MAC NINE WINS AT ALEXANDRIA

Driefus Limits Opponents to Four Hits in Brilliant Pitching Effort.

Manassas invaded Alexandria Sunday and became the party of the first part in the seasons most startling upset, winning from the strong Celtic Nine by the score of 6 to 2.

The Celtics, who were the possessors of a sixteen straight winning streak, ran into unexpected opposition and found themselves in difficulty from the start. Driefus turned in one of his best games since donning a local uniform, holding the Celtic sluggers to four hits, one of which was a bunt, and with better luck would have blanked his opponents.

The Macs, taking advantage of Titcomb's wildness, pushed across a single run in the second inning, fell upon Titcomb in the sixth with a sudden five hit attack that was good for four runs and chased the latter to the showers and sneaked across their final run in the ninth off Shu with the aid of but a single hit.

Driefus in the mean time was holding the Celtics at bay, permitting but two men to reach second during the first five innings. They scored their first run in the sixth as the result of a walk, an error and a pair of infield outs and added another run in the following inning on a single, a walk, an infield out and a single by Shu. Driefus steadied in the eighth, however, and after pitching a single to Godfrey, forced the next three hitters to pop out to short. He wound up the final inning with a flourish, setting down Hamilton and Ludlow on strikes and forcing Lonford to roll out to Vetter for the final out.

With the Macs holding on to a one run lead, Vetter opened the sixth with a single to center and took second as Saunders dropped a single into short right. They each moved up a base as Brenner tossed out Bradshaw. Kite lined Titcomb's first pitch into right for a single, scoring both Vetter and Saunders. Kidwell kicked so on the decision at the plate that he was ejected from the game. Wurdemann continued the assault with a triple against the right wall to score Kite and scored a moment later on Driefus' line drive to center. The latter blow finished Titcomb and Shu came in to halt the Macs' drive.

BAPTISTS MEET AT LEESBURG

First Time Since 1903 That the Association Has Gone There.

The Leesburg Baptist church is to entertain the eighty-first annual session of the Potomac Baptist Association on August 12 and 13.

This will be the third time for this church to entertain the Association. In 1887, and again in 1903, this body met with the Leesburg church. On the first occasion there were fewer than four thousand Baptists in the Potomac Association. This year there are more than ten thousand, while the number of churches has increased from 44 to 64.

The sessions this year will be held in the High school building at Leesburg, where the body will find adequate seating room on the inside and abundant parking space on the outside.

Some new features have been added to the program this year. The reports will be fewer and promise to be more interesting. There will be more time for discussion, and the speaking arranged for promises to arouse great interest. Mr. H. Grady Daniel, Musical Director for the First Baptist church of Alexandria, will be in charge of the music and will sing one or more solos.

Rev. Owen P. Lloyd is to preach the annual sermon. Rev. C. W. McElroy, the new pastor of Upperville, will make his first address to the Potomac on Men and Missions, while his wife, a former president of the Women's Missionary Union of Virginia, will speak to the report on Women's work. Rev. Russell J. Urquhart of Fairfax will also be making his maiden speech on Present Day Youth and Religion.

At a memorial service in honor of Dr. Chas. T. Herndon and Revs. V. H. Council and Chancellor N. Brown, Mrs. Arthur S. Jenkins of Leesburg will sing and Rev. J. Murray Taylor will deliver an address.

The devotional theme this year is worship and there will be four brief and pointed addresses on different phases of worship.

Rev. Perry L. Mitchell of Clarendon is expected to preside, while Rev. C. Wirt Trainham of Marshall will be serving his fourteenth term as clerk. The meetings will begin at 10 o'clock on both days.

REENACTMENT IS WITNESSED BY 31,000

A WONDERFUL PAGEANT

The Seventy-fifth Anniversary of Jackson's great military victory will long be remembered in Prince William. Over 30,000 people witnessed the marvellous army display and heard the clear, ringing voice of Dr. Freeman, Virginia's famous historian, as he described with dramatic force and realistic vividness the facts and movements of the First Battle of Bull Run. His address was listened to with rapt interest. He, himself, expressed regret—a regret felt by every one—that the opening guns stopped him at a most interesting point.

The Army and Navy officials, co-operating with the local committees, omitted no detail in their part of the program and certainly have the appreciative thanks of all interested in the gigantic performance. For their aid, without which the celebration could not have been handled in this way, we are indebted to our Congressman Howard W. Smith.

The bountiful and beautifully served luncheon was pronounced by Governor Peery, Judge Howard Smith and the rest of the 200 guests to be the best of its kind they had ever enjoyed. For this, Mrs. Jacobson and her associates in the United Daughters of the Confederacy are to be most cordially thanked.

Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Editor of the Richmond News-Leader and eminent historian. Author of the Life of Lee

DR. FREEMAN EXPLAINED TROOP MOVEMENTS

JULY 21, 1936!
This day brought almost as much fervor to the throng gathered on the battlefield last Tuesday as it did seventy-five years ago.

Taking all things into consideration that which will be most remembered of what occurred Tuesday will be the dramatic moment when Dr. Freeman repeated Jackson's famous command. "It is now 3:25," said Dr. Freeman, "in a few minutes you will witness what took place just seventy-five years ago to the very minute. In his dispatches, Jackson stated 'It is 3:30. The condition of the line is such that it calls for a bayonet charge. I have ordered the charge'."

Dr. Freeman seemed to absorb the spirit of the great Jackson as his words rang out.

And then thirty-one thousand people gave a mighty cheer as the discomfited Federals fled northward in the direction from which they had swept to the South.

Dr. Freeman gave one of the best discourses on the campaign to which an audience ever listened. He showed very clearly the causes of the defeat, disclaiming the general assertion that McDowell had planned the battle well. From a military standpoint, Dr. Freeman sounded much like a division commander discussing a previous engagement.

The speaker was intensely interested in his subject and unfortunately did not have time to complete his entire remarks as his time allowance was cut short nearly twenty per cent by the other speakers. An the military action started very precisely at two-thirty.

There were among the spectators quite a number of veterans some of whom are listed as follows:

Confederates: Gen. R. M. Colvin, Co. E. 11th Virginia Regiment, Harrisonburg, Va.; Robert Cushing, private, Co. A. Fourth Virginia Cavalry; Leroy Wesley Cox, private, Fourth Brigade, Wise's Legion Virginia Cavalry, Charlottesville, Va.; Carter Bishop, V. M. I. Cadet, Petersburg, Va.; J. W. Gwaltney, private, 2nd Tennessee Cavalry, rear ranks, Roanoke, Va.; Mayor Harry Wooding, private, first fifteen months, Co. B. 18th Virginia Infantry, two years, ten months, Co. C. Fifth Virginia Cavalry; Robert W. Wilson, private, 1st Maryland Cavalry, Co. D., Maryland; and one Union veteran, Napoleon Beckeleman, private, 96th Pa. Regiment, Pennsylvania.

Several of the veterans were actual participants in the battle and indorsed what Mayor Wooding of Danville said when he declared that the reproduction was quite realistic and accurate.

Other prominent personages in attendance included: Miss Cox, Adjutant, John Bowie Strange Camp, Charlottesville, Va., Mrs. Norris Harris, Registrar General, U. D. C., Dr. H. J. Eckenrode, Richmond, Va., Edward A. Wyatt, Franklin Smith, Dr. J. W. Coleman, Superintendent, Petersburg National Military Park, Mrs. H. R. Quesenberry, Lexington, 2nd vice-pres. state U.D.C., and Dr. Quesenberry, Mrs. William M. Forrest, University, President, Virginia Division, U. D. C., Dr. Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nat Harrison, Greenville, N. C., Mrs. E. O. Henckle, Richmond, Va., Miss Anne V. Mann, Petersburg, Va., past president of the Virginia Division and National officer, U. D. C., Dr. Douglas Freeman, Richmond, Va., Hon. Howard W. Smith, Gov. George Peery, Hon. Wilbur C. Hall, Commissioners, Melvin C. Hazen, and Dan I. Sultan, Capt. Edward A. Duff, chief of naval chaplains, Mr. Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service, Brig. Gen. Gardner Waller, Walter Hopkins, commander-in-chief, Sons of American Revolution, Gen. and Mrs. C. H. Lyman and Col. and Mrs. Barker, of Quantico.

During the period of the Sham Battle Dr. Freeman stayed by the microphone explaining some of the things which were being done. He called attention to the fact that the men were going through the laborious motions just as if they were actually loading muzzle loading guns. Dr. Freeman explained in this connection that many of Jackson's men had flint locks dating back to the war of 1812.

Another interesting point he noted was the practice of the ranks interchanging, each rank loading and going forward to shoot as it knelt, while one or more ranks in the rear were
