BUSINESS PITFALLS IN FARM DISTRICTS

Bankers Point Out Hazards of Unsound Practices and Help
Farmers to Avoid Them.

Ways in which bankers may discourage unsound farm practices are described by President F. D. Farrell of the Kansas State Agricultural College
in the American Bankers Association
Journal. He says:

"In Kansas in connection with the importation of dairy cattle, a large shipment of very inferior animals came into a county to be sold at auction to local farmers. The county agricultural agent informed the bankers that the cattle would be a detriment to the community. The bankers refused to finance the purchase of the cattle and the sale was abandoned. The cattle were shipped to another county. The county agent and the bankers there did as was done in the first instance and the second county escaped."

"A year ago creamery promoters began trying to capitalize the Kansas farmers' desire to improve his markets by inducing communities of farmers to purchase creamery plants before production and local conditions justified them. Informed of this by the State Agricultural College, the bankers association sent warnings to every bank in the state, leading many to refuse to support the creamery promoters until the college approved the plant for the community concerned. This saved many communities loss from the premature establishment of plants."

"A third way bankers can discourage unsound practices is to refuse to finance farmers who wish to pyramid their enterprises, a temptation difficult to resist. This is illustrated among farmers who buy cattle for feeding purposes. A farmer feeds two or three cows of cattle one year and makes a good profit. This induces him to buy twice or three times as many the second year, still more the third and so on until he finally loses more by having too many cattle on feed in a year of bad prices than he made in several previous years with smaller numbers and better prices. When bankers discourage bad practices their action is a positive benefit to the farmers engaged."

CHEVROLET

73 of America's leading business concerns
have bought
5 Chevrolet

Prominent among the thousands of concerns using large fleets of Chevrolets are many of the leaders of American industry. In fact, 73 outstanding business firms have purchased a total of 27,605 Chevrolet cars and trucks.

The reason for this preference lies in the unexcelled economy of Chevrolet cars and trucks, as proved by official cost records. These records show that 20 miles to the gallon is a common occurrence among Chevrolet cars. That oil expense is extremely low. That Chevrolet cars and trucks require only a minimum of service attention. That they give satisfactory low-cost service over exceptionally long periods of time.

Naturally, a car with such a fine record of economy represents an extremely wise investment for any buyer! Especially when you consider the many advantages that Chevrolet offers above and beyond economical operation. Come in and learn what these advantages are—what they mean in terms of style, comfort, safety, reliability and value.

Farm Service by a Bank

A farm service department was inaugurated a year ago by a bank in Olympia, Washington, and a farm advisor appointed. Close cooperation has been maintained with the state college extension service. Work in dairying is carried on in conjunction with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Also a pasture contest was held in cooperation with the four banks in the county which offered prizes amounting to $100. Work in poultry was carried on in cooperation with the Co-operative Poultry Association and assistance was given in organizing an economic conference for the benefit of berry growers. The farm advisor of the bank is active in the Agricultural Council of the county composed of farm and other organizations interested in agricultural development, and also in the Farmers' Market. Six hundred farm business analysis blanks were distributed while farm account books and poultry record books were also provided to farmers and have been helpful in starting many farmers in keeping business records.

A GOOD SHOT

Last week we recorded the death of a fox under circumstances that reflected much credit upon the marksmanship of his executioner, Mr. Monroe, who shot the fox in the midst of his chickens without injury to the poultry.

By error we stated that Mr. Wallace Monroe did the shooting. Instead we should have said Mr. W. W. Monroe.

TRUST FOR ALL—ALL FOR CHRIST

The Word of God

It is a blessing to read the Word of God, and a light to our path.—Proverbs 1:10

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER
If parents will have their children memorize a Bible selection each week, it will prove a priceless heritage to them in after years.

HOW TO TRUST—Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.—Prov. 3:5, 6.

VOLUME THIRTY-SEVEN

One more the weeks have rolled around and the old Journal marks time for a brief moment to celebrate its New Year.

In beginning volume thirty-seven, the same pledge of community service is extended as has been shown by all its owners and operators since the gay nineties.

Prince William Bi-Centennial

The Prince William Bi-Centennial is now organized and in most efficient hands. We are particularly fortunate in having as our general chairman and as our secretary two such prominent and widely known business men as Mr. Wade H. Ellis and Mr. G. Raymond Ratcliffe. Our committee chairmen, also, were selected with due consideration of fitness and we feel sure that our bi-centennial will go forward with flying colors.

THE JOY OF WORK

"Physicians and surgeons," the Washington Herald points out, "usually hold high places in their communities. They enjoy the respect of their fellow citizens, and whatever the size of their incomes, they are usually happy and interested in their work. That is probably because they know it is useful work, and the satisfaction they derive from it is a considerable item itself."

That is a considerable item in any estimate of the rewards in any particular line or calling. Aside from the monetary returns, a man usually gets out of any undertaking or task about what he puts into it. Men who are enthusiastic about their work are not heard to complain of its monotony. The work may be hard, the hours long, but as long as it is interesting the worker will not complain. To be engaged in honest, useful work is the greatest blessing that man may know on this earth. The man who does not like his work is truly to be pitied, for he has missed one of the great joys of life.—Roanoke Times.

GARDEN CLUBS AN ASSET

It would be difficult to exaggerate the value of the accomplishments of the Garden Clubs that have done much in comparatively few years to beautify and improve the appearance of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth. These organizations have aroused in the women not only an increased interest in and appreciation of, flowers, shrubs and plants of all description but have inculcated an intelligent and purposeful planning that has restored richly in results of a most satisfying and pleasing nature.

There is scarcely a community in all this part of the State that does not now have a Garden Club, and the difference in community appearance is marked.

SOCIAL ITEMS

Vigor should be the first consideration in breeding for egg production.

Fromiscuous breeding is always unsound, and is one of the common causes of a rapid retroaction from a high producing flock to a mediocre one.

Artificial lighting to increase egg production, at least during the season of high prices, is fundamentally sound and has great potential possibilities.

TWIN CITY GOSSIP

(Ocoquan and Woodbridge)

A little sunshine and a little rain
Helps to make the golden grain.
A little smile breaking into a laugh,
As a cup of cheer we quaff;
A clasp of the hand—just a grin—
A throb of the heart—a forgiven sin,
A God Bless you—an upward shove—
Humanity was made for humanity to love.

Tou Pee Davis says that he has past mile post number 40 many, many years ago, and does not mind telling me that "Twin City Gossip" brought tears to his fading peepers. That night after Old Sol slowly dropped inch by inch behind the western hills he (Tou Pee) rummaged in the old book case and found his long forgotten copy of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine", and as the shadows crept over the landscape he and Mrs. Davis hand in hand lived and loved over the past.

It was said that Mrs. Warren P. Clarke read the article and immediately filled Warrens pipe with fresh cut plug, got out his faded robe and run down slippers and made the Morris chair ready. But alas!
And the scene fades as the curtain is drawn.
This same article had a very exhilarating effect on Col. Walter Allen. We heard him, standing behind the door repeating these words:
"I can see the sun bonnet and the little checkered dress. She wore when first I kissed her and she answered the caress."

Walter Smith said, "Darn the gout" as he patted ever so gently on the cheek and got out his old fiddle.

And Mr. Editor, your own townsman, Mr. Ed. Conner, who was down to pay us a visit the other day extended a seasonal blush from his noble brow and ruddy cheeks, when we repeated these heart tickling words:

"As one who cons at evening o'er an album, all alone,
And muses on the faces of the friends that he has known."

I am reminded of a story as told by Judge Bartlett of Reno:

"A great six-foot-three negro was in my court one day, seeking a separation from his wife. He claimed to have been the victim of cruel treatment."

"What did his wife do to you?" his counsel questioned.

"She done say she goin' to put poison in mah soup!" he replied. "She say, too, she goin' cut out mah gizzud out while I'se sleep!"

"What was the effect of your wife's action upon your health?"
"Well, Judge," said he gravely, "Ah jest nachelly lost mah appetite and I'se could not sleep."

Apparently some of our political aspirants are in the same fix this blackman found himself in—unable to eat, unable to sleep.

I understand that the boss of one of the political factions of Stafford has decided to lay down his fiddle and hang up his bow. This particular political faction has for its motto "Run or Ruin". They have tapped the source of every chance—found prospects like the Irishmans flea—where he was he isn't.

By the way, Lewis Edward Strother makes a plea for harmony and good will. Exults L. E. S. vociferously and pleadingly "In the springtime, as I told you before, when all nature begins to awake and the birds begin to sing and to mate I feel like the great out-of-doors calls to me and I must answer. Why, said Lewis Edward, "A mouthful of wild onions and a tummy full of cress, a sprig of lilac and the bluebirds song set up within my manly chest the fleeting feeling of love and cause me to dream of dark brown hair and come hither eyes, pearly teeth—and—O me! Well, politics be damned!" So you see my dear readers, Lewis Edward Strother will decline the right hand of political uplift with an "OXCUSE."

A few months ago we had a visitor to walk with out stretched paw plumb into the middle of out sanctum-sanctum. This visitor was just another one of your distinguished citizen, Mr. Emory Nash. We were glad indeed to welcome Bro. Nash, and drink a toast to this Manassas citizen. (We use water, pure and sparkling, a little crushed ice to make a tinkling sound, and in July before we offer a toast a sprig of mint appears in our left lapel—the mint acts as a reminder.)

We welcome visitors from the battle scarred plains of Manassas and give an attentive ear to the crumbs of wisdom that fall within our reach.

The European powers have decided our armament—tonnage and guns—flying machines, and chewing gum. Now, according to the latest news, the International Chamber of Commerce tells us our tariff is absolutely wrong and must be modified to suit the European plan. Or, in other words we must act the part of a big brother and help starvation wage earners in distant lands, while, the Red Cross feed our unemployed.

We are also told by the same International Chamber of Commerce that our idea of the war debt is very foolish. Let the other part of the world run our Government and a Tower of Babel will be the results.

Common sense teaches us that we need a tariff high enough to protect our working class and maintain a living wage—alevel three jumps and a hop above European wage earners.

If overproduction causes a slump, and a slump causes depression, and depression causes hard times, and hard times curtails our buying power, how in the name of a bald head To-

They merely peck for present needs—they do not think of the other fellow and future requirement.

Here is a common sense view based upon our present and future economical structure? Our high tariff prevents the European manufacturer from dumping his goods, made by cheap labor, upon our markets. When we keep these goods made by cheap labor out, we likewise keep smoke in our factory chimney and our own wage earners employed. A strict immigration law prevents cheap labor from coming in and displacing our native labor. And at last, but not least, when an overproduction appears eminent, let wages be boosted to take care and absorb the overproduction. Or, in other words: a ten per cent overproduction and a fifteen per cent raise in the wage earners pay will solve the problem.

A MAY DAY PARTY

MAY was Chancer's favorite month, and ever since he wrote in the quaint English of his time: "For may wol have no s'ogardie night." English poets have been singing the joy and inspiration of this gay spring month. Shakespeare wrote: "As full of spirit as the month of May," George Withers sang: "Be she fatter than the day Or the flowery meads in May," and Milton mentioned "the clouds that shed May flowers."

Emerson wrote in more modern times: "What potent blood hath modest May?" and Helen Hunt Jackson praised the month in the lines: "The voice of one who goes before, to make The paths of June more beautiful, is thine Sweet May!"

Later still, Louise Chandler Moulton extolled the month as a good one for an idyllic trip: "I hid me off to Arcady— The month it was the month of May, And all along the pleasant way, The morning birds were mad with glee."

And all the flowers sprang up to see
As I went on to Arcady."

Bliss Carman evidently shared this opinion that May is a good month for a blissful hike, when he wrote:

"Here's to the day when it is May
And care as light as a feather,
When your little shoes and my big boots
Go tramping over the heather."

Let's Plan A Party

With all this poetic enthusiasm for May, and much more that there is no space to quote, let's give a party during this month when many flowers peep out, the sap runs in the trees, and you suddenly remember some of the exact feelings you had when you were a little girl or boy. Of course a Queen of the May party is the thing if you were the former, and it's equally pleasant if you were the latter, providing you enjoyed the Queen's approval, so let's plan a May Day party.

It's almost sure to be an outdoor day with lots of running games and dancing around a Maypole and everything, and that means it will be a hungry day for both the grown-ups and the children. So here's a good substantial menu calculated to serve twenty-four people, because you feel so good on the first of May that you want everyone to come.

Melon Wedges with Lime
Salmon and Macaroni Mold with Creamed New Peas
Cabbage, Apple and Nut Salad
Cloverleaf Rolls
Pineapple and Banana Ice Cream
Milk Cocoa Cup Cakes
Coffee Peanut Brittle

Salmon and Macaroni Mold: Mash with a fork the contents of four tall cans of salmon, and mix with four and one-half cups crumbs. Add twelve beaten eggs three cups of cooked macaroni (inch pieces), one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper and one-half cup butter. Pack into loaf pans and steam one hour. Serve sliced with creamed new peas.

Pineapple and Banana Ice Cream: Scald together three cups evaporated milk, six cups thin cream and two and two-thirds cups sugar, and cool. Add the contents of a No. 2 can crushed pineapple and one cup mashed banana pulp, and freeze.

Sweets "K. O." Spinach In Colgate Diet Experiments

"Human Guinea Pigs" Swallow Toy
Balloons To Aid Science
In Food Facts Quest

HAMILTON, N. Y., (Special) — "You can take or leave your spinach but when it comes to a slice of cake, or after-dinner candy, don't leave it."

This advice comes direct from the psychological laboratories of Colgate University where ten students have been swallowing toy balloons for the past seven months as part of a series of experiments to determine whether we should eat the things we like.

Records obtained by the balloon method, according to Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the laboratories, emphasize the importance of sweet foods in the diet. Dr. Laird even goes a step further. He concludes that two desserts, instead of one, will go a long way toward setting up a perfect digestive process, and will aid in the digestion of heavier foods such as meats, vegetables, and other dishes.

"Some months ago," Dr. Laird said, "we undertook an investigation to discover whether the psychology and physiology of eating were not of equal importance in the field of nutrition."

"Much has been said and written on the physiological side about the vitamins and proteins, but from the psychological angle, the natural, perhaps unconscious, revulsion of feeling that accompanies the enforced eating of foods we do not really care for but eat because 'they are good for us,' there has been little done in the way of investigation."

Sweets Aid Digestion

"Tests were made on a picked group of Colgate students who were employed to act as 'human guinea pigs' and records were obtained of the flow of saliva, emotional reactions as indicated by breathing, stomach contractions and the flow of gastric juices."

"Test meals were fed to the students and analyses made of the contents of the stomach at frequent intervals. Delicate instruments recorded accurately the digestive reactions of the subjects during the tests."

"The data obtained from the measurement of the gastric juices is perhaps the most sensational because it can be more easily translated into conclusions of benefit to everyone. Salty tastes, it was found, stimulate to a slight degree the gastric flow, while bitter or sour tastes have no effect. Sweet tastes are by far the greatest stimulators of these juices, a plentiful supply of which is essential to good digestion." Dr. Laird said that chocolate-bar was found to have the most marked effect.

Using a chart to illustrate his point, Dr. Laird explained how the gastric flow begins as soon as the first taste of food reaches the mouth, increasing steadily until within about one hour after dinner

Twelve feet of stomach contraction records, made as part of the diet tests, are given a shellac bath by two laboratory assistants.

it reaches its peak, diminishing rapidly after that time.
"From this record," Dr. Laird continued, "we learned that between one and two hours after eating a normal dinner, the natural flow of gastric juices reaches a vanishing point. But unfortunately for our selves, all the food in the stomach

Dr. Laird, with an assistant, is shown above giving a student one of the "taste tests."

The results, he stated, were immediately obvious.
"From this it is logical to conclude," he said, "that a second dessert taken about one hour after dinner in the form of a slice of candy, some sweet fact anything that is only a pleasant after-dinner, but is really to good digestion."

Dr. Laird, with an assistant, is shown above giving a student one of the "taste tests."

Operator, Two Repairmen
Awarded T. N. Vail Medals

Miss Alice F. Sprague (center), operator, New Cumberland, W. Va.; Ivan F. Vannoy (left), repairman, Winchester, Va., and Henry C. Griffith, combination man, Sistersville, W. Va., awarded Vail medals.

Vail medals for noteworthy public service have just been awarded Miss Alice F. Sprague, telephone operator, New Cumberland, and Henry C. Griffith, combination man, Sistersville, W. Va., and Ivan F. Vannoy, repairman, Winchester, Va., according to an announcement made by John C. Koons, Washington, D. C., vice-president, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies.

Miss Sprague was honored, according to the citation accompanying her award:

"For courageous action and devotion to the public welfare.

"On March 8, 1930, at New Cumberland, West Virginia, when a fire threatened to destroy a section of the business district of the town, Miss Sprague summoned fire fighting assistance and maintained telephone service during a critical period."

Combinationman Griffith's citation reads:

"For the probable saving of human life through prompt initiative and intelligent action in an emergency.

"On October 8, 1930, near Sistersville, West Virginia, when a workman had been rendered unconscious by electric shock while aloft on a derrick, Mr. Griffith removed the man from the derrick and restored him to consciousness through the use of artificial respiration."

The citation accompanying the award of Repairman Vannoy shows that he was rewarded for intelligent initiative and devotion to the public welfare.

"On August 5, 1930, at Gore, Virginia, when a fire threatened to destroy the town, Mr. Vannoy summoned fire fighting assistance and saved telephone equipment from destruction. His efforts were responsible for maintaining and later restoring telephone service when it was vitally needed."

Vail medal awards are made annually as a memorial to Theodore N. Vail, former president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, according to Mr. Koons. Such awards are provided for by the Vail Memorial Fund, established as a memorial to Mr. Vail, who at the time of his death had long been recognized as one of the world's great business leaders, and to whose conspicuous service in the telephone field were largely due the expansion of the Bell System and the development of the art of telephony.

A Week Of Meat Dishes
To Help You Save Money

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept., H. J. Heinz Company

WHILE some women always plan their menus for a whole week in advance, most of us find it more satisfactory to plan the entire meal only a day or two ahead of time. However, it is a good idea to decide upon the meat dishes for at least an entire week. Then, when you are ready to work out the daily menus, you will find always at hand an idea from which to start.

Also, by planning the meat dishes for several days in advance, you may avoid serving the same main course too frequently. While it is decidedly more economical, too, if meat dishes are selected well in advance so that full advantage can be taken of purchasing opportunities. For example, when one knows definitely that she will serve meat pie on Monday, one simply buys a larger roast for Sunday, and then uses the left over meat for the meat pie. Instead of going to market a second time.

Below I am suggesting meat dishes for one week. Build your menus for next week around them, and see how much easier this task will be:

SUNDAY—Roast Beef with Yorkshire Pudding: Place the beef in a roaster with a peeled onion. Add 1 tablespoon water, cover, and roast at 400 degrees F., until outside of meat is well seared. Then reduce heat and bake in a moderate oven, allowing 30 minutes to the first pound, and 12 to 15 minutes for each additional. A five-pound roast will require about 1½ hours to be well done, or about 1 hour and twenty minutes to be rare. If sprinkled with French Dressing the day before roasting, meat will be more tender and juicy. Baste while baking with hot water, to which has been added a tablespoon of Worcestershire Sauce. When about two-thirds done, season with salt and pepper.

To make Yorkshire Pudding, take several tablespoons of fat from around the roast and spread in a hot shallow pan. Mix 1 cup flour with ¼ teaspoon salt, gradually add 1 cup milk, and 2 eggs beaten until light. Pour into the shallow pan about ¼ inch deep. Bake twenty minutes in a hot oven, basting, after it has risen, with several tablespoons fat. Cut in squares and serve around the roast.

Monday—Beef Pie: Cut 3 dish and cover with biscuit dough or pie crust. Bake in a hot oven—about 400 degrees F.—for 20 minutes.

TUESDAY—Mixed Grill of Bacon, Sausages and Fresh Mushrooms: Arrange small sausages in a pan and bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees F.—for ½ hour. Ten minutes before serving, place strips of bacon on half the broiler rack and halved tomatoes or mushroom caps on the other half, and broil. To prepare the tomatoes, wash and cut in half and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Then spread with Prepared Mustard and dip in crumbled, buttered Rice Flakes. Serve on a hot platter, garnished with parsley and slices of Fresh Cucumber Pickle. Grilled slices of apple or halved bananas may be used instead of tomatoes.

WEDNESDAY—Ham Loaf with Potatoes and Pineapple: 1 lb. raw cured ham and ¼ lb. fresh ground pork; 3 cups Rice Flakes; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce; 5 white or sweet potatoes; 1 egg; ½ cup milk; pepper; flour; pineapple.

Mix ingredients thoroughly, pat into a loaf, and bake with a little water for about 1 hour. After first half hour, place white or sweet potatoes around the loaf, place sliced pineapple over the meat, and brown delicately.

THURSDAY—Broiled Lamb Chops

FRIDAY—Halibut Steak with Tartar Sauce: A fine tartar sauce is made by combining ¾ cup Sandwich Relish with 1/3 cup Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. A few drops of juice scraped from an onion may be added.

SATURDAY—Cold Ham Loaf with Oven Baked Beans

No Place

We firmly believe that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. We've been looking at the world across a grocery counter too long not to be sure of that. But we haven't been fooled by what's going on outside our store windows. . . . We've noticed that most men, on their way home to dinner, have a quick eye for a smart dress or a soucy bonnet.

In short, husbands like to eat fine food and see fine feathers. Which doesn't seem unreasonable to us—except, you know the fuss they make if you run up a bill for them.

Of course, you also know our advice in such matters: If you buy your food for cash at an A & P store, you're sure of the best food money can buy—and at prices so low you won't have to skimp on your dinners or your dresses to pay for it. You can actually keep off dressed up on what you save in A & P stores—without running into debt for it either.

BIG ESSENTIAL
FOR HEN FLOCKViolet Rays Foes of Rickets
and Other Ills.

Violet rays in direct sunshine aid in the assimilation of calcium and are foes of rickets and other ill to which flesh is heir.

While this is a familiar story to many poultry keepers it is not generally known that all sunlight has equal value—that, in fact, winter sunshine in northern latitudes has few or no violet rays the factor that cures or prevents the rickets.

Discussing the practice of some poultry men of shooting their flocks at this time of year into bright sunshine, Frederick B. Hutt, poultry specialist of the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota, says:

"This may be of value to stock kept for breeding but does not give the birds much if any more of the anti-rickets factor than they were getting inside the hen house. Experiments have shown that in latitudes even farther south than Minnesota the amount of ultra violet rays of the most valuable wave length is too small in winter to be of much importance. After the first of March the value of the sunlight increases rapidly and by April and May it has a rickets banishing potency about eight times as great as in January.

"The merits of various glass substitutes have been widely advertised the last few years. While it is quite true that many of these will transmit, when new, more ultra violet rays than window glass, the fact remains that even the best of them cannot transmit such rays when there are none to transmit. Neither will the breeding flock get its full requirement of the valuable factor if turned outdoors on the brightest days in February.

"But an ample supply of this factor is a prime essential if good hatches are to be obtained in the early spring. The only safe plan is to feed a good brand of cod liver oil at the rate of 2 per cent in the mash. By April 1, at which time the sun is again giving full value for the money, feeding of the oil may be safely discontinued."

Best Results Obtained
in Hatching Chickens

Best results are usually obtained when the birds for the pullet flock are hatched as near the same date as possible. But how can this be brought about when incubators of small capacity are used, or the hatching and brooding are done by broody hens? Poultrymen of University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., say that a practical method is to fill the small incubators with eggs from the breeding pens and as the hens become broody transfer the fertile eggs found at the first candling from the incubators to the hens and allow them to finish the hatch. The incubators can then be filled again after being disinfected. The hens will complete the incubation in about the same time and a large number of chicks will thus be practically the same age. This work must be done very carefully or there will be losses. A machine of 100-egg capacity, with broody hens to hatch, will bring off chicks from 400 fertile eggs within a period of 21 days, say poultry specialists.

Best Calcium Sources
for the Poultry Flock

In a recent test conducted by the poultry husbandry department of Iowa State college, Ames, it was found that best results were secured when the limestone used as a grit for the poultry flock was very hard, practically pure calcium carbonate and low in magnesium. Softer limestone did not give such results as did the hard limestone.

Oyster shell, clam shell and limestone were fed in the experiment and it was found that the amount of the grit material consumed was directly proportional to the number of eggs laid by the hens on test. The experiment indicated that the calcium requirements of the hens were fully met by limestone, as well as by the other materials.

Way to Keep Eggs

The best way to keep eggs for hatching is to pack them small and store in an air case and turn them every 24 hours for more than a week. A simple way to do this is to finish the eggs with all the egg on one side. The egg is put in a box and the other side of the egg is turned up on the other side of the box.

WHAT A KEY BANKER
DID FOR HIS COUNTY

The farmers of one county in Tennessee are receiving $400,000 additional annual income from new farm enterprises started since 1926 through the efforts of a "key banker" and the county agent, according to estimates
from the Tennessee College of Agriculture. A "key banker" is a part of the state bankers' association voluntary field force cooperation with the American Bankers Association in its nationwide plan to develop better agricultural conditions. The county agent started in 1926 with projects are tobacco, cotton, cabbage production, and dairying and poultry raising for livestock.

The key banker, looking for something to do to better his community,
first attempted to procure a county agent but was unable to get the county to make the necessary appropriation,
so he and other leading citizens made up the requisite funds through private subscription among farmers and business men and an agent was employed.

Up until 1926 grain was the principal farm production in the county.
The banker recognized the disadvantages of this. It afforded a low cash income, and the land was too hilly and rough for profitable grain raising. His idea was to introduce cash crops that offered more return per acre and were better fitted to the county. It was decided that the county should standardize on the Green Mountain potato and to market it in carload lots.
Through his bank he sponsored the buying of a car of certified seed potatoes. He likewise bought some high quality tobacco seed and several hundred settings of purebred eggs.
These supplies were distributed at cost
through the banks to the farmers.

After considerable effort a market for dairy products was assured the farmers when in 1928 a national cheese company located a factory there. A county appropriation was secured for county agent work in 1928.

In 1929 the cash crop program resulted in farmers selling $45,000 worth of milk, $150,000 worth of tobacco and fifty-five carloads of potatoes and cabbage, mostly through cooperative sales.
"This was some step from the $25,000 worth of cash crops in 1926," the county agent says, "and indications are that this amount will be doubled."

Banks Favor Diversification

Emphasis was placed on the strategic position the banker holds through the use of directed credit at a recent meeting of the Alabama bankers' agricultural committee. Alabama is confronted with the problem of over-production of cotton. The committee recommended to banks that credit be extended on the basis of a twenty-five per cent reduction in cotton acreage. The value of growing other crops than cotton was strongly stressed and county outlook meetings are being planned with the thought of bringing about a more balanced agricultural program in the various communities.

Fats are important primarily as sources of energy. They also help to make a high cereal diet palatable. Butter and certain butter substitutes carry fat, soluble vitamins which are not found in lard; hence they are more nutritious and should be used if they can be afforded.
