ALUMNI BANQUET ENJOYABLE EVENT

Manassas Graduates Accorded Special Honors.

duly ushered into the valley of humiliation in the basement of Grace M.

Prior to the banquet Wheatley Johnson, chairman of the nominating committee, read two names for each office and electing was done by ballot with the following results: Officers for 1935: President, J. Jenkins Davies; vice-president, Margaret Adams; secretary, Virginia Speiden, and treasurer, Avelyn Miller.

The educational torture consisted of an air-minded initiation designed and concocted by Jum Davies, Frances Bushong and Jack Merchant with the assistance of Miss Christine Meetze, all four of whom acted as the initiation crew.

At the beginning of the ceremony it looked as if Rev. "Joe" wasn't coming and O. D. substituted for him. The class of 1905 put in its annual yell immediately after which Rev. "Joe" appeared on the scene which entitled the class to another yell. This so enthused '26 that they tried a feeble echo.

The music for the occasion was furnished by Mrs. Bob Smith at the piano and by two solos by Miss Gladys Ball accompanied by Miss Virginia Speiden. The Junior girls served the splendid banquet which was soon a thing of the past, and thereafter the initiation began, the petition for the pilot's license being filed by Virginia Hurst, president of the class in a good peppy speech.

The test consisted of an airplane race between Messrs. Fisher, Dodson and Compton. This was followed by an analysis of an air pocket by John Water and Mary Pattie. When this was completed Virginia Hurst and Irma Ball went into an outside spin. The next two members of the class to be called on were Lucy Gibson and Mary Marsteller who showed how to land in the snow with a busted wing. The premier performance was given by Mary Lynch who took the part of a stewardess on an air line.

The test being over, Kathryn Luck, president of last year's class, replied to the petition of the new class of 1935 and indorsed the same.

Prof. R. C. Haydon, superintendent of the schools, gave a fine speech of appreciation filled with humorous reminders and antedotes directed association and held a thirty-second silent memorial during which taps Margaret Lynch, John Barrett, Mrs. signals these officers drew their sapiece and tapering gold candles at er this the toast was drunk and the evening was over with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Commencement Features Hon-ors for Principal.

The high point in the commen ment exercises at the Manassas High School came Friday evening, May 31, with the awarding of the diplomas.

The auditorium was crowded more than usual when Rev. W. M. Compton arose to give the invocation shortly after the singing of "Old Virginia" by the school chorus had concluded the entry of the graduating class and the faculty.

Professor Worth Peters presided over the exercises, the first feature of which was the welcome to the audience by Miss Osbourn.

She described the work and suc-School Board, parents, faculty and others for assistance given.

Two songs by the school under the direction of Miss Virginia Speiden furnished a pleasant intermission to the program.

The first student to be heard was Miss Mary Currell Pattie. She explained the major school activities. and stressed the increasing emphasis of responsibility in the student body. KIWANIS CLUB Miss Pattie explained what the Student Co-operative Association was Miss Pattie explained what the Stuand the outstanding achievements of Group of Guests Assemble with stressing particularly the enlargethe same during the current term, ment of the school paper, the success of the Athletic Association dance, the annual bazaar and many other notable accomplishments of the school un-

> Rev. John DeChant sang an appropriate number, Kipling's Recessional, with Miss Speiden at the piano.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, was next introduced to the graduates. Dr. Kayser immediately launched into a federation of praise of Miss Eugenia. He stated briefly "the occasion is a rare one. Usually I address one graduating body, tonight I address two. I come here to lay my homage at the feet of Miss Osbourn. This school is but a lengthening shadow of its principal whose real monument is these young people and the many others who have graduated before. "Miss Osbourn had faith in education. As she relinquishes the high responsibility, you must maintain the high standards she has raised . . . The integrity in study is not unlike integrity in life. "There is so much of epitome in the word 'Commencement.' The ending of this task is but the beginning of another. The question is, what are you going to do next and how eration? Do not take a ready-made formula for anything, but study out this age as it differs from others."

Mr. Kayser made a dramatic comparison of the post-Revolutionary period with the present day, comparing the two ages as one of popular government and the other that the idea of popular sovereignty is now applied to individuals,

"Now you are coming to a realization of the word 'Society.'

"Now you have heard that you are living in a new country. We are not living in a new country but in one we have made prematurely old by our folly. I say to you, without hesitation, to 'be yourself.'

"The world is going to expect to hear from you so give the world your own message which must be one of intelligence.

Noting the cap and gown costumes of the graduates, Prof. Kayser declared he was glad to see this scene and said, "Let this garb remind you of the generations that have gone beyond. Let us make our integrity the Harry Davis 185, Edgar Parrish guarantee of our country's integrity 183, E. R. Conner 179, John Burke among the great countries of the world."

Bringing his remarks to a close Mr. Kayser classified the Manassas High School as "a great school in a great Commonwealth has brought you where you are."

The next feature on the program was the awarding of prizes which was done by our able orator, Mr. O. D. Waters. O. D. Waters had some interesting explanatory remarks with the awarding of each prize and in-TO GOVERN TOWN serted quite a bit of humor in these remarks.
