MISS ANNYS BEATRIX CLARK.

Miss Annys Beatrix Clark, supervisor of Prince William County schools, and Mrs. Catherine Smith Arrington, one of our local teachers, have just completed a most interesting and instructive history of Prince William County.

In very concise and readable style these young ladies have taken county history from earliest colonial days and advanced step by step to the present. The volume is a valuable and permanent contribution to local Virginia history and there is a wide demand for copies of this most interesting and instructive book already.

Miss Clark has blazed a trail for teachers all over the state as we feel sure that other teachers will speedily grasp the idea and engage in similar research for their respective counties.

We congratulate the authors.

CAPTAIN ARNOLD KIWANIS GUEST

Club Learns of Police Radio Work.

Captain John Arnold, of the Alexandria police force, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis last Friday evening. His address was extremely interesting, and the subject matter all very new. The speaker went into every phase of radio work in police crime detection and prevention. He brought a specially designed set with him and let his audience hear the broadcasts from many of the large cities.

After the meeting dispersed, so many of his hearers showed such evident interest that they were shown the workings of the sensitive equipment in his own car.

Captain Arnold told several interesting stories and showed the human side of police work.

Most of the city and county police department were present as was also Commonwealth's Attorney Lion.

MISS WALLACE TO ADDRESS HOME-MAKERS

Miss Maude E. Wallace, state home demonstration agent, will speak at the March meeting of the Prince William Homemakers Association. This meeting will be held at Haymarket on Thursday, March 9.

The meeting will open with the luncheon which will be served at the parish hall at 12:30 o'clock by the Haymarket School League.

At the business meeting following the luncheon officers for the year will be elected.

Mrs. John Piercy and Mrs. N. N. Free will have charge of the recreational program.

Miss Maude E. Wallace, director of home demonstration work for the state of Virginia, will speak on "Real Living at Home and What This Means." Miss Wallace is an able and attractive speaker.

Those who expect to be present for the luncheon are asked to notify Mrs. Esther Terrell, Haymarket, or the home demonstration agent. All women of the county are invited to attend the meeting.

MR. BIGELOW IN MANASSAS

Mr. Chas. F. Bigelow, division passenger agent for the Southern, was in Manassas visiting among his friends last week. He was delighted with the friendship which the people of old Prince William have for the Southern.

DIES SUDDENLY

Thomas Walsh, attorney-general-elect, died en route to the Capital early this morning.

MUSIC CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. RATCLIFFE

The Music and Literature Section of the Woman's Club had a delightfully interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. G. R. Ratcliffe on the afternoon of Monday, February 27.

Mrs. Walter Sanders read "A Local Colorist" by Annie Trumbull Slosson. Before reading this selection she discussed at some length the habits and customs of such New Englanders as formed the background of the story.

Miss Gladys Ball sang a solo appropriate for the occasion and the whole section sang a number of the New England Fisherman's songs, with Mrs. A. S. Gibson at the piano.

The hostesses were Mrs. J. P. Lyon and Mrs. Eula Holt Merchant.

A SUBSCRIBER PLACES SOME INTERESTING FACTS BEFORE US

Editor, Manassas Journal.

Dear Sir:

At the time the First Federal Seed Loan was proposed, I protested against the idea to those about me.

It turned exactly as was anticipated, leaving a large percentage of those who availed themselves to the loan, further in debt. It also helped to break down the already glutted market, with produce not needed.

They now propose to try it over, and a protest at this time seems to me to be in order. I would suggest that they continue the R. F. C. relief work on roads and other non-liquidating projects. Spreading the work to all out of work, at the same time allowing all so employed enough work to support himself and dependents.

Wage scales should not be high enough to interfere with local industries. Nevertheless, it should be high enough to provide enough to eat for worker and those dependent on him.

If this is done you will not have to lock your door against beggars, or the chicken house against thieves, who are forced to beg and steal to make up the difference now allowed by the R. F. C., necessary to maintain.

If this simple loan could be adopted, it would relieve depression in short order. Five billion dollars will see it through, and who says that a country as rich as this could not raise it. It will also create a market to start our industries moving again. This would be considered good business in private body. Is it not good business in government economics?

The free seed they are offering in Virginia, instead of work is a sad substitute for an industrialized people. Very few of young (up to 25 years) know anything of farming or gardening. There seems to be a lack of understanding of the change that has taken place in rural districts; since the advent of the automobile, tractor, and truck. The tractor has increased the output and at the same time has cut down the over-head.

The truck has increased the speed of handling everything used on the farm, and the delivery to market of everything grown on the farm, to the advantage of the farmer, at the same time cutting down the over-head on such deliveries. To his door the truck brings things that he was unable to have, until the advent of the truck.

The auto gives quick, efficient and indispensable service. For example, if the binder, in the middle of harvest breaks a part at nine a.m., and the local dealer does not have the part, it must be ordered from Baltimore. By three p.m. the same day the part is replaced, the machine running, and the harvest finished before the storm has had time to blow down the ripened grain; thus saving it.

This example happened a few years ago at Hickory Grove, when a number of people due to late harvesting were caught by wet weather. This person saved her grain, without the automobile this would have been impossible, due to slow train deliveries.

As to recreation, I believe that the farmer has as much, if not more, right to take a ride in the evening after work, than any other class. His industry is the most important one in the world. Nevertheless, he is the most exploited, taxed, and it is rubbed in by telling him that must economize and cut out his auto, tractor, and other conveniences, at the same time told that he must return to methods used by his father just because some politician tells him to.

He should not do this, or try to grow things that his land is not adapted to, when his distant neighbor has land just right, and the truck can deliver it to him at a price that he would starve on, if he were to try

PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY WELL REPRESENTED IN INAUGURAL PARADE

Messrs. J. Carl Kincheloe, Melvin C. Hazen, E. R. Conner, Ernest E. Hale, Frank Cockerill, Connie N. Kincheloe and Paul C. Kincheloe will take part in the 4th Division.

FARMERS SHOULD HAVE LOWER RATE OF INTEREST AND A MORATORIUM

There are now about ten billion dollars invested in farm mortgages in this country which are held by bankers, insurance companies, and investment companies, so the problem of farm mortgages is not merely one of relieving the farmer, but protecting the interests of these investors. To foreclose on farms under present conditions is indeed impractical. If they were sold today thousands of farms would only bring a small percentage of the value of the mortgages held against them, and should farmers be deprived of their only means of subsistence at this critical time it would be a crime against society to allow foreclosures to proceed under these conditions.

Some efforts should be made to work out adjustments so that farmers may hold their property and mortgage holders may be protected from loss.

In some cases in the west there is some resistance by the farm owners and they will not permit their farms to be sold. This is not the right spirit — a situation like this contains the seeds of anarchy, which we do not want in our country.

Our government agencies should come in and facilitate some adjustments that will conserve the assets of the mortgage holders and allow the farmers to hold their property until economical conditions improve.

Our farmers are honest people and want to pay their debts, if some process of adjustment could be brought about by which they could have more time. Why can't some plan be worked out by which farmers could borrow money at 3 per cent instead of 6 per cent or 7 per cent, and a moratorium of two or three years be given? At least as much moratorium as we have given our European countries.

Farmers should not borrow any more money. They just accumulate more debts which they can not pay. Some means should be worked out by which they should be helped out of debt rather than enlarge the debt they have already made.

There is more money piled up in large banks than there has ever been in the history of this country. The government can float yearly certificates at three-fourths per cent interest and they are oversubscribed sixteen times, and yet the farmers can't borrow a dollar unless they pay from 6 per cent to 8 per cent and give about ten times the amount they borrowed for security.

A large percentage of the farmers will be able to pay their debts if some orderly process of adjustment of that obligation is provided. By all means this serious situation should be considered by Congress; not postponed until an extra session, without great danger to farmers, insurance companies, bankers and investors.

E. R. Conner.

A short business session in which we decided to piece squares for a comfort and bring them to the March meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. D. E. Earhart.

Mrs. Elmer Vance will entertain with Mrs. Earhart.

Dr. Howard Wells, presiding elder of the Washington District, drove home so wonderful truths in his recent sermon at Asbury using the text "What do ye more than they?"

He may judge from the many favorable comments that people of today are expecting our preachers to raise the standard of Christian living far above that of the world.

Dr. Wells said one great defect in the church is, the church is too much like the world.

Christ said to his disciples, "If ye do as others, what better are ye than they?"

The man of the world is saying, "What is the use for me to join the church when its members are no better than I am?"

Among other things he said a revival of business always follows a revival of religion.

The commercial man always follows the missionary. Seek ye first the kingdom and all these things shall be added.

RAFT, CARROLL IN ACTION FILM

Raft has the role of the latter, and Nancy Carroll appears as a girl who works as the under-cover man's accomplice, her motive also being one of revenge.

Lew Cody is the villain of the piece, and the other prominent roles are played by Gregory Ratoff, Roscoe Karns, Noel Francis and David Landau.

The Word of God
BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

If parents will have their children memorize the daily Bible selections, it will prove a priceless heritage to them in after years.

VALUE OF A GOOD NAME:
A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold.—Proverbs 22: 1.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

No man in history has entered upon his duties as chief ruler of a people with the popular appeal that belongs to Roosevelt. May his term as President be prosperous and successful. May he bring back prosperity and may peace reign in our borders.

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. Swanson resigns from his seat in the United States Senate tomorrow to enter the new Cabinet. He has served Virginia for forty years and will continue this valuable service in his new field.

Mr. Byrd, who succeeds him, has also rendered great service to his native state and we sincerely wish for him as many years in the Senate as his predecessor.

Our sincere good wishes go with them both. Virginia called and they have answered.

PRICE NOT LIKELY TO RUN

Yesterday, in Richmond, James H. Price, considered a formidable possibility for the governorship, refused to issue any kind of a positive statement, adding that he would have one by March 10, or thereabouts.

While the Lieutenant-Governor appeared very much interested in suggestions concerning his candidacy, word was circulating that he had already decided not to run, and that he would not take an active part in the campaign, merely consenting to continue in his present office with the hope of stepping up four years from now.

Such a step would be interpreted as a move to aid Judge Peery. There are some who have cast a slate which puts Mr. Price up as candidate for Governor with the Louisa Senator (Worth Smith) as his running mate.

Senator Smith is waiting, but no one knows just what he will do. Though a potential candidate, there are many who are just as ready to forecast that he will not run. If he does run, Virginia may look for a good sized scrap, win or lose.

Senator Byrd goes to the Senate with a wealth of good feeling, and has a handicap on any candidate who might aspire against him. The skies are darkening around Fredericksburg, where the wiry, keen O'Connor Goolrick waits to give out the big news of his candidacy.

In sections where some animosity to Harry Byrd still smolders, fire is sure to break out if Goolrick runs. With the old lion of Loudoun pacing about in his Leesburg mansion, and Walter Mapp, of "One Quart Cannon" days still languishing in his Tidewater retreat, opposition may develop.

If this should occur, political alignments may be hard to maintain. Without an adversary, Senator Byrd, who is a close friend of Judge Peery, will have both hands loose to give him the aid that many expect him to extend.

THE NEXT PRESIDENT'S WIFE

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has with reluctance notified her radio audience that she expects to say a real farewell next Friday night. As she approaches the threshold of the White House there are many of her admirers who question the necessity of her giving up a career of her own, or to merge it completely with that of the mistress of the White House. In Mrs. Roosevelt there is embodied the woman to whom the twentieth century has given privileges and prerogatives. That woman is about to arrive at the White House.

Despite what has been said and what has been written in regard to the public utterances of Mrs. Roosevelt, it is not reasonable to expect her to follow implicitly in the pathway laid out by the wives of the chief executives. She must blaze the trail for the woman upon whom the twentieth century has conferred the privilege—or the responsibility—of being a personality. As such, it may be expected that she will solve the puzzling question of how to be the wife of the President and at the same time, herself. This, perhaps would be too much to expect of a woman of the past, but Mrs. Roosevelt is of a different era. She is too tactful, too versed in public life to commit blunders. In this new position her resourcefulness will meet the supreme test. But having been schooled to meet situations both as the wife of a public official and as an independent woman, she is well qualified.

It has not been regarded as ethical in the past for the wife of the President of the United States to express publicly any opinion. There is no gainsaying, however, that the world at large is greatly in need of sober and unbiased judgment such as Mr. Roosevelt is wont to exercise. America is much given to stifling her fine minds, many of whom cannot or will not stand the unrelenting crucifixion of unconsidered opinion, while it listens spellbound to harangue from individuals whose chief claim to leadership is a certain keen insight into mob psychology.

Mrs. Roosevelt's own family life, the serious interests in which she has engaged since she has been true to the more exacting duties of the home, the success of her undertakings and her unprejudiced view of every question upon which she ventures an opinion, would seem to qualify her as an outstanding leader among American women. It is, therefore, exceedingly questionable if the thinking women of the country will be willing to sacrifice such leadership because the woman who possesses it, happens also to be the wife of the President of the United States.—Newport News Daily Press.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A surprise birthday party was given to Katherine Jenkins Wednesday, March 1, by her Sunday school class at her home on Centre street. The table was beautifully decorated with two cakes with nine candles, the age of the hostess. After an hour of fun and merriment the birthday cake was cut and the guests served with hot cocoa, candy and ice cream. Those present were the Misses Barrett, Blevins, Baker, Cross, Davis, Brown, Corum, Gillum, Pickeral and Williams. Katherine was the recipient of many presents and after wishing her many happy birthdays and thanking the hostess for a good time, all departed.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES FOR FRANCES WILLARD

The Manassas W.C.T.U. observed Frances Willard Memorial Day on Wednesday, the 22nd, at the home of Mrs. Thos. Broadbush.

An interesting program had been arranged and a large number of members and visitors were present.

We were favored in having Rev. W. M. Compton and Mrs. T. G. Pullen with us. Mr. Compton spoke on the life of Frances Willard, emphasizing the religious side. Her childhood was carefully guarded by a somewhat puritanical father. On her 18th birthday she asserted her independence by reading her first novel, Ivanhoe, by Walter Scott. Henceforth, the laws of God and the land were paramount. And she was free to think and decide for herself aside from parental authority. She gave to her mother the name, "Mother Courageous," and paid to her the high tribute of having never heard her repeat gossip! During an illness from typhoid fever at the age of 19 years, she heard the call of two voices, the one from the world, the other the voice of God. She surrendered her life to the call of God and that decision culminated in the woman whose beautiful character is known and "honored in every state in the Republic and hardly any country in the world that has not had occasion to bless her birth."

She was organizer of the World's W.C.T.U. and was its second president. She traveled extensively. One of her campaigns covered 30,000 miles.

Frances Willard was scholar, leader, organizer, Christian.

Mrs. Pullen gave a spirited talk on Prohibition, and referred to the verdict of "the average girl" who proved, by letters received by her from hundreds of girls between the age of 14 and 25 years, from 33 states that they were not drinking, and in many cases did not know the taste of alcoholic drinks. They represented the statement that "the average girl" of today faces the problem of learning very young how much she can drink such things as whiskey and gin and stick to the proper quantity. They are indignant that wet agitators say they want legal liquor for the sake of the young people. "The average girl" replies, "we do not want it if the older people want it let them say so, but they should at least have the courage to not hide a false statement, that it is for the sake of the young people."

Mrs. R. L. Sadd read an address delivered on Feb. 17, 1905, by U. S. Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, the state in which Frances Willard spent most of her life, and which claim her as theirs. The occasion of the address was the presentation of the marble statue of Miss Willard by the state of Illinois, which statue stands in Statuary Hall in the Capitol of the United States. "A monument of human hearts, not a monument of cold marble." "Her purity of purpose, her loyalty, her tenderness, her breadth of human sympathy and her resistless energy won for her the title of 'the uncrowned queen of America,' and in the hearts of 5 million true women of the land she reigned supreme."

Other articles were read by those present and special music was rendered. Mrs. Broadbush sang "Nearer Lord to Thee."

We were dismissed with the Aaronic benediction, to meet with Mrs. Sadd in March.

SWAVELY NOTES

The mid-winter dinner and dance on Friday were an unqualified success. The menu was excellent; the decorations very unique and effective, and the Pied Pipers' augmented orchestra supplied very good music.

Besides the usual Manassas group there were several out-of-town guests, Mr. Caino bringing a party of six from Washington. One of these was Dr. Lang, son of Anton Lang of the Oberammergau Passion Play fame.

Mr. and Mrs. Swavely entertained at an intermission party during the dance.

The huge dirigible, "Swavely IX," under pilots Butts and Weston, has left for parts unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter spent Saturday night seeing in Washington, while Mr. Reeves and Mr. Leinbach visited the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

The basketball season has ended, and baseball and track sports await the coming of fine weather. Meanwhile vigorous contests are taking place in intra-mural sports.

The whole student body will go to Washington on Saturday to view the Inaugural Parade.

The faculty reading club met as usual last evening with Mr. Andrews in charge.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear mother, Beulah Blakey, who departed this life two years ago today, Feb. 26, 1930.

We watched you, dear mother,
But little did we know
That on this day two years ago
Your soul from us would go.

'Tis so hard to lose a mother,
A friend that is so dear.
If only tears would bring her back,
Dear mother, you would be here.

Before our eyes you fade, dear mother,
Growing weaker every day,
Doing all we could to save you
But God called you away.

Just when life was the sweetest
And she could have lived her best.
The gates of heaven opened
And she entered into that sweet rest.
— Her devoted daughters,
Bessie and Sophronia.

Technocracy Hits The Horse

Old Dobbin inspects the unique vehicle that will put him out of a job (top); other photo shows the car with rear-end motor removed. Inset, Lee Oldfield, its inventor.

INDIANAPOLIS (Special) — Old Dobbin will be out of a job soon, when Lee Oldfield's new invention reaches the ears of operators of big horse-drawn delivery fleets.

Twelve years ago, Oldfield, ex-race driver and automotive designer, decided he could build a motor-delivery truck better and cheaper to operate than a horse and wagon. Now after years of work, he has completed what a prominent automobile magnate calls "the most unique vehicle in production."

It is operated by a single hand lever, with no shift levers or foot pedals. The motor is in the rear end, attached to the rear wheels, and can be removed as quickly as a horse from a wagon. It has no frame, and each wheel is individually sprung. It is cheap to operate and costs about the same as a horse and wagon.

A novice can learn to drive it in a city block. Oldfield says, and it will "do everything a horse can do but come when you whistle."

So thousands of milk and bakery horses seem doomed to join the army of the unemployed.

GALAXY OF RADIO STARS IN DIXIE FILM NEXT MONDAY

While the world is crazy about Bing Hornsby's radio crooning, the crooner is crazier about Mona Lowe, sirenlike actress. Again and again he's too late to broadcast Grip-Tight Girdle Hour. He can't tear himself from Mona's arms.

Burns, owner of the station, is in a sweat. Clapsaddle, sponsor of the program, is in a fury. And Anita Rogers, a secretary, is in a daze! Anita jilted her Texas suitor and came all the way to New York to be near Bing, who gets her name wrong each time he meets her—and can never remember having met her before!

Once too often Bing lingers in Mona's embrace. All in vain is his frantic dash, his careening taxi—for at the door of the broadcasting station he is mobbed by women, whose kisses delay him until it's too late. He is fired.

Anita sympathizes, but still he can't remember that he's ever seen her before. He goes to a speakeasy, finds a sorrowful stranger there, and remembering how lucky he is to have Mona, job or no job, starts trying to cheer his new friend. The man is Leslie McWhinney, Anita's jilted suitor, now doubly sad because he turned to a Dallas widow for consolation—and she took him for $100,000 he had made in oil wells! Bing boasts of his own luck in having Mona—but just then he sees by a newspaper headline that she has married a wealthy broker.

The two stricken pals find that no beverage will drown their sorrows, so they decide to try gas. They go tearfully to the little love nest Bing had built for Mona, there to end it all!

Success is crowning their efforts when Anita arrives to tell Bing he's not fired after all; the sponsor has relented. She puts the unconscious boys to bed, and stays to guard them during the night. Leslie is amazed, next morning, to find his Texas girl in Bing's shower bath!

More disaster awaits at the broadcasting station. While Bing is crooning, with a sob in his heart, creditors enter, and the furniture begins exiting. Leslie comes to the rescue by buying out the bankrupt broadcasting company. His amazed friends learn that after losing the $100,000, he still had a paltry $900,000! Intent on doing his utmost for Bing and Anita, Leslie now plans the biggest broadcast ever made, a program literally spangled with radio stars—featuring his pal!

Comes the beginning of the Big Broadcast. The great radio stars—Kate Smith, the Boswell Sisters, the Mills Brothers, Cab Calloway, Arthur Tracy, Vincent Lopez and others—are there, but not Bing. The latter is once more in Mona's clinging arms,

"BILLION DOLLAR SCANDAL"
AT DIXIE MARCH 10

Ratsy, a pickpocket, has spent his term in prison perfecting his professional tricks. Kid McGurn, ex-champion welterweight, has used his to prepare himself for a comeback. Fingers Partos, a trusty, has developed unusual technique as a masseur.

Paroled at the same time, the three get together to prepare the Kid for a comeback. First, however, they pick up three girls and celebrate their new freedom. A bit too much celebrating lands their car in a ditch. It lands another car in a ditch too—the car in which Masterson, a prominent financier, is riding. Masterson, badly hurt, is revived through Fingers' skill, and is so impressed by it that he offers Fingers a job as his personal trainer. Fingers accepts, after the Kid, in his first bout, proves a dismal failure as a boxer. Anna, Fingers' girl, hails this move with delight.

Masterson is so pleased with what Fingers does for him that he invites several of his friends, men prominent in financial and governmental affairs, to train with him. After one of these sessions in the gym, Masterson explains a "deal" he plans to put over on the government. He expects to secure valuable oil lands—by methods none too ethical—and then boom the stock of an oil company he controls.

Fingers listens and acts. He makes a fortune in the stock. But Masterson knows how this wealth has been accumulated. And, to discourage Babe, Fingers' brother, from paying attention to Doris, his own daughter, he gives Fingers a fake tip and breaks him completely. Then he fires him.

Broke, Fingers joins Ratsy and the Kid in opening a massage parlor. To it one day comes Albert Griswold, editor of a powerful newspaper, to persuade Fingers to reveal the complete story of Masterson's oil deal. (See the rest in the play).

Your address label tells whether a subscription is due because she has annulled her marriage to the broker, annexed half his fortune, and is now Bing's forever!

Poor Leslie tries frantically to find his star, and in desperate emergency tries to croon in his place. When his voice in the pitiful attempt reaches Bing, he tears himself away from Mona, blacks her eye, and dashes to the studio—just in time to croon for the closing of his pal's program. And in improvised lyrics he tells Leslie and Anita that they love each other, and he loves Mona. Anita throws her arms hungrily around Leslie as the announcer signs off. (See the rest in the play).

The wind for the past 24 hours has been especially bad on weak nerves with the continual noise of metal roofs, but it's said "it's a poor wind that does not blow somebody good." It is drying the dirt roads and making it possible for travel. The Greenwich road to Gainesville is being worked by State Highway, which is very gratifying to those who travel it.

Mr. Frank Lee of the "Hermitage" had a birthday dinner given him on Feb. 22 and only a few of his guests could attend on account of the road.

There is little sickness in our community, and everybody seems to be wearing a smile, in spite of the depression.

Mr. Frank Lee had a bee hive stolen from his bee yard near Bristol, some days ago. He found the empty bee hive some distance away. He took notice of the tracks, but as he got back the hive and being the first time, he did not bother to investigate.

A tribute of love and devotion to the memory of our beloved husband and father, Landy P. Suthard, who departed this life six years ago today, February 27, 1927.

He suffered hours of pain. We wished for cure, but all in vain. Till God alone knew what was best. He called him home and gave him rest.

They say time heals a broken heart. But oh! it seems untrue. For six years our hearts has asked, Dear Father, just for you.

The rolling stream of life rolls on. But still a vacant chair. Recalls the love the voice, The smile of one who once sat there.

Our family circle has been broken. Links have gone from our chain. But though we are parted for a while, We hope we'll meet again.

Loving and kind in all of his ways, Upright and just to the end of his days, Sincere and kind in heart and mind: What a beautiful memory he left behind.

Gone is the face we love so dear, Silent is the voice we love to hear. Not dead to us who love him, not lost but gone before.

He lives with us in memory and will forever more.

—His devoted wife and children.

MINSTRELSY ADEN

Perhaps all we need tell you is that our entertainment is of a 16-cylinder model which makes it the best possible.

Can you imagine an Elder who loves to shoot craps—who has big feet, a big mouth, and a pleasant smile; but who lacks a wife—who, after being introduced to his sinsoaked congregation, says that he sees "Gran" and glorious prospects ahead? Well, this Elder Dwight Moody Jenkins is Mark Kerlin.

Did you ever see a stolen rooster put in a clothes closet because he couldn't keep his 'yap' shut? He's owned by Rufus Rastus and Lucindy Chloe Simmons, at whose home Elder Jenkins' reception is held. This host and his wife are Luther Bowman and Fern Garber. Deuteronomy, their daughter, who so delightfully entertains the receptioners with an eulogy to the Elder, is played by Hazel Bowman.

Deacon Astor Gould Blueblood, who tries to get a wife for the Elder but isn't married himself—which, he says, would take too long to explain why, is played by Paul Garber.

Why should three young ladies, who have "set their caps" for the Elder, faint at the same time—then suddenly awake when 'freshments are served? These eligible young ladies, Ophelia Pearlina Snowdrop, Mandy Lulu Beanoop and Juliana Susanna Shaw are Evalyn Kerlin, Florence Marshall and Anna Smith.

Wouldn't you enjoy seeing a white-washer's wife who keeps her money piled up in a coal-shed and who gives Pink Teas? How about Saratoga Amelia Washington who tries to muzzle Mrs. Rochester Abraham Lincoln, a washwoman, but finds she can't without nine dollars? She's played by Annie Marshall and Gladys May is her would-be victim.

And Mrs. Caroline Abigale White who isn't original and who hollers "bring on the grub," is so elegantly played by Louise May.

The other characters are more assorted than the component parts of boarding house hash.

Ebenezer Alexander Baldhead, a crap shooter is George Jones.

Moses Mordcael Hambone, a breaker of ladies hearts, is characterized by John Hively.

Seymour Stultz plays the part of Sam Augustus Porterhouse, a tonorial artist.

George Smith plays the role of a lover, Jeremiah Cicero Perkins.

Lilly Rosebud Porterhouse who threatens to blow her husband's head off, is played by Pearl Kerlin.

Carrie Stultz is Mrs. Filly Arabella Baldhead and she really finds out whether the Elder believes in dances or not.

Mrs. Caralena Susie Blew, who agrees that maids are so stupid is Virginia Jones.

Geneva Kerlin impersonates Liza Love Jackson, who is engaged.

Of course you won't have to sit so quiet and act so dignified when the Rev. W. W. Garman, Ph. D., preaches a rip-roaring sermon, his subject being "You Dog-gone Sin-nahs."

The characters are all of the chocolate assortment and they will keep the laugh center in your medulla working livelier than a cash register in a bargain basement.

Warning! If you have a burning desire to aid in the destruction of the drama don't be present at the entertainment on Friday night, Mar. 10, at 8:00, but, if you want the rafters of the Aden School House to ring with laughter—hop to it! And remember you'll be helping the Aden folks to build their new church.

MANASSAS HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Several excellent programs have lately been presented at assembly. Last week, at a George Washington Birthday program, besides songs by the school and by the Senior boys and a reading by Miss Catherine Luck, a fine address was made by the Rev. W. F. Compton. Mr. Compton spoke on the "Wayside Traps of Life" or the temptations which assail young people in their life's journey. He spoke of low ideals, idleness and pleasure as being responsible for the downfall of many, and said that those who had high ideals, who were interested in a regular vocation, and who participated only in clean and harmless pleasures need have no great fear of these pitfalls. He also stressed the fact that it was these seemingly small temptations even more than the large ones which must be carefully watched. Mr. Compton's address was one of a series to be given thro' the spring by ministers and other speakers.

Two very interesting health programs have also recently been given at assembly. One on the care of the teeth by Miss Neel, the county health nurse, who illustrated the subject with a fine set of charts sent out by the State Department of Health. The other was presented by the biology class who gave a series of very amusing as well as instructive illustrations on the "Ten Commandments of Health."

Last Saturday the American history class had an enjoyable as well as strenuous sight-seeing trip to Washington. They visited the museum and Smithsonian Institute, the Congressional Library and both Houses of Congress, where they heard much interesting and excited discussion going on over bills before both Houses. The class was conducted by Miss Hindle assisted by Miss Waters. And thanks to the low rates kindly given by Mr. Ayres on his bus, found their trip a very inexpensive one.

The biology class expects to take a similar trip soon to visit some of the scientific exhibits of the government departments.

A number of very interesting talks on vocational guidance have also been made lately before the fourth year vocational civics class. Among these have been addresses by Mr. R. Ratcliffe on banking as a profession, by Mrs. Guthrie, superintendent of the District Home, on social service, by Mr. William Lloyd on journalism, and by Mrs. McBryde on commercial art.

to grow the same produce.

The same argument is used that his wife should do away with her washing machine, because it uses gas, or electric current, or that she should bake her own bread just because she pays twenty dollars for the refined product of grain her husband sold for 2 1-2 dollars. This argument is foolish.

A large percentage of the $17.50 difference is used up in creating new work for the unemployed, who will use up some of the surplus her husband has produced by working his help and himself, longer than is necessary to supply the demand.

Labor should be more equally divided so that all may share in it.

It is true that the farmer is losing something, his independent position, he becomes more dependent on his neighbor; but he has gained more than he has lost.

I will not try to give you a comparison of an up-to-date farm of today specializing in certain crops fitted to the locality and one of forty years ago that took care of every need of the family. The most of the readers of this will know of the change, and know whether they approve of it or not.

Nevertheless, I am sure the farmer is going forward in his specializing of growing things that grow better on his land, and leave to his neighbor to grow those that suit his locality. When the crops are grown the exchange will be made. This system helps to reduce crop failures caused by planting things on land not adapted to them, it also gives him time to improve his methods of production, and cuts down the machinery needed on the individual farm, even if it builds up a surplus.

For years we have been taught, that to specialize is to fit ourselves for larger rewards. The doctors, lawyers, engineers, and all others looking for results do it.

Why shall the farmer go backwards? I say his happiness, his future, his well-being, demands that he go forward.

This protest is against any more seed loans, until a market has been established, also against free garden seed, to individuals who have become industrialized, and ignorant of what it takes to grow a garden.

Those who have grown a garden in the past will grow one this year and no doubt a larger one. They do not need free seed, but those who have depended on others for garden produce and did without a garden, will not grow one, free seed or no free seed, unless suitable land, and someone to supervise them on the job, is furnished.

Some will try it no doubt, but that try will turn out as the try at farming at the District Home turned out.

A man willing to work has a right to a job that will furnish him and his family, their needs and society should see that he has it.

These experiments in charity should cease. We should get down to business as the needs are only too evident, even to a layman.

The suggestions offered in the first part of this protest are not offered as a cure for depressions. The only relief from this one I could suggest would be a constitutional amendment, so that congress could legislate a minimum wage and a shorter work day as we progress. These two things seem to me to be the only ones that will bring any permanent improvement in our economic poker game.

They tell us it was the lack of thrift that put us where we are, that may be true for the individual, but it is not true for the whole. For if everyone has planted his ten per cent per day the flow of the medium of exchange would have been dammed up long ago and would stay dammed. This holds good whether he puts his money in his sock or in savings account. Money must be spent and not hoarded, to make livable conditions in our present civilization.

This does not mean that all should, or will spend all they make. Such a condition would be a very unhappy one.
