AT LAST A TALKIE
IN PRINCE WILLIAM

At last we can view Broadway's best musical comedies right in Occoquan. Paramount has opened the way to bring the high-priced Broadway shows with its dazzling picturization of the Marx Brothers' popular stage hit, "The Cocoanuts," which will be shown at the Lyric Theater, Occoquan, on October 4 and 5, with the new sound device installed by the local owner.

Never before has anything like "The Cocoanuts" been seen or heard in Prince William County. Never before has anything like it been transferred to the screen. Here, at last, is real entertainment—singing, dancing, glorious fooling—just the same brilliant features that one would see had he paid $6.00 for a seat at the Broadway stage showing of this popular Marx Brothers' sensation.

Beautiful melodies from Irving Berlin start you humming. The theme song, "When My Dreams Come True," is a catchy, romantic tune that strikes a lilting chord in the heart. The chorus numbers are snappy, marvelously photographed and perfectly performed.

Virginia Pays $87,484,287.39 In Taxes
To The United States Government

Washington, Sept. 26.—Of the $2,939,054,375.42 paid into the Treasury of the United States in taxes during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, the State of Virginia contributed $87,484,287.39, according to a report by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The contribution from the State is divided into $20,177,390.87 for income tax and $67,306,896.72 for miscellaneous taxes. A further division of the income receipts in the State reveals that $15,630,464.29 was paid in by corporations, and $4,546,926.38 by individuals.

The total tax figure represents an increase of 5 per cent over the figure for 1928.

Under the heading of miscellaneous taxes, Virginia paid as tax on cigars, 182,448.

FARM TAXES IN VA.
LOWEST IN U. S. A.Besides Virginia Only Eight
States Have Rate Below
One Dollar.

Richmond, Sept. 26.—Farm real estate taxes per one hundred dollars of value of owner-operated farms in Virginia are lower than in any other State of the United States.

This gratifying statement is based upon figures recently prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. These figures were read last week at the annual meeting of the National Tax Association at Saratoga Lake, and a memorandum thereof was obtained by C. H. Morrisett, State Tax Commissioner.

The average farm real estate taxes per one hundred dollars of actual value of owner-operated farms in the United States in 1924 amounted to $1.22. The Virginia taxes amounted only to seventy-two cents, or fifty cents less than the average in the United States. On January 1, 1927, however, Virginia repealed entirely the State tax of twenty-five cents per one hundred dollars on real estate, so that the rate in Virginia today on the actual value of the owner-operated farms is considerably less than seventy-one cents; but in Florida, since 1924, owing to the collapse of the boom, values have decreased and taxes have increased. The highest rate is found to exist in New Hampshire, the same being $2.07. The rate in Maryland is $1.20; in West Virginia, $1.21; in North Carolina, $1.14; in Kentucky, $1.09, and in Tennessee, $1.12. Besides Virginia and Florida, only seven States are given a rate of less than one dollar, the lowest of these being Missouri, with seventy-eight cents.

NEWS OF WEEK IN OLD VIRGINIA

State Senator on Board.

Staunton, September 25.—State Senator William H. East, of Augusta County has been appointed to the State Highway Commission by Governor Harry F. Byrd to fill the vacancy left on the commission by the death last week of Hugh B. Sproul.

Senator East, whose appointment is for the unexpired term ending July 1, 1930, is one of the largest farmers and landowners in the Shenandoah Valley.

In announcing the appointment, Governor Byrd pointed out that Senator East has taken a deep interest in road development and was a close friend of Mr. Sproul. The governor also explained that he has been advised that there is no legal obstacle to the appointment of a member of the State Senate to the State Highway Commission, as no salary is attached to it. Several members of the General Assembly already serve on various State boards, he declared.

Bear Scares Girls.

Lynchburg, Sept. 26.—A report that a young bear had been seen on the campus of Randolph-Macon Woman's College and later in Riverside Park kept more than 800 college girls on the lookout and gave work to 15 attaches of the City Park and Forestry Department.

The park attaches were sent to Riverside Park to hunt for the animal. The bear earlier upset a bee hive in Miller Park and was seen by a watchman on one of the park walkways.

Ada Community Fair.

Marshall, Sept. 26.—The seventh annual Ada Community Fair will be held Saturday, September 28, at St. Andrew's Mission House, four miles from Marshall. This fair with its motto, "Help a Community to Help Themselves," is another proof that work for the mountain population in Virginia was not first initiated by a little boy bringing a possum to the President.

Hampden-Sidney Remembered.
Hampden-Sidney, Sept. 25.—Hampden-Sidney College, Hampden-Sidney, Va., will eventually receive the estate of the late Dr. Asbury C. Swimley, now valued at $100,000, according to his will filed Monday.

His widow, Mrs. Ada Larrick Swimley, receives the estate for life, then it goes to certain relatives. On their death the corpus and any accretions thereto will go to the trustees of Hampden-Sidney College, "to be used as the trustees may see fit."

Bill Board Legislation.

Winchester, Sept. 25.—When the Virginia General Assembly meets in January it is expected another effort will be made to secure the passage of a bill forbidding the erection of billboards within a certain distance of public highways of the State.

A State association opposed to such practices as erecting flaming advertisements along the modern roads of Virginia is headed by Judge A. C. Carson, of Riverton, and a bill designed to curb the practice was presented at the last Legislature, but failed to be reported.

Recently no fewer than 175 large billboards were counted between Mount Jackson, Shenandoah County, Va., and Washington, D. C., it was stated here Tuesday. The chief objection is that the billboards mar the scenery.

Fire Control Urged.

Orange, Sept. 26.—H. A. Daniel, of Roadesville, chief fire warden of Orange County, presided over a meeting of forest wardens held at the courthouse here last week. Max Fleischer, president of the Isaac Walton League Chapters of Virginia, made an interesting address upon the objectives of the league.

Oldest Virginia Dentist Dies.

Petersburg, Sept. 26.—Dr. Thomas Jay Burgess, 76, the oldest doctor of dentistry in Virginia, died Tuesday morning at his home here after an illness of two weeks, which followed a long period of ill health. He is survived by his widow, Mary Stuart Moore Burgess; two sons, Edwin A. Burgess, of New Hampshire, and D. H. Burgess, of Petersburg, and one brother, George C. Burgess, of Dinwiddie County.

Although a native of New York, Dr. Burgess spent the greater part of his life in Petersburg. When he was 24 years old, he decided to study dentistry. He was a graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.

Bull Run Association.

Fairfax, Sept. 25.—A meeting of the Manassas Battlefield Confederate Park Association was held in Ballston Friday last and reorganized by the election of John W. Rust, of Fairfax, as its president, with J. Ray Price, of Shreveport, La., secretary, and Rufus W. Pearson, of Washington, treasurer. The park association plans to be active and to endeavor to raise the money necessary to complete the purchase of the park, after which the various commands, both Confederate and Federal, which took part in the battles on the historic ground, will be invited to erect markers, showing their positions in the fights.

Cows Bring Big Prices.

Newmarket, Sept. 25.—Col. E. T. Brown, president of Endless Caverns Corporation, near Newmarket, held a sale of registered thoroughbred cows and calves at Endless Caverns Farm Monday and 40 head of brown Swiss cows were sold at an average of $300 per head.

TAXPAYERS SAVE ON TAX REDUCTION

Virginia Taxpayers Have Received Reduction for the Year Amounting to $1,900,000.

Richmond, Sept. 25.—The taxpayers of Virginia have received a tax reduction for the year ending February 28, 1930, of $1,900,000, according to figures submitted to Gov. Harry F. Byrd and his budget advisory board by State Comptroller E. R. Combs.

Mr. Combs pointed out that collections for the general fund during the year are estimated at approximately $1,900,000 less than for the previous 12 months, and that this sum is $500,000 larger than the $1,400,000 tax reduction promised by the governor.

It was at one of the departmental hearings that Comptroller Combs submitted his report on the greatly reduced tax collection. These do not include gasoline tax or automobile license tax receipts, all of which go toward highway construction or main-

BIRDS AS ENEMIES OF INSECTS

When the grower of food crops at the end of this year totals up his receipts and expenditures to determine his profits or losses, if he is the average American farmer, truck and vegetable producer, or fruit grower, he will cancel off approximately one half his crop to the ravage of insects. Or, in other words, his total sales or crops total will only be fifty per cent of what they would have been had insects pests been entirely controlled.

Farmers of the United States are paying tribute to crop insects pests annually to the extent of approximately one billion seven hundred and twenty-two million dollars. While losses attributed to certain pests are sometimes reduced and their ravages brought under partial or entire control, other new insects arrive to keep the total depredations near this annual staggering level. For instance, the recent discovery of the Mediterranean fruit fly in the citrus industry of Florida reveals a new fruit and vegetable enemy that threatens to levy extensive and far-reaching destruction to one of our basic food crops. The Mexican bean beetle, the European corn borer, the Japanese beetle, and several new fruit pests have made their appearance or have spread into new territories during the last few years with millions of dollars worth of corn destroyed or damaged as a result of their activities.

Government entomologists and various state agencies are throwing up their strongest barriers to impede the spread of these voracious enemies of food crops; scientists are enrolled in the perpetual warfare against these enemies of man's soil source of sustenance; new methods and materials are being aligned continually in the struggle to reduce this gigantic liability that gnaws into the production totaling of the America farm output. But to date the little progress has been attained. The great food consuming public continues generally oblivious of this horde of costly invaders into the realm of crop production; the American food production industry rather half-heartedly plods on, submitting to this huge annual drain.

Entomologists admit that the increase in crop pests and the resultant heavy losses are largely attributable to the market decrease in the bird life of this country. The disappearance of forests and other suitable habitations of birds, failure of the public to maintain protective interest for these feathered friends of the food producer, and lack of an organized movement to meet this menace of a birdless nation have tended to bring about this condition. And as bird life decreases the insect life has increased. We face, as a result, the absolute necessity of immediate revives interest in the protection and increase of our bird life to supplement the fight that is being made against destructive crop insects.

Every home owner, rural and urban, can and should adopt some means of promoting and aiding in this effort. Construction and erection of bird houses, provision of watering and feeding places about the premises, eradication of stray cats, birds' greatest enemy, are few means of accomplishing this. There is considerable controversy as to the worth of various kinds of birds as destroyers of insects. Many people maintain that certain birds eat more fruit than their activities in insect destroying are equivalent to. Even the robin has been accused of unwhitened theft.

Extensive investigation have revealed that almost all kind of birds live almost entirely on insects and seeds from wild growths. Of course, it has been found that they also feed considerably on cherries, grapes, and other small fruits, even varying the diet with apples, pears, peaches and many vegetable courses. But certain it is that the small damages that our bird population is inflicting on our food crops are in no manner comparable to the approximate billion and three-quarters of dollars that destructive insect pests are taking each year from the American pocket book.

The song bird's disappearance would be more than an economic loss to civilization. If only for sentimental reasons we can well afford to furnish him a home and food. But add his immeasurable benefits as an avowed enemy of destructive insects, and we have a national purpose measured in millions of dollars annually in providing him a nook in which to increase his progeny.

Even the much despised English sparrow, all reports to the contrary, pays well for the damage he inflicts on food crops and the apparent nuisance he makes of himself around the home. Examination of hundreds of their crops indicated that they live largely on small insects that prey on gardens and orchards.

Fall is an excellent time to begin a campaign of effort to increase the bird family. Feeding stands erected in private corners where the birds may be fed grain, meat scraps and other suitable food, watering places and other means of aiding them in surviving the rigors of winter are necessary. Stray cats should be killed, or trees should be made inaccessible to cats by placing a band of tin or other metal around the trunks.

A land filled with the songs of birds is alone sufficient incentive and reward for every citizen to join in the movement to increase our bird life. That the threatening annual loss of our food crops from insects can be checked and reduced at the same time, seems to make of this an economic opportunity as well as a civic duty.

DURING this hot weather particularly, it is most important to keep all perishable foods safely cold. When the temperature in your refrigerator rises even a degree or two above 50, bacteria multiply with alarming speed. In a General Electric Refrigerator the temperature is always below 50 degrees—low enough to check germ growth . . . to keep foods safe from contamination.

The General Electric gives you perfect refrigeration—quiet, worry-free and economical. It has a simple device for freezing regulation. Its mechanism, which never needs oiling, is safely enclosed in an hermetically sealed steel casing, mounted on top. As evidence of guaranteed reliability—there are now more than 300,000 users and not one has spent a single dollar for repairs!

And the cabinet of the General Electric is the first and only one built entirely of steel—as strong and warp-proof as a safe. See it for yourself.

COALITION TACTICS.

The Times-Dispatch published last Thursday morning an interview with Robert H. Angell, of Roanoke, in which the chairman of the Republican party in Virginia declared frankly, and without equivocation, that the hope of the coalition for winning the election this year lay in stressing freely the issues which were paramount in the presidential campaign of 1928. All of us know what those issues were. The candidate of the Democratic party was a Tammanyite, a communicant of the Roman Catholic Church and a foe of the national prohibition policy. These alliances were responsible for his loss of four Southern States, including Virginia.

On the very night Mr. Angell gave out his interview four leaders of the Republican party, one of them the candidate of the coalition for Lieutenant-Governor, were speaking in Richmond. Never once did they refer to the national issues which the Roanoke man would depend upon as the spearhead to victory. It was a matter of wide comment that Messrs. Anderson, Garber, Paul and Jones apparently had decided to abandon "Raskobism" and the other absurd "isms" for a straight-out discussion of relevant matters. Perhaps Mr. Angell had not heard of this decision.

It now appears that Mr. Angell knew he could depend upon his disaffected Democratic allies, if not upon Republican leaders themselves, to play witchery for all it was worth. Henry W. Anderson might speak of "stolen elections" in Virginia, Callom B. Jones of the horrible Democratic ring ensnaring John Garland Pollard, John Paul of "mental slavery" in the State, whatever and wherever that may be, and Jacob A. Garber of anything that might occur to him, but he had in mind the "boys" who could "penetrate the fog of State issues."

In Washington is published monthly a paper which has as its avowed purpose the renomination in 1932 of Alfred E. Smith. It is expressly dedicated to the purpose of destroying "the political power of the Methodist Church and its allies by organizing the enemies of intolerance." A Mr. Walmsley and a man named William A. Engel financed the project and are responsible for its publication. They are unknown, so far as The Times-Dispatch is able to learn, to Democratic leaders of the State.

Yet this paper, standing for nothing remotely concerned with the campaign in Virginia, is being used to further the interests of the coalition.

"The Brown leaders here," according to a Washington dispatch to the Baltimore Sun, "make no secret of what they are doing. They point out that originally they planned to purchase 50,000 copies of the first issue of The Challenge and distribute them throughout the State. However, they lacked the $1,700 necessary to buy that many.

"Frank Lyon, chairman of the anti-Smith Democratic Executive Committee, is in California, but his assistant, J. Cloyd Byars, in charge of headquarters here, asserted that The Challenge was being used in the campaign because it substantiates exactly what the Cannonites are contending—that efforts will be made to nominate former Governor Smith in the next Democratic convention."

Well, suppose such efforts are made, how does that possibility affect Democratic leadership in Virginia? Did Democratic leaders assist last year in bringing about the nomination of Al Smith? And even if it were true that they had a hand in the nomination, how in the name of reason would that action affect the business of operating the government of this State? And, finally, what possible connection could Byrd and Pollard, for example, have with a paper, which, Mr. Walmsley says, was financed and is published by him and William A. Engel?

Of course, The Challenge, so far as this campaign is concerned, is beside the point. It may be used for one purpose, and one purpose only. That purpose is to keep alive, for no patriotic reason, of course, the passions and prejudices of the presidential campaign. The coalitionists wish to distract the attention of the voter from the excellence of the Byrd administration and center it upon Tammany Hall, prohibition and the Catholic Church.

Perhaps there is a division of responsibility in the ranks of the coalition. The Republicans will spread the poison of "stolen elections" and other absurdities, while the disaffected Democrats will disseminate the propaganda of Tammanyism and Catholicism. That would be admirable teamwork. But how do thinking Virginians regard such an alliance of greed and hate?—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

THE GIST OF THE TARIFF.

The chief purpose of the tariff is to protect the high wage and living standards enjoyed by our workers. If foreign goods can undersell American products we must equalize the difference by levying a tax. If foreign goods cannot undersell our goods, no tariff is necessary.

The tariff is an economic question. It should be taken out of politics and placed in the hands of experts. A tariff which is either too high or too low would prove detrimental to our prosperity.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR SEPTEMBER 29, 1929.

The International Sunday School Lesson for September 29 is a Review: "The Significance of the Exile and the Restoration"—Isaiah 61:1-9.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

It is a sign of a grown-up brain to be interested in politics, and especially in world affairs. The size of the units in which a person thinks is the measure of his mental capacity. Because man is made in the image of God, he shares his Father's qualities of ability to weigh moral questions and to consider the world and its affairs. Kepler's devout, "I think Thy thoughts after Thee, O God" may be repeated by the man who searches into the reasons for a nation's greatness or weakness. This Sunday School Review of the Jewish people at the great crisis of their history is sufficient warrant, if one be needed, for considering the international aspects of our time.

When the Hebrew nations broke up, the world about them was in flux. Only the prophets and the real statesmen perceived this. The realignment of the nations was not any more significant than that which we are witnessing today. In the past fifteen years many ancient empires have disappeared, and new national groupings have appeared. Russia and China, the two largest independent nations, have changed their status. India is in swift process of transformation. The Ottoman Empire has given way to the Turkish Republic, which is exerting more influence upon the life of Asia today than did ever any of the sultans. Arabia has become self-conscious, and a force amidst Moslem peoples not yet generally understood. Egypt is hastening toward inevitable complete independence. Persia has overthrown its old dynasty and is asserting national self-sovereignty. Italy and Germany have been made over since the war. Great Britain is experiencing profound changes, but along her historic constitutional lines.

In the midst of this new and changing world order, it is timely beyond words to consider the experience of the ancient Hebrews amidst somewhat similar international transformations. Perhaps we shall find a clue for present use.

An Old-Fashioned View.

God deals with nations, and uses them in the carrying out of His sovereign purposes. That is written on the face of the Jewish story. Over and over again the prophets proclaimed that such nations as Egypt, Assyria and Babylon were but instruments of His providence, and held to account by Him. This is the inward significance of His title as "King of kings" and "Lord of lords". The exalted truth of Divine sovereignty, with all of its tremendous implications, shines forth from the Jewish history which has furnished the Sunday School Lessons for the past six months.

Next in importance comes the startling truth that not all nations are alike in the eyes of God; He has had chosen peoples through whom he has expressed his will. Nationalism is taboo amongst our "liberal" "intellectuals" today; but the student of history, and especially of the Old Testament, cannot escape the plain fact it has been by a chosen people that God has always done His work in the world. He elected the Jews to be a peculiar people, a favored nation, that they might be His missionaries on the earth. To deny this teaching is to discard the Old Testament entirely. And today the mightiest force for real internationalism and human progress is a spirit of intelligent patriotism and religion in individual nations, animated by good will toward all the world.

Third of the tremendous truths lying on the surface of this Lesson is the message that God punishes nations which are recreant to Him, just as He punished the Jews of old. If God be God, then He is bound to prove His crown rights. Any real sovereignty requires the upholding of authority. Because He is King of kings, God has had to deal with His subordinates who have defied His law. Here we find ourselves at the heart of all law-observance. Sovereignty departs when law is defied without punishment.

Russia and Religion.

All sorts of political and social blunders were committed by the Jewish people. At the heart of them was their departure from their religion, and their disregard of the clear commands of Jehovah. We shall miss the point of this study unless we perceive the truth that back of all political ailments, back of all social inequities, back of all violation of law, resides disloyalty to the simple verities of religion. Before man can hurt man he must offend God. A turning away from the will of the Lord precedes all crime and all sin. The first and root offense is a repudiation of the sovereignty of Jehovah. If the Jews of old had kept true to God, they never would have slipped into their other recreancies. Even a child should be able to see this: obedience to God is the all-embracing loyalty, the solution of every possible problem.

More important than the outlawry of war, or international disarmament, or a world court, is the establishment of simple righteousness and sincere religion in the hearts and homes of the people. The preacher is still more powerful than the politician. The new modern movements, largely unnoticed by the press, for better homes, for child welfare, for personal idealism, for Sunday School expansion, for private and public righteousness, may yet be regarded by future historians as the outstanding characteristics of this generation. He is blind to the tides of the times who does not perceive the rising flood of concern for human and spiritual values.

By this test nations may be appraised. In all the clack and clatter of discussion concerning Russia, the central and most significant fact is generally overlooked. The present rulers of what her people once called "Holy Russia" have repudiated God, and in puerile histrionics have "declared war" on Him! They are trying to root out religion, which they proclaim to be the opium of the people. Of course, they are failing. It seems as if the very storms of opposition have fanned into new flame the simple faith of the Russian people. The clearest evidence of the sure doom of the present regime in Russia is that it has defied the living God.

When the Jews Came Back.

It took the collapse of their kingdoms, and the more than a lifetime of bitter exile, to teach the backsliding Jews that undivided loyalty to Jehovah is the price of liberty and happiness. Bitter was the lesson, but it was learned. After the captivity, the Jews never again lapsed into idolatry, which had been their all-comprehensive sin—the putting of other allegiances ahead of their allegiance to God.

In this, the Lord was dealing with the Jews as with sons. The root of the original word "chastening" is "child". Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth. It would be terrible to be simply ignored by God; to have Him wash His hands of all responsibility for us. So the Lesson ends with the Jews returned to their land and to their restored city of Jerusalem and to their rebuilt temple.

Thus shines out the climax truth that God is compassionate and merciful: "He will not always chide, neither will He keep His anger forever". For the penitent there is pardon and restoration. As Malachi proclaimed, in last week's Lesson text, "Return unto Me, and I will return unto you".

For nations as for men, the pathway to peace lies in a getting back to the God of our fathers. Apart from Him can be only misery and disaster. Simple loyalty and love to Him is the consummation of political, social and religious wisdom. As one of the old writers used to say, "Do let God be God".

CHUCKLES*Tit for Tat.

"Ah," said the elderly tramp, giving his brimless hat a twirl, "education is a wonderful thing in our line of business."

"Why, whatever good is education to us?" asked the younger road walker.

"I'll tell you," was the reply. "I was in Beverly one morning and knocked at the door of a tidy little bungalow. When the lady of the house came out to see who it was I quoted a little Shakespeare."

"Well?"

"An' she replied with a little bacon."

Big Business.

Sambo—Yes, suh, business ben fine. Mah wife done gib me $10 an' ah bought a pig. Ah kept tradin' fo' everything under the sun, till finally ah gets a bicycle, an' ah sold it fo' $10.

Rastus—But you all dean' make any money.

Sambo—Co'se no. But look at de business ah's been doin'!—Montreal Star.

"As Ever, Yours."

Ruskin—who got into trouble with Whistler over a critique—was wont to attack all and sundry with a savage merriment which even his best friends at times resented. Once he wrote to a friend hoping that a fierce criticism written by him of his friend's picture would make no difference to their friendship. To which the friend had the wit to reply:

"Dear Ruskin: Next time I meet you I shall knock you down, but I Swindon Advertiser."

hope it will make no difference to our friendship."—Kansas City Star.

Division of Labor.

"My friend," said the artist, "this picture here has taken eight years of work."

"Eight years? Why, it's only a small one!"

"Well, it took six hours to paint it and the rest of the time to sell it."—

A meeting of the Chancel Guild was held on Wednesday afternoon to arrange for the entertainment which will be held at the Parish Hall on October 16. There will be a sale of Christmas cards and fancy articles ranging in price from five cents to one dollar, the affair being termed a "Dollar Day Sale".

More than twenty persons from Washington, friends and former parishioners of the Rev. W. F. Carpenter, attended service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on Sunday morning. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who were of the party, was baptized by Mr. Carpenter.

J. A. GORRELL

A Reminiscence
(By a Friend.)

James Lawrence Gorrell was born in Harford County, Maryland, in the year 1842. He came in his early youth with his parents to West Virginia, where he was living at the opening of the War Between the States. He enlisted and became a member of Company C of the 39th Virginia Battalion which served as scouts and couriers under General Lee.

He was first under fire at Fredericksburg in December, 1862. At Gettysburg he received a saber wound while trying to capture a yankee soldier who in turn tried to take him prisoner. He was in the Wilderness and Spotsylvania campaigns, and while scouting near Hancock, Md., he and some of his comrades were captured by General Hunter's army and he was confined for eight months at Camp Chase, Ohio. After being exchanged he did not rejoin his command, the end of the war coming about a month later.

The subsequent years of his life were spent mostly in Fauquier County, Virginia, where he was engaged in the mercantile business and farming interests. He was one of the organizers of the Fauquier Mutual Fire Insurance Company and became its first president, serving as such for a period of fifty years, his resignation being tendered a month prior to his death. He also was for many years vice president and director of the Peoples Bank of Warrenton, Va.

Mr. Gorrell united with the M. E. Church South, in early life, and at the age of twelve years became an active member. Under the tutelage of a devout Christian school master, a class was formed of boys of about 12 years who met weekly for worship, each boy in turn leading in prayer and conducting the service. The interests of the church lay very close to the heart of Mr. Gorrell, and throughout his life he was a constant attendant at all church services, and a liberal contributor to the cause. He also was a cheerful contributor to any call for the benefit of community and temperance advancement.

As the sun was descending in the west on June the tenth, 1929, he was quietly translated to that city which lieth Four square and where there is no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it, for the glory of God doth lighten it; and the Lamb is the light thereof."

PLANES USED IN RED CROSS RELIEF IN PHILIPPINES

Washington, Dec. C., Sept. 25—Army airplanes speeded up Red Cross relief work in the recent Philippine typhoon, which killed 200 persons and wrecked property in southern Luzon. As soon as the wind abated, Ernest J. Swift, assistant director of insular and foreign operations of the American Red Cross, who was in Manila on an official visit at the time, made an airplane inspection trip. This enabled the Red Cross, operating through its Philippines chapter, to send supplies without delay. The navy cooperated by carrying the first relief party and supplies on the destroyer Edsall. The Red Cross also chartered a merchant vessel for use in reaching the sufferers, who faced starvation through the destruction of growing crops and stored food.

SERGEANT YORK IN WASHINGTON

Will Witness Portrayal of His Argonne Feat in Military Exposition at War College.

Sergeant Alvin C. York, whom General Pershing eulogized as "The outstanding civilian soldier of the World War", is going to be in Washington, October 3, 4 and 5, as the guest of the Army at the Annual Military Exposition and Carnival.

Sergeant York will be an interested spectator of a feat that has never before been attempted and that is to portray to the American public how he accomplished his marvelous performance of whipping an entire enemy machine gun battalion, killing 29 men, capturing 36 machine guns and bringing in to the American lines, 132 prisoners, four of them being officers.

This is only one of the incidents of the great sham battle, "Smashing Through the Argonne, with Sergeant York", that the Army is staging, both afternoon and evening, at its big show held on the grounds of the Army War College.

Crack Cavalry To Thrill.

While the sham battle and reproduction of Sergeant York's thrilling and audacious feat is the major event on the program which goes on every afternoon and evening of the three days of the show, other features include: Daring feats of horsemanship by the crack, rough-riding Machine Gun Troop of the 3rd Cavalry of Fort Myer, Va.; the famous Black Horse Battery and equally renowned White Horse Battery of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, will also perform stirring evolutions in their combat exercises; the aces of Uncle Sam's military air force, gathered from Bolling Field and the various flying stations on the eastern coast of the United States, will perform every aerial stunt in the repertoire of present-day aviation, including battles in the air, with planes coming down in flames and other hair-raising feats that the crack flyers of the Army are so expert in performing; huge elephantine army tanks which used to plod so slowly over the earth are new engines of speed as well as strength and will demonstrate these new qualities before the eyes of the spectators, going through amazing maneuvers and other evolutions which show their durability and efficiency; as one demonstration of their strength, these land battleships will show one with a daring soldier driving his tank over a contact mine of T. N. T., and as the mine explodes and the smoke clears away, the tank can be seen emerging from the crater and nonchalantly continuing in the fight.

There are many other events taking place both day and night in these three afternoons and evenings of thrills.

Other Entertainment.

There is an entertainment side to all this as well. Crack Army bands (including the famous U. S. Army Band of radio, national and international fame), render musical programs, with dancing, vaudeville and other features that last from 12:30 p. m. until midnight.

The exhibits will open each day at 12:00 o'clock, noon, giving the spectators time to view the exhibit of the Army's resources before the actual stunts are started, and arrangements are made to serve food, hot and cold, to those who wish to stay through both afternoon and evening performances.

FIRST FROST IN VA. STIRS HUNT CLUBS

Hunting Program Planned By Recognized State Hunt Clubs Beginning October 1.

Richmond, Sept. 25—The first frost in Virginia has been the signal for a general polishing of hunting horns, and inspection of riding togs and saddles and other riding accoutrements, as the fox hunt clubs of the Old Dominion prepare for the coming sport season. Eight of the eleven nationally recognized hunts in Virginia will begin their hunting seasons October 1, while October 28 to November 3 the Virginia Fox Hunters' Association will hold their annual field trials. All eleven of the nationally recognized hunts will be riding at hounds by November 1, and from this date to March 1 the season will be in full swing. There will be approximately thirty organized hunts in the field this year, according to a survey which has been made by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce. The eleven hunts mentioned above will meet on all holidays during the winter and will average thirty-four hunts a week.

In Field Each Week.

The heaviest hunting program will be that of the Foxcatcher Hounds at Montpelier Station, of which William du Pont, jr., is master. This hunt will be in the field every week day from October to April. The eleven hunts are using 267 couples of American, Trigg and Walker Hounds this year. The largest pack will be that of the Middleburg Hunt Club, of which D. C. Sands, is master, consisting of fifty couples of American Hounds. The Piedmont Fox Hounds, which have been in existence since 1840, will use forty couples of Walker Hounds. Waugh Glascock, of Upperville, and L. B. Norman, of Middleburg, are its joint masters.

Manly Carter, of Orange, president of the Virginia Fox Hunters Association, is planning the largest session his organization has ever undertaken. The picturesque Natural Bridge of Virginia will be the headquarters of the hunters, and red foxes will be their quarry this year, and the hunters will follow the hounds through the beautiful autumn-touched foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Those who are riding at hounds are planning to ship several car loads of horses to Natural Bridge for the event.

New Club Organized.

Announcement has just been made of the organization of the Fairfax Hunt, at Sunset Hills, with a territory of about 60,000 acres. The club's territory will include a large part of the old George Washington estate of Colonial times, and the riders will follow the hounds over the same general territory where George Washington is reputed to have ridden at hounds almost every day during the winters he spent at Mount Vernon. The club's program is said to include national recognition. The members are paneling the whole territory for jumps.

Most of the recognized hunt clubs in Virginia are in red fox territory, but there are a number of clubs in Tidewater who are hunting the gray fox. The most important of these are the Gloucester County Hunt, and the Tidewater Fox Hunters' Association.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad, but loving, remembrance of Clay Arnold, who departed this life fifteen years ago, September 24.

Once we had a little treasure;
Who was our joy and pride;
We loved him, oh, perhaps too well,
For soon he slept and died.

His heavenly crown is won.
And I am alone a-wearying for you;
My empty arms miss your charms,
As I grieve for you each day;
But never shall your memory fade,
And sweetest thoughts shall ever linger,
Around the grave where you are laid.

You get more for your dollar in
America's finest medium-priced automobile

Today's Oakland All-American Six stands out unmistakably as America's finest medium-priced automobile. Its value supremacy has been established by facts revealed in comparison of the All-American Six with twenty other medium-priced automobiles. Let us go over all the results of this comparison with you. When you have seen how on every basis of comparison the All-American Six towers above its field—you will agree with us that you get more for your dollar in America's finest medium-priced automobile.

Proof of Oakland Value Superiority

The following facts were obtained from a comparison of the Oakland All-American Six with 20 other medium-priced automobiles. All told, 478 individual comparisons were made. Of these, Oakland proved to be distinctly superior in 451 or 94.37 per cent. The 20 cars combined were at best equal to Oakland on 382 or 43.50 per cent. And 13 of the 20 were higher priced than Oakland.

WHEELBASE

Only one car as low-priced as Oakland has a wheelbase as long as Oakland's, which is 117 inches. That car requires a turning circle to the left of 41 feet as compared with Oakland's 36 feet. Six higher-priced cars have shorter wheelbases.

FISHER BODY

Only Oakland and two other cars in the field offer bodies by Fisher. And one of the two is nearly $100 higher in price than Oakland. Of the 18 cars which have less-known bodies, 11 are priced above the All-American Six.

BRAKES

Only Oakland and one other car in its field use the fine type of brakes which Oakland employs. And no car in the field equals Oakland's 290 square inches of brake band area. Oakland's separate emergency brake operates on the transmission. Seven cars in the field have no separate emergency brakes, although three of them exceed Oakland in price.

PISTON DISPLACEMENT

Oakland's 228 cubic inch piston displacement is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are much higher priced than Oakland.

ICHABAD.

By A. M. EWELL.

To the lover of the past, who enjoys a thrill of surprise, regret and pleasing sentiment, an afternoon ride taken not long ago by the present writer should prove interesting.

One turns out of the Lee Highway a little northeast of the Stone Bridge and goes westward into a region of the Has Been. Here were old homes, old estates, carved from the great body of land which Robert Carter, of Corotoman (King Carter), owned along the stream Bull Run, and which was divided among his grandsons and grandson-in-laws.

Here, along this old and very bad road, winding between hills and through hollows, were founded in the middle Eighteenth Century, by the Carters "Pittsylvania," "Mountain View," "Black Hill," "Elmwood," and "Sudley House," which last gave a name to the neighborhood. Further away and more accessible to the outside world are Hazel Plain, Ben Lomond and Portici—all parts of the same great tract. Of Portici, it has little in common with this out of the way neighborhood through which we are riding. Was there ever such a road—out of Virginia? And through gates! To open them is surely an effort—but after which we find that it is worth the trouble.

We will only mention briefly the beautiful Pringle farm—now owned by Mr. Trusler, of Manassas. It is too new-looking and prosperous for our purpose. It too, must have been a part of the Bull Run tract, but late settled. We pass it by on our way to Pittsylvania.

Pittsylvania is said to have been the grandest of all the old Carter mansions hereabout—with much of its interior finishing brought from England. A cousin of mine who knew it well, used to tell of the rich wall paper, "some of the very oldest made," which had come that way. It was burned with the whole house in the War Between the States. There is not left even an old-looking outbuilding—only the site, a high plateau that strikes one as much too large for the very small house built after the great debacle. The only thing now suggesting age is the huge burial ground where Carters and their kin repose. A stone wall enclosed the dense jungle of trees, bushes, vines, where not a tombstone is visible. A girl friend of my youth was buried there. After looking awhile I am glad to turn away.

Pittsylvania was used as a hospital after the first battle of Bull Run. Mrs. Judith Henry, killed in that battle, is stated on her tombstone to have been a "daughter of Landon Carter of Pittsylvania". The house was burned in the second and still more terrible battle. Mr. Alexander Comp-ton once said to me, in speaking of that night, "I felt like the Day of Judgement had come".

Going on we pass Black Hill—its old house still standing, big and tall, the whole place suggestive of summer breezes and winter gales. It looks well-named; and it also was an old old Carter holding. It is Mountain View that we want to visit, and that wins our hearts when we at last get there. It, too, is well-named—for the view of the Bull Run Mountain range to be had from there is truly wonderful. One sees it, rampart-like, from one end to the other. The old house stands high and has a charm which nothing short of destruction can do away with. Built in the style of the middle Eighteenth Century; with downstairs ceilings fifteen feet high, paneled mantels and quaint, boxed-in, winding stairway to small rooms above. The low stone kitchen wing with its enormous chimney, was built, so we are told for a "cococonery", in the days of the silkworm culture, when so many old Virginians thought themselves on the eve of fortune that way. In this house, built by the Carters, Mr. Richard Weir was living at the time of the second Bull Run Battle.

Mrs. Weir, still living and with memory wonderfully clear, was advised by Confederate officers to stay in the barn or the kitchen. The barn was partly underground; but she preferred the kitchen, the old fortress—

Roaches live in colonies. If you see one you know there are many. Roaches are loathsome vermin. Prolific breeders. There are medical authorities who declare seventeen different diseases are transmitted by roaches. Roaches must be killed. Spray FLY-TOX into cracks, crevices, around water pipes, faucets and other plumbing. Simple instructions on each bottle (blue label), for killing roaches and ALL household insects. INSIST on FLY-TOX. It is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. FLY-TOX is safe, stainless, and has a perfume-like fragrance. Easy to use.—Adv.

like cococonery with walls over two feet thick. There she took refuge with shells from two opposing batteries flying overhead. She was a very young married woman, with two children, relatives, in charge, and a brave heart. The building was not struck.

Outside are still two or three of the white mulberry trees which were planted to furnish food for the silkworms. The industry furnished hope of fortune for a while. That was all.

We agree that Mountain View is the most pleasant and yet the saddest of all the old places hereabouts. It could so easily be restored, turned again into a fitting home for Virginia gentry. In spite of later descriptions "the scent of the roses" seems to hang around it still. Carters, Weirs, Bronaugh's. One thing with a sigh of regret "Oh, could only one come back to live his old leisurely life, to exchange visits with the Carter kin at "Elmwood", there just across the fields. That house, too, was burned. Alas, the glory is forever departed.

More awful roads, more gates. A friend of ours thinks they must be some of the original Carter gates, lovingly preserved, patched up with boards and poles. The last one we try to open falls in two pieces. We lay it aside and press on with zeal worthy of the cause. We understand that this road is a county one, and that the county has ordered the gates taken off; but the dwellers thereupon prefer to sacredly preserve these relics of the past, even at cost of being hopelessly cut off from the outside world.

It is probable that Sudley House was next to Pittsylvania, the largest and handsomest of all these old houses. In spite of some injudicious, later additions which spoil it outside, the very large rooms and fine open stairway would indicate this. There are fine old mantelpieces and another enormous chimney. Hearths and home meant something in those days. Here is also, at some distance away, the usual old walled burial ground. A brooding sadness now hangs over most of these places, "gone out of the family" and given up to neglect. Though spacious and imposing Sudley House lacks the openness, the homelike cheerfulness of Mountain View.

Robert Carter, of Corotoman, in Lancaster County Virginia, "King Carter". It is a name to conjure with, to bring back the whole of the Early Eighteenth Century—changeable, bustling in a leisurely way, prosperous, yet discontented. We have seen him still dominating the scene in Lancaster—seen his beautiful portrait in the Court House, his fine bold signature, attached to all land grants, his "church that he built", Christ's, pronounced by many the noblest Colonial Church in Virginia. We have seen Corotoman Point where he lived, and some of the homes left to his children—Sabine Hall, in Lancaster; Carter's Grove, in James City; Oaklands, in Loudoun. We have heard of Shirley and Cleve, of Monini Hall, and other places. As agent for the Culpepers and Secretary for the Colony of Virginia, he had opportunity to acquire his full share of the land then going (thanks to him) so cheap. The Bull Run Tract was one of these bodies of land. Besides the places I have mentioned there are others taken from it, Carters, Balls and Lewis, Chinn's; Weirs and Henrys had their share by inheritance. We give the list of place names so far as we know them.

It is open to additions. Pittsylvania, Sudley House, Mountain View, Bleak Hill, Elmwood, Portici, Ben Lomond, Hazel Plains, Woodland, Liberia, Oakwood, the old Henry House—destroyed in battle. In all these places, in that last pleasant century before the most uncivil of civil wars, King Carter's great grandchildren lived, loved and exercised hospitality. The length and richness of the old Carter inventories preserved in our Prince William County records, give an idea of the wealth that made life in these old Mansions luxurious. No doubt there was feasting galore. Then came the war clouds, the storm, the crash. Fire and sword

John Marshall Highway Association. Acting on the suggestion of Arthur Orr, first vice president of the organization and one of the Arlington County leaders, the president, Hugh E. Naylor, of Front Royal, announced that he would appoint a special committee to perfect plans for putting the organization on a national basis. Orr said that he will report to the committee the name of a man who states that he will be able to obtain as national chairman one of the noted attorneys or jurists of the country.

First Link in Arlington.
The first link of the John Marshall Highway is what is known in Arlington County as the Straight-to-the-Bridge route and is generally supposed to include the 2.3 miles of highway that reaches from the connection with the proposed Lee Boulevard in Porter's Woods to a point on Memorial Drive between Ballston and Falls Church. That this may not be the route finally selected, however, was indicated in a letter received by the association from H. G. Shirley, chairman of the Virginia State Highway Commission.

In the letter Shirley states that "the commission has not made the permanent location of the Straight-to-the-Bridge boulevard, nor will it do so until it has funds available for construction."

Continuing, he said, "We have run one survey through, which may be the line adopted in the final analysis, but the final location will not be determined until funds are allotted for its improvement. Until that time I will be unable to advise you what the straight-to-the-bridge route will be."

This letter, it was said, will leave considerable doubt in the minds of a great many people who have felt assured that their properties are located along this route.

Officers Elected.
Yesterday's meeting started in the boardroom of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, with representatives from various counties of Virginia in attendance. Following the transaction of other business, the members proceeded to re-elect all but one of their previous officers. The exception was the selection of Lawrence Michael, of Arlington County, as secretary. Judge John Barton Payne, president of the American Red Cross, was re-elected honorary president.

The other officers and directors are: President, Hugh E. Naylor; first vice president, Arthur Orr; second vice president, George W. Robey; third vice president, Thomas H. Lion; fourth vice president, George T. Strother; fifth vice president, Frank L. Tavener, Jr.; sixth vice president, Thomas W. Dudley; assistant secretary, O. W. Borden, and treasurer, F. W. Huddleson.
