The circuit court has been busy with a number of minor cases this session. The only two of importance were the trials of Bob Watson for alleged assault on W. I. The other was that of Randolph Massie, the negro who caused a disturbance at the District Home that Mr. Griffith, who was in fragile health, died of a heart attack. The jury gave Randolph a fine of two hundred dollars and was suspended sentence of six months.

Dawson, motion to suspend sentence of thirty days in a prohibition case. Mr. Dawson was also fined fifty dollars. W. S. Stokes, whose indictment was changed from driving drunk to reckless driving. Howard Wells, (prohibition offense). The case of Anne Peyton Robertson vs. A. W. Amphlett was continued. ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

No betrothal announcement of recent months has occasioned so much interest in Huntington and southern society as that of Miss Betty Jane Nelson and Mr. Taylor Vinson, which was informally announced on Saturday by the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Nelson, of Sixth avenue. Both Miss Nelson and Mr. Vinson are very prominent socially, and their marriage will unite two of the oldest and most distinguished families in the state. The bride, who is an important member of Huntington's younger social set, is a young maid of charming personality, greatly beloved, and has the advantages of much schooling and has traveled quite extensively abroad. She attended Miss Madeira's school in Washington, D. C., and received her A. B. degree at Smith college. She is an active member of the Junior Welfare league. Both her father, Mr. C. P. Nelson and grandfather, Mr. Houghton Robson, are among West Virginia's financiers. Mr. Vinson is the son of the late Col. Z. Taylor Vinson and Mrs. Vinson, and is well known and popular in both business and social circles. He, on both his paternal and maternal side, is a descendant of families who have been outstanding in the growth of Huntington, both socially and politically. He attended Woodberry Forest Preparatory school, and graduated in law from the University of Virginia, and is a member of Delta Phi fraternity. The wedding will be a brilliant church affair and will take place in April. Miss Nelson will receive flattering social attention prior to her marriage as a number of lovely parties are being planned.—Huntington, W. Va., Advertiser.

Miss Nelson is the niece of Mrs. Albert Speiden of Manassas and is well known in social circles here.

(Editorial)

Once upon a time, now almost forgotten, there was an international situation known as the World War. The manhood of America stepped in and insured the victory for the Allied Arms. We were with our boys, heart and soul, while they were fighting for our safety. Are we still with them? If so let us unite in promoting the establishment of a post of the American Legion in Manassas.

"A HOODOOED COON"

The play, "A Hoodooed Coon" to be given in Brentsville District High School Auditorium on Friday, February 13, at 8 p. m. is the most laughable one ever given here.

Franklin Hibbs who plays the star part as "Misery Moon" creates many mirth provoking moments in his fights with the colored cook in his efforts to collect $9 from the multi-millionaire Gideon Blair, this part being played by Lester Huff, who plays to perfection the part of the extremely cross old gentleman.

Paula Maleck who goes around trying to blow her husband with a bomb is played by Geraldine Shepherd.

Mrs. Ernest Patton as Samantha Slade the poor old maid who keeps trying her giddy best to get a husband will make you laugh till your teeth rattle.

Tutt the mysterious man always goes around saying, "Shhh" Not so loud" is splendidly played by Emory Gray.

Lulu the Jazz time girl who chants her troubles happily and gets married in the first act will surely amuse you. Lulu is played by Christine Hedrick. Eugene Hedrick plays the part of the bewildered ticket seller who always adds the "war tax."

Tom Risale, played by Otto Fitzwater, who has never seen Rosebud mistakes the old maid for her, and hires Tutt to impersonate himself, thinking the heiress will surely refuse to marry him.

Rosebud, played by Dorothy McTutt from asking to marry her, but Michael, pretends she is crazy to keep when she learns he is merely masquerading as Tom she nearly scares the life out of him.

The two girl friends are played by Pauline Wells and Janet Trenis. Little Miss La Point Trenis is the flower girl.

This play is being given for the benefit of the District School and we certainly hope every friend and patron of the school will be present. We issue a cordial invitation to our many friends in Manassas. A splendid orchestra will play between acts and Franklin Hibbs will entertain you with an extremely funny negro monologue.

Sweeney and two brothers, John and Thomas Harrington.

Although in poor health for some time, Mrs. Sinclair's death was a great shock, not only to her relatives but the many friends to whom she became endeared in her useful life time as a friend and neighbor. Many of these were able to attend the funeral.

ROAD TO PRESIDENT'S CAMP IS PLANNED

According to the oral announcement of Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur at the Department of the Interior on February 8, plans are being made by the National Park Service to construct a 20-mile highway from President Hoover's camp on the Rapidan River to Panorama, on the Blue Ridge Divide in the Shenandoah National Park Area.

Governor John Garland Pollard and Senators Carter Glass and Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, are urging the construction of this road to provide jobs for drought sufferers in the Shenandoah Valley area.

The Bureau of Public Roads is surveying the area, and as soon as Congress authorizes in the first deficiency bill now pending in joint committee conference for its construction, the work will be begun, and it is expected that the road will be completed during the summer.

Secretary Wilbur said if this construction is authorized, the road would be the first unit of the highway system for the proposed park. The funds to build this road are expected to be available in the National Park Service's $1,500,000 share of the $1,600,000 emergency relief appropriation.

HOME DEMONSTRATION REPORT

Names of communities in which Home Demonstration Agent worked: Blacksburg, Dumfries, Quantico, Nokesville, Bethel, Purcell, Manassas, Gold Ridge, Woodlawn, Haymarket, Greenwich, Catharpin, Cherry Hill, Woodbine; no girls clubs met 9; no women's groups met 6; no other meetings attended 18; no homes visited 43; no miles travelled, 1101; no letters written 76.

The Annual Meeting of Farm and Home Demonstration Agents which was held in Blacksburg was attended during the first week of January. The entire meeting was centered about Drouth Relief with general plans for the year program. Representatives from the various phases of farm industry talked before the group on outlook questions and recommended measures to meet these situations. Miss Miriam Birdsey from the Home Economics section of the Department of Agriculture was unusual good in her plans and suggestions for meeting the food scarcity.

4-H Club Leaders assisted most ably with the clothing work of the month by meeting with the groups and giving instruction in my absence. Plans for this were made at the December Leaders Meeting.

The Home Demonstration Club held their regular meetings taking up yard improvement and foods. A new Home Demonstration Group was organized at Haymarket. Ten women were present and voiced sentiment of others who could not attend. This group will follow the plan of work decided upon by the women of the county; taking home management, major and poultry and yard improvement as minors.

As an outgrowth of our nutrition work hot lunches have been installed in Purcell, Woodlawn, and Gold Ridge Schools during the month. Women of Nokesville Home Demonstration Club helped out by canning soup stock for the three schools. The Club Leaders are also helping with the planning and serving of these lunches. Miss Rena Ellicott is taking complete charge of the preparation of lunches at Gold Ridge.

The scoring of flocks of those entering the Poultry Improvement Contest was completed on January 31, when Miss Bessie Hodsdon came for that purpose.

TWIN CITY GOSSIP

(Woodbridge and Occoquan)

By by Louise, don't forget to come back home. We will be waiting for you, baby and dad. It is a long strip of water from the dear old U. S. A. to Germany. Louise is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Herring, of Featherstone Farms. We count the whole family in Twin City census.

In 1928 Louise was married to Jas. P. O'Laughlin of Washington, and now there are 'tackly three in the O'Laughlin family. The youngest being a little Miss seven months old. Mr. O'Laughlin is connected with the Federal Immigration Department as technical adviser. This is a very important government department, and as technical adviser it is said that Mr. O'Laughlin is especially fitted. He, with Mrs. O'Laughlin and baby Louise sailed on the Roosevelt from New York to Hamburg, Germany, Wednesday, the 4th, and will be in Europe for two years or more. Mrs. O'Laughlin says that she fully expects millions of dreams to come true as she visits the places of romance and historical interest in the Old World.

And now folks let us drop down to one of Twin City's suburbs. Dumfries is just like a Siamese twin to us. We are joined by a fine piece of rolling woodland where hoot owls hoot—Billy 'possum grins, and Peter Rabbit Lipperty lips by the smiling pool. The ladies of Dumfries want to play the "Old Gray Mare, she ain't what she used to be." They want to play the old tune on a piano all their very own. They have visualized this musical instrument in the church hall. One very dear old lady worked with as much vim as, "Ruth gleaning in the field." She worked out a full grown puzzle, and did so well $87.00 was her reward. This check the kind old soul turned over to the church committee to help purchase a piano. The ladies including Geo. Waters need exactly $113.00 more 'twix now and the 14th of February. Here is a chance for Dumfriesites to help with the widows mite. The amount of your gifts will decide which you want, piano or Jew's Harp.

Friends of Twin City: Whenever you have a dime to spend remember there are several nation-wide stores close by. Nation-Wide Stores are independent, and are run and owned by the same old storekeeper that helps you out when money is scarce and you need a little credit. Chain stores say: "Pay for what you get, or you don't get a thing."

GEORGE DENT.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of Our Darling Little Baby, Delmar McBryde Todd, who left us so sad one year ago today, February 12, 1930. Dearest little Delmar, God alone know how we miss you. How we long to see your loving little face.

And to hear your sweet voice. No one knows the silent heartaches. Only those who have lost can tell Of the grief that is borne in silence For the one we loved so well.

We loved you so we miss you In our memory you are always near. Loved, remembered, longed for you always.

Bringing many a silent tear. With your Saviour you are waiting In that upper garden, beautiful and fair.

You are waiting for our coming For there will be no parting there. May heavenly winds blow softly Over that sweet and silent grave Beneath lies the one we always loved But one whom we could not save. Some may think we are not lonely And do not miss you, dearest little Baby.

When at times they see us smile, Little do they know the heart aches That we suffer all the while Your little form is at rest Your cry forever still.

A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled. Dear is the grave where you are laid Sweet is your memory that will never fade.

Part of our lives lies buried beneath the sod, Where our dear little Baby sleeps. By his loving Father, Mother and Brother, Omer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Todd.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

If parents still have their children memorize a Bible selection each week. It will prove a priceless heritage to them in after years.

CURSING OR BLESSING—

Cursed is the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord.

Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is.—Jeremiah 17: 5, 7.

PRAYER

Lord, perfect that which concerneth me. Thy mercy endureth forever. Forsake not the works of Thine own hands.

THE SOUTH'S MARTYR

Hon. C. A. Sinclair of Manassas offers a prize each year to the school children for essays on Southern history in memory of his mother. This year the essay is to be on "Jefferson Davis, Christian gentleman and martyr."

What a beautiful tribute to the patriotic woman who guided his education and instilled in her son ideals of Christian gentility.

And to that quiet brave heroic man, Jefferson Davis, against whose defenseless form the shafts of malice, spite and fury were hurled for so many years by the bitter foes of the South, the civilized world has after sixty years accorded the martyr's crown.

PROPHECYING BETTER DAYS FOR FARMING

Wise and optimistic Roger W. Babson says this will be the best farming year the United States has known for a decade. He has been traveling around in the middle west and he ought to know. His prediction finds its basis in the following:

"The farmer was almost the first victim to go into the hospital and he will be the first to come out.

"It is the history of bad times that those industries which are hit first are the first to recover. It is also a part of history that the farm is one of the first business groups to emerge from a depression. This of course is because the farm is among the first to feel it. Some day we will learn how to deal with these up and down swings in business. In the meantime we are under the domination of certain inevitable laws of trade. When we push business up too high these laws invariably result in pressing it down again."

As a general thing Mr. Babson knows what he is talking about. It may be—and it certainly is sincerely hoped—that the farmer will be the first to recover, inasmuch as he was the first to be taken ill. But it seems that the prophet overlooks one important thing. The farmer may be first out of the hospital, but only too often he is left an invalid limping around until the next acute attack. He doesn't get on the top of prosperity's wave to the extent of being able to lay something up against another spell. About the time he gets "out of the woods" he is downed again. He can't wait on good times because bad times will not wait on him.

JOBS AS RELIEF

Harry Byrd's renewal of Governor Pollard's proposal to advance $50,000 to each county in the drought area, the money to be used to improve farm to market roads, merits the serious consideration of Congress, regardless of the agreement on the drought loan fund reported yesterday. The plan has many things to recommend it. It will provide remunerative labor for farmers whose crops were destroyed, it will benefit them permanently by improving the dirt roads over which they haul their produce, and it will cost the federal government nothing, as the loan will be repaid out of the annual federal aid for state highways.

Substitution of work for charity appealed to the drought relief chairmen of twenty one states, who indorsed the plan unanimously last November at the Washington conference. It had received the support it deserved from the administration tens of thousands of farmers who are now dependent on charity for food would be self-supporting today. Federal loans for the construction of state highways cannot serve the same purpose. Farmers cannot work except in the vicinity of their homes, if their wages are to be of full benefit to their families. Also, a large part of the dollar which goes into concrete highways is spent for materials and machinery. Under the Pollard plan almost all the money would be spent for human labor.

However, consideration of Mr. Byrd's suggestion should not interfere with the Senate plans to make $25,000,000 available to feed human beings in the drought area who cannot be cared for by other agencies. Failure to go through with this program, with or without approval of the president, would be the next thing to painting on the Capitol the warning: "None but the wealthy need apply."

One other thing must be borne in mind. If farmers are to be assisted by road jobs, the loans must be made available immediately and the work started without delay. For it would be poor assistance to force a farmer to work on the roads to earn his bread when to do so he must neglect the all-important task of putting his next crop in the ground.

The administration seems to have given little thought to the length of time the suffering farm population must be fed and clothed. No one has seriously challenged the assertion that the destitute in the drought territory numbered about 1,000,000 is raised. As this would provide each individual with $10 it is obvious that the Red Cross does not think the relief work must be spread over a long period of time.

WHY ROME FELL

"Rome fell not because free corn was distributed but because a fat and fatuous aristocracy paid no attention to conditions that made free corn necessary. . . . Talk about the Roman corn laws! What will the historians of 4,000 A. D. say if they discover from the archives of 1931 that the United States government held 100,000,000 bushels of wheat in granaries, to avoid glutting the market with food supplies, while a million people vainly begged for flour in their cupboards and bread in their stomachs?—St. Louis, Mo. Star.

"THE GALLANT PELHAM"

Read by Mrs. M. M. Washington before the Manassas Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy

"Killed in action! At the age of 24 years. March 17, 1863. A native of Alabama, he entered West Point, where he graduated just as "The War Between the States" commenced. He lost no time in offering his services to the South, and received the appointment of First Lieutenant in the Confederate States Army. In the battle of Manassas he commanded a battery which he fought with that daring courage which afterwards rendered him so famous. He speedily attracted the attention of the higher Generals of the army, and General J. E. B. Stuart entrusted him with the organization of the battalion of Horse Artillery, which he subsequently commanded in nearly every battle of the war upon Virginia soil. "Here I knew him first," says the historian, John Esten Cooke, formerly of General Stuart's Staff, and author of "Surry of Eagle's Nest" and many other well known books. Major Pelham loved his profession for its own sake. From the moment when he took command of that famous corps, a new system of artillery fighting seemed to be inaugurated. "Trot, march," he yielded to "Gallop," with the battalion, and one of the officers said that he was "as gay as a schoolboy at a frolic. He was rightly regarded by Jackson and others as possessed of a very extraordinary genius for artillery; and when any movement of unusual importance was designed, Major John Pelham was assigned to the artillery to be employed. That unbending will had been tested often, and never had failed him yet. At Manassas, Williamsburg, Cold Harbour, Groveton, Oxhill, Sharpsburg, Shepherdstown, Kearnsville, Aldie, Union, Upperville, Markham, Barbours, Hazel River and Fredericksburg—at these and many other places he fought his horse artillery and handled it with heroic coolness. One day, when led to speak of his career, he counted up something like a hundred actions which he had been in—and in every one he had borne a prominent part. At Manassas, he took position in a place so dangerous that an officer, who had followed him up to that moment, rode away with the declaration that "If Peinam was fool enough to stay there, he was not." But General Jackson thanked him, as he thanked him at Cold Harbour, when the brave young soldier came back covered with dust, from fighting with the light of victory in his eyes. In all those hard combats, no ball or shell ever struck him. He seemed to bear a charmed life. The balls passed to the right or left, or overhead,—his hour had not yet come. It came at last, in that hard fight upon the Rappahannock, and he fell mortally wounded, struck in the head by a glancing shell, in the battle of Kellyville, with the battle cry on his lips, and the light of victory beaming from his eye. The memory of the "Gallant Pelham," beloved by all who knew him, his noble nature and purity of character, is enshrined as a sacred legacy in the hearts of all who knew him.

With a bright and spotless record, a brilliant and successful career, he fell,—the noblest of sacrifices, on the altar of his country, to whose glorious service he had dedicated his life from the beginning of the war.

Better Breakfasts

ARM breakfasts are needed in the winter months, but in order to make them a complete meal, they must be not only warm but varied. And, of course, we want plenty of canned and preserved fruits in winter to keep up our summer average of fruit consumption. Here's a suggestion for a breakfast which combines both these elements:

Baked peaches with Bacon
Poached Eggs on Whole Wheat Toast

Grilled Pineapples
Hot Beverage

To make the first dish arrange the peach halves from a No. 2 1/2 can cavity side up, in a shallow pan. Cut eight slices of bacon in halves, and lay crisscross over the peaches. Or, roll up the slices and place one in each peach. Pour the syrup around the fruit and bake in a hot oven—400°—for about twenty-five minutes. Serves eight.

That Hot Beverage

The hot beverage can be tea or chocolate or coffee. If it's the latter, here's a hint how to have it with all its original flavor and aroma. Buy it in vacuum packed cans and it will all be there. Coffee that is not packed in airtight containers loses from 45% to 70% of its flavor and aroma during the first twenty-four hours it is exposed to oxygen, and by the end of ten or twelve days of exposure, it has not only lost all of them, but has become noticeably stale. But freshly roasted coffee packed in a container which is absolutely impervious to all elements of air, moisture, and light, will retain its flavor and aroma for a long time.

OUR MARKET BASKET

A bulletin entitled "Buy Health Protection with Your Food Money" which has recently been published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture bears a title that might well be made the watch word of every homemaker. Perhaps at no time within the memory of the present home makers have both money and the home food supply been scarcer. Either gives sufficient reason for this necessity of wise purchasing. Since both are true it is urgently necessary that we plan and buy with a knowledge of the daily food needs of the body.

The markets are flooded with good wholesome foods available at lower costs than usual. Therefore nutritious foods can be obtained at relatively low cost if they are selected wisely.

Each day the body needs food to supply energy; to build body substance; and to regulate body processes. In the winter months particularly the body needs more of the energy giving class of foods than any other type. Breads, cereals, potatoes, sweets and dried beans come under that class. They are the least expensive foods available, are easily stored, and may be prepared and served in number of ways. The second class, or body building foods consists of lean meats, poultry, fish eggs, (salmon is very good and inexpensive), cheese, dried beans and peas, peanut butter, and milk are more expensive. Of these foods milk is far the cheapest and most easily and completely used.

For body building one quart of milk has the same food value as one pound of steak or nine eggs, or one quart of oysters. At the present price of foods let us consider that milk is the most usable and most economical food on the market. Milk is not only valuable for its protein and calcium but for its relatively high mineral and vitamin content. It can be prepared and served in a variety of ways and is a good food for all members of the family.

For the third class of foods, those that regulate the body processes, we may class fruits, fresh, dried, and canned, vegetables, whole grain cereals or breads, and water. At least one row vegetable or fruit is needed in the diet daily and should be supplemented with other green or yellow vegetables. Tomatoes or oranges might well come in the daily diet as one of the raw as cooked foods.

In the buying of our foods and the preparing of meals let us consider food value, the present price of foods, its relation to other foods being served and to the health of the family.

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive

Low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation mean a distinct saving to every purchaser

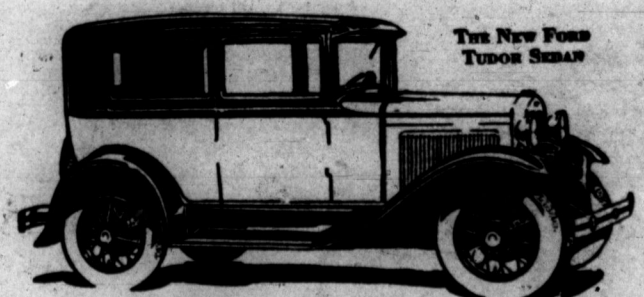

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

There are, in addition, three other features of importance to every far-seeing automobile owner... low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of fine craftsmanship in automobile engineering.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact... It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Cocke's Pharmacy Secures 3-Year Franchise for New and Celebrated Scientific Formula

Local citizens who have heard of the amazing results which have been accomplished by Sargon will be interested in the important announcement that this new and scientific formula can now be obtained.

Manufacturers of this revolutionary medicine have followed out the policy of selecting outstanding firms as exclusive agents in every city where it has been introduced. Leading druggists everywhere have acclaimed it as a triumph in the field of modern chemistry and have been eager to be among the first to supply it to their trade.

Never before in the history of the world has the progress of Medical Science been so rapid. One important discovery after another has been made which will have a far-reaching effect upon the health and well-being of mankind. Some of these discoveries are startling in the extreme and absolutely disprove many of the beliefs, practices and theories we have known for a life-time.

As scientific investigators learn more and more about the human anatomy, the practice of medicine changes—the old is discarded for the new.

As a result of this world-wide medical research, Science has learned that good health is largely governed and maintained by three vital organs and fluids of the body.

What is more important, we have learned that these organs and fluids can often be aided and strengthened by certain basic elements.

Having knowledge of these important discoveries, one of America's leading bio-chemists succeeded, after two and one-half years of laboratory research, in combining many of these basic elements in one formula—which many well be considered one of the greatest health-sustaining remedies of the age.

It is called Sargon. This formula and the formula for Sargon Soft Mass Pills, which are an essential and integral part of the treatment, are the property of the Sargon Laboratories and can be obtained by no other firm or individual in the world.

This new scientific treatment, which represents much of our latest knowledge on modern therapy, has been acclaimed by druggists throughout America as a triumph in the field of pharmaceutical chemistry.

With the needs of their customers uppermost in their minds, leading druggists everywhere have been eager to be among the first to supply it to their trade.

The exclusive agency for Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills for this city and section has been awarded to Cocke's Pharmacy.

Market Baskets
NOT Waste Baskets

Three hundred and fifty dollars a year is about the price each family in the United States has to pay for waste in distribution—that is, for wasteful methods used in bringing from manufacturers to consumers the goods sold in retail stores. This means that your family is charged nearly a dollar a day for sheer waste. An extra dollar a day—not for better service, not for better merchandise—but for careless, old-fashioned, roundabout ways of doing business. It is not necessary to reduce the quality of goods in order to reduce prices. It is only necessary to reduce waste. The best food is not costly; waste always is. A. & P., after years of experience, has solved the problems of eliminating all wastes in the distribution of food. That is why it is able to sell the best foods at the lowest prices. Its customers pay no tax in wastes.

RURAL POPULATION IN VIRGINIA DECLINING

In a statement issued recently by Hon. George W. Koener, Commissioner of Agriculture of Virginia, he states that the rural population in Virginia is declining at the rate of 8 per cent over a period of five years. A number of Virginia counties today have smaller population than was noted in the first census after their organization, Mr. Koener says. Reasons assigned for this, among others, are the industrial trend in Virginia, the unrest following the World War, psychological and actual, in that the youth of the land were not willing to follow in the beaten path offering scant monetary returns, the use of machinery and low prices limiting the employment of labor, and the time-worn "lure of the city" to the isolated.

Mr. Koener believes that all these things have contributed to the exodus from the country, but he also believes that a close analysis of the subject would place the major emphasis on declining prices for agricultural products and rising costs in production and accumulated debt. Industries are outstripping man power. In the nature of progress there can be no going overproduction and machinery table adjustment of the condition. The tide will continue to ebb and flow.

To those who return to try again, there are opportunities in a change of management—a smaller outlay—diversification worked out through a close scrutiny of market demand—strict application of the farm living from the farm.

Virginia soils in cooperation with her fine climate respond bountifully "living at home." Mr. Koener says many a stranded city dweller and many indigenous rural folk planning for the exodus would do well to consider this.

PULP WOOD OWNERS

Word has been received from our authorities advising against the cutting and storing of any more pulp wood. The markets are glutted, and unless you have shipping directions it will be unwise to cut more pulp wood. This wood deteriorates rapidly and heavy losses may occur. Our railroads are lined with thousands of cords awaiting a market, and many dollars of hard earned money is tied up in it.

Many acres of our farm lands have been plowed, with the result that they will catch and hold what moisture falls before planting time. Now that we have some moisture, in order to prevent its loss, as soon as possible disk every acre you intend to plow, before plowing. This will prevent the land from drying out and make plowing easier. The greatest benefit of a winter is the fact the loose soil on top will be turned into the bottom of the furrow in plowing, where the feeding roots of your crops must grow. One of the main reasons for our failures last year, next to lack of moisture, was the fact that plowing was put off till spring when the ground was too dry to plow, but the ground was plowed just the same, in the hopes that rains would soften it up. The surface soil that was turned into the bottom of the furrow was hard and cloddy and no matter how fine you made the surface soil, you could not fine the clods down in the bottom where the roots had to grow. The result was that in many cases the plants made a start, but when the feeding roots reached down into the cloddy soil the plants died, an unnatural death. Many of our best farmers are now diking every acre they can before plowing; and their crops show the benefit. If you are in doubt try it on apart of the farm at least.

POOR SEED CORN

At the state corn show recently held in Harrisonburg some startling disclosures were made in regard to the quality of the corn shown in the utility class. In this contest every ear was tested for germination and freedom from disease. In the white corn there was not one ear that was entirely free from disease, 9.6 per cent were slightly diseased, and 4 per cent were badly diseased. While the germination was 97 per cent, there is no question but that the development of the disease in the seed would seriously damage the crop before maturity.

The results with the yellow corn was but slightly better, in that only 2.2 per cent of the ears were free from disease, and 97.8 slightly diseased and none badly diseased. The average germination was 98 per cent.

As this corn was all selected for the corn show, and extra care taken in its selection, we can readily see the necessity of making germination tests. It is quite easy to pick ears for germination as is shown by the above results, but for disease only a careful germination test will disclose results. To those who expect to plant home grown seed we would advise do not, unless you make germination tests. Write or call the county agent for particulars about making germination tests.

SIMPLIFIED SWEETS

WINTER is the season when our bodies most need the extra heat and energy supplied by sweet desserts and succulent candies. It is the time of parties and dances for both children and grown-ups and of dinners with treat desserts to supply these needs. But, for children especially, these sweets should be simple, and should contain some of the fruits which are apt to be out of your winter menus when the season for fresh fruits is a thing of the past.

No one begrudges the time expended in making these delicacies, but some of them especially chocolate desserts and candies, are rather fussy and time consuming. So here is a suggestion to simplify the labor of making even the simplest of desserts.

This Saves Time

Why not save the time you formerly devoted to melting squares of unsweetened chocolate in a double boiler in making desserts and candies by using chocolate syrup from can? You will save not only time, but sugar, too, since canned chocolate syrup is already sweetened.

The proportions must be slightly different when you use the canned chocolate syrup from when you use the chocolate squares, so we are appending a few simple recipes which have been carefully tested and found delicious. Try them out, and then use them as a basis to formulate your own recipe for your favorite chocolate candy or dessert.

Chocolate Puddings

Chocolate Bread Pudding: Scald four cups of milk or of diluted evaporated milk, and add one cup of canned chocolate syrup. Pour over two cups of stale bread broken in small pieces, and let soak fifteen minutes. Add two slightly beaten eggs, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon vanilla, and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven, 325°, for about an hour or until a knife comes out clean. Serves eight.

Chocolate Rice Pudding: Scald four cups milk, add one cup canned chocolate syrup, one-third cup rice, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven, 325°, for about an hour. Stir often at first so rice will not stick to either or settle to the bottom. At the end let brown on top without stirring. Serves eight.

Custards and Candies

Chocolate Van Custards: Beat four eggs slightly and add three and one-half cups milk in which three-fourths cup canned chocolate syrup has been dissolved. Add a few grains salt and one teaspoon vanilla, pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow—325°—oven for about forty minutes or until a knife comes out clean. This will make twelve custards.

Chocolate Drop: Mix one cup canned chocolate syrup with two-thirds cup condensed milk and one-half teaspoon vanilla and combine with the contents of two 4 ounce cans of moist coconut. Drop by spoonfuls on greased pans and bake in a 350° oven for about fifteen minutes.

Chocolate Fruit Fudges
Grapefruit Fudge: Crush the contents of one 8-ounce can of grapefruit, add three tablespoons sugar and boil to a thick jam, about 225°. Meanwhile combine two cups sugar with two-thirds cup condensed milk, one-half cup water and one-half cup canned chocolate syrup, and boil to 230°. Add grapefruit jam and continue cooking to 234°, or the soft ball stage. Add two tablespoons butter and cool to 125°, beat creamy and pour into buttered pans.

Apricot Fudge: Mix two cups sugar, two-thirds cup condensed milk, one-half cup water and one-half cup canned chocolate syrup, and boil to 230°. Add apricot jam and continue cooking to 234°, or the soft ball stage. Add two tablespoons butter and cool to 125°. Beat creamy and pour into buttered pans.

HEALTH DEPT. TO HOLD CLINIC

Special Preparations Being Made for Examining Children of County

Children's Clinic for the purpose of giving tuberculin and x-ray will be held all the week of March 2 in the Parish Hall, Manassas, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Dr. C. W. Scott from the State Department of Health will be in charge of the clinic. The School Board have agreed to transport the children with their parents in the school buses. This applies to all the children who do not have transportation. The children attending these clinics receive a complete physical examination and are given a small dose of tuberculin followed by x-ray if Dr. Scott advises it. Fifty children will be treated in the clinic on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday if necessary for them to return. Consultation service with the family physician will be held Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

Infection with tuberculosis is most frequent in childhood. It is for this reason that we wish to examine all children living with tuberculous patients and all those children who are sick without known cause.

Childhood tuberculosis is not communicable. The child is only a danger to himself. It is our duty to get these children examined and under observation so that they will never break down with tuberculosis.

Anyone who wishes to have their children examined will please notify Mrs. Ruby Ryan Haydon, Red Cross County Nurse, immediately. We are educating people how to live with tuberculosis rather than die from it.

Miss Sara Lee Coleman is spending the week here assisting with the arrangements for this clinic.

Any child attending this clinic will not be marked "absent" at school.

CHEVROLET LED THE FIELD IN DECEMBER

Chevrolet new car registrations in the United States for December lead all other makes, according to figures just made public.

With 31,609 new Chevrolet sales in the domestic market during the last month of 1930, the company exceeded by 2,000 units the second leading make. Figures so far reported for January indicate that the relative position of Chevrolet remained for the month just ended, particularly since Chevrolet's January production was 70,000 units.

December was the first month in the history of the automobile that six cylinder cars led the field in deliveries to consumers. While Chevrolet in 1927 and again in 1928 was first in manufacturing and sales in the industry, the company's performance in those years was based on the old four-cylinder car. Since the change-over from a four to six in 1929, Chevrolet has forged ahead to this leading position.

This passing of leadership to the six-cylinder automobile is interpreted in automotive circles as indicating a growing public preference for the larger, multiple-cylindered car, when it combines operating economy with an initial price range in the lowest priced field. The current Chevrolet models are two inches longer than last year despite prices ranging from $20 to $40 lower than the 1930 models.

MILLION GAINED IN 1930 GAS TAX

(Carter Wormley)

According to a report released by T. McCall Frazier, Director of the State Motor Vehicle Division, gas tax receipts for the year 1930 totaled $11,426,066, exceeding the 1929 total of $10,419,420 by $1,006,646. The 1930 gas tax figures exceeded the budget estimates also by upwards of one million dollars.

License tag receipts for 1930 totaled $6,050,074, as compared to $5,701,682 for 1929, showing an increase of $348,392. Due to the drought and the business depression there were 1,784 fewer licenses issued in 1930 than in 1929, yet at the same time there was collected an increase in revenue from this source of $318,304 with no increase in rate.

Tourist traffic through Virginia has increased despite business conditions, which fact is reflected in gas tax receipts. The December gas tax for Virginia in 1930 totaled $902,809, compared to $827,445 for 1929, showing that the increase over last year is continuing even through the winter months.

JESSE AND RUST ANNOUNCE FOR SENATE

Oldest Daily Newspaper Uses New Dial Telephone

Kitty Spittle, Alexandria Gazette reporter, finds the dial telephone private branch exchange a great convenience. Charles B. Vance, telephone company employee, looks the equipment over.

The Alexandria Gazette, established in 1784 and said to be the oldest daily newspaper in the United States, is now using successfully the latest type of dial intercommunicating telephone service.

A complete dial private branch exchange system which is in reality a miniature dial central office is located in the offices of the paper. Hand-type dial of extended extension telephones connect the editor, news editor, society, advertising, circulation and other departments of the newspaper, so that connections may be established between any two of these offices or with the Alexandria, Va., telephone central office.

Dorothy Beachley Plays One of Her Best Games

The basketball fans of Manassas were treated with two splendid games on Friday, February 13, when the Manassas School had as its guests, the girls and boys teams of Washington-Lee High School.

The evening began with a game between the girls teams, which moved rapidly, and proved the strength of the Manassas team when they defeated Washington-Lee High School by a score of 34 to 6. Both teams played in a beautiful fashion, but the tossing ability of Beachley, along with the splendid guarding, and passing of the other members of the Manassas team enabled them to run up a high score and at the same time hold the score of the Washington-Lee girls down.

The Manassas boys did not fare so well as the girls, but by consistent effort, were able to check the veteran team of Washington-Lee after the first quarter, with a final score of 22 to 8 in favor of the Ballston boys. This score was not at all what was expected, as the popular opinion was that the Little Generals would win by at least 30 points, but as it was they won by 14 points.

A & P SALES INCREASE

Sales of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company for the five weeks, ending January 31 were $97,558,824, which compares with $104,270,933 for the same five weeks' period in January, 1930, and is a decrease of $6,712,109, or 6.44 per cent.

Although dollar sales were smaller this January than they were a year ago, due to the continued decline in retail food prices, the actual quantity of goods sold in the January period, 1931, showed a gain of 3.65 per cent over the corresponding period in 1930. In fact, more goods were sold in January this year than in any other January in the history of the Company. Estimated tonnage during the five week period in January, 1931 was 510,421 compared with 492,425 last year, a gain of 17,996.

Average weekly sales for January 1931, were $19,511,765, compared with $20,854,187 for January, 1930; a decline of $1,342,422. Estimated weekly tonnage in January 1930; an increase of 3,599.

Retirement of Senator Ball Precipitates Spirited Contest

Hon. C. T. Jesse, of Clarendon has announced for the State Senate, subject to the Democratic Primary next August. Mr. Jesse is a former member of the House of Delegates from Arlington County. His popularity and residence in the largest voting area of the senatorial district makes him a formidable candidate.

The announcement of Mr. Jesse has been followed by a similar entry for Mr. John W. Rust, prominent attorney of Fairfax. Other candidates are expected to appear.

DROUTH RELIEF WORK STARTED

At the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Mrs. C. R. C. Johnson, chairman of the Civilian Home Service, gave a very inspiring talk on the work of the central committee in co-operation with the Red Cross which has returned to the county all the money raised by the local organization and given three hundred besides. Mrs. Johnson states that the real drouth relief is just now beginning and that general help and understanding on the part of everyone is necessary. The information needed for the national organization is being collected as rapidly as Mrs. Johnson and her workers can operate.

To those who may not understand the status of the Civilian Home Service it may be stated that this committee is the nearest approach the county has to a unified charity organization. It depends on every civic organization or club in the county and forms the central agency for distribution of food, clothing, medicine, and even feed for cows and chickens where no other agency will perform.

HAYMARKET HIGH VICTORIOUS

The Haymarket High School basketball team clashed with the Oakton town team on last Friday night in the Manassas gymnasium and easily tucked the verdict away by a score of 19-9.

Both teams played a good game, but the boys in Scarlet had their opponents outclassed from beginning to end.

Mohler scored all the points for Oakton, while Garrison collected ten points for Haymarket.

The line up is as follows:
Haymarket: Oakton
Garrison, R. F. Mohler
Herrell, L. F. Miller
Ashby, C. M. Green
Garrett, R. G. Loental
Sensaney, L. G. H. Green
Substitutions—Haymarket: McCuin for Herrell, Lightner for Garrett; Oakton—Brown for H. Green. Referee—Newbank.

Political News from Fairfax

For County offices in Fairfax the ring is full of hats. Most if not all of the present officials face opposition. Commonwealth's attorney Wilton M. Farr will be opposed by Harold F. Hanes of Herndon.

Dr. F. W. Huddleson, County Treasurer, is opposed by C. C. Carr, and Alton Money of Vienna.

Three aspirants are in the field to defeat Hon. L. L. Freeman, our present Delegate to the General Assembly. Hon. E. H. Allen, of Newton, past Grand Master of Odd Fellows of Virginia and former County Manager for the Democratic Party has filed; and also Mr. Herbert Williams of Vienna and Mr. John Mackall of McLean.

No formal announcements have been made in the matter of commissioner of Revenue. Mr. Silas Hutcheson of Herndon and Mr. Marshall Thompson of Merrifield are mentioned.

Candidates too numerous to mention have been the subject of discussion for Supervisors of the various districts, but no formal announcements have been appeared.

Mr. Harvey Cross, former Sheriff, has announced against Sheriff E. F. Kirby.

RED CROSS ANNOUNCEMENT

Beginning Wednesday, February 25 the office of the Red Cross Drouth Relief will open all day on Wednesday and Saturday only. The office is over the Peoples National Bank.

Clearing the Roadside of Unsightly Objects

Pennsylvania has taken a march on most of the other states, which pretty generally agree that something ought to be done about the nuisance of unsightly roadside signs. Pennsylvania has begun to do it.

At the end of a six weeks' clean-up campaign the department of highways of that state announced the removal and destruction of more than 32,000 signs, including every type of "blattant, daub, scrawl and tattered legend that came within the definition of illegal advertising." Under supervision of the department forester, who was in charge of roadside beautification, every mile of the state highways was scoured. All signs within the right of way were removed except those placed by the state for the information and protection of motorists. Representatives of the state visited owners of all roadside land and ascertained what signs were erected by definite permission or lease. Those not so erected were removed.

The main service of this method of attack were that the ugly clutter of small signs, of rusty tin plates hung to fences, crudely painted boards nailed to posts and trees, posters and old bits of ballyhoo slapped up thickly and at random, were largely eliminated at one stroke. As a beginning for the scenic beautification of our highways it is to be recommended.

Planning Home's Exterior

According to the National Association of Real Estate Boards the exterior of the home which is to be constructed should receive particular consideration before work is begun.
The following recommendations are offered by this association:

- 1—Design the house to fit in with the natural environment.
- 2—An attractive exterior of permanent material is not necessarily expensive and will effect considerable saving in ultimate cost.
- 3—True beauty is to be found in simplicity. Do not use unnecessary knick-knacks.
- 4—Examine carefully the architect's details of your plans, as they can make or break the exterior appearance of the home.
- 5—Landscaping will increase both the value and attractiveness of a dwelling.

TWIN CITY GOSSIP

(Ocoquan and Woodbridge)

Good morning, friends and neighbors. Glad to hear that so many are taking an interest in our weekly broadcast over the Manassas Journal network. Quite frequently we hear from those who are interested in the broadcast news in a new way. We just can't follow the beaten path. For instance—if Manly Southworth visits a dentist, and we state so in plain English—such news fall on deaf ears and blind eyes. But, we say Manly Southworth, of Twin City, one of our handsome bachelors has been detoothed and is awaiting a time with patience for gums to heal so he can sport a full set of mail order ivorys. That is news. It tells us that the young man is handsome, young, and breathes of single blessedness, hints that he is meticulous to the nth degree. It also throws light on his budget plan of saving—mail order. News told in such a way goes much farther. In fact, a reader or listener with mind attuned to delving into the mysteries of natural science, and mental phenomena can easily use such a sentence as a crystal ball and read the young man's life from the cradle to the grave. Being detoothed should appeal appealingly to the younger set, and especially to that half of humanity that was made from the rib of the other half. We read so much in our great metropolitan papers about petting and hecking. Now for instance take a toothless Adam—there wouldn't be any danger whatever of leaving tell tale tooth marks on the neck of a rib.

And now we must hurry on. By the way, we thank the writer for inscribing, inditing, prescribing, dedicating and advising us to be careful. What's your name? Well, anyway we thank from the bottom of our gizzards for such tender and thoughtful verses.

Sure we will write another handful of poetry most any old time. You see it is this way, well with the least encouragement we reel off a masterpiece. For instance, our "Ode to a potatoes eye" is very touching and soul inspiring.

For your information, edification, and entertainment we will —er —errr (all broadcasters have to say, "er —errr" to fill up space and keep up with static) quote a couple of lines of that beautiful poem just mentioned: "Ode to a potato's eye."

"O beautiful Spud—with eyes divine, Furtive and soul filling—looking into mine."

This is such a heart gripping piece of poetry we can only publish or broadcast it by request.

And now —er, —errr — here is a solid piece of news. Tou Pee Davis sends us a clipping direct from the United States Treasury Department in Washington. According to this inside information we should have "zackly $37.11 each one and all —individually or otherwise. This includes twins and triplets and up. Most of the Manassas Journal readers or listeners want their 37.11 in cash. Write to Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, if you haven't already received your rightful share. Better hurry, we understand it is dwindling, first come is first served.

O yes, yes, we had the great pleasure of meeting Mr. Boatwright the other day. He dropped in to say "Howdy" and spent a few minutes and now we shall call him "uno." A very fine young fellow indeed, but he seemed to think that we should have known him. In fact he was quite surprised to learn that he was a stranger to us. However, we talked and got along just fine. Five minutes of talk—by actual count, he said "You know 'zackly 37 times, hence his name "uno".

Well, good luck Brother Boatwright one is a majority, but you must push enough to be even with the other fellow at the end.

Way down in Stafford, (the Promised Land) where native sons around where sand pipers and hop toads have a common language—where "the curfew tolls the knell of parting day" After the mocking birds symphony trills their last notes, and the entire inhabitants say, "Now lay us down to sleep"; from this land of the free and home of the brave there comes the stirring ring and martial call of political activities. They shout from the house tops and the echoes come ringing back: "Stafford's next county treasurer must be "Nelson Berry" and "Geo. W. Herring or J. Lindsey Dawson, our legislative representative."

You remember the words of Solomon the son of David, King of Israel? Quote: "As cold water to a thirsty, So is good news from a far county" Close of Quotation

Somebody nudged our school officials. Sleep is so self satisfying—Dreamland is so pleasant to the dreamer. Why, at times it seems just too hard to toot a horn. (Pardon us for the next). Just as we told you folks last fall. Ocoquan school could and would have plenty of water by using a little thought well mixed with old fashioned judgment. Outside toilets were built, very unsatisfactory, unsightly and not 100 per cent sanitary by any means. The cost of building toilets about that of sinking a well. The well has been sunk and all is well. The taxpayers pay the difference. Ocoquan High was closed until January 12. Money a little short—what! Our time is up and only a minute remains: let us not forget Washington's birthday. Washington Like Lincoln belongs to the world. Born a Virginian—"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." He lived for the ages, and in death his memory is forever inscribed in the hearts of all men who love freedom. GEO. DENT, Woodbridge, Va. TOKEN Mrs. Berkeley Fair is on the sick list this week.

Mr. Arthur Cornwell is visiting in Baltimore. The stork visited Mr and Mrs Gordon Wheaton last Wednesday leaving a fine son Alvin Wilson. Both mother and son are getting along fine. Mr. Maurice Posey spent last Wednesday night with his brother, Wayne. Mr. Richard Cornwell announced his engagement last week to Mrs.

Lucy Fair. They will be married the twelfth of March. The folks around here are enjoying the valentines. 666 666 SALVE LIQUID or TABLETS CURES BABY'S COLD

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

If parents will have their children memorize a Bible selection each week, it will prove a priceless heritage to them in after years.

AN END TO WORRY—Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.—Philippians 4:6, 7.

PRAYER:

Save us, Father, from worry and fretting. Give us perfect rest in Thy promises.

WHAT COURTESY WILL DO

A city of 1,000,000 people, celebrating a motor courtesy week as a curtain riser for its automobile show, reports the first week in many months free from automobile fatalities. At the same time motor accidents of all kinds were greatly reduced.

This record drives home the truth that the chief cause of motor mishaps is not drunkenness nor mechanical defects nor ignorance and awkwardness on the part of drivers, but so simple and curable a thing as bad manners.

If people were only as courteous to each other behind steering wheels as they are in the stores, churches or homes, there would be few automobile deaths, little damage to cars and lower insurance rates.

—Alexandria Gazette.

FLEXIBLE "FARM RELIEF"

When the Grundy-Hoover tariff was in process of Congressional concoction under the dictation of the Grundys at Washington, President Hoover surrendering to them instead of standing firmly for his own tariff plan, he did stipulate that the flexible provision should be retained and that he should be authorized to appoint a Tariff Commission to execute it. His argument was that, bad as might be the tariff bill which Congress was forcing upon him, its evils could be corrected through the flexible provision and his Tariff Commission. He insisted on that uncompromisingly, that—with the exception of the dropping of the debenture scheme—being the only demand he made for the construction of a tariff to his liking.

Well, he and his Tariff Commission have begun their flexing operations. They have just reported the result as slight reductions of the duties on straw hats, pigskin leather, maple sugar and maple syrup and increases of the duties on woven wire fencing and netting.

This means that the farmers will be gouged millions of dollars additional for fences, or that they will go without fences. Wood no longer figures as fencing material, and woven wire fences are the most generally used and the most serviceable, especially for fencing sheep and hogs.

Piling up the cost of the farmer's fences is certainly a beautiful way of making the farmer's lot a happier one. He will hardly be reconciled to it, even though under the new schedules he may be able to buy his pigskin sporting goods a little cheaper—though denied any reduction of the price of pigskin leather shoes—and though he may feel that he might afford to replace the corn syrup flavored with maple syrup of maple sugar.

The Grundy-Hoover tariff law was enacted in response to the President's call for a "farm relief" tariff. Mr. Hoover and his Tariff Commission seem hell bent on providing more "farm relief" of the same kind provided by the law itself.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CONSERVE THE SOIL MOISTURE

Continued reports of shortage of rainfall are being received from many sections. Unless spring rains come in more than their usual abundance in these sections, it is going to behoove planters to use every means they can to conserve their soil moisture even more than in normal years.

Early, clean cultivation and preparation of the soil so as to take in the maximum amount of moisture when the rains do come will do much where it is possible to work the ground. In many sections, there has been ample rainfall to prepare the surface of the ground for early growth of vegetation but it is felt that the supply in the subsoil will not be sufficient to take care of later growth.

Early preparation of this ground to permit the moisture to penetrate to the power soil will do much to reduce the amount of water that is shed to drainage. In those sections where moisture seems most deficient, every precaution should be taken to make the best possible use of that which is available. Treatment varies with different types and soils, the topography of the land and other conditions. State agricultural colleges and county farm workers can be of material assistance in recommending the best handling for any particular farm or section. In irrigated sections where the winter ice formation is deficient, early conservation of the water may mean the saving of the crop later in the season.

—New York Packer.

THE VETERANS' BONUS

(Contributed)

Somewhere on the front page of every newspaper throughout the country considerable space is devoted to discussion of the matter of the Veterans' Bonus, and the various bills now pending in Congress, asking for cash payments on adjusted compensation certificates. To the average individual who does not follow regularly the trend of daily activities in the city newspapers, this matter has little or no significance, and they are somewhat vague as to just what it is all about.

In view of the fact that the establishment of an American Legion Post, we believe it a most opportune time to present a brief summary of what has been, and is being done about the Veterans' Bonus.

In 1925 Congress adopted legislation created the adjusted compensation certificates—a promise to pay—which does not mature until 1945. More than three and a half million veterans of the World War received these bonus certificates, created by Congress as an acknowledgment of a just debt to them. These certificates are in the form of endowment insurance policies, maturing in 1945, and represent the approximate difference between the Veteran's pay and the pay of civilians during war time.

In other words, the Government promises to pay in 1945, or at earlier death, to each soldier a sum averaging a little over $1,000.

To pay them all now, as some of the bills now before Congress ask for, would cost the Government about three and a half billion dollars—an amount equal to all the annual expenditures of the Government for all purposes.

Other bills pending before Congress want the Government to pay only the present value of the policies on certificates—from 1925 to 1931. To do even this would require two million dollars.

Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon is against the proposals and states that "the present condition of public finances is far from satisfactory and expenditures are running considerably in excess of receipts." Other high points in his objections to the payment of the Veterans' Bonus are that it will ruin the hopes of the taxpayer for lightening the load of taxation for years to come, and will probably increase taxes in the very near future; that it will retard the day when normal employment will be available; exhaust the security markets on the investment side, thus impeding the progress of business recovery both here and abroad; will be a false stimulant substituting a short lived inflation in business for a major recovery, with the inevitable result of more depressed conditions than ever. Then too, the matter of pensions, which it was planned by this arrangement to eliminate, must in later years be reckoned with.

A number of financial experts agree with Mr. Mellon.

On the other side, many others, and particularly the American Legion, recommend the passage of these bills. They believe the payment of this just debt now, when the Veterans need it, will enable them to put millions of dollars into circulation, and the powerful stimulus to business thus created will benefit the entire country and be the means of the upward turn toward normalcy. Of the three and a half million men who received bonus certificates more than two million have already secured loans on them, which gives proof of the serious need these men and their families are suffering right now.

THE NEW MESDAMES
FRESCO

By FANNIE HURST

UNTIL Ella was fourteen, the loveliest uniform in all the world was the one worn by her mother. She seldom, if ever, saw her out of it, except on magic Thursday afternoons when they shopped, had their supper in a little self-service restaurant and went to a motion picture theater together. On these days, Ella's mother slipped into a plain drab-colored frock and a dark brown coat with a coarse fur around the neck. She lost luster.

In the big, beautiful house on the top of the hill where they had lived ever since Ella could remember, her mother had worn her bright gray, highly-finished alpaca frock with a sheer patch of organdie apron in front and a crisp organdie cap on the top of her pretty brown hair.

Mrs. Fresco, a large, florid woman whose hands gleamed with jewels even at breakfast and whose short, asthmatic breathing was one of the dominant noises in the household, came, as the asthmatic affliction increased its hold of her, to depend more and more on the bright person of Ella's mother.

"Annie" was Ella's mother's given name. Mrs. Fresco found it too commonplace, so the very first month that Annie, handicapped by her four-year old child, had succeeded in gaining employment in the Fresco house, her mistress had refused to call her by any other name than Antoinette.

The room occupied by Antoinette and her daughter was a little, slap-daubed one up under the eaves of the old house.

If Antoinette sometimes found her place in that household almost unbearable, her little girl was the last one to know it. As Mrs. Fresco, her life fraught with the complexities of her role as social dictator, grew heavier and more asthmatic, her demands upon her maid sometimes became intolerable. And yet only too well Antoinette realized, and was made to realize by Mrs. Fresco, her difficult and anomalous situation. Widowed women with children did not find it easy to obtain positions. Antoinette knew that from bitter experience. The thought of placing her little girl in an institution was simply outside her reckoning. And so, throughout the years, Antoinette remained on.

There were, after all, great advantages in the situation. Mr. Fresco, a great, hearty man of fifty, was kindness and consideration itself. With all her heart, Antoinette pitied him the nervous, petty, socially ambitious, exacting wife. He was generous and indulgent. He scarcely ever arrived in that house without some little knock-knack for Ella. Everything he did showed consideration and kindness for Antoinette.

Then there was Dick, the only child of the household. In the early years, Dick and Ella, in the enormous democracy of childhood, had played together among the swans or in the beautiful gardens that surrounded the home. But Dick had shot up into slim boyhood while Ella was still in rompers. For the past ten years, the most exciting events in that household had been his all-too-sporadic visits from boarding school and college.

Yes, there were advantages to remaining at the Frescos'. Antoinette tried to keep this realization staunchly to the front of her mind on those occasions when Mrs. Fresco made life unbearable or when the heavy social routine of the household with its luncheons, musicales, teas, dinners, banquets, balls and house parties made the burden of work and responsibility almost crushing to the slim shoulders of Antoinette.

When Mrs. Fresco died one night in a paroxysm of suffocation, her passing was a source of comment in the social circles of the large cities of both America and Europe. She had succeeded in gouging out what she had most craved for herself—social prominence. As a poor girl she had married Alexander Fresco and, out of a gripping determination, had accomplished what she had set out to do. But she had died socially secure.

Antoinette remained on in the household, conducted it for Mr. Fresco after his wife's death.

When Ella was a beautiful seventeen and lovely as the first jonquil that grew in spring beside the swan lake, Dick Fresco came home from college, a new graduate, eloped with her in an airplane one afternoon and married her in an adjacent city.

The young heir to Fresco millions, the young college graduate, just home and prepared to enter into his father's many activities, had done the unthinkable—married the daughter of a servant girl.

Strange, with what an imperturbability the rudely, genial father of this nice frank youngster took his blow. The two children were received back into the household.

Nothing was done to change the status of Antoinette, who by this time was a little gray at the temples of her pretty brown head and who was now occupying the role of housekeeper. Importunities of her daughter, her son-in-law and even Mr. Fresco to the contrary notwithstanding, Antoinette continued to wear a bunch of keys at her belt and to occupy the small room under the eaves.

There was something strangely tenacious in the benign makeup of the girl Ella. Time after time, in order to solve the curious situation of this household, Antoinette importuned her son-in-law and daughter to let her leave in order to ease the curious dilemma.

No doubt about it, Antoinette was doing her daughter an injustice by insisting that she retain her humble role; no doubt about it, Ella was doing her mother an injustice by refusing to permit her the alternative of leaving the house. And yet, the bond between these two was so close. Years of propinquity between mother and daughter in the humble quarters they had formerly occupied in that home of magnificence, had drawn them closely, irretrievably together. The mere thought of separation was mutually unbearable to them both. The young Dick, buoyantly, youthfully in love, minimized the complication and accepted in embarrassed good humor the role of his mother-in-law, trying to evade its more serious aspects by treating her in a playful manner.

"Antoinette, I say, you haven't performed your tasks well this morning," or, "Antoinette, I am afraid we will have to dispense with your services as housekeeper if you insist upon such a familiar manner with Mrs. Fresco."

These little witticisms indulged in so good-naturedly by the husband of Ella, helped. And yet, not all the facetiousness in the world could save the situation from the curious mixture of pathos, irony and absurdity which characterized it.

Ella felt it. Dick felt it. Antoinette felt it.

Certainly the elder Fresco himself must have felt it, although through all the period of these attempts at adjustments, he maintained his jovial kind of aloofness, keeping well out of the controversy.

A curious and anomalous situation, if ever there was one.

It hurt the tender and pretty little Ella to sit down at a table at which her own mother was not present. It pained her young and stalwart husband. It embarrassed Fresco.

For months after this marriage, the social world that had at one time poured into this house stood off bewildered and dumbfounded, and yet there were going on in the financial world rumors that revealed the fact that Alexander Fresco, in the little time since the death of his wife, had practically tripled his many millions.

There came a time when, despite the catastrophic thing that had happened in that home, the socially exclusive found it the better part of valor to call upon the new little Mrs. Fresco Jr.

Cards were left on the silver salvers in the hallway that had been left there, off and on, for years and years, but now that they were applied to little Ella, it fairly took away the breath of Antoinette and her daughter.

The time had come for a strategic decision to take place in that household. When the social world had set its stamp of approval finally upon the new little wife of Dick Fresco, it was time to begin to prepare her for the complex and difficult role that stretched ahead.

Then something happened that again threw out of focus every single precedent in the home. At ten o'clock one Sunday morning, standing in the superb drawing room of his home, as abashed as a boy of fourteen, Alexander Fresco asked Antoinette to marry him.

At three o'clock that same afternoon, by the procedure of special license and special dispensation, the event of their wedding took place in that same beautiful drawing room, the sole witnesses to the occasion being the servants of the household and Mr. and Mrs. Fresco, Jr.

It was again a matter of months before a stunned community was able to pull itself together and decide upon its next strategic move in regard to the Frescos.

It was again a matter of international comment the way in which Alexander Fresco had increased his many millions and, once more society capitulated, and began leaving cards for the two Mrs. Frescos.

But by this time a new and monopolizing interest had crashed into this household so that the visiting cards lying on the tables had little or no effect. It was not that the Mrs. Frescos, senior and junior, meant to be rude. On the contrary, they were a lovely and amiable pair of matrons. But there was no time. On the day of Alexander Fresco's marriage to Antoinette, he had made over to her in her own name the sum of five million dollars to do with as she wished.

Out of that superbly endowed amount, Antoinette and her daughter Ellen had cooked up a plan. It was a plan that, as the years moved on, was to grow to such proportions that it monopolized all of their time, leaving little for social concerns that had to do with the visiting cards on the hall table.

Mrs. Alexander Fresco who, throughout the lean and heart-breaking years, had known deprivation, has built out of her five-million-dollar fund one of the greatest philanthropic organizations in the world. By this time, Alexander and his son Dick are almost equally interested in it.

The Frescos, all four of them, are a busy, constructive group of people. Too concerned with humanity to find time for the social problems presented by the engraved cards of the elite of the countryside, as they gather dust on the hall tables.

LOCAL MERCHANT IS OPTIMISTIC

A message of encouragement for all men who feed cows, hogs and chickens . . . a story of money-making was brought home today by W. C. Sadd, Purina feed dealer of Manassas and 700 other merchants from states who attended the annual convention of livestock feed merchants at the Washington Hotel in Washington Monday and Tuesday.

"With prices of farm products down, the situation must be counteracted by lowering the farmer's end of the marketing . . . the cost of making eggs, milk, and pork which means lowering the feed cost for feed is the most important part. This was the message which we heard . . . a story of money-making for livestock and poultry feeders even in these times," Mr. Sadd said.

"I was glad to see that this convention did not waste time in idle talk about what we can expect to happen—it met conditions as they are today — and showed how farm profits can be made even with present low prices," he continued.

The program of the merchant's convention was built around one theme—keeping the cost of producing farm products low, in order that the spread between cost and selling price will allow the farmer a profit.

"Present conditions need immediate solutions and this convention didn't dally with theories—we went to the heart of things, ripped open the business shell to find out what's the matter with it—and came out with a method of lowering the farmer's cost—we're going to help the farmer make money now—instead of waiting for better times and better prices," he said.

NO LONGER A JOKE

WHAT was once a good joke may become an equally good truism with changes in conditions and the passage of time. Charles S. Mohler, Advertising Editor of "Hygeia," published by the American Medical Association, wrote vividly in a recent issue of this publication about the evolution of one such "joke."

"The other evening," he wrote, "while enjoying a dinner which included packing house ham, canned spinach, canned peas, canned peaches, creamery butter and baker's bread, I mused over the fact that it is always considered a first rate joke to present a young bride with a can opener."

Now Deeply Significant

"That joke has a rather deep significance. It harks back to the primitive days when a family was almost completely self-sufficient and women's wits were largely centered on the job of preparing foods. Game or home grown animals furnished the meat. Wheat and corn and rye ground by the neighborhood miller met all the needs for cereals. And dried beans with home canned fruits and vegetables completed the diet."

"That same self-sufficiency applied to other family needs. Home-spun wool furnished the clothing. Home made furniture, home made rugs, home made mattresses filled with straw or husks from the fields or feathers from the family flock of geese staked out the house quite comfortably. All of which was very well in those early times."

No Longer Self-Sufficient

"Nowadays, however, an individual or a family can hardly lead such a self-sufficient life. The growth of industry packs people together in large city populations. Neither Mr. Joe Spaghetti, who pushes 'de truck' in the iron foundry and lives in a little four-room flat, nor Mr. John Vandercourt, president of the bank that finances the foundry, nor the respective wives of Joe and John has much opportunity to be self-sufficient in the old-fashioned sense."

"The husbands are busy in specialized lines of work and must depend on others to produce the food, the clothing, and the furniture that they must have to live. The can opener to them is no joke. Rather I would say it is to them and to us all a glorious symbol of our mighty economic progress—a key that unlocks the things needed for existence by millions of people all interdependent one on the other."

How Advertising Serves

"With these facts in mind it is easy to see why advertising becomes so important a part of our present-day life. The spinach canned in New York, the peaches preserved in California and the peas packed in Wisconsin cannot possibly add one whit to my subsistence or enjoyment if I do not know of their existence. By reading advertising I find out that they do exist. Moreover, I learn something about their qualities, their cost, and where they can be purchased."

"In many cases advertising will go even further. It may present scientific evidence showing that the nutritive value of the canned spinach and peas are just as good as if the fresh product were purchased and prepared for use in the home and that the factory packed food gives me a much more uniform grade of quality."

Modern Conveniences

The writer then mentioned a number of food products which have passed the critical scientific examination of the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association, for this publication is naturally as ethical and careful in its advertising pages as it is in its editorial contents.

"A problem," he wrote "to the mother who is trying to give her baby a proper diet is the preparation of vegetables and fruits in pulped or pulverized form suitable for the delicate digestive apparatus. Mother love, of course, is wonderful and no mother begrudges the time it takes each day to cook up and sieve or pulverize a few spoonfuls of spinach or carrots or beans, but if she can obtain such products already prepared and perhaps more finely pulped than her own productions, her mother love can be diverted to more profitable endeavors. She need not waste hours of time in preparing pulped vegetables."

He mentioned the names of approved canned products of this sort, and concluded:

"This takes me back to my starting point, the can opener. It is a good little tool, but my chief thought is that advertising presents to you many other openers to time saving, labor saving, money saving conveniences."

Fashions

in Women..

have changed

It used to be fashionable to be stupid about money matters. Women especially weren't supposed to understand them. Those who did pretended not to, for it was stylish to get a headache over figures.

But the silly little thing, who was too nice to ask prices a few years ago, is decidedly old-fashioned now. The modern woman takes pride in getting her money's worth.

The fashionable woman of today is a keen, shrewd buyer. She can pick a good bargain in a grocery store as her husband can in his office. She's in the business of keeping house... And, more often than not, she's a steady A & P customer.

IS NATION WIDE

Big New York Firm, with Branches in Leading Cities, Selling at Rate of over million Bottles yearly. California also Using at Rate of Million Bottles a year.

When Sargon was first given to the world, well known authorities predicted it would become one of the great outstanding health-giving remedies of the age, but the men of science who labored for years to perfect it little dreamed it would become a household word in so short a time. According to the statements of everyone who has actually taken the test, it is restoring hundreds of thousands of rundown, half-sick, discouraged and women by some of the latest and most advanced methods known to Medical Science.

The demand for Sargon is probably without parallel in the history of the drug trade. In the State of California alone, it will require over one million bottles to supply the people of California during the first twelve months after it was placed on sale.

One big New York firm, with whole sale houses in leading cities, have sold and distributed 908,184 bottles in the past eight months, or at the rate of one million and a quarter bottles per year.

Kansas City wholesale and retail firms have sold and distributed over 300,000 bottles within twelve months, or an average of almost one bottle for every family in the State of Kansas.

Texas dealers required nine carloads the first four months. In the Northwest, the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been selling at the rate of over $100,000 per year, to say nothing of the immense wholesale distribution. Sales in other sections have been correspondingly large.

Back of Sargon's triumph in the drug stores is Sargon's triumph in the homes. When a suffering man or woman finds a medicine that helps them, they invariably tell their friends about it, and in this way the fame of Sargon is spreading from coast to coast, sweeping the country like a great tidal wave.

No matter where you go—North, East, South or West—Sargon is bringing health to thousands, and many foreign countries are now clamoring for it.—(adv.)

Green and White Checked Chiffon Tunic is Employed for the Full-Trousered Beach Pajamas at Left. Applique is Used Effectively in Maize, Apricot and Mauve on a Three-Quarter Length Pale Blue Linen Coat. The Third Dress of Red-Dotted White Senalec Has a Row of Its Own Coin Dots Cut Out and Appliqued Around Neckline and Cup Sleeves. Cotton Mesh in Bright Yellow Makes the Simple Sports Dress at Right.

Cotton Mesh for Southern ApparelResort Clothes Cast Shadow of Summer Across the Fashion Picture.

Palm Beach clothes cast the shadow of summer across the fashion world before the ink is dry on the recent New Year's resolutions, says a fashion writer in the New York World. Hardly is the winter wardrobe assembled before beach pajamas find the like are hustled into the shops.

Cotton mesh dresses are important new arrivals in the resort mode. Cool but not flimsy, they are grand for sports wear. In gilets, or the new bright yellow high lighted for southern wear, they go in for white trim, usually cotton pique or linen. A typical frock in yellow-cotton mesh, has crossing bands of white cotton-pique applied on bodice and skirt and a white pique tie belt.

Applique, we may as well mention here and now, is a favorite type of trimming for summer daytime costumes. It is used in simple bands, as in the dress described, and in fancier zigzag strips. One dizzy little dress in white with black polka dots has zigzag strips in the primary colors starting up from hem to neckline. Appliqued flowers in bright tones appear on light frocks. The applique sometimes is of a different fabric—a spray of brilliant linen blossoms, for example, splashing across the bodice of a white crepe dress.

Prints are smart trimmed with Chanel applique cut-outs from their own designs. An interesting example is a frock of senalec (a heavy low-luster silk) in white, coin-dotted in red, with a row of cut-out coin spots appliqued around the neckline and the short cup sleeves.

Pastel linen coats also sport applique motifs, full slim flowers and geometric designs, usually in subtle colors. A three-quarter length linen coat in pale blue, for instance, has its applique decorations in apricot, mauve and mauve. Such coats are worn with monotone linen dresses, which often strike a festive note of their own by having elaborate eyelid embroidery on their bodices.

Dark accents on white or pastels are sometimes achieved by means of simple applique touches. One white linen dress has a pointed black linen strip running half way up its short sleeve, another decking the neckline at one side and a black belt.

Linen and Shantung for Summer.

Various types of summer suits are being shown, chiefly in linen and shantung, with straight open coats. The three-piece, pastel suits usually have blouses in the same color—pale green linen, with a pale-green, high-collared linen tuck in. When jacket and skirt are in a brighter shade the blouse is likely to be white—a white pique tuck in accompanying a red linen skirt and coat.

Two-piece suits, consisting of a dress and jacket, take diverse forms all good for Palm Beach and promising to be popular this summer. The dominant idea is the dark jacket and light dress, but this is interpreted in several ways. There is the contrasting frock and coat, with no color tie—an all-white crepe dress, with a dark blue jacket.

Then there is the contrasting combination with some pick-up trim—a pale-pink shantung dress, with brown and pink bodice bows and a brown shantung jacket.

Printed dresses are displayed with above-the-knee jackets that repeat a dark note in the print—a bright yellow smocking printed in a small black and white chevron design has a black shantung coat. The solid-color silk dress opens up with a checked chiffon, a tweed jacket, a new and exciting idea. A white crepe dress with a belt to match and a blue-and-white checked sheer tweed coat is a typical motif.

Checks, this trend promises to be popular not only in such costumes, but for beach pajamas as well. The smartest pair we've seen was developed in a green and white check with white ruche piping. There's a great range of choice offered, also.

Fur-Lined Boudoir Robes.

To all those who don't flit South with the first downward swoop of the thermometer, this season offers as consolation prizes jolly new pieces of wearing apparel designed to defeat cold weather. The turning of attention to cozy tidbits is quite in keeping with the elegance of the mode. The lady having displaced the gamine as the typical fashion figure it's not surprising there's more ado about comfort since ladies are supposed to be delicate creatures who require cherishing. Certainly they are being offered all sorts of protection against winter.

The boudoir mode is rich in its discoveries of new ways to keep a lady warm. It gives some of its smartest hanging pajamas heavy flannel coats.

For instance, there's a delectable outfit in satin rose, with a tuck-in top and long full-trousers of crepe de chine and a flannel coat in the same shade trimmed with lighter rose.

The heavier coat idea may be worked out in another way, merely substituting a harmonizing bathrobe for the jacket of one's pet pajamas, a trick that provides both warmth and variety. Black crepe trousers and a pale apricot tuck-in, for example, are as effective with a quilted green satin bathrobe as with their original orange crepe coat. Moire, too, by the way, is being used for quilted robes now. We saw one in striped pale blue moire, lined with matching crepe that was all one could ask in the way of festive simplicity.

For the very shivery there are full-length boudoir robes in velvet or satin lined throughout with lapin. One in pomgranate velvet has a rose beige lapin lining turned back around the neck and wrists in fur-trim effect. This has a medieval richness and its cold-proof enough for the draftiest old baronial hall or modern penthouse.

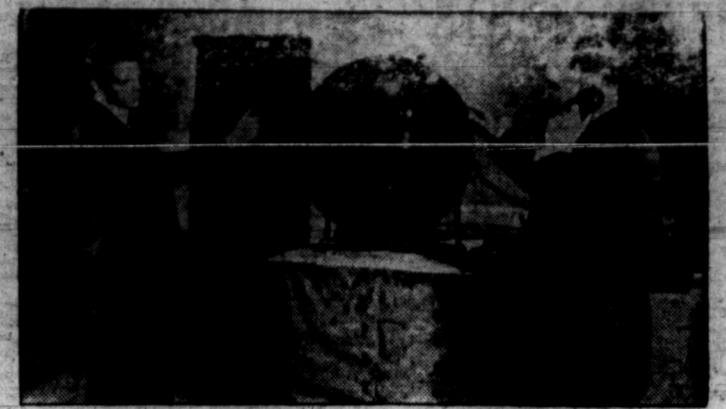

The satin and lapin robes come in delicate colors. Light pink satin and white lapin is a favorite alliance. Short coats and breakfast-in-bed jackets are made up in the same combination and may be worn with either side out. The chiffon-lined bunny bed jackets haven't such versatility but they are equally fetching. The highly luxurious chaise-lounger may equip herself with a lapin coverlet to match her robe or jacket—the boudoir flower.

For ladies who find lapin better suited to sleigh rides than boudoirs there are, in addition to the usual quota of chiffon, satin or crepe jackets, some charming versions of grand-ma's woolen ones. They're shetland wool and they're crocheted. Classic, so far. But these come in lovely pastel tints, are lined with chiffon in the same tone, and trimmed with matching marabou and a satin bow, so they look enticing.

Woolen Underwear in Favor. Long-sleeved flannel nightgowns are another quaint fashion that's being revived. The new ones are white, pink or blue, with appliqued bands of flowered flannel around their modest V necklines. Printed chailis, in all over patterns or scattered small bouquets, is used for sleeping garments, too.

White chailis with little clusters of pink and blue rosebuds is made up in long-sleeved nightgowns and in pajamas, piped about the neck with pink silk crepe. Some of the nightgowns defy their Victorian ancestry by having a silk braided binding and frog fastenings in the manner of masculine pajamas. Albatross in boudoir colors makes neatly tailored warm pajamas.

Woolen underwear, long justly scorned as being bulky and unattractive, now arrives in versions suited to this year of modest grace. There are undies warm enough to delight the aged and rheumatic and at the same time pretty enough to please smart young things. Lightweight silk and wool bloomers, fitted neatly at the waist and knees, come in pale peach and are so deftly fashioned and dainty they can be worn even under evening gowns. That's a good idea if one's evening wrap is short and there's going to be lots of getting in and out of taxis.

BURKE

Confederate State Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, meets Thursday night with Mrs. George White.

The Home Demonstration Club will meet Friday night in the Community Hall. The club is taking gardening as its minor project this year, with household management as its major. The club will cooperate in the two county-wide campaigns to be conducted this year in Fairfax County—better home gardens and kitchen conveniences.

Word has been received from Richmond that the Cooperative Association is listing the Burke Junior League as one of its banner leagues for the year just ended.
