BUDGET BILL IS UNDER DISCUSSION

General Assembly Takes Up Budget As Tame Session Nears End.

(By CARTER WORMELEY.)

Richmond, Feb. 24.—As the assembly nears the end of what is regarded as among the least spectacular sessions in many years the house today begins its consideration of appropriations, the budget bill being set as a special and continuing order until completed. While the lower chamber is thrashing out the budget bill the senate will devote its attention to other measures.

The Senate, for instance, will today take final action on the house bill for electoral reform. Last Friday it approved the governor's proposed commission for a study of county government. The seafood program, which caused as much debate as any other one subject, is today complete with the exception of revenue legislation in the house. Seafood tax measure, having already passed the senate, are now in committee in the house.

Executive recommendations so far enacted into law by the assembly include a survey of mothers' aid needs, an increase in workmen's compensation, and income tax reduction. Following Governor Pollard's suggestions that no curtailment be made either in highway construction or in health work, the lawmakers have added 1,587 miles to the state highway system, and increases totaling $39,000 a year to state health activities.

Free Text Books. Free text books for schools have been eliminated for the remainder of the session, a resolution being today offered by Delegate Hall, of Loudoun, asking Governor Pollard to include an appropriation for books in the next biennial budget. Delegate Hall is the author of a bill to have the state spend $300,000 annually for free school books.

The senate today has before it a bill appropriating $60,000 from the road fund for twenty-two additional state motorcycle officers. It is provided in the measure that these men shall not be more than 35 years old. A senate bill before the house for final passage, and a measure of real importance, is the Buchanan bill authorizing counties, cities and towns to exempt manufacturing establishments and works of internal improvement from taxation for a period of five years.

The matter of increasing the salary of C. H. Morrisett, state tax commissioner, who has asked for $12,000 a year, to be decided at this session. Such increase has been recommended by house and senate committees, and is favored by the governor. The house took the matter of this increase up this afternoon and adopted an amendment placing the salary at $8,000, which is a $1,000 increase over the present salary of this official. In this form the question of the increase will go to the senate.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY WILL MEET

The Woman's Missionary Society of Manassas Baptist Church will observe its annual season of Prayer for home missions with an all-day meeting at the church on Wednesday, March 5, beginning at 10:30 a. m. "If you are interested in Missions," said Mrs. Frank Peters, secretary, "you are cordially invited to attend the meeting."

PRINCE WILLIAM DAIRY HERD MEETS

Semi-Annual Meeting of Prince William Dairy Herd Improvement Association Called For Saturday.

The semi-annual meeting of the Prince William County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, to which all dairymen are invited, will be held at the agricultural building at the rear of the Manassas High School on Saturday evening, March 1, at 7:30 o'clock. Matters pertaining to the business of the association will be discussed.

Frank A. Buchanan, dairy specialist, V. P. I., will talk on the "Proving of Dairy Sires" and will make a report on the progress being made in the State along this line.

Statistics show that most bulls are sold to the butcher before their daughters come into milk and they are dead before their value is known. Since a number of sires are being proven by members of the association this subject should be of especial interest.

Too Good For Bologna.

An interesting exhibit at the National Dairy Show in St. Louis was an old Holstein bull, said F. D. Cox, Prince William County agent. "A sign above him read, 'Too Good For Bologna,' declared Mr. Cox. 'The daughters of this bull produced an average of over one hundred pounds of butterfat per cow per year, and over three thousand pounds more milk than their dams. He is still serviceable and his owner knows he will continue to get higher producing offspring, while old Harvest Matador Douglas still lives.'

"Hundreds of good transmitters of production have been sent to the butcher before their value was proven. The solution of the problem of keeping old bulls is narrowed down to the forming of co-operative bull rings and providing safety bull pens."

SWAVELY PLAYERS SATURDAY NIGHT

"Whappin' Wharf" Three Act Play of Pirate Life Will Be Given By the Local School Players.

The Swavely Players will present their annual mid-winter play at 8:30 p. m., Saturday, March first. It is a three-act work entitled "Whappin' Wharf", and resembles that of a year ago inasmuch as it deals with pirate life on the shores of Merrie England, and has been a big success on the professional stage in New York. However the plot is quite different from that of "Captain Applejack", and it is in no way a duplication. No dream-pirates stalk a visioned deck this time but the very crew of Old Flint's ship lures treasure-laden ships to doom upon the coastal rocks.

Mr. Illingworth is displaying his usual skill as director, and both play and cast are undoubtedly equal to the much applauded combination of last year. Furthermore "Whappin' Wharf" is delightfully punctuated with zesty pirate chanteys of the good old days, which are under Mrs. Illingworth's direction. It will be remembered that the mid-winter play is the most elaborate production of the year at Swavely, and judging by past performances this and other years, Manassas will find an interesting and a worth-while entertainment at the school this Saturday.

The cast:

The Duke Melville Taff, Jr.
Patch-Eye William Keel
The Captain Clifton Southworth
Red Joe William Collins
Darlin' Elwyn Pond, Jr.
Betsey John Kress
Old Meg Francis Cunningham, Jr.
Sailor Captain Preston Lyon
Sailors—Daniel J. Carr, Charles E. L. Collier, Robert Marks.
Pirates—Daniel J. Carr, Marion White, John S. Benben, Edwin Brainard, Jr., George Davis, Stewart O'Neill, Jr., J. P. Andrews.

General Assembly Enacts Legislation For About 14 Miles of Highway For County.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS APPROVES ROUTE PLAN

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Manassas, various community organizations and citizens of the county interested in the building by the State of a cross county highway attended the meeting on Tuesday of the Board of Supervisors in the interest of having the route of road fixed and seeking to have the supervisors endorse the plan.

The General Assembly has enacted legislation approving additional mileage to be added to the State highway system, of which Prince William County will receive approximately 14 miles.

Supervisors Approve.

The Supervisors asked the State Highway Commission in 1928 for a cross county road beginning at Richmond-Washington Highway, Route 31, Lee Highway and to connect with Lee-Jackson Highway. The commission has already taken into the system that portion of the cross county road from Route 31 to Dumfries and to Manassas, and inasmuch as this is so the Supervisors decided on Tuesday to adhere to its former resolution and expressed the hope that the commission will add such additional mileage as the county is entitled to by continuing said cross county road from Manassas to Lee-Jackson Highway, or beginning at the Loudoun County line. The board also recommends that the road pass through or by Stone House, Catharpin and Hickory Grove.

MANASSAS CHAPTER, U. D. C. WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY

SOIL AND GRAVEL WILL BE HELPED

Highway Commission To Treat 1,393 Miles of Road In Virginia.

Approximately 125 miles of soil and gravel roads in the vicinity of Richmond will be treated with oil during the spring and summer, it was announced yesterday at the office of the State Highway Department. Bids were asked on sufficient bituminous material to treat 1,393 miles of road, under a program of improvement which calls for nearly 500 miles more oiling than was done last year.

The 1930 program lists 620.1 miles to be treated with oil for the first time, and 773.5 miles to be re-treated. When completed the oiled mileage of the State highway system will be raised from 1,275 miles as at present to 1,895 miles.

The leading farm-to-market stretches that will be oil-treated near Richmond are the following: Coatesville to Gum Tree, in Hanover County; Montpelier on Route 420 to the Hanover-Henrico County line; from New Kent Courthouse to West Point; from the intersection of Routes 19 and 417 at Maidens south, several miles on the Huguenot Springs Road; from a point on Route 19 ten miles west of Goochland to Cartersville County; from Chesterfield Courthouse to Chester; from Tobaccoville on Route 406 and nine miles from there toward Namoxine in Amelia County, and Route 448 from Blackstone to McKenny.

Bids Are Sought.

The bituminous material for which bids will be received at the office of the Highway Department, March 16 at 10 a. m., includes 6,117,900 gallons cold surface treatment and 238,000 gallons hot surface treatment; 968,000 gallons cold patch and 39,400 gallons joint filler, and 3,152,000 gallons of applying material.

The material will be delivered to highway department residences and work will be started soon afterward and continued as the weather may permit until finished.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, Mrs. Annie K. Watson, who departed this life nine months ago today, June 21, 1929. Gone, but not forgotten.

Nine months have passed, dear mother Since you were called away. How well do I remember, That sad and dreary day.

I have only your memory, dear mother To remember my whole life through. And your's is the one, I shall never forget.

Oh how hard we tried to save you, Prayers and tears were all in vain. Happy angels came and bore you, From this world of toil and pain.

What is home without a mother, The richest blessing God can send; And when we lose our darling mother We have lost our dearest friend.

Keep her Jesus, in Thy keeping, Until we reach the heaven shore. Then, oh Master, let us have her, To love and have her as before.

By her devoted son.

WILLIE.

REDUCING SWEET POTATO LOSSES.

Sweet potatoes, unlike most other vegetable crops, suffer their heaviest losses after the crop is stored. Most growers consider this popular crop easier to grow than to keep. The average yield is reduced fifty per cent by fungus diseases, the majority of the losses being sustained after the potatoes are harvested. Methods of reducing this loss must be applied principally before the plants are grown, the most effective treatments being applicable at this time of the year when hotbeds are made and seed planted.

Sweet potatoes rank next to potatoes in total crop value among vegetables in the United States. Despite heavy losses from disease, there has been a marked increase in acreage each year during the past three decades. There was an increase of approximately 400 per cent in this crop between 1909 and 1919. However, during this same period, storage losses ranged from 26 to 32 per cent of the total crop. This rate is considerable higher among small growers for home use. These losses are largely preventable.

Black rot occurs wherever sweet potatoes are grown. This disease also effects the morning glory. The infection is introduced into the plant beds and follows the crop through into storage where its damages are heaviest. There are several other rots, varying in their intensity in various parts of the country, such as soft rot, stem rot, soil rot, selerotium rot, white rust, scurf, and septoria leaf-spot. Most of these infections have their origin in contaminated seed and soils of hotbeds and the areas where the crop grows.

Sanitation is the cheapest and most effective measure in combatting these diseases. Use of disease-free seed is of primary importance. Do not use seed from crops where rot infections prevailed. Origin and freedom from disease should be the guide in purchasing seed. Purity should be guaranteed. Then, too, no matter how sure the grower be regarding disease absence from his crop, seed should be treated before planting. The seed should be soaked for 8 to 10 minutes in water to which corrosive sublimate has been added at the rate of one ounce to 8 gallons of water. Boards and other equipment of the hotbed should be scrubbed with a solution of one part formaldehyde to 50 parts water. Hotbed soils should also be sterilized in the same manner recommended for tomatoes and cabbage. This can be done by soaking the soil with boiling water at the rate of one gallon to every 256 cubic inches of soil, or the formaldehyde treatment, using a solution of one quart of formaldehyde to 13 gallons of water, at the rate of one-half gallon of this mixture to each square foot of soil. These sanitation recommendations are essential in avoiding contamination of new plants from disease fungi of the previous year's crop.

Long rotations should be employed on sweet potato ground. This is a safe practice in keeping the growing soil clean. All vines and other refuse should be destroyed after digging. Destruction in vegetable soil sanitation always means burning.

Black rot comes from diseased seed and contaminated beds. Stem rot is the result of a soil parasite. Foot rot is promoted by the same source as black rot, as is also scurf or rust. New Jersey growers have found the application of 300 to 400 pounds of sulphur to the acre a month before setting plants an effective means of reducing scurf losses. Soil rot is believed to be heavier in alkaline soils, and is similar to scab in Irish potatoes. There is no known control of white rust. Leaf-spot is not a serious disease. As stated before, almost all storage rots are caused by these fungi entering the potato as it is dug and taken into storage. It is well to remember that the skin of the potato must be broken before these fungi can enter. This emphasizes the importance of special care in harvesting and handling.

Modern storage methods will aid greatly in reducing these annual losses. The potatoes should be placed directly in crates or hampers when dug to avoid the extra handling. Exposure to the sun for a time to permit the potatoes to dry as much as possible will reduce moisture excesses before storing. Storage houses should be thoroughly cleaned, using blue vitrol at the rate of one pound in five gallons of water for scrubbing. The house temperature should be maintained at 80 degrees for two weeks until potatoes are dry. Crates or hampers should permit free passage of air. The ventilation problem is an important phase of sweet potato storage. After the crop is dried in this recommended temperature for two weeks, the temperature should be reduced gradually to 55 degrees and kept at that constant level. In ventilating the storage house, be careful to avoid chills, as sudden drops in temperature always prove favorable to rot spread.

It is unfortunately the lot of most sweet potato growers to be compelled to sell their crop at harvest time. But this, perhaps, has been caused mainly by efforts to prevent heavy storage losses. The resulting low prices from this practice of selling has caused many growers to curtail production. Attention to these precautionary measures will largely prevent transmission of these diseases to the new crop, and the grower will be safe in storing the crop until higher prices prevail. But in all cases, sanitation is the key to increased sweet potato profits.

Adults, too, prefer

"NO DOSING" for COLDS

When Vicks introduced the better method of treating colds externally it was especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids "dosing," which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

Each year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Just rubbed on, Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled, and, at the same time, acts through the skin like a plaster.

WORKS BOTH WAYS.

Some brilliant brain recently suggested that public service corporations would be thrown into a panic if values reported for purposes of taxation were used as the basis of values for rate making purposes.

The sponsor of the idea failed to state that if such a policy was adopted other properties than utilities would also be thrown into a panic.

How many office building owners would wish to have their rent schedules based on the taxable values of their properties? How many land owners would wish to have the selling prices of their properties based on their assessed value?

When proposing that tax assessments be used for valuation purposes, it is short-sighted to figure that panic over the process would be limited to public utilities.

FARM ROAD MOVEMENT.

The benefits that would accrue to the nation from the construction of an adequate system of farm-to-market roads in every state are all but incalculable.

At present two-thirds of all farmers are barred from their market-places during from two to six months of the year by unimproved roads which become in winter a succession of impassable mud holes. Improved roads would not only benefit the farmer, but many small towns would receive a larger amount of farm business.

A good secondary road system would offer great attractions to the pleasure seeker, by opening up new country and relieving congestion on main trunk highways, thereby reducing accident hazards.

It has been estimated that the average farm family must pay $7.63 to a doctor for each home call, and that 13 per cent of farmers must pay $15.00. Poor roads are directly responsible for this comparatively high cost of necessary medical attention.

The farmer, as one of our greatest taxpayers, and a representative of our most basic industry, is entitled to all-year usable roads.

SOAKING THE TAXPAYER.

It is argued that municipally-owned public utilities should be exempted from taxation on the ground that they are operated for the public benefit and that to tax them would burden the consumers.

There is no such thing as real tax-exemption from the public's standpoint.

It costs so much to run a local unit of government and the money must be raised. If one business is not taxed, what would be its share must be borne by other businesses.

It would be equally logical to argue that privately-owned utilities should be tax-exempt because they are likewise of public benefit and their taxes are reflected in the bills paid by consumers.

Every business, whether it is publicly, or privately owned, should pay its own way and stand on its own feet. Tax discrimination is, in effect, class legislation.

If municipally-owned utilities, in order to compete with private companies, must be "tax-exempt", they are an unjustified financial drain on all taxpayers, many of whom cannot be furnished the "tax-exempt" service extended to a privileged few.

A BELOVED AMBASSADOR.

Sir Esme Howard, in sailing for England today, carries with him the profound respect of the American people. Those who know best the quality of his diplomatic work regret keenly that the time for retirement from the service of his country should have come so soon.

Sir Esme succeeded a long line of distinguished British ambassadors, including the erudite Lord Bryce, who probably knew more about the history and the spirit of American institutions than any other foreigner. Not one of his predecessors, however, made a deeper or a more favorable impression upon official Washington than the man who leaves today for his home across the sea. He was always the ambassador of good will and mutual understanding. Whether he was called upon to decide the question of Mrs. Gann's standing at dinner parties, or to act as spokesman of Great Britain in a delicate international matter, he was ever the gentleman and the far-seeing diplomat.

Sir Esme succeeded along lined with the prevailing sentiment, both in his own country and in the United States, is not one who fears for the future of the relationship between the two great English-speaking peoples. At a dinner given in his honor before he sailed from New York he took occasion, in his capacity as a private citizen, to speak plainly in a matter which of late journalists, here and abroad, have discussed rather freely. The retiring ambassador believes that not only by reason of the ties of kinship linking the people of Britain and America, but because of the economic situation, war between the two countries is unthinkable. This was his farewell message to America.

If the friendship which now marks the relations of Britain and America is perpetuated, Sir Esme will be privileged to take to himself, if he is so inclined, much of the credit. It is taken for granted, although there is no official ground for the assumption, that he was largely instrumental in bringing together President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald in the historic personal conference which resulted in the naval parley at London. Success of the efforts now being put forward over there will bring further glory to a brilliant diplomatic career.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

LOSES BET—AND CAR.

A certain gentleman bet his friends he could drop a lighted cigarette into the gasoline tank of his car and that the cigarette would simply be put out. His friends took him up and the test was made.

When he dropped the cigarette there was no hesitation or delay—he lost his bet and his car, too. All he gained were some painful burns, a lot of excitement and an entirely new knowledge of the properties of gasoline!

Perhaps the gentleman had read somewhere that liquid gasoline will not ignite—an exceedingly dangerous half-truth. You can't have gasoline in an open vessel without also having the deadly dangerous gasoline

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR MARCH 2, 1930.

The International Sunday School Lesson for March 2 is "Jesus Teaching About Himself"—Matthew 11:2—12:50.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

One of the really significant, and at the same time pathetic, symptoms of contemporary life is the number of groups of followers of the occult and esoteric, who meet every week in hotels and halls in our great cities. Conventional Christians know little or nothing about these seekers after "truth". Yet their number is legion; and they represent a need which the churches seem to be not satisfying.

As I have watched groups of well-dressed, cultivated folk, mostly women, sitting eager and attentive at the foot of turbaned Hindu cults, I have pondered the problem of why these things should be. Most of these talks that I have heard have been a conglomeration of sheer showmanship, — inaccurate orientalisms which makes one who knows the East smile at the ignorance and gullibility of the hearers—and a hodge-podge of the philosophies and religions of the decadent nations.

Stripped of their picturesque trappings, these occult teachings are only diluted pantheism, Hellenic egoism, and rituals of breathing and introspection. Most of their devotees pass from one cult to another, forever unsatisfied; yet flattered by the assurance that they are not like other folk, but are a superior order of spirits and minds, qualified to be "seekers". Poor things; they have been trying to feed their souls upon stale straw, dug up from the scrap-heaps of the Orient's ancient failures.

On The Wrong Trail.

These wandering weaklings—for one never meets a rugged thinker or thoroughly educated person among them—represent the self-pitiful group of society. Also they stand as evidence that the churches have failed to meet the spiritual needs of some sensitive souls. Unsatisfied by ordinary church services, they have turned to these poor substitutes.

Over against all occultism and self-worship (I sometimes think that the Japanese sacred Shinto symbol, which is a mirror, to be found in the holy of holies of Japan's greatest shrines, no unfairly embodies this idea of religion), may sensibly be put the clear teachings of Jesus. The Master made no appeal to the self-esteeming few, whose boast is that they are different from and superior to the masses. His message was directed to the great body of mankind, the high and the low, alike, grouping them as one in their common human needs. His teaching, He declared, was understandable by the lowly and the child-like. The only ones from whom its meaning is hidden are the proud in mind and arrogant in heart. And His doctrine is best revealed by His deeds.

A Prophet's Prison Mood.

"There are no liars like the sensations of our bodies", says one of Kipling's characters. A deal of feeling that considers itself spiritual doubt is only physical weariness or indigestion. Even John the Baptist, the Forerunner, who had himself baptized and recognized Jesus, fell under the prison mood of depression, after all, he might not have been mistaken. Could it be that Jesus was not the expected Messiah?

Everybody understands that state of mind. Dark hours of discouragement and despair come to all of us, wherein we distrust ourselves, our dearest friends, our past experiences, our work, our future, our faith itself. Usually, the cure is fresh air, exercise and a change of scene. One Luther's wife, according to a familiar story, appeared in mourning. The great reformer inquired the reason. "Is not God dead?" inquired the shrewd woman, thus dramatically rallying the sagging spirits of her down-hearted husband. Yes, we all can understand the prison mood of vapor. And the glowing butt must first pass through the vapor, which is ignited by the smallest of sparks!

This incident should be a warning to all that gasoline ignites easily. Great property damage results every year from accidents with petroleum and its products and 1928 indicated a total fire loss from this cause of more than $15,250,000.

You wouldn't play with dynamite. Give gasoline the same degree of respect!

the brave Baptist. He at least had the wisdom to send messengers to Jesus to ask, bluntly and openly, the questions that were torturing his soul.

Religion's Basic Proof.

If our Lord had been a theologian, He might have written John a profound letter, buttressing His claims by quotations from Scripture and by deep logic. Instead, He merely said:—wise Physician of souls!—"Go back and tell John what you have seen: the sick cured, the blind given sight, the dead raised, and the poor receiving the Gospel."

Such was the habit of the Master's mind. He would have every tree judged only by its fruits. The best proof that He was the Messiah was that He was doing Messiah-work. He did what He did because He was what He was. Christianity's unanswerable apologetic is the kind of work it does in the world. Jesus met human needs divinely; and content with these tidings, John went serenely to a hero's death.

Spurgeon, preaching upon Elijah's duel with the priests of Baal, upon the text, "The God that answereth by fire, let him be God", made the application, "The God that answereth by hospitals, by orphanages, by happy homes, by noble lives, by human ministry, let Him be God." Look broadly at the differences between Christian nations and pagan nations; between godly communities and godless communities; between Christian homes and Christless homes, if you would find the simplest and most unanswerable apologetic for Christianity.

The Statue in the Hospital.

Tourists go to the famous Lutheran church in Copenhagen, where Thorwaldsen's "Christ and the Twelve Apostles" may be seen. I like better, perhaps because of its setting, the replica of that same statue of Jesus which stands in the rotunda of the main building of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. The heroic white marble figure seems to be in the act of bestowing, from its outstretched hand, peace upon every sufferer. The interpretation inscribed at the base of statue is, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." This is Christ in characteristic attitude.

These words from our Lesson are its keynote. They were spoken in a land where many of the people were overburdened. No traveler ever forgets the "hamala", the human beasts of burden, in the Near East. Often one man carries two or three hundred pounds on his back. And the load of poverty and oppression was as great as the burden of toil. How the hearts of such men would leap at the figure used by Jesus.

We may not forget that He who spoke of yokes was a carpenter, and had skillfully made many an easy yoke. I cherish memories of an old-fashioned carpenter shop in Nazareth, where the carpenter sits on the floor, amidst the fragrant chips, and fashions yokes with primitive tools, just as Jesus used to do. The Teacher always knew what He was talking about.

Easily to be perceived in this summons to peace, "Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me", is the profound truth that knowledge comes by discipleship; they who accept the yoke are the ones who come to know the Master. "If any man will do the will he shall know the doctrine." To understand Christ, we must follow Him. For His self-revelation is in His service.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH.

Questionnaire On Public Health.

CHAPTER VII.

Q. What are the principal diseases which are carried by suctorial insects?

A. Yellow fever and malaria which are carried by different varieties of mosquitoes and typhus fever which is certainly carried by the body louse and may be carried by the bedbug.

Q. Do all mosquitoes carry yellow fever and malaria?

A. No. There are many varieties of mosquitoes and only one of these, the Stegomyia, can carry yellow fever. Malaria can only be conveyed by one or two species of the group known as Anopheles. We do not have yellow fever now in this country.

Q. How can we tell whether a mosquito will or will not carry malaria?

A. The culex mosquito, which is the most numerous form in this country, can be identified by its position when at rest. It stands parallel to the wall or on anything upon which it is resting. To the contrary, the Anopheles that labor and are heavy laden, and which carries malaria stands with its body perpendicular to its resting place.

Q. Can we recognize these mosquitoes while they are in the larval state?

A. Yes. The Anopheles larvae lie in the water and parallel with the surface; the culex larvae are almost perpendicular.

Q. Will only the louse or bedbug carry typhus fever?

A. That is difficult to answer. It is known that the louse will carry this disease and it is virtually certain that the bedbug will; but typhus has occurred in places where it would seem impossible to have had either lice or bedbugs. So there are probably other insect carriers.

Q. What are the principal diseases carried in the bowel discharges?

A. Typhoid fever, dysentery, some forms of diarrhea, infantile paralysis and the illnesses caused by intestinal parasites (worms).

Q. How may these diseases be prevented?

A. The only sure way is sanitation, by which we mean the disposal of human waste matter in such a way that it can not by any means ever reach the mouth of another human being.

Q. How are the bowel discharges of one person carried to another?

A. The germs of the bowel diseases are carried by flies which have access to filth. They can be carried in water or in milk. They can get on food which is handled by careless people who are carriers of disease germs even though they do not have the diseases.

Q. Where are these diseases most prevalent?

A. In small towns where sanitation is poor and flies circulate freely.

Q. Where are these diseases least prevalent?

A. In cities which have complete sewer systems, protected public water supplies and rigid milk inspection.

Q. Can we vaccinate against these diseases?

A. We can get protection from typhoid fever for a greater or less time through the use of typhoid vaccine; but this is the only diseases among the group against which we can secure even a limited protection. The only safe method of protection is sanitation.

COMMUNITY COOKING

COMMUNITY cooking, a modern development foretold by Henry Ford, is actually here. It has come about without our realizing it. This development is due to the canning industry. In addition to the plain foods in cans which can be served cold, just as they are, or heated and served, there are now many made dishes all ready to heat and serve.

These made dishes include Beef à la Mode, Hungarian Style Goulash, Chicken Curry, Chicken à la King, Chop Suey, Lobster Newburg, baked beans, alone, with tomato sauce and with pork, fruits for salad (which should be chilled, not heated), succotash, cod fish balls, cod fish cakes, deviled crabs, Boston Brown Bread, Chili Con Carne, plum puddings, spaghetti with tomato sauce, roast beef, beef stew, beef steak with onions, chicken tamales, Irish stew, stewed kidney, liver with bacon or onions, roast mutton, sausage with sauerkraut, boiled tripe, roast veal, fruit cake, Flukebelle, creamed white potatoes, more than two dozen soups, whole chickens roasted in cans, and even an entire Mexican dinner sent to you all in one package.

There Are Others, Too

With this wide variety of canned made dishes from which to select, it is possible to devise nearly any kind of dinner with a minimum of cooking and preparation, or even with no preparation at all. And the above list is not all-inclusive. There are other made dishes, canned in small quantities, from which to choose.

One of the latest made dishes to be put on the market are the whole cooked chickens in a tin can. Before being cooked, the birds are inspected for wholesomeness by representatives of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, operating under a nation-wide inspection service for the condition and quality of dairy and poultry products.

A Complete Mexican Meal

Here's how the whole Mexican meal in one package, which we mentioned above, can be made into either a luncheon or a dinner. This package contains a can of tamales, a can of chili con carne, a can of Mexican style beans, two cans of deviled sandwich spread and a bottle of chili powder. The menu for the luncheon to be made from these materials plus one or two staple foods is

Bean Salad on Lettuce Leaf
Deviled Sandwich Spread
Sandwiches
Hot Shoe-String Potatoes
Tamales with Chili Con Carne
Rolls
Coffee

For the salad, you use the can of Mexican style beans, a cup of diced celery, one-half cup chopped nuts (preferably vacuum-packed), two tablespoons chopped onions, four tablespoons heavy salad dressing, one tablespoon salt, and the lettuce leaves.

The sandwich filling consists of one can of Deviled Sandwich Spread, one dill pickle, chopped fine four tablespoons mustard salad dressing, two hard boiled eggs and salt.

For the Shoe-String potatoes cut one-half pound potatoes in strings and cook them in hot, deep fat. Drain, and then sprinkle with salt and some of the chili powder.

Serve on each plate two tamales with the chili con carne poured over as a sauce. All the products in the package are ready to serve and require only heating. The beans and chili con carne should be heated fully twenty minutes in the can before opening, and the tamales thirty minutes.

A Red Hot Dinner

Here's the red hot dinner that can be made with the contents of this package and a few staple articles of food such as are found in every kitchen. The menu is

Tamales covered with Chili Con Carne
Deviled Sandwich Spread Croquettes
garnished with Parsley
Escalloped Corn and Oysters
Mexican Style Beans
Bread Mexican Salad Coffee

Serve the first course as an appetizer just as it comes from the cans. For the Deviled Sandwich Spread Croquettes you need the two cans of Spread, one cup of mashed potatoes, two hard boiled eggs, two tablespoons minced parsley, Mix, mould, roll in crumbs, in raw beaten eggs, then in crumbs again, and cook in deep fat.

SWAVELY NOTES

The Mid-Winter Festival last week was a very successful affair. Excellent food, prettily lighted and decorated tables, and good music characterized the dinner; the afternoon tea-dance was very enjoyable, while in the evening, the hall, gaily decorated in the cubist or futuristic manner, the charming dresses of the ladies and the inspiring music of a good orchestra all contributed to make the dance a very delightful one.

On Saturday evening next, March 1, the Swavely Players will present the pirate play, "Wappin' Wharf".

In a hard-fought game of basket-ball, on Tuesday afternoon, our team defeated the Devitt School of Washington, by 30-20.

At the meeting of the Faculty Reading Club last evening the discussion of the farce, "Master Pierre Patelin", was led by Mr. Taber.

The fine weather of the last few days has already brought out some golf enthusiasts, although the "greens" are not yet fit to be used.

The basket ball game yesterday, against Washington and Lee High School, resulted in another victory for Swavely by 43-35.

VIRGINIA:

AT A CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF PRINCE WILLIAM, CONTINUED AND HELD AT THE COURT HOUSE THEREOF, ON FEBRUARY 7, 1930.

PRESENT: HON. HOWARD W. SMITH, JUDGE.

Re: Petition of County School Board for a Special Election to take the sense of the qualified voters in Gainesville School District on the Question of Erecting an additional School Building, Furnishing and Equipping the same, and repairing another School Building, in said District.

The County School, Board of Prince William County having presented to the court its petition and exhibits therewith filed, in pursuance of Chapter 34 of the Code of Virginia, setting forth that it had adopted a resolution duly spread upon its minutes, declaring that an additional school house for high school purposes is necessary in Gainesville School District, said County, and furnishing and equipping the same, and repairing the colored school house at or near Thoroughfare, in said District, for the school children of school age in said district, and it being shown to the court that the school funds of said district will not be sufficient to provide such additional facilities, which said resolution has been confirmed and approved by a resolution of the Board of Supervisors of said county; that said exhibits filed with said petition, show that the plans, specifications and probable cost of such additional facilities have been approved by the Division Superintendent of Schools, as well as the Superintendent of Public Instruction; that it is the desire of said board to take the sense of the qualified voters of Gainesville School District (which is the same as Gainesville Magisterial District), as to whether it shall issue bonds for that purpose in accordance with the prayer of said petition; that the location of said school house is to be in the town of Haymarket; said District; that the amount of the bonds to be issued for that purpose is to be $40,000.00, with interest not to exceed six percentum per annum, payable either annually or semi-annually, to be redeemable or payable at a period not exceeding thirty years from the date of said bonds at the option of the school board;

Therefore the court doth order a Special Election to be held in Gainesville School District (being the same as Gainesville Magisterial District), at the regular voting precincts therein, on the 28th day of March, 1930, which election shall in all particulars be conducted and held as provided by law for general or special elections, at which election all qualified voters of said district shall pass upon the question whether such bonds shall be issued or not for the said $40,000.00. It is further ordered that the Clerk of this court shall give notice of such special election by publication thereof in the Manassas Journal, printed and circulating in said county, and the Sheriff of said county shall post notices of said election in at least ten conspicuous points in said School district, which notices shall state the amount of the bonds to be issued, the purpose of the proposed issue thereof, and whether the said bonds shall be a lien on all the property in said District or a part thereof.

MANASSAS HIGH DEFEATS McLEAN

Ambrose and Gilroy Lead Local Team To Comfortable Victory.

By BEVERLY MITCHELL.

The fast traveling Manassas High School five registered another decisive victory to its growing list on February 24; they downed the "strong" McLean team 29-17. For the first four or five minutes' play was very close, but after that the Manassas cagers drew away in a swift fashion. Gilroy and Ambrose were again the leading scorers with 8 and 10 points, respectively.

Girls Game Is Tie.

The girls game was an uphill affair for the local sextet. The 14-4 lead of the McLean girls was almost an insurmountable lead in the small time left for play. However, the Manassas team arose nobly, and, led by Beachley and Sowers, tied the score. A dispute about a technical foul which gave McLean a tie seemed somewhat questionable.

On the 21st the Orange team journeyed to Fredericksburg where they were defeated by a large margin.

HEN IN LAYING HOUSE WORTH MANY IN BARNYARD

A hen in the laying house is worth a dozen in the barnyard in September and October, when egg prices start to soar. Farmers seeking to obtain the utmost profit from their poultry flocks should make an effort to have their pullets ready to lay by the middle of December, thereby getting the full advantage of fall and winter egg prices, market experts point out.

Early-hatched chicks offer the simplest solution to the problem. Chicks hatched before May 1 should be ready to start laying during September, if the stock is good, and proper care is given the growing pullets.

Many farmers, seeking to effect economies in the first cost of chicks, often put off purchasing until late in the season. This is merely a case of false economy, since late-hatched chicks are late in coming into production, and are not laying during the period when eggs are at their highest. The early-hatched chick returns many times the net profit of the late-hatched chick, in the normal course of events.

In response to this tendency to obtain chicks early in the year, hatcheries usually are ready to deliver by March 1, and some even earlier. Chicks hatched at this period of the year are husky and strong, and capable of quick growth, provided proper treatment is given them. Leading hatcheries of the country, who operate under the slogan, "Hatchery Chicks For Greater Profits", to provide good quality chicks, are advising their customers to obtain early chicks in order to reap the advantage of the high egg market.

Pullets ready for the laying house in early September more than pay for their original cost in the first few weeks. Figures compiled by agricultural experimental stations indicate that the profits from early-hatched chicks are from three to five times as great as from late-hatched chicks, under normal circumstances.

LYMAN PATTERSON DIED SATURDAY

Distinguished Aviator Crashed
In Baltimore Following Motor Failure.

Major Lyman Patterson, Maryland National Guard, whose plane crashed from a height of 200 feet at Logan Field, Baltimore, on Friday evening, due to motor cutting out following the take off, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital several hours later.

Funeral services held at St. Michael and All Angels Church, Baltimore, on Monday, February 24, were conducted by the rector Rev. C. E. McAllister, assisted by Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Manassas. The latter officiated at Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia, later in the afternoon where the distinguished flyer was laid to rest with full military honors. The very large attendance at the services and many floral tributes testified to the high esteem and affectionate regard in which Major Patterson was held by a wide circle of friends. The pallbearers were officers of the Air Corps, Maryland National Guard.

The day of his death, upon the recommendation of the Militia Department of the State of Maryland, through Adjutant General Reckord, the Governor of Maryland approved orders promoting Captain Patterson to Major, Air Corps, in recognition of his long and distinguished record as a flying officer.

The deceased was the husband of Cathryn Capel Patterson, the wedding having taken place in Manassas on August 13, 1928, and the son of Mrs. Ballantyne Patterson now residing here.

Major Patterson was born in Baltimore, Md., in 1898. He attended Eastern College, Manassas, up to the time of the World War, at which time though not yet 18 years of age, he entered the aviation section, U. S. Army Signal Corps, as a flying cadet. He received his aeronautical technical training at the Army School established at Princeton, N. J. Graduating in 1917 he was ordered to Post Field, Texas, for flying training and upon finishing the course received the highest possible rating, being recommended to fly planes of all types including pursuit. Commissioner Second Lieutenant Air Service, U. S. A., in 1918 he was with his unit at Long Island, N. Y., under orders for France and awaiting transportation when the signing of the Armistice caused cancellation of the orders. Later he was detailed as a flying instructor at Bolling Field, D. C.

Leaving the Army to engage in business in Baltimore, he entered the Air Corps, Maryland National Guard, as Second Lieutenant, was promoted to First Lieutenant and to Captain and on February 22, the day of his death became a Major. He continued to fly a great deal and gained nationwide distinction as a pilot and was among the pilots in the United States having the greatest number of hours in the air.

The Governor of Maryland, and the Governor of West Virginia have written Mrs. Lyman Patterson expressing deepest sympathy. Last June when Governor Conley, of West Virginia, was scheduled to speak some 40 miles from the State Capitol and had been so delayed that he could not keep the appointment by train or motor car, Captain Patterson, who was in Charleston in the interest of aviation, offered his services and in 28 minutes landed the Executive who delivered his address. This was Governor Conley's first airplane flight.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Cathryn Capel Patterson; his mother, Mrs. Ballantyne Patterson, Manassas; five brothers, Lieut. Col. W. L. Patterson, U. S. Army; Col. Robert U. Patterson, U. S. Army; Major Fred W. Patterson, retired, publisher of The Manassas Journal; Jeffrey B. Patterson, Philadelphia, and A. Balfour Patterson, Lake Charles, La.; an aunt, Mrs. C. E. L. Hodge, Manassas, and several nieces and nephews.
