CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 24.

The Golden Text was "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting: and his truth endureth the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law. Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law; yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart." (Psalms 119:1, 18, 34)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Songtures" by Mary Baker Eddy:" The supposed laws which result in weariness and disease are not His laws, for the legitimate and only possible action of Truth is the production of harmony. Laws of nature are laws of Spirit; but mortals commonly recognize as law that which hides the power of Spirit," (p. 183)

Luke, played by Jean Hersholt, on the verge of retirement from the burdens he has carried for a generation, decides to call back from all over the globe the three thousand men and women whom he assisted into the world. From all over the country and from many foreign lands they come, the rich and the poor, the high-placed and the lowly, to take part in the reunion. Also joining the party is the attractice young Dr. Tony Luke, the doctor's nephew, whom he has called back to the little Canadian town from his post in Toronto to carry on with his (Dr. Luke's) duties. Tony, though ceply in love with Mary, Dr. Luke's nurse is followed by the wife of his superior in the Toronto Hospital, who refuses to release him to a younger and fresher love. In a climatic scene that combines all the elements of potent drama with pathos and uproarious humor, Dr. Luke, Tony, Mary, Mrs. Sheridan, and the doctor's 3,000 grown-up "babies" -including the government of a state, a fading stage star, a crook just out of jail, and many other unforgetable characters convene for the reunion. Also present at the gathering, for added chuckles and heart tugs, are the celebrate Quintuplets. You'll grin and gulp by turns as the old doctor, under cover of pompous speech by a government dignitary, straightens out the problems of Tony, Mrs. Sheridan and the jealousy-torn Mary, of the governor and his ac-knowledged little waif of a son, of the actress and her girlhood flame.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN Warning Against Imported Clover

Prince William farmers are urged to exercise care in selecting clover and alfalfa seed this year. The difference in price between foreign and domestice seed may cause some to be tempted to use unadapted and inferior seed. Practically all imported red clover and alfalfa seed will not give good results in Virginia. W. H. Byrne of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station makes the following statement: "I would personally prefer to sow adapted domestic seed even if the seeding cast per acre was double. You just can not depend upon the crop produced from foreign seed going through the first winter.' 1937 Soil Conservation Program.

Rates of soil building payments have been announced as follows: Seeding Alfalfa-$2.50 per acre.

Seeding Red Clover or Bluegrass-$2.00 per acre.

Applying ground limestone or its Equivalent-$2.00 per ton.

Applying 16 per cent Superphosphate or its equivalent on Permanent Pastures-60 cents per 100 pounds or $12.00 per ton.

Seeding Lespedeza or Sweet Clover -$1.00 per acre.

Deductions will be made from the above allowances where there is an increase in the acreage of depleting Mr. and Mrs. Roland Tardiff and Elcrops crops as corn and all small grains whether harvested for hav or grain. Feathered friends fly into the news — and human sympathy. In Baltimore a jaywalking pigeon tied up traffic in the business section by walking under a trol-ley car and refusing to come out. The ruffled pigeon was not hurt-nor arrested-but was taken to the police station for safekeeping over night.

Not less than 10,000 birds, it is reported, have been given a lift southward in airplanes into sunny Italy this season. The birds, mostly young swallows, were brought to offices of the Vienna Animal Protection League by school children, adults, laborers and policemen who found the half-famished birds, many of them so weak and disbody, and in spirit, which are abled that they were easily caught. They were fed, placed in special containers and sent by air to Venice where they were released.

minds of imaginative people. With telephone companies they are very material things. In telephone plant phantoms are used very generally for long distance circuits. Phantom lines are the result of transposing two telephone circuits and equipping them in the terminating central offices with repeating coils which in turn are connected to the switchboards. This provides a third talking channel for very little more cost than the construction of two physical telephone circuits.

Cross Talk and Noise Reduced The first thing that must be done to phantom two long distance circuits is to transpose or change in position at stated intervals in a section of line the two wires forming each circuit. Then in turn the two circuits must be transposed or charged in position at Phantoms usually exist only in the inds of imaginative people. With lephone companies they are very mafactory for commercial use.

People driving along highways frequently see telephone lines, which are crossed, re-crossed or bunched like spiders' webs at the crossarms on the poles. This changing in position of the two wires is a transposition and where the two circuits are "bunched" that is a phantom transposition.

Developed in 1884

This method of providing extra long distance circuits without stringing new lines was first discovered in 1884, which was just a few years after the telephone was invented, but it was not put into general use until 1904. Today there are thousands of miles of phantom circuits in use in the United States, which has meant a big saving in service costs to telephone users.

"Little Miss Marker" is a story about the "hard guys" and the diamond-crusted 'ladies of Broadway, and a little girl who took them over the jumps by showing them that they've all got hearts, even though they hadn't been using them for a while.

With Adolph Menjou playing the role of the shabby, penurious bookmakers and Charles Bickford portraying the ruthless racketeer who has "musceled into" the racing game, Shirley enters the lives of the racing "mob" when her father deposits her as security for a bet. His horse loses, and he kills himself. Menjou, at first indignant at having a child dropped into his lap, soon comes to love her, as does every one of the other gambler friends, whom Shirley calls by the names she has learned from the stories she has learned about King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table.

When the child begins to acquire their crude mannerisms, they attempt to restore her waning faith by a masquerade in which they portray the parts of the knights and ladies whom she has christened them. At the party the story almost comes to a tragic close, but in Shirley's hour of greatest need, the innate nobility of the "muggs" comes to the surface, and the film ends happily.

The pcture, which was based on a story by Damon Runyon, was di-rected by Alexander Hall. It is a B. P. Schulberg production.

REMINISCENCES OF MY Calling, calling evermore! TRIP TO PANAMA (With apologies to Poe.)

Once upon a winter morning, we arose before the dawning For a voyage was in progress which

I'd never had before Henry took us to the station, big and roomy, Union Station Where beneath its lofty portals, endless travellers come and go. Coming, going evermore!

Ah, distinctly I remember, it was in the bleak December

And the fields were white with snow fiakes, as cross the land we tore New York was the goal we wanted, city long by wealthy flaunted

Where from the docks along East River, ships depart for a foreign shore

This we sought and nothing more!

New York's sun was slowly sinking, and stars were almost twinkling. When the "Ancon" lifted anchor, and cast off with shout and roar. Cargo growing, tug boats blowing and a cold ring o'er and o'er. "All ashore that's going ashore!"

Down the ba the "Ancon" races, salt spray stings our lifted faces, As along the rail we cluster, gazing sphinx-like at the shore.

Like a jewel softly gleaming, New York's skyline now is beaming, While a tall and gracious statue shines toward the Jersey shore. Lights the world for evermore!

To our state room now we're turning, rushing in and hoping, yearning That with all the baggage found there, only ours would strew the floor, But, alas! the thought is fleeting, as a gay and friendly greeting Falls upon our ears as now we open wide the door

Thinking this will be a bore!

But a lesson this has taught us, for the girl who shared our quarters.

Was a sweet and charming maiden, coming from the Brooklyn shore. In her eyes a light was beaming, on her hand a ring was gleaming. Packed with fine and dainty laces were her bags upon the floor Silken garments were there galore!

Brightest of Virginia's sages, in the far and distant ages

Was a man named Patrick Henry, and his name ring o'er and o'er, But a modern Patrick Henry in a tropic land so friendly Waits to claim Miss Gertrude Johnson, as she steps upon the shore, Claiming her for evermore!

Ah! the days of matchless beauty, hours so free from care and duty, As our ship sailed ever southward, speeding to a tropic shore. Tromping decks forever reeling, watching sea gulls smoothly wheeling.

Reading, talking, sleeping, dining, playing games til all are sore. Glorious day forever o'er!

Suddenly the air grew denser, perfumed by tropic censer Faint blue hills rose in the distance, which they said was Haitian

It was on the morn of Christman that we docked upon the Isthmus Thick around the rail we gathered, scanned the crowd upon the pier, Ah!

they see us-happy meeting, Anne and "Evie" waved a greeting. Gaily now we walk the gang plank happly we step ashore. Met by folks whom we adore!

Cousin Charlie, Anne and Evie, Mary, Army and the Navy All were there to give us weld the Panamanian shore Kenneth represents the Army and the Navy sent us Tracy Friends of Anne and, therefore, friends of ours for evermore And tis thus our voyage is o'er! M. A. S.

POSTAL INSPECTOR SOLVES

'SPIRIT PICTURE' MYSTERY; PARALLELS DRAMA IN FILMS

A news dispatch under a Washing ton date line reveals that a postal inspector ran down very recently an unusual mystery of "spirit pictures" which puzzled the department. The almost spirit world designs distorted the beauty of the lovely lady's limbs. Following closely after that, unexposed movie film was rushed to Hollywood. When the film was shot, printed and developed, experts were startled to find amazing patterns on the film. The faces and figures of cinema stars were almost wiped out by strange images, which looked like fireworks, star shells, bursting rockets, streaming flares, and roman candles. More film shipments continued to be ruined.

A postal inspector went to work. He checked at every point, to be sure that nobody had double exposed the film. Satisfied that no human being had, and refusing to believe that spirit people use modern cameras, he kept digging until he discovered that the mystifying pictures were due to radium being shipped to doctors and placed near the film, in transit. His findings have resulted in an order being issued prohibiting the shipping of radium trough the mails.

This brilliant sleuthing is paralleled in "Postal Inspector," at the Pitts' case began when a news photographer Theatre this Friday. Ricardo Cortez,
