Five Club Interclub Pilgrimage Made Last Week.

The secret connected with Ed Hill's request to change the meeting date last week developed when Ed and a squad from four of the neighboring clubs drove in on Wednesday evening thirty minutes before the usual hour with the net results that only about one-third of the club was there to break bread with them and the program went in reverse so to speak.

Having already visited Washington, Alexandria and Clarendon, the weary pilgrims still had Prince George, Md., ahead of them.

Having first distributed some mysterious little pieces of glass, Ed started his program with the following words:

"Stars since time immemorial have guided mankind in his innumerable undertakings. Today, as in the early days, stars guide the traveler from port to port over the seven seas and across the desert wastes. From the stars in the heavens man calculates time and distance and if he reads his horoscope properly he may foresee his destiny on this earth and endeavor to fulfill it accordingly."

"Tonight my associates will view their horoscopes and present for your entertainment and edification a feature—'Seeing Stars.' The influence of stars on Kiwanis objectives is very real as has been brought out in the five-star programs of Kiwanis International.

"Now I present George P. Mangan, vice-president of the Washington Kiwanis Club."

Mr. Mangan (using red glass): "How bright the world looks; if you could view it as I do you would see the possibilities of continuous frivolity and fun. Fun should rule the universe. But wait, a change is taking place, so before it spoils the picture I yield to former President James B. Edmunds of Washington."

Mr. Edmunds (using green glass): "My horoscope tells me that fellowship continues to aid man in his undertakings. At weekly club meetings and at interclub meetings such as this, many enduring friendships are formed in Kiwanis. Friendships would rule the world if the nations would only meet in friendliness, so let there be more friendliness. With this thought I yield to Arthur C. Keefer, former president of the Prince Georges County, Maryland, Club."

Mr. Keefer (blue glass): "Frivolity and friendship are all right in their places, and both are necessary in Kiwanis, but my horoscope shows the need for greater interest in the objectives of our organization. Such interest will result in better attendance at club meetings and will encourage greater opportunities for extending Kiwanis service. With this thought I yield to former Governor of the Capital District, Harry G. Kimball, of Washington."

Mr. Kimball (amber glass): "Service is the object I see most prominently before my vision. Service to others is the principal foundation stone on which Kiwanis is built. It is this spirit of the Golden Rule that keeps us interested in Kiwanis and increases fellowship and makes possible the fun necessary to lighten the work of carrying on Kiwanis activities. Think that over as I yield to John F. Webster, past president of the Arlington County, Virginia, Club."

Mr. Webster (purple glass): "Boys and girls work is an activity that is ever before my vision. The more Kiwanis can do for the youth of North America the better it citizens will be. Here, on the eve of our Nation's birthday is an opportunity to expound the virtues of good citizenship, so I yield to former Lieutenant Governor Irving Diener of Alexandria."

Mr. Diener (clear glass): "What you gentlemen have had to say is all true, I grant you, but remember that your visions have ranged from rosy red to pale blue. What this country needs today is a clear vision and as I view my horoscope I see before me a constellation of stars, white stars on a background of blue enriched by alternate red and white bars.

"It is the vision of a flag, the symbol of home, of country, of liberty, of opportunity, of humanity, and of service. It is the vision of a banner which a proud nation ever holds aloft, as an example of a democracy where individualism becomes a collective force fostering the sublime principle of giving primacy to the human and the spiritual rather than to the material values of life.

"We look through the horoscope and each catches a glimpse of a different (Please turn to page 8)

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Smallpox Vaccine now in the hands of the doctors of the county will soon be outdated and all children to enter school in September who have not been vaccinated must be taken to the doctor at once. The Public Health Nurse is not allowed to vaccinate.

The teacher will expect the child beginning school in September to bring a slip from the doctor to tell whether the child is a Five-Pointer.

It is urged, too, that all children who have not been protected against Diphtheria go to the doctor for the Toxoid which is given his year in one dose. This is as important for children under school age as for school children as all are reminded when the birth certificate is sent.

MANASSAS BATTLE PARK PREDICTED

Wilbur Hall Believes Success Is Assured.

Following conferences with National Park officials in Washington this week, Hon. Wilbur C. Hall, chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission, stated to representatives of the press that the establishment of a national battlefield park to commemorate the two major battles fought along Bull Run is virtually assured. The Manassas Battlefield Park Association has agreed to turn over to the State Conservation Commission 146 acres in the vicinity of the historic Henry House for conveyance to the federal government as soon as the necessary assurance is made that it will be developed by the National Park Service.

Development of this and similar historic tracts in Virginia have been engaging the attention of the Virginia Conservation Commission for some time, it is stated, and recent assurances have been made in Washington to justify an optimistic viewpoint on the realization of the enterprise.

U.D.C. WELCOMES FORMER MEMBER

Mrs. Warren Moser Keith of North Carolina Renews Old Friendships.

The Manassas Chapter, U.D.C., met July 3 in the Parish Hall with Mrs. Lonas, president, in the chair.

Mrs. Warren Moser Keith, of Rock Hill, N. C., and a member of this chapter, was warmly welcomed. Mrs. Keith said she was glad to renew old ties of friendship, and brought greetings from the Annie White and S. E. Barron chapters. She spoke of some of the objectives of these two chapters—awarding of medals to college girls and assisting the D.A.R.'s erect a monument to Andrew Jackson. In the historical hour, Mrs. Keith read the beautiful poem, "Marse Robert's Asleep."

Mrs. Newman read the following extract published in the June issue of The Southern Magazine from the able pen of Dr. Freeman, writing of Lee: "His greatest achievement in arms was, however, of a value less enduring than his daily life after Appomattox. His own face was turned to the future; his lips were sealed on any discussion of the past. He deplored bitterness, and encouraged industry. His ideal was that every man should take such employment as he could find, should qualify himself to participate in the Government, and should work with all his energy for the economic, the moral and the cultural restoration of Virginia."

Mrs. Lonas read a letter from Senator Rust saying the Memorial services on the Battlefield would be held on July 20, instead of the 21st, which comes on Sunday.

Mrs. Hutchison reported the Winchester Chapter's invitation for the district meeting next spring.

The name of Mrs. George Byrd was presented for membership.

A motion by Mrs. Weedon, chairman of the building committee, was carried, that each member save a penny a day for a year for the Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. Nash will be hostesses for the August meeting of the chapter.

LAWN PARTY AT GREENWICH

Macs End First Half of Season, Losing To Arlington By Score of 3 to 2

Visitors Score Three Unearned Runs As Dreifus' Support Falters At Inopportune Times.

The Macs, who must sit up nights thinking of ways and means to lose ball games, discovered a new one Sunday, handing Arlington a perfectly good game which should have terminated with the score five plus to zero in favor of the local team. Fortunately, the second half of the split season starts next Sunday, giving the Macs a new lease on life and another chance to go places and do things.

Dreifus pitched a creditable game, limiting Arlington to seven hits, all singles, but a pair of walks, a wild pitch and a pair of errors by the usually reliable Vetter enabled the visitors to score three unearned runs, one more than the Macs were able to garner off Wesley over the nine-inning stretch.

The umpiring was of the variable sort; was of no particular benefit to the home team and almost precipitated a riot in the ninth when Cooper's catch of T. Kite's foul pop over the ropes between home and first was ruled legitimate and ended the game with the home folks trailing by a run.

Poor base running proved damaging to the Mac cause. W. Kite walked to open the third, went to second as Woodard beat out a bunt, wandered aimlessly off base in the general direction of third and was promptly run down in a futile effort to reach third. In the sixth, Dreifus drove the ball to deep right center and was tagged out at the plate on a close play. Brenner followed with a hit to left, and catching the spirit of the thing was erased at second when he attempted to stretch it to a double. The Macs threatened mildly in both the eighth and ninth but Wesley tightened in each instance to turn them back without a score.

Arlington scored single runs in each of the third, sixth and eighth innings, the first coming as a result of a pair of hits and a wild pitch. Cooper opened the sixth with a single to left, was sacrificed to second and scored when Vetter fielded Brafford's hard bouncer and threw past first. The winning tally was scored in the eighth when with one away Dreifus alked Cooper and C. McPherson. Brafford forced the latter at second and when Vetter, trying for a double play, threw past first, Cooper scored.

STATE FARMERS INSTI- TUTE AT BLACKSBURG

The next session of the Institute of Rural Affairs will be held at Blacksburg from July 30 through August 1. The central theme of the program this year will be "Adjustments Affecting Rural Life." Speakers on the programs include Secretary Wallace, Dr. Carl Ladd and Dr. F. A. Pearson of Cornell University, and other outstanding leaders. As usual, the programs will provide for special sections in which technical information will be given on subjects in which those attending are particularly interested.

A special effort is also being made to provide a good recreational program. Jimmy Gheen, one of the foremost humorists of the country, is expected. On the second night a colored quartet of special note has been engaged while on the third night the Southwest Virginia Mountain Musicians will be present. It is planned to have the Harrisonburg Boys' Band of forty members for afternoon concerts during the whole session.

Prince William County has always been well represented, even though it is one of the most distant counties from Blacksburg, and present indications are that there will be a good-sized delegation going down over the end of the month.

The Institute offers an opportunity for a pleasant and profitable vacation at the time of the year that it is most needed.

U. S. CHAMBER SENDS SPEAKER

Ralph Bradford Presents Interesting Facts at Dumfries.

As announced, Mr. Ralph Bradford, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was the guest speaker at the July meeting of the Prince William Chamber of Commerce held last night at the Odd Fellows Hall in Dumfries.

The speaker was highly entertaining and graphically instructive in his talk. Citing ancient Bible history as original source of present-day chambers of commerce, Mr. Bradford showed how committee work was the strongest stone in the structure. In order not to confuse his audience, he stated that he was making a study of the needs of the county and that of the wealth of information now on file in his office that he would mail out specific articles that would greatly assist Mr. Cloe and his assistants.

Hon. Thomas H. Lion, commonwealth's attorney and always a booster for civic affairs, gave an unusually fine but brief address.

A short talk by A. S. Boatwright, another chamber booster, concluded the session.

The next meeting will meet at Mr. Alpaugh's pavilion at Lake Jackson on August 8, the September meeting to be held at Haymarket.

The winning team at the State Fair will represent Virginia at the National Dairy Show at St. Louis next fall.
