of the ages. Beyond this there is no other wisdom. It is the highest attainment of immortal man. To it, as an end, all other employment of mind and heart is subsidiary. Upon their conception of God have rested all the philosophies and functions of men's activities. Right here this theme could be expanded into a book that would be the story of the race and of its highest efforts and highest blunders. But we are confined to Jeremiah's definition of the nature of God, which completely accords with all other inspired records of the character of the Highest. This voice, which rose clear above the intimidating clamor of voracious enemies, six centuries before the beginning of our era, is more truly and helpfully the voice for our own day than the utterances of the scientists who are reported in today's newspapers.

Heaven's Greatest Concern For Earth.

Social problems, not greatly unlike our own, characterized Jeremiah's time. The political aspect of his day we dealt with last week. He knew more about the larger issues that confronted Jerusalem and Judah than did any of the officials; yet the prophet was more concerned with the matter of human relations. He thought in terms of men and women and their relationship to God. The fact that men cheated and robbed and oppressed and murdered one another, and that they were liars and perjurers and adulterers and idolaters, was what really mattered in the sight of heaven. Righteousness means more to God than ritual; justice is dearer to him than worship.

These old Jews thought that the holy city and its temple simply could not be destroyed. They trusted to its invulnerability in the face of all threats; quite as the Greeks of Constantinople took refuge by the thousands in the Church of St. Sophia, when the Moslems captured the city in 1453. So long as they were ceremonially orthodox, reasoned these Jews, their private lives did not matter. And that is the oldest, newest, and worst of all religious heresies.

At the Door of the Church.

Ceremonials do not save. Ritual does not redeem. Creed counts for less than conduct and character. Jehovah the just cannot be blinded by incense or deafened by insincere prayers. At the very gates of the temple itself—within sound of its trumpets and in sight of its sacrifices—Jeremiah was bidden to cry this ringing summons to real religion:

"If ye thoroughly amend your ways and your doings; if ye thoroughly execute judgment between a man and his neighbor; if ye oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, neither walk after gods to your hurt; then will I cause you to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers, for ever and ever."

This sounds like the voice of Samuel of old, pronouncing the doom of King Saul, who held to obey is better than sacrifice. There is no religious devotion possible apart from righteous living. The gentle voice of Jesus took on tones of thunder as he condemned the hypocrisy of the Pharisees, who trusted to their churchliness to save them.

What Jeremiah said so long ago is still the truth to be taught in every church. We are having dogmatic controversy, and social programmes and ethical discussions dinned into our time. What we need to save our imperiled civilization is not more belabored theorizing from college professors, but from the pulpit itself the "Thus saith the Lord" concerning those questions of personal conduct which are as acute a problem today as they were in Jerusalem in the year 600 B. C. Torch-bearers of truth, like unto Jeremiah, alone can lead us out of the prevailing fog and darkness.

GRANGE TAKING
PERMANENT ROOTGreat Falls Grange at Forestville
Dedicates New Hall.L. J. TABOR, NATIONAL MASTER, OFFICIATES

Rolfe Robertson, of Haymarket, Secretary of State Grange, Among Honor Guests.

Evidence that the Grange is taking permanent root in Virginia is furnished by the recent dedication of the hall of Great Falls Grange located at Forestville, in Fairfax County.

The occasion brought together many visiting members of the organization from Fairfax and surrounding counties. Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York were also represented among the visitors. L. J. Tabor, of Columbus, Ohio, Master of the National Grange, was present by invitation and dedicated the hall.

Among the other honored guests were Sherman J. Lowell, past master of the National Grange, and now a member of the United States Tariff Commission; J. R. Horsley, master of the Virginia State Grange; John C. Ketcham, of Michigan, past lecturer of the National Grange, and a member of Congress, together with R. Wallon Moore, who represents this District in Congress, and Rolfe Robertson, of Haymarket, secretary of the Virginia State Grange.

Major William M. King, who enjoys the distinction of being probably the oldest active Grange member in the United States, and who was closely associated with the founders of the Grange 40 years ago, was present and made a short and appropriate address. He is 97 years of age.

Hall Well Constructed.

The hall, which is of brick, is very substantially constructed. It is 60 feet long and 36 feet wide. The auditorium is on the main floor. In the front of the hall there is a spacious stage with dressing rooms in the wings. In the rear of the auditorium is a large gallery. The floors are all hardwood. That there were some progressive women on the building committee is attested by the fact that the dining room and kitchen equipment located in the basement are modern and convenient. There are adequate cloakroom facilities and automatic water and sewerage systems have been installed. The building is lighted by electricity furnished by a Delco plant.

Grange Brings Improvements.

The first move of the Grange was to purchase an eight-acre track of land upon which the hall is located. The price of the land, which is well timbered, and which contains a beautiful grove, was $1,500. The building itself cost approximately $10,000. Nearly $4,000 of this sum was raised by selling stock, the value of which is $10 per share. The Agricultural College at Blacksburg has agreed to furnish plans for adorning the grounds.

Great Falls Grange was organized nine years ago, and now has 120 members. It has been responsible for many community improvements, including a splendid modern school building, improved highways, and most important of all the development of a fine community spirit. The first Master of the Grange was Mark Turner, who is now the chairman of the Executive Committee of the Virginia State Grange.

VIRGINIA FRUIT
PROSPECTS GOODLittle Frost Damage Has Been Reported Except In Southwest
Where It Was Heavy.

Richmond, May 15.—Virginia fruit prospects on May 1st appeared very good, according to reports received by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service. The season was earlier than usual so there was great danger of frost damage, as peaches were generally in bloom the latter part of March and apples were in bloom from April 6th to 15th. Fortunately very little frost damage has been reported, except in the Southwest where there was considerable damage to all fruits the nights of April 19th and 23rd, but the cool weather during the latter part of April was generally unfavorable for fruit.

Apple prospects are very good in the Shenandoah Valley. The York Imperial, the most important variety, had a comparatively light crop last year, so appears to have set a heavy crop this season. Many growers in this section state that they expect the largest crop they have ever had. In the Piedmont district the winesap is the most important variety, but this seems to have set only a fair crop. Some growers state that weather conditions were unfavorable when this variety was in bloom and others think that the heavy crop of last year was the cause of the light set this season. The prospect for Pippins, which is an important variety in this section, is especially good. In the Roanoke district the outlook for apples is quite favorable although wine saps are not as good as other varieties.

The peach crop now promises to be one of the largest ever grown in the State. In the important commercial districts most orchards have a full crop.

Campbell, chairman, home economics, University of Missouri, and Miss Florence La Gank, home economics editor, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Miss Dold's story was on the subject, "The Nutritive Value of Meat". Miss Turman wrote on "The Tiny Pig from the Cradle to the Smithfield Ham". Other subjects ranged from meat production to cooking methods.

IN CHANCERY.

An affidavit having been made, as required by law, that Middleton S. Ennis, Virginia Ennis Hofmann and Otto R. Your MODEL T FORD is still a good car

THE Model T Ford led the motor industry for twenty years because of its sturdy worth, reliability and economy. Those same reasons continue to make it a good car.

As a matter of fact, nearly one-fourth of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords. Millions of them can be driven two, three and even five more years with reasonable care and proper replacements. Figures show that the average life is seven years.

Don't sacrifice your Model T, therefore, but take it to the Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of putting it in A1 shape. A very small expenditure may be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. This price includes new bearings, reboring cylinders and any other work necessary. Parts are extra.

Valves can be ground and carbon removed for $3 to $4. The cost of tightening all main bearings is only $6. The labor charge for overhauling the front axle is $4.50 to $5—rear axle assembly, $5.75 to $7.

New universal joint will be installed for a labor charge of $3. Brake shoes refined for $1.50. Rear spring and perches rebushed for $1.75. The cost of overhauling the starting motor is $3. A labor charge of approximately $2.50 covers the overhauling of the generator.

It will pay you, therefore, to see your Ford dealer and have him put your Model T in good running order. By doing so you will protect and maintain the investment you have in your car and get months and years of reliable transportation at a very low cost per mile.

CANNING AND DRYING FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The slogan, "Self what you can, can what you can," is not only a catchy cry for the commercial grower, but is an economical rule that may well be adopted by the housewife and followed in both the rural and urban home.

The increased cost of foodstuffs since the World War has made necessary many plans of conservation in efforts to keep the home food bill reduced to a level with the home income. To accomplish this does not require the sacrifice of either quality or quantity on the family menu. In fact modern methods have made possible the utilization of cheap, but first-class foods in a manner that will furnish the equivalent of freshly grown vegetables and fruits for family use throughout the entire fall, winter and spring seasons.

A considerable portion of the food crops produced in the United States each year is either sold at an unprofitable price because of an over-supplied market or permitted to decay without using. Many areas have no accessible markets. Other growers, like backyard gardeners, are often not equipped for marketing their produce.

For profitable usage of these cheap food crops, canning and drying offer an excellent method for supplying the family with succulent food to take the place of winter purchases at higher prices.

Drying is an important and available means of preventing loss of many perishable foods. The process causes little depreciation in the food values of the fruits and vegetables preserved by this method. It is especially adaptable for apples, pears, peaches and cherries among the fruits. Pumpkins, squash, sweet corn, beans and peas among the vegetables permit drying with fine results.

There are several equipments used for this purpose. But whatever the method, it is essential that the flavor and quality of the food be retained and the moisture content removed sufficiently to insure proper keeping conditions of the article. While the use of the sunshine is widely known for this purpose, yet the process has the defects of access to insects while the food is drying, and irregular source of heat due to cloudy weather and other interfering influences. The most reliable method is the use of artificial heat with a cookstove drier. There are several of these available in the markets, or they may be constructed at home.

The principal requirement in drying of foods, no matter what method is used, is to remove the moisture content from the fruit or vegetable as quickly as possible without injury to the food values of the article.

Canning offers a wider variety of means for preserving both fruits and vegetables and also requires less equipment in the ordinary kitchen. Recent years have brought into use several processes of canning vegetables that had previously been considered unfit for canning. State extension workers have carried into the homes new ideas and new methods of preserving foods.

As in blanching fruit by the sulphuric method or the hot water dip to obtain a lighter color in the finished product, so is it essential in canning to use the method to insure not only the most palatable product possible, but the brightest and most natural appearing fruit when placed on the table from the jar. The art of accomplishing this is the work of the canner.

A study of the methods employed in the large commercial canning factories will reveal that superior products result from use of good grade fruits and vegetables, proper ripeness, cleanliness in handling, little loss of time between harvest and canning. Utilization of fruit in making butters provides an excellent means of using not only first grade fruit, but also grades that would be unfit for marketing. In making butters, less equipment is needed than in drying. Because of concentrated form of this product, less containers and room are required. And we who retain memories of the apple, peach and plum butters and tarts of youth, need no urge to testify to the gastronomic treats that await the opening of a jar or luscious butter when the snow has brought a limit to the fruit larder.

There is no better way of using good apples than this. Even windfalls, wormy and bruised apples may be used for this purpose, always using care to remove the damage portions. While many kinds of apples are suitable those having a distinctly rich tart flavor are preferred. Sometimes sweet apples are used with tart apples, the usual proportion being one-third of the former to two-thirds of the latter.

Pears and peaches are equally as suitable for butter making. Plums, too, are excellent. There are several mixtures of these fruits that provide tasty results.

Not only those who grow fruit and vegetables have access to these means of increasing the family food supply but city and small town dwellers usually can buy surplus supplies during the height of the marketing season and turn this opportunity into an effective channel of home living costs reduction.

Have you contributed to the storm relief fund? Do it now.

Manassas High School Students Give Creditable Performance. Miss Weir Directs.

Perhaps the best entertainment of all time, given by students of the Manassas High School, was the program arranged and directed by Miss Catherine Weir, of the school faculty, and presented last week.

The smoothness with which the program was run off, the tuneful work of the choruses and the ease with which each performer carried on, reflected the thorough and able direction of the director.

The program was in two parts with the dance of the paper dolls, by "The Krazy Kat Twins" and Chorus, leading off. A dialogue between two patients in a sick room entitled "A Code in the Doze" was a bright bit and was followed by an ensemble chorus. Mrs. Compton was the accompanist and the members of the chorus were: The Misses Bradford, Moser, Compton, Bevans, Trusler, Bushong, Gibson, Lewis, Thomasson, Lloyd, Lynn and Miller.

The Nifty Shop.

The second part of the program consisted of a one-act operetta, by Otis M. Carrington, and was directed by Miss Catherine Weir. The scene was an exclusive shop for women. In this the acting was impressive, the solo numbers excellent and the chorus work delightful.

Those of the cast were: Eloise Compton, Rena Bevans, Hilda Moser, Ester Warren Pattie, Rose Ratcliffe, Walsler Corner and Claudia Pattie, while the chorus of models was composed of the Misses Bradford, Trusler, Gibson, Bushong, Thomasson, Lewis, Lloyd, Lynn, Miller, Hottle, Rollins, Fately, Hatcher, Buckley, Luck and Deane. Furnishings were by Newman & Trusler, Hynson & Company and Hynson & Bradford.
