LIFE OF STUART THEME AT MEETING

Junior Confederate Group Reports Activities

Mrs. Charles Compton and Mrs. Leonard Lomas were hostesses to the Manassas U.D.C. Chapter February 1 at the home of Mrs. Compton.

In the historical period two of the great Southern leaders were commemorated—General J. E. B. Stuart, chief of the cavalry of northern Virginia, and General Joseph Eggleston Johnston. Mrs. Elinor Johnson read some interesting facts about General Johnston from Miss Sallie Dickinson's book "Confederate Leaders," which the chapter had recently placed in the library. Mrs. Johnson said her husband, the late Dr. C. R. C. Johnson, was related to that branch of Johnstons.

Following are some of the facts about the Johnstons that will bear re-reading. Joseph Eggleston Johnston was born at Longwood, Prince Edward County, Virginia, February 3, 1807, in the site of the beautiful home now there, called Longwood. The house in which he was born was burned to the ground the home now standing there was built by Nathaniel E. Venable, a captain in the war of 1812. It is now the property of the State Teachers' College at Farmville, Va., and is used as a recreational center. Joseph Eggleston was the son of Peter Johnston, Jr., and Mary (Wood) Johnston, his grandmother, Mrs. Wood, was a sister of Patrick Henry, so Joseph E. Johnston was the great orator's great nephew. Joseph's grandfather, Peter Johnston, Sr., was the donor of the one hundred acres of land on which Hampden-Sydney College was built. He was the first emigrant to Virginia of that name. He was born in Annan Scotland, in the lovely district of Annandale. At the age of eighteen Joseph E. Johnston entered West Point Academy with his classmate and close friend, Robert E. Lee. They graduated together, the only two Virginians to get diplomas there that year—1829. They kept up their friendship through life. In 1860 Johnston was made quartermaster general of U.S.A., in April, 1861, he resigned from the United States Army, after a service of thirty-one years, to enter the Confederate service. He was at once commissioned Major - General of Virginia Volunteers. Later he was commissioned Brigadier General. He was wounded ten times in battle, seriously so at Seven Pines. April 26th, seventeen days after the surrender of Appomattox, he surrendered his army in North Carolina. In 1891 he died in Washington, and was buried in Baltimore.

Mrs. Newman gave a history of the City of New Orleans. Mrs. Hutchinson exhibited a picture of Lee's Birthday being observed in Statuary Hall of the Capitol in Washington, and Mrs. Ashford read an article where Rep. Fish, of New York, was trying to get Congress to provide for the erection of a statue to Gen. Robert E. Lee in Arlington National Cemetery.

The President, Mrs. Byrd, reported an interesting meeting of the C. of C. held with Bobbie Byrd on the evening of January 31. The Juniors are planning a social evening to be held some time in February. This will follow the regular business and historical program. Historical subjects have been assigned the following members, Marie Bauserman, Nancy and Betty Parish and Frank Browning.

Mrs. Carper read a request from a school boy in Los Angeles, Calif., which had come to the Chamber of Commerce, requesting authentic and exact information regarding the cause, duration and efforts of the War between the States. Our chapter was asked to reply to it and the historian, Mrs. Newman, is to send a reply through the Chamber of Commerce. A birthday card was signed by all present and sent to Miss Lou Moxley.

SOUTHERN POET IS MEMORIALIZED

U. D. C. Sponsors Observance of Sidney Lanier's Day

The observance of "Lanier Day" on February 3 in Prince William County schools was a grand success, in as much as approximately fourteen hundred children learned something interesting about Sidney Lanier and participated in the very fine programs which were presented: Literary essays were read, also several of Lanier's best loved poems, including "The Song of the Chattahoochee," "Marshes of Glen," "Tampa Robins," "Mockingbird" and "Into the Woods the Master Went."

Southern songs in group singing and as piano solos were rendered in harmony.

At the Bennett School in Manassas, members of the U.D.C., gave talks to the several grades.

The Manassas Chapter, United Daughters of Confederacy, wishes to thank publicly the school officials who so graciously co-operated with them in honoring a Southern hero of superior merit.

To have Sidney Lanier's name written in the Hall of Fame is the earnest desire of the Daughters of Confederacy and of the entire nation, it is believed.

The choice of names for this distinguished honor will be accomplished by the electors in the year 1940.

MANASSAS 4-H CLUB HOLDS FEBRUARY MEETING

The Manassas 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting February 4, 1939, in the Post Office Assembly Room. There were twelve members present. Miss Webb and Miss Flora Bullock were also present. Peggy Tipton, the new president, presided.

The meeting was opened with a group, who went to the skating rink in Washington, reported and everyone seemed to have had a wonderful time despite the falls.

The members discussed a community project, but have not definitely decided on one yet. They also discussed sponsoring a movie to make money. They decided to sponsor one in May, and to get a special 4-H movie as a special feature.

Miss Webb showed the group the new 4-H club magazine, "4-H Club Horizons." The club members were delighted with it and decided to talk over a possible club subscription.

The program was given by Lucy Johnson. She read a story of the American Revolution and she proceeded to baffle the members with a game called "scrambles."

Miss Webb gave the members several papers to put in their club books, and the meeting adjourned.

Handicrafts and home products of farm families in Virginia are finding new markets in a rustic building constructed by the Old Dominion Home Industries Co-operative, Inc., on Highway No. 1, 16 miles north of Fredericksburg.

Since the opening the shop on November 5 until the first of the year this new market sold 650 articles made during idle hours on the farm. More than $500 was involved in these numerous little trades.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS HEAR W. D. MEDLEY

Delegates Named for Waynesboro Meeting

Hon. William D. Medley, from Arlington County, a member of the House of Delegates, addressed the Young Democrats of Prince William County at their monthly meeting at the Court House on Tuesday night. Mr. Medley, who gave one of the most interesting talks which it has been the privilege of the club to hear, was introduced by Judge C. Lacey Compton. Mr. Medley was introduced by Judge C. Lacey Compton. Mr. Medley's introductory remarks were highly complimentary to the work and progressiveness of the club. He then briefly outlined the different branches of the state government and their function; he told of the many duties of a representative; he described the introduction of a bill in the House and the many procedures to which the bill is subjected before it can become a law; he told of the electric voting system of the Virginia legislature, of the present financial status of the state, and lastly, he related several humorous happenings in the House. Mr. Medley spoke with such thorough knowledge of his subject that his listeners were delighted. It is only to be regretted that a larger audience could not have heard him.

President P. A. Lewis announced the appointment of the various committees for 1939, which will be published next week. Miss Nancy Lynn, secretary-treasurer, stated that 70 members had enrolled for the new year, and urged the club to work hard to keep its last year's reputation as second largest club in the state.

The next monthly meeting will be "Neighbor Night," on March 7th at the High School. Guests will be invited from all the adjoining county Clubs, special entertainment will be presented, and refreshments will be served.

When interviewed as to the success of the meeting, Mr. M. Bruce Whitmore stated "It was the best meeting we have ever had. But for the extremely inclement weather, there would have been many more present."

Woman's Club Holds Interesting Session

An interesting meeting of the Woman's Club of Manassas was held on Wednesday of this week.

The program, for the afternoon, which featured local talent, was a most enjoyable one.

The Rev. R. M. Graham, pastor of the Manassas Baptist Church, was guest soloist, his rendition of several well-known songs was most delightful. He sang "When I Leave The World Behind," by Irving Berlin; "The Lonesome Road," by Schilkret and "Mighty Lak a Rose," by Nevin.

Mrs. Frank Sigman, in her very charming and unimpeachable style, read a most humorous and clever skit on George Washington. As a second reading, she gave in a more serious manner, Browning's "Count Cismont."

During the lengthy business session, which preceded the program and social hour, a number of matters of importance to the Club.

Mrs. Dennis Baker, chairman of Music, announced that plans for the second annual concert, to be sponsored by the Music and Literature Section, in April, were progressing, final plans and a definite date to be announced at an early date.

Mrs. William Lloyd was appointed general chairman for the annual Charity Ball, given by the club at Easter. The Ball will be held this year on Monday, April 10. Additional committees to assist Mrs. Lloyd will be named at an early date.

The legislative chairman, Mrs. C. C. Lynn read an interesting communication from Senator Byrd—explaining his views on the present spending program.

In response to an appeal from the State student loan fund chairman, a contribution was noted to this fund.

Other active committees' reporting were the visiting aid charity committees whose efforts have been directed in giving cheer and help among the many sick folk at this time.

Another meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday, March 8th when the program will be in charge of the civic committee.

The P.C.W. Club will meet at the home of Mrs. J. H. Rexrode on Thursday, February 16, at 7:30 p.m.

SCHOOL BOARD OFFERS REWARD

March Meeting will be Occasion for Election of Principals

The county school board met yesterday with all members present. Besides routine business, there was considerable to be done.

Aggravated by the recent hoodlums in the county, two rewards were placed before the public, advertisements of which rewards appear in other columns.

The Board is also carefully calling attention to the fact that at the March meeting, all principals and supervisors will be elected.

At tomorrow's session, bids for the Dumfries school furniture will be opened.

A committee composed of Mrs. Floy McIner and Messrs. R. C. Haydon and F. M. Lynn will consider the best location for a consolidated colored school in Dumfries District.

The Board passed resolutions of regret at the recent death of Mr. W. S. Lynn.

Two libraries were approved for Quantico and one for Nokesville.

A. L. HENRY DIES AT HARRISONBURG

Arthur Lee Henry, former owner of the famous Henry farm and house, near Manassas, on which were fought the first and second battles of Manassas, died at his home in Harrisonburg February 2 at 12:45, after a few days' illness with heart trouble.

Mr. Henry's health has not been the best for several years. He suffered a heart attack Sunday. Another followed February 2 which proved fatal.

After selling the famous battlefield farm in Prince William County to the Confederate Park Commission, Mr. Henry and his family moved to Harrisonburg about ten years ago and bought their Franklin Street home, in which they have resided ever since. Shortly after locating Harrisonburg, Mr. Henry opened the Henry Business School, where he and Mrs. Henry taught many Harrisonburg young men and women courses in business administration. He was a graduate of the Eastman Business College of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and in his young days was regarded as an expert in bookkeeping and accounting.

Mr. Henry was a native of Scott County, Va., where he was born 80 years ago. He was prominently related, being a cousin of the late Shirley Carter, of Winchester. A near family relative is Mann Page Carter, a brother of the late Shirley Carter. He lives in Winchester.

The Henry farm and house in Prince Williams figures prominently in the history of the War between the States. It was there two of the bloodiest battles were fought. It was on this farm during the first Battle of Manassas when Gen. T. J. Jackson received the name of Stonewall. Gen. Bee, standing on the farm directed attention of his troops to the brave stand Gen. Jackson's forces were taking, saying they are standing like a stone wall. A few minutes later Gen. Bee was shot.

DAIRYMEN START BREEDING PLAN

Dairymen in six southern New York Counties have organized an association for the breeding of cows through artificial insemination.

Three outstanding sires have been purchased or leased for the ninety five herds in the Association and a veterinarian appointed to supervise the work. The aim is to cut costs and to build high-producing herds thru the use of the best bulls available. The economic advantages of this new step are pointed out by Dr. J. F. Kendrick, in charge of dairy herd-improvement investigations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Kendrick says that under normal breeding conditions, a good bull will sire only 30 to 40 cows annually. In Denmark during the first year of one association, approximately 1,200 cows were bred artificially and only two bulls were used. The new plan not only spreads the influence of a good proved sire, but reduces the cost of service, eliminates the need of keeping and feeding a bull on the farm, quickly establishes a large family of high producing cows, and practically eliminates the danger of spreading diseases through service.

AGRONOMY CONFERENCE HELD AT CULPEPER

FERTILIZING PASTURES

While it is practical to apply phosphate fertilizer to pastures at any time for long time results, it should be applied as soon as possible for best immediate results. Either fertilizer or lime alone should bring about marked improvement but the most economical results per dollar spent for pasture important materials will result from the use of both fertilizer and lime on sour pasture soils.

DEMONSTRATION NEWS

The Woodlawn Home Demonstration Club held its regular monthly meeting on January 30 at the home of Mrs. L. G. Penn. The meeting was practically given over to the theme of the County Campaign for 1938-39, "Better Home Lighting and Wiring." Miss Sheets, V.P.S., home economist, gave a very interesting demonstration "Lighting" of chief interest was the small expense involved in making over lamps we already have into ones which meet all requirements for "Better Lighting." Miss Sheets showed each one, by the use of the "Sight Meter," have much light is necessary for household tasks. It was very revealing to learn how inadequate artificial light is when compared to daylight, and have easy it is to improve our present lights by inexpensive shades and higher watt bulbs. We feel that everyone in the county is interested in better lights and we wish that anyone in our community, deserving further information, would get in touch with our club chairman, Mrs. J. W. Cox.

Mrs. Ed. Kaiser, Jr., chairman of the Finance Committee, has announced a party to be held at the home of her mother, Mrs. B. H. Gillingham, on Pole Road, on February 17. We certainly hope that many will plan to attend as the admission of small price will be to purchase necessities for Woodlawn Clinic and Officers rooms, of the School. The evening will be spent in playing all kinds of games, new and old. In addition, refreshments will be served at no cost.

A BOOK TO READ

by Clarence Wagener

Along the road of life are innumerable signs or billboards which tell the traveler how the oft-time hazardous and discouraging journey can be made with greater safety and comfort, and with a certain degree of happiness.

The signs are there—the accumulated experience and wisdom of the ages—for him who has the ability and the desire to read them. Some of the signs are of altogether practical value, indicating what should be done to survive and to get ahead—at times, to the detriment of fellow travelers. Other of the signs contribute advice regarding the healthy development of the emotions, that balance wheel which is so constantly subjected to stresses and strains by the hurry and bustle of our up-and-doing times.

Anyone who wishes to lay claim to being a well-rounded person must, in taking the trip down life's highway, keep his eyes peeled for both the messages that are "practical" and the messages that have to do with the enlargement of one's understanding and love of humanity and a lively appreciation of the arts.

But to acquire an appreciation of the arts—or only one of the arts—isn't the simple thing it once was, thanks to the steadily increasing number of practitioners during the past several generations and their differences of opinion as to what is of principal importance in their chosen fields.

Take the art of painting, for instance. One settles nothing by saying: "I like what appeals to me. What doesn't strike my fancy deserves no further consideration."

The approach to the art of painting, or any other art, must at all times be made with an open mind, if one's appreciation of that art is to grow as the years roll on. Certain books presuppose such an attitude on the part of the reader. "The Mirror of the Passing World," by M. Cecil Allen (Norton, N. Y.; 1928; 102 pages) is that kind of book. It attempts to interpret what is back of the differences in the major schools of painting both in Europe and Asia. It can be read with a minimum of effort and with growing pleasure.

"The Mirror of the Passing World" is not a book describing famous paintings. Rather it is, as the author says: "A short study in differences of artistic emphasis." You'll find this slender volume both instructive and entertaining, if your love of painting is more than skin-deep and if you honestly wish to understand what motivated the acknowledged leaders who dared to be different.

UNDIGNIFIED IN DEFEAT

A resounding echo of last year's unsuccessful "purge" occurred this week in the Senate rejection of the President's nomination of Floyd H. Roberts, of Virginia, to be Federal Judge.

The issue at stake is the right of the President to discipline Democratic Senators for failure to support his legislative recommendations by removing their accustomed federal patronage. By the decisive vote of 72 to 9 the Senate rebuked the President for his obvious attempt to punish the two Virginia Senators.

In a long letter of consolation to the defeated Judge, the President becomes undignified in his questioning of the Constitutional prerogatives of the Senate, advancing he specious argument that the Senate must limit its consideration of a Presidential nominee purely to the question of his fitness for the position.

The text of the Constitution does not support any such theory and it follows as a matter of plain common sense that if the Senate has the power to reject a nomination it can do so for any reason it sees fit and it is not accountable to the Chief Executive for the action.

A VITAL ISSUE

The action of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate in rejecting the President's nomination of Judge Roberts, of Virginia, must be considered in the light of political developments to be intelligently evaluated.

It must be recalled that some months ago the President attempted to "pack" the Supreme Court. This was followed by his unsuccessful "purge", and we now have a final, and apparently unsuccessful attempt to control a lower judicial appointment.

The Peoples National Bank of Manassas

The rejection of Judge Robert's appointment while not necessarily an outright victory for the Senators of Virginia, brings into the limelight rupture between Senator Byrd, titular head of the Virginia political machine, and Governor Price, of Virginia.

This recess appointment made at the head of the so-called purge, was undoubtedly "offensive" to the Virginia senators, who usually make such recommendations to the President.

This has been unfortunate for Governor Price in more ways than one. While there has been no direct test of his strength, insofar as the General Assembly is concerned, this break will go into the summer elections without doubt.

In virtually every Virginia county there is at the present time a public assistance set-up which concerns about 2 per cent, or less, of the population. This set-up, so far as political minds might direct is auxiliated by claims on the loyalty to the "New Deal" of the permanent Public Works chain.

Now come those bright minds that see a chance to capitalize this portion of our population. And the first step is to legislate the poll tax out as a prerequisite to voting.

It is time for practical thinkers to hope that the President and his friends will desist in their "purge" methods so far as the South is concerned.

PAST PATRONS ENTERTAIN PAST MATRONS

On Tuesday night the bi-monthly meeting of the Past Matrons and Past Patrons, O.E.S., was held in the recreation room of the Masonic Hall, with the Patrons entertaining. The first thing on the program was music by a quartet from the Industrial School. This was very much enjoyed by the whole group as was the rest of the program. After several courses of delightful refreshments, prepared and served by the gentlemen present, group singing was indulged in, and later dancing.

PRICE APPROVES POLL TAX COLLECTION PLAN

State Comptroller Leroy Hodges' plan to push collection of the annual $1.50 capitation tax by refusing to issue State Licenses to persons who have not paid it drew favorable comment from Governor James H. Price, who pointed out that there was no reason why the tax should be assessed and not collected.

"I am fully in accord with the plan," he said. "It's something I've been rilling away on for several years. I think that if you made the people pay their capitation tax, you not only would help the treasury, but would increase their respect for Government."

GUILD TO SERVE HOT LUNCHEONS

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION REVIEWED

Including the widening of many trunk roads, 412 miles of highway construction was completed by the State highway department in 1938, according to a summary of the department's work made by Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley. Sixty-five bridges were built and 22 grade crossings eliminated in the year. The report disclosed that 140 projects were out under contract during 1938 at a cost of $8,750,000 and approximately 3,000,000 was expended in placing "tops" of bituminous material on roads in the primary system. The convict road force was worked on 39 projects, covering 148 miles and extending about $2,800,000.

Commissioner Shirley stated that "It has been the policy of the commission to continue the widening of the heavily traveled trunk lines throughout the State, bringing them up to three and four-track roads, as well as raising the type of construction. Many miles of these roads have been widened, curves reduced, sight distance extended, bridges widened, railroad crossings eliminated and every precaution possible has been taken to make them safer for the traveler."

Cards were also signed and sent to Mrs. Thornton, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Senie Cockrell. After a delicious salad course the meeting adjourned to meet in March with Mrs. E. H. Marteller, Mrs. O. D. Waters and Mrs. Elinor Johnson, assisting hostesses.

America's Banks Handle 5 BILLION Checks a Year

BANKING MAGAZINE estimates that the 15,000 banks of our country handle 5 billion checks a year. Just think how important the safe, swift interchange of money by means of bank check has become in our daily lives. Just think how modern society would be handicapped without banks and their many helpful services.

JOHN FERGUSON ANNOUNCES
CANDIDACYWill Run for Sheriff of Fairfax
County

John Woodville Ferguson, a young farmer of the Clifton vicinity, this week announced that he is a candidate for the office of sheriff of Fairfax County, subject to the August primary. Mr. Ferguson, who is 34 years of age, has been a resident here since 1913. His father, Dr. J. H.
Ferguson, is a native of Dinwiddie County, Va., and his mother, formerly Miss Frances Breckenridge Woodville, came from Botetourt County, Virginia.

Mr. Ferguson received his schooling at Clifton, later attending the University of Virginia. In 1927 he married Virginia H. Jones, daughter of Henry B. Jones, an orchardist of Fairfax Station, Va. They have two children.

Mr. Ferguson has demonstrated his alertness in public life by his interest in school affairs, having been a member of the Parent-Teacher Association at Clifton, and serving as its president for two terms.

In politics he has also been in the public eye. At present he is a member of the County Democratic Executive Committee and has been for several years past. When the Young Democratic Club was first organized he demonstrated his interest by joining as a charter member. After holding several offices in the Club, he was finally honored by serving a term as president last year. He is at present a district chairman and a member of the executive committee.

His interest in the penal institutions of the State and the proper care of their inmates caused the State President to name him a member of a special committee to study the State jail system.

The County Chamber of Commerce has also found him a valuable member and he has served as one of its directors for several years.

Following a time-honored custom in the state of Virginia Mr. Ferguson began his canvass on the first of February but did not decide to make his formal announcement until this week. He is already busily engaged in contacting many voters about the county.

When asked as to his views concerning the office he stated, "If I am honored by the voters of this county by being selected for this high office, I promise a fair and impartial execution of all its duties. I shall have further statements to make to the voters between now and the time of the primary in August in which I shall answer any queries that have been raised or points of interest concerning which the voters may want to know my attitude."

We wish to thank our various correspondents
for sending their notes
early this week.

MY CHILDHOOD
By Algia A. Martin

When I get tired of life's many ills
I love to go to my childhood hills.
To the place where we used to play
When life was humble, but so gay.
Riding and skating, we loved so well
We were even jolly when we fell.
So when my life gets full of ills
I long to visit my childhood hills.
And so many hours speed away
Under the tree where I used to play.
A vacation to me that is swell
Is go to the farm, I loved so well.

UPPER TRURO PARISH FAIRFAX COUNTY

Bishop Goodwin confirmed ten persons, the largest class in the history of Christ Church Chantilly, the Rev. Marshall M. Milton, rector, on December 4, 1938. The envelope system of giving has been adopted for the first time at Christ Church. The congregations attending services has greatly increased in numbers and the growth of the work has been most encouraging.

The attendance on services at St. Timothy's Church, Herndon, has doubled in size and the outlook for the development of the work is the brightest in years.

As the every member canvass in Upper Truro Parish was most successful, the three churches have taken the magnificent step of becoming completely self-supporting. In the future Upper Truro will receive no aid from the Diocesan Missionary Society. This action bears testimony of the remarkably efficient work of the Rev. Mr. Milton.

Last Word in Convenience

The desire to make a car reflect its owner's individuality is a potent factor in the average motorist's choice of accessory equipment. And it would be hard to find a more thoroughly "personalized" car than this new Chevrolet in which Mary Pickford is shown applying a touch of makeup. As if the handy illuminated vanity mirror were not enough, the car has a special kit of Miss Pickford's own famous beauty aids, now on the market under her name. The container, holding lipstick, rouge, powder and cream, folds neatly up into the glove compartment when not in use. Inset shows close-up of vanity case.

THE WORLD AROUND US

By

O. J. Schuster

WASHINGTON FEDERATION OF CHURCHES held its first annual meeting of the Church and Social Welfare work this week. Nearly 200 churches were represented. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was the chief speaker at the dinner which closed the session. Miss Perkins emphasized that the first and highest duty of the church is to be thoroughly informed regarding the community's social needs, to acquire this information thru first hand experience among the needy. Only when thus realistically informed can the church effectively combat "the quite general ridicule or active opposition to all religion by communistic literature," which Miss Perkins says, "violates the deepest convictions and sincere faith in God of the American people."

THIS CONCEPTION OF RELIGION which the Secretary stressed has become quite general in recent years. People have not lost faith in God but they have lost faith in academic talk about God. They respect concrete service, such as Christ Himself rendered the needy. Unless the church meets this demand realistically, unless the spirit of Christianity expresses itself in daily deeds, the "quite general ridicule or active opposition to all religion" will increase in extent and grow in intensity.

IN FAR AWAY ARABIA this broad and practical religion seems to be a living reality. There in Beyrouth University, located near the birthplace of Jesus, this religion of social service is lived. It is a Protestant College, an American University, a missionary outpost, yet it makes no attempt to convert its students to Christianity. Those students are made up of many races and many creeds. Beyrouth University believes its first and most important duty is to cultivate tolerance on the part of its students—Mohammedans, Turks, Jews, Christians, etc.—so they can all live together on the college campus and outside in peace and with mutual respect. Bayard Dodge, the president of this American University, justifies his position by explaining: "In the Mohammedan World the great scientific movement (a ferment among all peoples) is likely to knock religion out of Islam. Our job is to keep the two together. Instead of trying to get young Mohammedans to trade their religion for membership in a Christian sect, I think it is more important to keep them from trading their religion for no religion at all."

kins in Washington a few days ago. Thru actual contact with the needy and the needs of the community they become realistically informed and by hard work, without pay, they render the service most needed—providing a sanitary water supply, sanitary toilets, improved roads, better living conditions in general. They become teachers of children and adults. They teach farmers scientific farming.

BAYARD DODGE is one of the richest Americans but he and his wife live as simply, as unconventionally, as any other family that is genuinely democratic. The house they live in would rent for $50 a month. That home and the president's office in the school are open to all inquirers. For nearly 30 years Dodge has been connected with the college, teaching by example. He has never accepted a dollar for his services. By his deeds he has made himself the most respected foreigner in Western Asia. Moslems reverence him as they do their own prophet. Dodge tells us that while Mohammedanism is not perfect there is much in Christianity too that might well be brought up to date. And Mohammed's birthday is celebrated in Beyrouth.

BEYROUTH UNIVERSITY teaches this lesson of tolerance by example, by social service. As in the nations of Europe, the Arabs are in the grip of rampant nationalism. President Dodge does not try to discourage this national spirit but he and his faculty do try to guide it into wholesome service. He tells the young Arabs: "Love your country, but show that love by doing something for it." And these young patriots, eager to serve their people, are led to live in camps during the summer, camps similar to our CCC camps, in which they practice the religion urged by Miss Perkins.

Creating "U. S. of 1960" for Fair Exhibit

Above, craftsmen at work on world's largest animated scale-model to be feature of General Motors exhibit at New York World's Fair. (1) A few of the 408 panel sections which will be fitted together to create the completed "futurama"; (2) Norman Bel Geddes, designer of the model, inspects a detail of one of the cities; (3) here men are making mountains into molehills; (4) a trio of artisans lay out some of the half million houses and buildings designed for the spectacle.

A SPECTACULAR and life-like miniature cross-section of the United States, as it may conceivably appear twenty years or so from now, is being constructed as a feature of the General Motors Highways and Horizons exhibit at the New York World's Fair. Covering an area of 35,738 square feet and extending for a full third of a mile, the "futurama," as it is called, will be the most ambitious, animated scale-model ever attempted. Norman Bel Geddes, widely known industrial and theatrical designer, is responsible for the idea.

Visitors will tour the "futurama" in comfortable chairs, traveling on a continuous escalator-conveyor system which will give the sensation of viewing the countryside from a low-flying airplane. Each of the moving chairs will be equipped with its own sound device describing points along the ride. No detail of realism has been overlooked in planning the spectacle. There will be approximately 50,000 scale-model automobiles, 10,000 of which will be in actual operation over a system of superhighways of the future. Designed to stimulate interest in highway and transportation progress, the exhibit will show traffic-control towers, automatic highway-surface lighting, speed lanes, superhighway intersections, multi-decked bridges and other innovations.

A half million houses and buildings and over a million trees of 13 species are being used to create the scenes. This superhighway will trace over the "futurama" replete with a metropolis of a million population, two companion cities with a combined population of 300,000, and 6 smaller towns. There will be farming, university, resort and industrial towns; vineyards, orchards, mountains and pastureland; country club, airport at night, tunnels, dams, civic centers and parks, all in life-like design, color and motion.

INDIANS WILL AID FISH HATCHERIES

Virginia State Department To Construct Three Basins

Commissioner G. Walter Mapp sounded the "go ahead" signal yesterday for the construction of three fish hatcheries to promote the catching of shad and herring in Virginia waters.

With scientific data supplied by the United States Bureau of Fisheries, funds supplied partially by the WPA in Virginia, and personnel chosen from the staff of the Commission of Fisheries, the four hatcheries will go into operation during the height of the shad run this spring.

A fourth hatchery which has been operated jointly by the Virginia commission and the Federal Bureau will be continued on the Chickahominy River. The three new ones will be located on the Pamunkey River, the Mattaponi River and the Pianki tank.

The Pamunkey and Mattaponi hatcheries will be manned partly by Indians from the State reservations in King William County. Indians will be paid a stated bounty for each roe shad or herring caught and the roe will be stripped from the fish and allowed to mature under ideal conditions within the hatchery.

At the Chickahominy hatchery the young fry will be allowed to grow in Lake Harrison until they reach sufficient size to be liberated in Sterling Creek, a tributary of the Chickahominy.

The shad and herring swim down the Virginia rivers to the ocean as they grow larger, returning to Virginia waters to spawn in the spring. After spawning they return again to the ocean.

"We are investigating the possibility of raising other species of fish, especially sturgeon, in the hatcheries," Mapp said.

SECKINGER-GARRISON

Mr. and Mrs. Klonan Garrison announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to Mr. Roland Seckinger, Jr., of Savannah, Ga. The wedding took place at 5:00 p. m. o'clock Jan. 21 at the Post Chapel, Quantico, Va., Chaplin Salisbury, officiating.

Gen. Bee at that time was standing near the old Stone Bridge, on which a marker now rests. This bridge spans Bull Run, and hundreds of soldiers on both sides were killed in trying to capture and hold this bridge. The famous Henry house was located on the hill in sight of the bridge. This old house was shelled repeatedly by Union artillery and demolished. Mr. Henry's grandmother, Mrs. Judith Carter, was killed by an exploding shell in the house during the First Battle of Manassas. The Union artillery believed Confederate sharpshooters were in this house and sought to dislodge them. The house was destroyed, and later the frame house, which can be seen from Lee Highway, stands on part of its foundation. Mr. Henry, three years old at the time, had been taken to another house about three miles away.

After growing to manhood, Mr. Henry followed farming and teaching, coming to Harrisonburg to continue his business teaching after selling his famous old home.

Mr. Henry's death marks the passing of a true old Virginia gentleman. He had that courtesy of manner, for which the South was famed. He was a kind neighbor and often told of many events which young people of today enjoyed of the old South. He attributed his age to never using liquor and tobacco. He also never used profane language. He was a bundle of energy and as late as last fall he often was seen in his garden and yard working away with a hoe. Also last fall he helped remodel his garage.

Mr. Henry is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Miss Elena Page Herrell, of Prince William county, daughter of the late Capt. James E. Herrell, Co. F. 17 Va., C.S.A. His children are Miss Judith Constance Henry, at home, Edward Newman Henry, connected with the Harrisonburg Telephone Company as draftsman and engineer, and Robert Morris Henry, an engineer of Newport News. A brother Hugh F. Henry, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and a granddaughter, Elizabeth Lee Henry, also survive.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Another article, telling of plans of the state of Virginia to place a monument to Gen. Jackson on the Henry farm, appears in another column.

OLD REVOLVER IS MUSEUM GIFT

First Used in War Between the States

Among recent donations to the museum of the National Park Service at Fredericksburg was a rare foreign type revolver, given by Mr. J. L. Carpenter of Fredericksburg, Va.

The gun is a Le Fauchaux pin-fire six-shooter with one cartridge still in the chamber. According to Bannerman's gun catalogue, Le Fauchaux's pin-fire cartridge was the first metallic ammunition. The shell had a pin at a right angle to the length. When struck by the hammer, this pin exploded a cap inside the shell and thus fired the cartridge. Le Fauchaux's system was a step between the old percussion cap system and the metallic ammunition of today.

The inventor, a Frenchman, made his guns at Paris and Liege. March 26, 1861, he patented his invention at the United States Patent Office. Bannerman states that the Federal Government purchased 12,000 of these revolvers during 1861 for use against the Confederates at a cost of $13.00 each. Many Confederate officers also used this weapon; there is a specimen among the Jackson relics at the Confederate Museum in Richmond.

The relic given by Mr. Carpenter was found at Massaponax Gravel-pit, territory which was occupied by the armies during the engagements around Fredericksburg during the Civil War. That neighborhood, just south of the end of the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park property on the Fredericksburg battlefield, marked the Confederate right during the Battle of Fred-
