GRACE CHURCH TO HAVE RENOVATION

Generous Provision of Kincheloe Will Make This possible

The Methodist people of Manassas have undertaken the renovation and furnishing of their church auditorium, Extensive improvements have made great change in the appearance of the sanctuary of worship. The choir has been moved from back of the pulpit and placed by the pipe organ, the former choir loft was divided by a and the pulpit placed back under the archway, which has been skirted with casing and pilasters. A new panel will enclose the choir and a new panel altar rail will replace the old one. New pulpit and altar furniture and new seating for the auditorium and choir is being installed. The walls and ceiling have been painted ivory, and all the woodwork made walnut, presenting a most attractive appearance. New leaded glass transoms have been placed over the entrance doors of the tower. Memorials are being given and others are being inquired about.

These improvements were made possible by the request made to the church by Miss Florence Kincheloe, an honored and loyal member of Grace Church, and who has passed on into the great beyond. We know that as those on life's other side know well what is going on here, she is rejoicing over this beautification of the church she loved so well. A bronze tablet will be erected in the auditorum in her memory.

The young people of the church are engaged in an effort to supply hymnals for use in the church. These hymnals are being given by members loved ones and in honor of living friends.

church will be conducted on Sunday, January 15, all day—it is being planned that three services be held. Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, long time Chaplain of the United States Senate. will be the guest preacher for morning and evening. The full program will appear in the Journal next week.

The reopening of the auditorium of Grace Church will signalize the beginning of a series of popular Sunday evening services to last until after Easter time. On Sunday evening, January 22, Hon. Roger Whiteford, a member of the bar of the District of Columbia, will be our guest speaker, will deliver his great address, "The Trial of Jesus from a Lawyer's Viewpoint." Mr. Whiteford addressed recently the Kiwanis Club on the same subject and was heard with ment can rise higher than its citizen- earnest hope of the Tuberculosis As great pleasure and interest. He will deliver the entire address at this service. Other evening meetings will follow-distinguished speakers from the outside will come-Dr. J. N. Hillman, president of Emory and Henry College and Grand Master of the State of Virginia Masons, will be with us on Sunday evening, February 5th. Among some of the speakers invited we list: Hon. Martin Dies, who is chairman of the Committee of Congress investigating Communism and anti-American activities, Hon. Harry Byrd, Senator from Virginia, and others whose coming will be announced from time to time. Then we will have evenings of music in which we will have choirs and Glee Clubs from Washington and other places. Grace Church is trying to supply the community with a pure gospel, fine entertainment, and that which will make life better and easier for the whole

The reopening services of the Outlines Opportunities of Christian Citizenship

> The Woman's Christian Tempernce Union met in December at the home of Mrs. J. J. Conner with a good attendance.

> After the devotional and business period Hon. Lacey Compton, guest speaker, was introduced and gave an excellent interpertation of the "Duties of Christian Citizenship."

The speaker reminded us that the word "citizen" was an old English word and defined its meaning as such. February 1, Miss Foster said. We as citizens of a Government by and for the people are not subjects of the president as are other nations to their Rulers, but our loyalty is to of seals, have not returned them nor our Government. Mr. Compton emphasized the word "Christian" as related to citizenship and spoke also of the need of Christian Education for the young-not to the making over of those who have reached maturity-but to the young should own influence be chiefly directed.

The speaker mentioned ways in which the W.C.T.U. could use its influence of sending petitions to the Congress and our Representatives in the matter of Radio broadcasting. Moving pictures, etc. (This the W.C.

T.U. has done in several instances). The organization appreciated very much this address by Mr. Compton and hope he may find time to address us again.

It is not too late for persons who received Christmas Seals last month to send in their contributions to their local organizations, Miss Leslie Combs Foster, executive secretary of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association emphasized this week. by Clarence Wagener

The South that Lee and Jackson and their fellow-warriors fought for has changed even more than the average Southerner of today is aware.

Though the climate is pretty much stated work at once Specifications call much poorer. Of course, legalized slavery of the black man no longer exists. Year by year, the preponderantly agricultural economy is being whittled down. Increasingly, a larger percentage of Southerners gain their livelihood from work in mill or factory or some form of business service. As a consequence, the psychology of conference of the board on January the people is quite different from what it was even twenty or thirty years ago. And this change in the people's thinking is being accelerated by the various New Deal experiments which are taking place in the region below the Potomac and east of the Missiscuss at this conference will be the sippi. So, in reality, the Nation is gradually getting a new South.

A young Southern editor decided it would be a good thing to see what this changing South is like. He did what every Southerner would like to do. He knocked off from work for a few months and traveled leisurely from Maryland to the Gulf, seeing what he could see and asking no end of questions. The outcome of that trip is a book which many Southerners will wish to read.

One should, however, approach "A Southerner Discovers the South." by We wish to thank our Jonathan Daniels (MacMillan, 1938, various correspondents 346 pages) in an easy frame of mind, else there will be disappointment.

Here is no succinct, meaty volume that values the reader's time. What you get in "A Southerner Discovers the South" is a collection of travel notes, personalities, irrelevant descriptions, bawdy jokes and occasional shrewd observations of the current Southern scene. It is as though Editor Daniels simply turned over his travel diary to his publishers and said "Go ahead; print it just as I jotted the notes down." If only the author had edited this conglomeration! If only he had eliminated the immaterial and

OLD OFFICIAL DIES SUDDENLY

Mr. Harrison formerly Held Many Posts of Distinction

On Friday of last week there passed from the scene a truly colorful and picturesque character. To most people he was generally known as just "Uncle George."

To picture his whole life would not be even practicable in so short a space. Back in War days (for he was eightyeight years old) Uncle George was true to the colors, and did his bit by working around the camps, and probably by bringing in bits of military

Many years ago, he acquired the property now owned by Dr. Huddleson, immediately adjacent to Chantilly. He was a hard worker and a polician from the word "go." Thus it is no surprise that we find him as a supervisor for Centreville District back when one thinks of such men as Lieut "Bob" Spindle and "Tobe" Simpson who held that highly respected

His home echoed his real generosity. The passerby found here real hospitality and "no charge." It was while here that he began his career in road promotion work and the Lee-Jackson Highway which he described as the "backbone" of the Fairfax County road system runs by the home in which he lived for so many years. 'Uncle George" pushed his labors to a wider field a bit later when after serving as a member of the Town Council of Herndon, we find him on the Board of Supervisors from Dranesville District.

He was certainly progressive although many did not agree with him politically and fought his efforts to bond both the district and county for roads. Before he retired from the county board to be succeeded by Mark Turner, of Fortesville, he saw all of the roads for which he worked actually constructed and the District Home, near Manassas, also a humanitarian dream fully realized.

In discussing the Lee Boulevard on one occasion, the old chap declared that those, who were against him in life, would go to the intersection west of Fairfax and build a monument to him after he was gone.

In recent years, he showed that the spark of civic pride was still alive, in his work for the local cemetery of which he was superintendent. He was continually urging improvement.

Never still, his slim figure could be seen going up and down Elden street at most any hour of the day or night, irregardless of the weather. It was this disregard of his strength that brought on his last illness, a brief attack of pheumonia.

The funeral services were held on Monday at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church, with the Rector, Rev. Marshall Milton, officiating, and Rev. Boyd Bryant, of Woolf Memorial Methodist Church, assisting. Mr. Harrison was a member of the Methodist Church. Interment was in Chestnut Grove Cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ida Ayre Harrison and one sister, Mrs. Wingfield Day, of Washington. Mrs. Harrison will be remembered by older residents of Centreville where she lived as a girl.

Railroad Dispatching in U.S. Largely Controlled by Telephone

Spoken Orders Dispatch 32,000 Daily Trains Over 415,800 Miles of Track

In the train dispatcher's office one man keeps his eyes on the tracks, his mouth near a telephone transmitter. No sooner is a train under way than the train dispatcher telephones orders to the signal tower just ahead, giving this information, the tower man reporting back that it passed his window at a particular time. The telephone order is sent still further so that when the train reaches a certain section, the switch will be open, a freight train rerouted, and the train will arrive on | crew, number of cars, and so on.

Telephone dispatching equipment time. The train dispatcher's job de-lays an important part in safely mands that his mind be kept clear for concentration and quick decision.

Finally, the movement director receives a message from the dispatcher by means of the teletypewriter, which is sent to the ticket office, baggage room, station master and information blackboard in the concourse. The message says: "Train on time." The movement director handles all calls for cars, engines and other equipment. He must know whether one locomotive is sufficient to haul a long freight train over grades. He also directs the preparation of special trains and crews that carry holiday and week-

When a train starts on its trip, full information is sent by telephone from the terminal to be marked on the train sheet: train number, engine number, engineer, fireman, conductor and train

The train dispatcher's telephone serves in emergencies, too. Once a passenger was suddenly taken ill on a train speeding from Wilmington, Del. to Baltimore, Md. The conductor wrote some information on a scrap of paper, wrapped it around a weight and threw it from the rear of the train as it passed a signal tower. The tower man, attracted by the conductor's waving arm, went down for the message and telephoned it to the Baltimore dispatcher as per instructions. When the train pulled into Baltimore, twenty-five minutes later, an ambu-lance was waiting to rush the patient to the hospital.

Old time methods of train dispatching lacked the speed and flexibility demanded by today's faster sched-ules. The dispatching telephone was the logical answer, born of the knowledge of Bell System technicians.

The letter is dated 1843, having been written just after completion of the story which was first published in London in 1843 for the Christmas holidays.

"A Christmas Carol" faithfully follows Dickens' tale of the miserly Scrooge who is regenerated through the heart of Tiny Tim. Owen was given the role of Scrooge at the request of Lionel Barrymore who, unable to play the part because of illness, insisted that the picture be not postponed as he believed the world needed its message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" more PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS at the present time than any time in

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

F. BARTHOLOMEW AND JUDY GARLAND IN NEW COMEDY

Love in a trailer is a literal description of "Listen, Darling," new comedy featuring Freddie Bartholomew and Judy Garland and opening Monday and Tuesday, January 9-10, at the Pitts' Theatre.

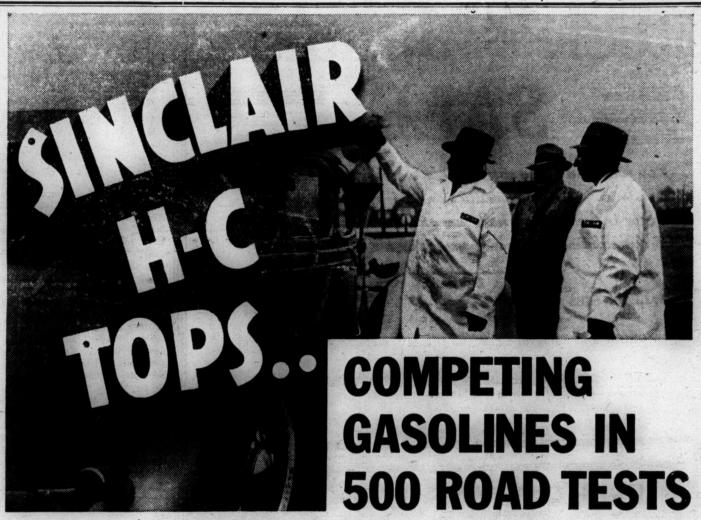

The picture is a bow of recognition to thousands who have put their permanent or temporary homes on wheels and made all of America their back yard.

Fully half of the action in "Listen, Darling," takes place in and around two trailers, requiring the building of two of the smallest motion picture sets on record. Ford those who like lavishness as the background of their romance and comedy, however, there are other elborate and expensive sets.

"Listen, Darling," is the story of two kids who "kidnap" the girl's mother in the family trailer to prevent her from marrying the town banker and set out upon the highways to find a suitable husband for her.

Mary Astor plays the mother and the "suitors" encountered are Walter Pidgeon and Alan Hale. Gene Lockhart is the unwanted banker and little Scotty Beckett appears as a small but effective menace, who manages to make things mighty uncomfortable for Dan Cupid.

DAVID KENT REID

Mr. David Kent Reid's death was a shock to his many friends in lower Prince William. Mr. Reid died suddenly on the morning of December 26, 1938. He was born in Alexandria June 25, 1874, son of the late James Henry and Beulah Starr Reid. His early life was spent in that city. He removed to Prince William with his parents in his youth, spent several years in Baltimore, Md., when a young Junior man where he was married. Shortly thereafter he returned to Prince William. The home of his ancestors, since the early part of the eighteenth century. His eldest child, Mrs. S. Tebbs Chichester died, several years ago. He is survived by his wife, Cora V. Reid, five children, Mrs. D. Y. Owens Rich of Ohio, Mrs. Fred Turner of Elizabeth at home; two sons, Jas H. Reid, the fourth and David Kent Reid, Jr., and ten grandchildren; one more, Md., and one sister, Mrs. Norrell Larkin, of Manassas.

Mr. Reid's funeral was held at Heaton, rector of Aquia Church, conducting the services. His Pall-bearers were his sons-in-T. Boone Rich, Fred Turner and Mr. C. C. Cloe and Joseph Amidon. Interment in the Reid lot, in the cemetery at Manassas.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Sacrament" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and socities of Christ, Scientists, on Sunday, January 8. The Golden Text will be "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world" (John 6:33).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The word which God sent unto the children of Preaching 11 a.m.

Wednesday—Young People's class | Israel, preaching peace by Jesus | Christ: (he is Lord of all:) That word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached; ow God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that

> The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Though demonstrating his control over sin and disease, the great Teacher by no means relieved others from giving the requisite proofs of their own piety He worked for their guidance, that they might demonstrate this power correspondants for sending their as he did and understand its divine Principle" (p. 25).

Mr. W. S. Lynn, who was reported on the sick list last week, is still on the list, but much improved.

In looking back over the year 1938, we find that Historic old Occoquan is a good place to live. Our town has no bonded debt, and we got no assistance from W.P.A. or other Government agencies, and our treasury is in sound financial condition. A number of streets were surfaced with gravel, and several other needed improvements were made during the year, all of which we feel very proud of. Credit for this excellent record is entirely due to the fine co-operation of the citizens (Tax-payers) of the town. We are all looking forward to having the rest of our streets surfaced during this year, as well as other improvements which may become necessary. We all feel very proud of our Historic Old Town. (There were no violations of Town ordinances either). so, of course, there were no arrests or convictions. A grand record.

We wish to thank our various notes early this week.

2,200 Mile Network Linked G. H. Q. With 17 Air Bases From Maine to Georgia

The Air Force of the United States Army recently conducted extensive war game maneuvers for seven days along the Atlantic seacoast from Maine to Georgia, with Mitchel Field, Long Island, serving as the headquarters. Having decided upon a ground plan and designated air bases and facilities, which included a network of Bell System teletypewriter circuits, Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews put the Air Corps into air en masse, various planes taking part from airfields as distant as California, Texas and Louisiana. These planes were laden with more than 3,000 men and three million pounds of baggage and the spectacular maneuvers employed the most modern equipment and the latest in aerial operations. In all, some 220 planes of many types participated? While these flocks of planes were busily engaged in protecting the American coast from the "enemy," their operations were being coordinated and directed by means of a net-work of forty-five teletypewriters conected by circuits totaling approximately 2,200 miles. These circuits mately 2,200 miles. These circuits connected the general headquarters at Mitchel Field with the other seventeen air bases along the Atlantic coast. The principal circuits linked G.H.Q. to the "wing" commands at Mitchel Field, Middletown, Pa. and New Haven, Conn. In turn, these were connected by other circuits to smaller units radiating from the central points; switching equipment permitted the entire network to be hooked together. Under the direction of Lieut. Col.

Cedric W. Lewis, U. S. Army Signal Corps, signal officer of G.H.Q. Air Force, there flowed over these wires "intelligence summaries" — bulletins put out by headquarters to tell how the "war" was going; orders to scout an area or attack; weather reports; orders and reports regarding a stream of supplies feeding into the various air bases; and "PX" reports—the messages sent out by an airport announcing a plane's departure, so that the airport of destination will keep an eye open for it.

Telephone men did a record job on the provision and installation of the emergency telephone and teletype equipment, which provided the main communications link for the various units participating in the air mane vers. Within one month from the receipt of the Army's order, which included forty-five sending and receiving teletypewriters, the system was installed and tested out; about one week later it was in actual service. Due to their close proximity to the Army's radio stations, each teletypewriter had to be completely filtered to prevent any interference with the radio signals. According to Col. Lewis the teletype-writer system handled an average of 20,000 words a day and on one day he estimated that it handled 30,000

While the results of every phase of the maneuvers will be subjected to a minute scrutiny by the Army high command before any conclusions are arrived at, it is understood that the teletypewriters proved extremely adequate as vehicles of communication no small accomplishment where they had to keep up with the operations of planes that hit speeds of more than 250 miles per hour.

New England Hurricane Worst Disaster In Bell System History

Chesapeake and Potomac Emergency Crews Dispatched to Scene to Aid in Restoration an many Scenes of utter desolation and destruction like this one at Hawks Nest Beach, Lyme, Conn., were repeated hundreds of times throughout the storm area. The drooping telephone lines and poles with the remains of a house behind them give some idea of the enormous damage caused by the hurricane.

When wind, rain, flood, hurricane and tidal wave battered New England late in September, the telephone systems in this thickly populated area sustained more damage than the Bell System had ever previously experienced at one time.

Nearly one-half million telephones were thrown out of service, 18,000 of them in New Jersey, 56,000 in New York, 108,000 in Connecticut and 300,-000 in the rest of New England. Coupled with the damage to telephones came a corresponding increase in the demand for service from out of town as people sought to locate friends and relatives in the storm area. Many as at home.

communities were completely cut off, and to others only a few circuits were available to handle the flood of calls.

Emergency crews were rushed into the New England areas from all over the east, south and middle west, in-cluding Washington, Maryland, and telephone sets, 132,000 pounds of Virginia. Washington sent 13 crews solder, 6200,000 feet of strand wire, comprising 43 men and 6 trucks Maryland 19 crews including 83 men and 15 trucks and Virginia 18 crews composed of 59 men equipped with 14 trucks. Because equipment and co struction methods have been standardized in the Bell System these crews worked in New England as effectively

Some idea of the damage can be gained from the following list of sup-plies ordered from the Western Electric Company: 49,000,000 feet of wire, 3,600,000 feet of cable on 1,450 reels, and 2,000,000 pounds of hardware, consisting of 275 different kinds.

Men worked day and night to repair the lines. Operators struggled with 100 per cent increase in calls at many points. Everywhere the spirit of service which is traditional among Bell System employees in times of dis-aster was manifest.
