

COUNTY AGENTS COLUMN

State Farmers' Institute
Attendance at the State Farmers' Institute at Blacksburg on July 27, 28 and 29 will afford a pleasant and profitable vacation for farmers and their families. Men and women from every Virginia county will meet together on the W. P. I. campus on these dates. Many outstanding speakers are included on the program and the usual tours of the experimental farm are scheduled. Rooms are available in the college dormitories for the nominal cost of $1.00 for the entire session and meals may be obtained at the dining room on the campus for $1.00 per day.

Crimson Clover
Crimson clover is seeded in corn just ahead of the last cultivation which should be shallow. Fifteen to twenty pounds of seed is used per acre. Italian rye grass is sometimes seeded with crimson clover. In mixtures, fifteen pounds of crimson clover and fifteen pounds of Italian rye grass per acre is used.

Alfalfa
Preparations for late summer seedings of alfalfa should be started in July. After the first good rain in August is generally considered the best time for late summer seeding. Alfalfa undoubtedly has a place on many Prince William farms. Usually there is at least one field that is suitable or that can be brought up to the necessary condition for growing alfalfa. The increase in acreage has been slow but gradual during the past few years. Being a heavy producer under proper growing conditions, it is naturally a heavy feeder. About double the normal applications of lime and fertilizer are needed.

BETTER PASTURES
Good pastures and prosperous farming communities go hand in hand. Permanent pastures that are not fertilized or limed can be just as depleting as corn or wheat grown year after year. Grass on poor land is low in animal carrying power and low in mineral and nutrients.

A TRIBUTE TO OLD GROVETON SCHOOL (Contributed)

"Where is now the merry party
I remember long ago
Laughing 'round the Christmas
fireside
Brightened by its ruddy glow?
Or, on summer's balmy evening
In the fields upon the hay?
They have all dispersed and wandered
Far away, far away."

As the words and music of this old song sung many years ago by our "merry party" came to my mind, my thoughts drifted back to the party which carried on at the old one-room school house at Groveton, Prince William County, Virginia, under the leadership of Miss Edith May Leachman assisted a few times by her sisters, Misses "Bobbie" and "Nan."

There was only one room, but it took care of all the grades, with classes in every subject and every grade taught in the public schools of that day. I am sure that "Miss May" heard between thirty-five and forty recitations each day without assistance. She not only taught the a-b-cs and the Rs, but to our class, which finished in 1888 was given the privilege of taking higher mathematics and natural philosophy as it was called at that time—though they were not included in the courses presented by the school board of that time.

"Miss May" taught at that same little old school house—the children and I believe in some cases, the grandchildren of pupils of former years. Many of them became teachers in schools of this and other counties. Some went to higher schools, and in every case the exceptional training by Miss May proved her ability as a teacher, and gave the student a long start on the class or classes he or she entered. Many came from other districts and counties to take advantage of that exceptional training.

I venture to state that she taught more years in that one-school house, started on the road to success, more worth-while citizens, than any other teacher of a rural school, in proportion to attendance, in the State!

She also found time to supervise our play. She believed that girls as well as boys should take part in athletics of all sorts and the sturdiness of her pupils proved her to be right as usual.

We had a baseball diamond, and a hurdle race track on the hill above the school house, and many happy and profitable hours were spent there. She taught us to play without scrapping, too, and to play fair at all times.

Our merriest times were on Friday afternoons when a club which she organized performed in songs and dialogue. We held a meeting every Friday afternoon and one open to the public once a month. They were high days for us and, I am sure, for our visitors if enjoyment can be measured by the number of callers. Often there was scarcely standing room, and sometimes the performers could only reach the platform by pushin' and shovin'.

And spelling matches! We had em!!! There was quite a rivalry between Groveton and Catharpin Schools. Mr. G. B. Couders was the teacher at Catharpin at that time, and I am sure those teachers enjoyed those matches as much as we did. Groveton usually won because we had one of the best spellers in the county on our side—Blanche Wilkins—Mrs. E. N. Pattie now. I believe if she were to enter a match now, her side would win.

Those never-to-be-forgotten days are gone, and the "merry party" scattered.

"Some have gone from us forever Longer here they might not stay," but "Miss May"—Mrs. May Dogan now—still carries on for the benefit of her family, her friends and humanity, altho' nearing the sunset of life.

CATLETT

Our community was greatly shocked by the sad death of a beloved citizen on June 17th.

Mr. Layton Ruffner, age 27, who was killed by an electric shock received while using an electric drill. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow Mrs. Helen Heflin Ruffner, and one daughter, Anita, age 5 years, also his father, five brothers and two sisters and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held at the Catlett Presbyterian Church of which he was a member by his pastor Rev. Geo. W. Crabtree. Burial took place in Catlett cemetery.

The family have our deepest sympathy. Layton was loved by all who knew him.

Miss Pauline Colvin and Mr. Wilmer Neff were quietly married in Bethesda, Md., Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Geo. W. Crabtree and Miss Lucille Simmons motored to Mitchells and attended the Presbytery there Thursday.

Mr. F. Payne, one of our neighbors moved to Manassas last week. We will miss this good family from our community.

Mr. Wallace Ennis bought the Payne farm here and has already moved in.

Topping even their triumphs in "Naughty Marietta" and "Rose Marie," Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, America's favorite singing stars, comes to the Pittsburgh Theatre starting July 7-8, in "Maytime," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's lavish adaptation of the Rida Johnson Young opera which was one of the memorable hits of the New York stage.

The story, taken from Rida Johnson Young's original play and adapted by Noel Langley, opens in 1905 with Miss MacDonald appearing in old lady make-up for the first time, trying to solve the romantic problems of Lynne Carver and Tom Brown by telling the girl of her own life so she can choose between love and a career.

The story then goes back to 1865 and, briefly, throws Miss MacDonald as a prima donna, and Eddy as a young singing student, together in a cellar cafe in Paris. They love and part because Miss MacDonald already has promised to wed Barrymore who has been her benefactor and guiding hand to success.

Then years pass and they again meet when he sings opposite her in grand opera. This time, their love cannot be denied and they are about to go away together when Barry-

the two young lovers see the lesson of the story and the story ends with a "Smiling Through" finish.

THE FUTURE OF MANASSAS
(Reprinted by request)

The Business of the Sons of Confederate Veterans is an affair of that organization and not of the general public; that much is true of any organization. With this fact in mind, however, the public may be forgiven for having and expressing an opinion concerning a matter of considerable public interest.

Such a matter is the case of the historic Henry House on the famous Manassas Battlefield. The Sons of Confederate Veterans at their last annual convention resolved to transfer the property, which it had acquired, to the National Park Service for inclusion in the magnificent system of Virginia parks owned and administered by the federal government. The deed conveying the property has never been executed because it contained certain conditions which made it unacceptable, and the federal government, as everyone knows, is not favorably inclined to gifts with strings. An effort is now said to be in progress to rescind the resolution offering the property to the National Park Service.

The sons, we believe, should give the matter very careful thought before reversing their action. They should remember that Manassas in an essential part of the completed battlefield park system of Virginia and also that the federal agency holds out the strongest chance of perpetual care. The cold truth is that the life expectancy of the national government is considerably greater than that of any organization in the nation, however enthusiastic and devoted its present membership may be. Likewise, the national government is apparently better able to carry the expense of the establishment and upkeep of such a memorial.

As for the possible objection that the government might take a one-sided view of a battlefield of the War between the States, we believe that Petersburg's experience should remove all apprehensions. The persons who have been employed here in connection with the

No mechanical work will be done at the Journal office on Monday, July 5.

Petersburg National Military Park have always endeavored to regard the problems of history in a scientific and impartial spirit. To the best of our knowledge no valid criticism has ever been offered. People of the city and vicinity donated the property confident that no unpleasantness of this kind would arise, and their confidence has been justified.

We repeat that it is for the sons to do what they wish with their property, but we cannot help feeling that the best possible disposition is to place it in the hands of the National Park Service. We need not add that the record of the memorial organization is an excellent one, as the acquisition of the Manassas property once more eloquently demonstrates.

—Petersburg Progress

To the Editors of the Manassas Journal,
Gentlemen:

Please again favor me with space in your paper that I may inform your readers, who are interested, of the result of the Memorial Petition sponsored by the Manassas Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, which was printed in your columns a few weeks ago.

I am in receipt of a letter of acknowledgement and thanks from the Hon. W. Scott Hancock, the immediate past commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, which he also advises that the Jackson Convention, which recently adjourned, took no action to rescind the favorable recommendations it had made at the Shreveport Convention last year with respect to the object of the petition and the accomplishment of the petition is, therefore, highly encouraging.

I am likewise reliably informed that the trustees who hold the title to the Henry House property have already undertaken the preparation of the necessary deeds of conveyance of said property to the National Park Service.

This information warrants our being hopeful that our undertaking will be successfully concluded in the near future.

Thank you, on behalf of our chapter, for the publicity which you gave our petition.

Very truly yours,
(signed)
Virginia Speiden Carper

June 22, 1937

Mr. R. S. Hynson, Manassas, Virginia.

Dear Mr. Hynson:
Your letter of the 20th, addressed to Mr. John R. Hutcheson, together with several heads of wheat, has been referred to me for reply. I find that your wheat is affected with the fungous disease commonly known as glume blotch. This disease is usually of minor importance, but under certain conditions might cause rather severe damage to the wheat crop. It depends on abundant rainfall as a rule for its development. I feel that the frequent rains during the past month have made conditions very favorable for this and other diseases of wheat. If infection takes place early, the grain might be rather seriously injured. Cases are on record where a crop has been cut 50% by this disease. The grains in the diseased heads fail to develop properly and are shriveled and much lighter in weight than normal grains. The degree of injury, however, will depend on the earliness of infection and its severity. The grains in your wheat appear to be fairly well filled out and it might be that you won't suffer much loss.

The disease will live over on the old stalks and stubble in the field and will also be carried on the grains. You should attempt, therefore, to select your seed wheat from fields where this disease is not present. I might state that the fungus which causes this disease is widely distributed, and under favorable conditions the disease might develop in any wheat field.

Very truly yours,
S. A. Wingard,
Plant Pathologist.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 27.

The Golden Text was "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Isaiah 11:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord" (Psalms 40: 1-3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When apparently near the confines of mortal existence, standing already within the shadow of the death-valley, I learned these truths in divine Science: that all real being is in God, the divine Mind, and that Life, Truth, and Love are all-powerful and ever-present; that the opposite of Truth,—called error, sin, sickness, disease, death,—is the false testimony of false material sense, of mind in matter; that this false sense evolves, in belief, a subjective state of mortal mind which this same so-called mind names matter, thereby shutting out the true sense of Spirit" (p. 108).

QUIET TALKS ON RELIGION

By Dr. James T. Marshall

WHEN DANTE LAUGHED

It is said of the Italian poet Dante that there was only one occasion in his whole life when he was known to laugh. He was born with a melancholy disposition and his natural bent was exaggerated by the bitter experiences of his career. It seems bad enough that he was hopelessly disappointed in love, but in addition to this he was driven into exile on account of his political views. Doubtless the long concentration of his thought upon the writing of the "Inferno" was unfavorable to a cheerful state of mind. It is said that when Dante walked forth on the street, people were accustomed to remark, "There goes the man who has been in hell."

The one laugh came in the following way. On a certain day, weary of his work and half dreaming, Dante allowed himself to swing out on the wings of his imagination and mount up from earth beyond sun, moon and stars until he stood upon the battlements of the celestial city. From its lofty towers he then looked back and saw the earth in the dim distance, floating like a mere speck in space and looking very insignificant. He recalled the fact that he had once lived on this little planet, and had experienced much unhappiness while there, but how trifling and unimportant it all seemed now! In the light of the eternal world no earthly sorrows could matter much. Then it was that Dante laughed.

Most of our troubles seem larger than they really are.—Our estimate of their size is largely a matter of distance. The little child looks upon the broken doll or the lost knife as a tragedy, while the adult looks back upon such an incident as trifling and even amusing. We magnify our troubles because we stand so close to them and thus have a faulty perspective. The cure lies in our ability to mount on the wings of imagination and take the long look back.

There is one problem upon which this experience of Dante seems to shed light. All of us who have loved ones on the other shore would like to know if they are able to hover over us and know what we are doing. Such a hope brings great comfort to many who are bereaved.

While unwilling to be dogmatic, I am disposed to encourage such a hope. He objection is raised that our friends in heaven could not be happy if they knew the difficulties with which we are now contending, and therefore we must believe that we are entirely absent from their consciousness.

Personally, I find relief from this objection in the reflection that our departed friends are now in reality occupying the position which Dante occupied in his dream. Their estimate of the importance of earthly troubles has therefore been distinctly modified, and this changed point of view, without making themselves unhappy, especially since they already know the compensations of heaven and the glory which awaits the Christian conqueror.

At all events the time is not far distant for all of us when we shall understand and be satisfied. "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt hereafter." To those who patiently continue in well doing there is the promise of "glory and honor and immortality."

We will do well to cultivate the habit of looking at our troubles from the standpoint of the other side. Perhaps you think that in your case God has some things to explain. The desired explanation will be given in that day when we shall see face to face and know as we are known.

"None can love freedom heartily but good men; the rest love not freedom but license." Milton.

BETTER PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY PASTURES

It is not only important to see the production of high quality roughage for winter feeding, but our pastures must not be neglected. The cheapest milk or beef is produced when cattle are running on pasture, especially if attention is paid to fertilizing and liming the soil to make it produce good yields.

Fortunately, good yields and quality of pastures go hand in hand and steps taken to improve yields also bring about an increase in protein and mineral content of grasses.

Some years ago, cattle taken to the University of Wisconsin farm were found suffering from lack of phosphorus. The soil was low in phosphorus and the grasses and hay produced on it did not supply an adequate supply of minerals for full milk production and for keeping the cows in good physical condition. They not only declined in milk flow but did not breed regularly and were in poor condition.

It is well known that it is possible to influence the phosphorus content of stems and leaves of plants by the level of phosphorus in the soil. Forges of the Pennsylvania Experiment Station found that the percentage of both organic and inorganic phosphorus can be increased in grass by the use of phosphatic fertilizers. Grass produced on soils that are well balanced in plant food. The improved cow is demanding a better quality of pasture and hay if she is to do her work profitably, reproduce regularly, and remain in good physical condition."

SANDERS-ESKRIDGE

At Amherst, June 26, in Ascension Episcopal Church, Miss Ellen Edmundson Eskridge, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Parker Eskridge, was married to Walter Lee Sanders, of Arlington. While the guests were assembling, Mrs. W. D. Cox at the organ, played a program of music, including Gounod's Ave Maria, Elgar's Salut d'Amour, and Tanhauser's To An Evening Star. Miss Lucy Harrison Payne, of Lynchburg, cousin of the bride, using Litz's Liebestraum and Adoration. Miss Nell D. Reed of Baltimore, sang At Dawning and O, Perfect Love, and during the ceremony Bartlett's Dream and Traumerei were played. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march from Midsummer Night's Dreams were used as processional and recessional.

The bride entered with her father, Allen P. Eskridge, who gave her in marriage. She wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin, trimmed with Brussels lace collar, and cut in a tucked princess effect, with full puffed sleeves and a short train. Her veil of tulle, with coronet of Brussels lace, was caught with orange blossoms, and fell to the end of the train. Her only ornament was a pearl pin, an heirloom of the family, and her flowers were gardenias showered with lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Sanders used to reside in Haymarket, and the bride was formerly a member of the high school faculty.
