RELIEF FUND FAR SHORT OF GOAL SET

People of County Slow To Respond To Red Cross County Chapter Appeal.

Immediately after the devastating storm which wrought such damage to the people of Nokesville, on May 2, a survey was made by Mrs. W. L. Lloyd, president of Prince William Chapter, American Red Cross and her aids, and steps were taken at once to give very assistance possible. A few days later a survey was made again in which representative of the national Red Cross participated. As a result of this investigation it was decided that a call on the people of the county for $3,000 should be made, and this was done promptly by the county chapter president.

It is unbelievable that the funds received by the treasurer of the relief committee are the total of the contributions which the good people of this county are going to give in behalf of temporary relief for our stricken friends and neighbors.

Forward Funds At Once.

If those receiving funds in the various towns are withholding their pending further collections, you are urged not to wait, but forward the amounts which you have to G. R. Ratcliffe, relief fund treasurer, care of the Peoples National Bank, Manassas. Money is needed right now.

Do not hold back because you do not feel able to make a large contribution, if half the people in the county would send in $1 right now, ample funds would be in hand with which to continue relief work. Our neighbors need assistance right now. Get busy!

INTEREST RISES IN TOWN ELECTION

Rumors of Opposition To Present Ticket Are Current. Independents To Run.

With the town election but two weeks off, the ballots already in the hands of the electoral board, interest appears to be growing in the result of the election on June 11.

It will be recalled that the present members of the council filed their certificates with the County clerk for certification on the last day in which candidates for the council could do so. Despite the frequent talk in various directions that the names of other candidates would be put forward it developed that none had qualified to have their names placed upon the ballot.

Rumors are current that a group of citizens will place the names of three prominent citizens before the people of the town and ask that their names be written in the ballots on election day, and names now thereon be scratched, but no concerted action appears to have been taken by the group in question thus far.

There should be many interesting developments between now and June 11, according to town gossip, and it is believed that a last minute fight will be waged against several of the present incumbents of councilmanic office.

JOHN R. SAUNDERS RENDERS OPINION

Democrats Who Voted For Hoover Qualified For August Primary Election.

In view of the confusion among many people in Prince William County as to the party status of those Democrats who did not support the Democratic nominee for president in the 1928 election, but who voted for Mr. Hoover, the opinion of John R. Saunders, Attorney General of Virginia, is printed herewith.

In order that the question might be settled the State Democratic Executive Committee, wrote to Mr. Saunders, asking for an official opinion.

The Attorney General's reply and ruling seems to settle any doubt that may have arisen and the right of Democrats who voted against presidential electors in 1928, if otherwise qualified, to vote in the August primary seems clear.

Mr. Saunders' opinion follows:

"The resolution states that there is a question in the minds of some people as to the party status of those Democrats in Virginia who did not support the Democratic nominee for president in the 1928 general election, but who voted for Mr. Hoover. I construe the words 'party status' to mean as to what will be the standing of such Democrats in the coming August Primary, namely, whether or not they will be permitted to participate therein.

"I have carefully examined chapter 15 of the Code of Virginia, entitled, 'Primary Elections'. I do not deem it necessary for the purposes of this opinion to quote many of the sections contained in this chapter, but will only quote such portions of those sections which bear directly upon the question at issue.

"The first sentence contained in section 222 reads as follows:

"This chapter shall apply to the nomination of candidates for such offices as shall be nominated by a direct primary and to no other nominations." The first sentence in section 226 is as follows:

"This chapter shall not apply to the nominations of presidential electors; nor to the nominations of candidates to fill vacancies, unless the candidates for nomination to fill vacancies are to be voted for on the date set by this chapter for regular primaries."

"After a careful reading of those portions of sections 222 and 226 above quoted, and other provisions contained in the primary law, I am of the opinion that the right of a Democrat to participate in the August, 1929, primary is not to be tested by the vote of such person for presidential electors in the 1928 presidential election, and Democrats who voted against the Democratic electors in the 1928 election, if otherwise qualified, are entitled to vote in the August 1929 primary election."

GEORGE T. LYON DIES SUDDENLY

Had Been Resident of Manassas For Past Sixteen Years.

George T. Lyon, a prominent resident of Manassas for the past 16 years, died on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of his son, J. P. Lyon, where he had been living for many years.

Mr. Lyon, who was an interior decorator and mural painter, had not been active in his vocation for several years due to a heart malady which required him to take things quietly. He did, however, continue his work as an artist, and many charming paintings came from his brush from time to time.

Mr. Lyon was born in Nova Scotia, 71 years ago, and moved to the United States when 22 years old, becoming a citizen of the country in which he lived up to the time of his death.

Funeral rites will be held at the residence of his son, J. P. Lyon, today, Thursday, at 2 p. m., with Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, officiating. The local lodge of Masons will conduct the burial service, Mr. Lyon having been a Master Mason for 52 years.

FIRE EQUIPMENT PURCHASE LOOMS

Council Appoints Committee To Work With Local Fire Department.

TYPE OF EQUIPMENT TO BE SELECTED TONIGHT

Manufacturers' Representatives Will Attend Special Called Meeting.

Developments at the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night indicated that Manassas is soon to be equipped with the very latest improved fire apparatus for use of the town's long-suffering volunteer department.

The matter has been under discussion for several weeks, and Mayor Davis appointed a councilmanic committee to confer with a committee of the fire department on the type of apparatus required for the needs of the town. This committee has been working diligently in a survey of equipment in other towns and many cities and towns in the state have been visited by the fire company committee, together with Town Manager W. F. Cocke. A number of companies have submitted bids on apparatus called for in specifications drawn up by the joint committee, and the cost of this equipment is now in the hands of all parties interested.

Citizens Petition For Tax.

On Monday night, Albert Speiden, chief of the local department, presented a petition to the council signed by 188 taxpayers of Manassas, asking for a 10 cent tax levy for use in purchasing modern fire fighting equipment.

Mayor Davis expressed the sympathy of the council toward proper fire protection for the town, and appointed a committee to confer with members of the fire department on kind of equipment wanted; ways and means of purchasing and terms under which equipment might be bought. The council committee named consists of D. J. Arrington, James E. Bradford, and W. F. Cocke, town manager; committee from fire department has for its membership, Chief Speiden, assistant chief, Jesse Crosby, R. Bruce Hynson, M. M. Ellis, and Thomas Howard.

A meeting of this committee will be held tonight at which representatives of various manufacturers of fire equipment will discuss apparatus and terms of purchase after which the council will be again asked to take a definite step toward purchase of the protection so sorely needed in this community.

Committee Will Meet On Wednesday To Formulate Plans For Summer.

Mrs. T. J. Broadus has been appointed chairman of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund, for this county. Several families in this vicinity cared for children sent to them from New York last summer so that this movement is not new to the community.

A meeting of Mrs. Broadus' committee has been called for Wednesday, June 5, at 2 p. m., at which time preliminary plans will be worked out for handling the details of getting homes for tenement children. The ministers of the town are also asked to attend. The meeting will be held in the directors room of the National Bank of Manassas.

JAMES H. CORBITT BACKS POLLARD

Former President State Bar Association Thinks Pollard Make Best Governor.

Suffolk, May 29—James H. Corbitt, former President Virginia Bar Association, and one of the leading Democrats in Eastern Virginia has announced his support of John Garland Pollard for Governor. Mr. Corbitt's statement follows:

"I shall support Mr. John Garland Pollard for the Democratic nomination, because I think that, of the three candidates, he would make the best Governor. His high character is universally admitted. He was a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of 1902. His annotated Code of Virginia was for many years used by all judge and lawyers in the State, and this monumental work attests his familiarity with the Constitution and statutes of this State and the decisions of the courts with respect thereto. He was an able Attorney General. His outstanding legal ability and good judgment was conspicuously recognized when he was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission, a body dealing with many kinds of business problems and disputes. He is not only a profound student of the theory of government, but is also well qualified, by reason of his varied experience and practical common sense, to apply good business judgment to the affairs of State."

"His claim that the short ballot has no place as an issue in this campaign I fully endorse. Whoever is elected Governor MUST, under the Constitution, in 1930 appoint the Treasurer, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Commissioner of Agriculture, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly. After that the people acting through their representatives in the Legislature may determine the method of choosing these

Every play is mounted with special scenery and electrical effects. Those who visit the big tent theater will witness a show that is created for laughing purposes only, being a distinctive and different type of entertainment than anything that has appeared in Manassas in past seasons.

TEMPLE SCHOOL HAS DELIGHTFUL RECITAL

Playing of Mr. Kaspar and Dancing of Little Tots Features Program.

The recital of the Temple School, given by pupils of Miss Hurst and Mr. Kaspar, in the Manassas High School auditorium on May 18, was one of the most delightful affairs of its kind ever given by the school. The little tots who did solo and ensemble dancing not only afforded keen enjoyment for the audience, but seemed to amuse the participants as well.

Contributions to the program by grown-ups were especially well received; those contributing being Mrs. Stewart Pattie, who sang "As We Part," and "The Star"; Mr. Kaspar, violin numbers; Miss Hurst, readings, while the school orchestra played several good numbers.

The program was as follows:

Selections by School Orchestra: The French Doll (solo dance), Rachael Meetze; Long Ago (violin), Martin Hiden; The Tin Soldier (solo dance), Poscelyn Gillum; The Old Oaken Bucket (violin), Richard Heck; Toe Dance (trio), Dolly Hiden, Mary Mason Davis, Carolyn Robertson; Duet Dance, Althea Hoot, Joselyn Gillum; Selection by School Orchestra; Ballet Dance, Baby Class; To A Wild Rose (solo dance), Mary Lynch; Clown Dance (solo), Ruth Lyon; Althea Hoot; Violin Solo (selected), Mr. Kaspar; Skating Dance, Baby Class; Highland Fling, Mary Lynch; "As We Part", "The Star", solos, Mrs. Pattie; Acrobatic Stunts, Baby Class; Pursuit (dance), Celeste Bouldin; Toe Dance, Ellen Bisson; Reading (selected), Miss Hurst; Irish Lift (duet dance), Ellen Bisson; Celeste Bouldin; Selection by School Orchestra; Acrobatic Dance, Ellen Bisson; Melody (dance), Celeste Bouldin; Violin Solo (selected), Mr. Kaspar; Russian Dance (duet), Miss Bouldin and Miss Bisson.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVES.

Berries.

Berries should be gathered in shallow trays or baskets and not in deep vessels which allow them to be bruised and crushed. They should be uniform, ripe and sound. Select only large, firm berries for preserving and canning, those for jam may contain the smaller and broken ones. All berries should be carefully sorted and lightly washed by placing in a colander and pouring water over them rather than putting them into a pan of water.

Strawberry Preserves.

One pound sugar; one pound of fruit. (If you will use 1½ pounds of sugar to one pound of fruit, you will get a brighter, richer product).

Put the sugar and fruit on back of stove, let stand until sugar is dissolved. Bring to front of stove and cook to 221 degrees. Remove from stove, put berries in shallow dish or pan, pour syrup over berries, let stand until thoroughly cold, pack in jars and process 20 to 30 minutes at simmering.

The same recipe may be used for blackberries, raspberries and cherries.

Jam.

The over ripe or crushed berries may be used in jam. To each pound of fruit add ¾ pound of sugar. Stir constantly and cook to 220 degrees. Pack in jars and process 20 to 30 minutes at simmering.

LOUDOUN CHAPTER U. D. C. UNVEILS MARKER

Representative Moore Makes Principal Address At Ball's Bluff Ceremony.

Leesburg, Va., May 28—Congressman R. Walton Moore was the principal speaker at the unveiling of the marker in the Ball's Bluff battlefield under the auspices of Loudoun Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. The marker is placed at the intersection of the Ball's Bluff Road and the State highway, about two miles north of Leesburg. A luncheon for the Confederate veterans and invited guests was held at the high school auditorium at noon.

Mr. Moore spoke of the important effect of the course of the Civil War of the Battle of Ball's Bluff. He said in part: "One who reads the official reports of the battle, and explores the mass of literature which has grown up about it and delves into the controversy which followed is impressed by the powerful bearing which it had upon the military plans and public opinion of the North." He quoted the French historian of the war as saying: "The check of Ball's Bluff cut short all of the projects for the campaign which the organization of the army, the season, and the condition of the ground, seemed to impose on General McClellan. That incident satisfied his mind of the false estimate he had formed of the strength of his adversary. He did not dare to put his army in motion, and thus lost the best opportunity he had ever had of beginning a successful and decisive campaign."

If you listen to all that is said as you go;
You may get through the world but 'twill be very slow.

You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stem.

For meddlesome tongues must have something to do—

For people will talk.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed;

That your humble position is only assumed.

You're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else you're a fool.

But don't get excited—keep perfectly cool—

For people will talk.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,

Or a slight inclination to take your own part,

They will call you an upstart, conceited, and vain.

But keep straight ahead—don't stop to explain—

For people will talk.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

The League of Industrial Democracy, whose avowed objective is "education for a new social order based on production for use and not for profit," is conducting a campaign to obtain 1,000 new members at $3.00 each a year.

The league has, as one of its directors, Norman Thomas, the most celebrated American academic socialist and a candidate for President in the last election. The organization is opposed to the capitalistic economic system and strongly favors a paternalistic government and government ownership of basic industries.

So far so good. But when the league, as it states, "reaches 100 colleges or so every year with speakers and literature on labor, imperialism and socialism," it is doing exactly what critics of the power industry objected to.

The league's invitation to prospective new members goes on to say that "professors and college presidents are welcoming us more heartily every year." A strange parallel this — when a few colleges welcomed speakers representing a basic industry owned by millions of American citizens, a federal investigation was instigated.

The reasoning of those who would destroy fundamental principles of our government, which for 150 years has encouraged private initiative and enterprise, is hard to understand. Are they to be considered better citizens than those who strive to uphold traditions upon which this nation was founded?

There is no reason why the league or any other organization of its kind, should not "reach" as many colleges as it can and get members willing to pay dues toward furthering its work. But certainly, legitimate business is entitled to the same right. Free discussion is the touch-stone of progress.

Muzzling or attempting to muzzle the utilities or any other industry or individual, is indeed a strange proceeding in this land of the free.

VIRGINIA'S SPLENDID PROGRESS.

A notable review of Virginia's affairs was given this week by Governor Byrd of that State at a luncheon in his honor given by the National Institute of Public Administration in New York.

Governor Byrd has good reason to be proud of the achievements of his State. He noted the fact that since the close of the Civil War the wealth of Virginia has increased fourteen-fold, which is almost twice the increase for some prominent Northern States. Since 1900 the output of Virginia's factories has risen in value from $100,000,000 to approximately $1,000,000,000 and is increasing at the rate of $100,000,000 per year. The State is rapidly taking a strong place in industry and at the same time holding its position in agriculture.

The achievements of Virginia in recent years have not all been of an industrial nature however. Virginia has been particularly fortunate in having a governor who realizes that development of the machinery of the State must keep pace with commercial enterprise. Governor Byrd's address could not have been complete without reference to the reorganization of the State government which has taken place under his direction.

With the aid of the National Institute of Public Administration he has succeeded in modernizing the State government in many respects. More than 30 bureaus, boards and commissions have been abolished and all the executive functions have been delegated to 12 departments. Funds which formerly flowed through the hands of 48 different agencies are now collected and disbursed by a State treasurer. Under the new system the governor turned a deficit of $1,368,000 into a surplus of $2,596,000 within two years. At the end of the first year he was able to announce a specific saving of $800,000, and the increased efficiency of the systematized departments may result in still greater economy. Modernization of the tax system has brought an increase of $2,000,000 in revenue without any change in the tax rates.

Governor Byrd is also known for his championship of the "short ballot" and of legislation limited to the actual needs of the State. He advocates a special legislative session at which attention would be given exclusively to the repeal of useless and obsolete laws. Other States which are seeking the straight and narrow path to economy and efficiency should find Governor Byrd's version of progressive Statehood interesting reading.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR JUNE 2, 1929.

The International Sunday School Lesson for May 26 is, "God's Law in the Heart"—Jeremiah 31:29-34; John 1:17.

The International Sunday School Lesson for June 2 is "Later Experiences of Jeremiah"—Jeremiah 38:4-13.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

Trouble is as old as time. Every son of Adam has had his trials; and each has cried, in his own soul, "Never was sorrow like unto my sorrow." Whereas, troubles have all been, throughout the ages, of a few well classified varieties. There is nothing new about trouble. At least we should be able to take this comfort to our beset hearts, that we are sharing the common experience of the race. This Lesson upon old Jeremiah's woes is a reminder to cultivate a sense of perspective in adversity.

In this universal experience of trouble, the one great difference is the way it is met. Long ago it was said that trouble is a chariot, in which one may ride or by which one may be overridden; and everybody is free to make his own choice. Jeremiah chose to ride; and as a result his triumphant spirit still inspires the world, and his name outshines those of the petty kings and local rich men who caused him grief. In the long run, his defeats became victories; and the Bible makes clear that troubles may be judged only in the larger. "All chastening seemeth for the present to be not joyous but grievous; yet afterward it yieldeth peaceable fruit unto them that have been exercised thereby, even the fruit of righteousness."

Penalties of Plain Speaking.

Public men, such as preachers, politicians, professors and editors, who say only acceptable things may save themselves many a hard knock, but at the price of shriveling their souls. Popularity seekers also generally lose the very mess of pottage for which they have sold their birthright. And that trouble is one for which there is scant comfort. No trimming, truckling, applause-seeking publicist can hold public favor for long. That observation could be illustrated by a long list of names; but each reader may supply his own.

Jeremiah's troubles came from speaking the truth for his times. Throughout a long period of national and international and social disorder, he continued to utter fearlessly, and even tactlessly, the changeless truth of the eternal integrities. Thereby he affronted the mighty, and got into endless difficulties; nevertheless, nothing that happened to him personally could alter his message. His soul was not for sale. A lonely, misunderstood and physically afflicted man, his spirit never wavered; nor could he be either cowed or bribed. God had given him a clear word to speak, and speak it he did, in scorn of consequences. Jeremiah fits Lowell's familiar picture:

"He stood upon the world's broad threshold; wide

The din of battle and of slaughter rose;

He saw God stand upon the weaker side,

That sank in seeming loss before its foes;

Many there were who made great haste and sold

Unto the cunning enemy their swords,

He scorned their gifts of fame, and power, and gold,

And underneath their soft and flowery words,

Heard the cold serpent hiss; therefore he went

And humbly joined him to the weaker part.

Fanatic named, and fool, yet well content

So he could be the nearer to God's heart,

And feel its solemn pulses sending blood

Through all the widespread veins of endless good."

A Sure Standard of Success.

We shall miss the point of this Jeremiah Lesson unless we get a clear understanding of its relation to the old and ever-new problem of personal success. Any man who consistently and disinterestedly lives for and by the tested standards of honor and service and righteousness is a success. A torrent of buncombe is pouring forth from presses and platforms to the effect that only ability to make money is the one, proof of success. Men who have made money themselves know better. A few days ago the American Chamber of Commerce held its annual banquet in Washington, with some thirteen hundred guests present. At the table of honor were seated the foremost figures in the nation's industries, and these were introduced one by one. The two men who were given a real ovation were George Eastman, of Rochester, and Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, both of them great idealists, philanthropists and public servants.

One Jeremiah was worth to Judah, and to the world, a dozen kings, and all the rich men his hand ever produced. Let the reader amplify for himself the proposition that all society is built upon its truth-tellers; its moral leaders, its prophets of the Most High. Recently several hundred leaders of Philadelphia's business life met to consider how to promote the city's progress. There were speeches about better harbors and transportation and publicity projects; but not a word about the scandal of political corruption which must be cleaned out before the city can acquire a new reputation and a new life. A revival of righteousness in Philadelphia would do more for the city than all the expensive promotion schemes ever devised. A few spiritual seers—even one Prophet Jeremiah—would be a greater asset to old Philadelphia than a dozen Chambers of Commerce. "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

A Negro To the Rescue.

All sorts of dire adventures had befallen the outspoken Prophet Jeremiah. He had been ostracised and cast out; pilloried in stocks and thrown into prison and sentenced to death. No downy time does the real prophet have. At length, stung by his rebukes and by his unpopular preachments, the princes besought the king to do away with Jeremiah. And the weak-willed king assented. (That slack-backed king, by the way, was later carried in chains to Babylon, his eyes having been put out.) So Jeremiah was thrust into a filthy, unlighted, unventilated, waterless dungeon, below the lower tier of prison cells; such a hole of horror as may be found only in the Orient. The victim was likely to perish from suffocation before death from hunger could release him.

At this point in the story there enters a negro, an Ethiopian named Ebed-melech, a palace servant, a eunuch. He wasn't much of a man, by prevailing standards, but he had a heart of compassion, and the courage to speak out for justice and mercy. He appealed to the king, and got permission to extricate Jeremiah. Letting down a rope, and old rags to ease the chafing upon the emaciated body of the prisoner by putting them under his arm-pits, he called help and hauled the stern old prophet up to sunlight and life.

And that may be said to be characteristic of the Negro, the helper. We remember that it was a black man who bore the Saviour's cross. Friends, belonging to slave-holding families in the South have told me that never once, during the dark days of the Civil War, when the masters were absent in the army, did a negro slave betray his trust. In our discussion of the race question, let us remember the loyal and kind-hearted negroes who have been the helpers of men; and who have been instinctively on the side of right and of God.

Jeremiah was freed, and undaunted. He kept on speaking God's message until his direct predictions were fulfilled. Now the nation which once scorned him honors him as among its greatest.

Press Comment*White Clothes The Thing.

Des Moines Tribune-Capital.—The General Electric Co., which may be suspected of having a little interest in the matter, but which is perfectly frank about that part of it, has conducted a series of tests to find out what chance a pedestrian has of being seen by the driver of an approaching automobile in an unlighted street and also in a lighted one.

On an unlighted street a man dressed in dark clothes was barely visible 100 feet from camera and automobile, the auto's headlights being high.

On an unlighted street a man dressed in gray clothes was partly visible under the same conditions as above.

On an "adequately lighted" street the pedestrian, of course, was much more visible regardless of the color of his clothes.

But in any of the tests—clothes approaching white greatly increased visibility. On one test a man in all white with a white handkerchief in his hand was satisfactorily visible at 100 feet without street lighting.

So the lesson is either to light

Get Local Catalog In Every Home Throughout Your Entire Trade Zone.

The newspaper is the most essential commodity in the community. It is the catalog of local business institutions, and in order for it to compete successfully with the efficient productions of the mailorder houses, it must be the subject of interest for every business man in the community. It is his own catalog.

Mail-order firms spend thousands of dollars in securing the names and addresses of prosperous, well-to-do farmers, so they can get their catalogs and other literature into these homes, and sell them their merchandise needs for the entire year.

If foreign mail-order concerns will go to that trouble and expense to sell your customers, surely it is of vital interest to local business firms to see that their Catalog-News- paper goes in these homes, to conserve this business to local business firms.

It has been absolutely proven that where each business firm in the community carries space regularly in the home Catalog-News- paper and talks merchandise, quality and value, that thousands of dollars can be kept in the home community to promote its growth and prosperity.

If mail-order houses can afford to place their catalogs in every home in your community, at a cost of approximately three dollars a year, it is certainly worth the effort of each local business firm to see that every farm home and town home throughout their entire trade zone gets the home Catalog-News- paper every issue.

The savings alone that each customer can make, in taking advantage of special offerings throughout the year, will pay for the paper many times during that year. Talk this to your customers, Mr. Merchant. Get them to realize that they can save money by reading every issue of your local newspaper—the Home Catalog. (Copyrighted By National Buy-At-Home Movement.)

A CHUCKLE OR TWO*Question of Fact.

Judge Blackstone decided that certain evidence was inadmissible. Counsel took strong exception to the ruling, and insisted that it was admissible. "I know, your honor," said he, warmly, "that it is proper evidence. Here I have been practicing at the bar for 40 years, and now I want to know if I am supposed to be a fool?" "That," quietly replied the judge, "is a question of fact, and not of law, so I won't pass any opinion on it, but will let the jury decide."

A Peach of a Time

HOW can you have a peach of a time better than with peaches? Zoological or botanical? Both. We presume that, being a zoological product yourself, you know just how to deal with that species, so we're going to limit our suggestions strictly to how to deal with the kind that grows on trees. So here goes for a couple of recipes that may not be in your repertoire.

Peach Marbles: Soften two tablespoons gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water, then dissolve it in one-half cup boiling water. Add three tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons lemon juice, stir in the well-mashed contents of a No. 2½ can of peaches, and cool. As it begins to stiffen, beat occasionally with a Dover egg beater until light and fluffy. Add two stiffly beaten egg whites and let harden. When stiff and ready to serve, scoop out in little balls with a potato ball cutter or scoop out in small spoonfuls. Roll each one in shredded coconut, and pile several on each individual plate. Garnish with whipped cream forced through a pastry tube. Serves eight.

A Snappy Dessert

Peach Whip: Drain juice from a No. 2½ can of peaches and measure. Add enough water to make two cups. Add three tablespoons sugar and one-half cup minute tapioca and cook in double boiler until the tapioca is transparent and clear. Add the sliced peaches and cook a few minutes more. Cool slightly, add one-fourth tablespoon vanilla, and fold in two stiffly egg whites. Serve very cold with creamy soft custard or with plain cream. Serves six.

A REAL FARMERS' ORGANIZATION!

"Nowhere else in the whole United States, so far as we have been able to discover, are there three adjoining agricultural states in not one of which is there any really vigorous, up-and-coming, state-wide farmers' organization. So far as any general farmers' organization is concerned, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia are almost desert country.

Of course, it hasn't been this way very long. The Farmers' Union about fifteen years ago was strongly organized in all three states. Today it has no organization in South Carolina, and the membership in Virginia and North Carolina has been decreasing year by year until now there are only a relatively few counties in each state that are organized. In North Carolina the old historic Farmers' Alliance yet exists in a few localities, and we have participated in numerous efforts to revive it; but past experience affords no hope of its being done. The Farm Bureau has never gained a foothold in South Carolina, has lost entirely the small foothold it had for a brief season in North Carolina, and appears to be making no headway in Virginia outside of Rockingham and a few nearby counties.

Such is the situation in the Carolinas and Virginia as it now exists and has existed for several years. If there are any communities that believe a Local Union, Sub Alliance, or Farm Bureau will suit them better than any other organization, The Progressive Farmer will be glad indeed to help them get the organizations they prefer.

We must confess, however, that after prolonged investigation we have become convinced that there is now only one farmers' organization that gives promise of taking hold in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia and enrolling a big enough membership to make a really powerful association of farmers. That organization is the "daddy of them all," the old historic National Grange or Patrons of Husbandry.

II.

As we say, we are not concerned about the name of the organization which our farmers use. We are only concerned about helping some organization which will command the confidence and enthusiasm of farmers in such a degree as to make them join and stay joined. For this purpose it looks as if the Grange is "the surest bet" for these reasons:—

1. It is the oldest national farmers' organization and any farmer can join it with the assurance that he is not tying up with any fly-by-night movement which is here today and gone tomorrow. It has been here since 1867.

2. It is a thrifty and growing organization with a steady membership of large proportions.

3. It is the most truly national farmers' organization so far as we know. It is now organized in 33 states, and is going into others.

4. It has a good record. No farmers' organization in America enjoys a greater degree of public confidence than the Grange. It is steady, sober, sensible, reliable. It is progressive without being erratic, courageous without being wild.

5. The dues are large enough to give an effective organization without being large enough to keep good men out.

7. The Grange has a symmetrical and well proportioned program of progress for agriculture. It is the peculiar distinction of the Grange that it has consistently stressed all three features of a well-rounded rural program:

(1) Community betterment and the enrichment of farm social life;

(2) Better business practices for the farmer and cooperation in improving them;

(3) Needed legislative reforms in both state and nation required to insure "Equality for Agriculture."

III.

On Saturday, Buick will present the new Marquette—designed by Buick engineers and built in Buick factories. ## THINGS OF THE SOIL

The Manassas Journal's Complete Agricultural Service
By DAN VAN GORDER

Questions of lawns, gardens and general farming are discussed in this department each week. Readers of The Manassas Journal are invited to use this new column for the answer to their question and the solution of their problems. Address all inquiries to The Manassas Journal Information Bureau, Van Gorder News Service, Manassas, Virginia.

MAN'S BATTLE AGAINST WEEDS.

The history of soil cultivation has been written largely concerning man's fight against weeds. An analysis of crop production reveals a considerable portion of the labor directed to aiding the cultivated plants to survive the competition of wild growths. This battle is the age-old fulfillment of the curse "that thorns and thistles shall it bring forth."

It has never been possible to compute the costs annually of fighting weeds in the United States. It has been estimated by the Minnesota experiment station that in that state alone the damage to marketed wheat from weed seed contamination amounts to more than two and a half million dollars annually. Certain it is that the total of cultivation costs, reduced crops, depreciated quality, and other factors caused by weeds run into many millions of dollars, and perhaps stand at the head of the American farm problem when viewed as a preventable loss to crop producers.

Weeds can be controlled. They can be eradicated. It is a task that requires not only individual effort, but community cooperation.

It has never been definitely determined what effects weeds exert on growing plants. Besides robbing the crop of needed moisture and plant food, and interrupting the circulation of air and distribution of sunshine, weeds are believed to impart toxins to the soil that restrict the functions of the plant roots in taking up the available plant food. But it is known that weeds materially reduce crop yields far beyond their power to rob the soil of the food elements on which the plants depend. Reductions of 50 per cent or more have been demonstrated on test plots of corn and other grains. Many vegetable and smaller plants often are completely exterminated by weeds.

Nature must often rely on weeds to serve her purpose in protecting the ground from lying bare and subject to erosion. Unless the grower wages a continual warfare to keep the soil busy producing other growths and combatting the wild vegetation there will be a gradual increase of seed and roots to propagate additional weeds.

There are three general classes of weeds: annuals that live only one year, maturing their seeds then dying; such as ragweed, smartweed and crab grass; biennial weeds that live two years. During the first year they grow slowly, usually producing only a tap root and a rosette of leaves near the ground, but sending up a strong growth that produces seed the second year. Examples are wild carrot, blueweed, and bull thistle. The third class is perennial weeds that produce each year underground parts of horizontal roots and stems that send up growths year after year. Among these are milkweed, Canada thistle, dandelion, field garlic and many others.

There are three major methods by which weeds can be eradicated and kept under control. (1) Prevent weeds from going to seed. (2) Prevent weed seed from being brought to the farm or garden. (3) In the case of perennial weeds, prevent them from making top growth, thus starving out the underground parts.

Annual and biennial weeds propagate themselves only by seed. Cutting of weeds before the seed matures will eliminate the reproduction next year. This requires extensive cutting, as two or three weeds of certain species will often produce enough seed to pollute several acres or even several farms. In combatting perennial weeds it is necessary to kill the underground roots and bulbs by keeping the tops cut back, or digging out the propagating roots. With the dandelion, for instance, the digging out method often is the only practical method.

There are many smother crops that will prove an excellent means of choking out weeds. Alfalfa has been found to be one of the best crops for this purpose. Because of the frequent clippings required, alfalfa makes weed growth almost impossible. Buckwheat, soybeans, millet, sorghum and but clover also serve for this purpose. Crop rotations that permit no weed developing interims are also effective.

There have been several chemical experiments that have demonstrated excellent results in killing weeds. Among these are copper sulphate, iron sulphate and salt.

Sheep pasturing is an effective method of cleaning weedy land. They will also keep land clean. When dry weather brings a shortage of grass, sheep will turn to weeds, thus preventing the maturing of the seed. Hogs also will clean weed-infested soil.

Gardens and small plots of ground near the home, even in small towns and cities, often are incubators of weeds, polluting large neighboring areas. Vacant lots, roadsides and fence rows are often only stretches of unsightly, seed-producing weeds.

When complaints of weed infestations are made, we often think of an old farmer of our youth, whose weedless farm was one of the beauty spots of the countryside. We have often seen him walk to the far side of his farm to remove one mullen stalk or milkweed. He was termed eccentric. But his method is the solution of the weed evil with its attendant loss to the American farmer of untold millions of dollars each year.

Some day an enlightened public will dust off the anti-weed laws that are found on almost all our state statutes, and require the enforcement of these necessary and badly needed regulations.

It costs very little to recondition a MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7.75 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.
