LEGION SPONSORS THE BOYS' STATE

Model Republic First of Its Kind in Old Dominion

From Sunday, June 18, to Saturday, June 24, on the campus of V. P. I., the American Legion sponsored the Old Dominion Boys' State. This "State" is the first of its kind in Virginia, although this is the third year that it has been held in the United States. The American Legion is sponsoring twenty-six similar organizations in other states of the Union this summer.

The first Old Dominion Boys' State was composed of 217 boys, chosen from high schools all over the State of Virginia. These boys were from the Junior class and were chosen by the other boys of the class. The boys sponsored by American Legion Post No. 152, of Manassas, were Warren Landes, of Nokesville and Leonard Lonas, Jr., of Manassas.

The "State" was divided into six counties and six cities. They were Lee City, Washington County; Jackson City, Jefferson County; Pershing City, Wilson County; Early City, Madison County; Stuart City, Tyler County, and Forrest City, Monroe County. The cities were named after famous generals and the counties after Virginia-born Presidents. Each boy upon his arrival was placed in a county and a city, and was given a political party. The two parties were the Nationalists and the Federalists.

On Monday morning city caucuses were held, at which time state and county delegates were chosen from both the Nationalist and Federalist parties. On Monday afternoon the parties held their conventions and the state officers were nominated.

The elections were held on Tuesday morning and all city, county and state officers were elected. The votes were cast by the use of two of the latest type voting machines. The Governor of the Boys' State was George L. Spencer, of Narrows, the Lieutenant-Governor, Edward Hewitt, of Portsmouth, and the Attorney-General, Edward Stenger, of Richmond. On Tuesday afternoon there was a joint session of the House of Delegates and the Senate. At this joint session the justices of the Supreme Court of Appeals were chosen.

After all the elections were held and all the appointments made, every boy of the Old Dominion Boys' State had some part in carrying on the government of the "State". The boys were then ready to carry on a very complete city, county and state government.

A system of courts was set up and later in the week two trials were held, on being appealed to the Supreme Court of Appeals. A bar examination was held, and to be either a Judge or Lawyer the examination had to be passed. Only 58 citizens successfully passed this examination, both of the boys sponsored by Post No. 152 being among this number.

Tuesday night the inauguration of officers was held. The main address of the evening was by the Honorable E. Lee Trinkle, former Governor of Virginia.

During the remainder of the week the several governmental units were in operation. The government was carried on solely by the boys, the Legion Boys' State committee acting only in the capacity of counselors. There were many men present who advised in the different lines of government with which they were familiar. Much of the credit for the success of this Boys' State should be given to these men, too numerous to name. Honorable mention should, however, be given to Mr. Charles Crush, chairman of the Old Dominion Boys' State; Mr. Fred C. Parks, Commander of the Virginia Department of the American Legion, and John J. Wicker, Chief Counselor of the Old Dominion Boys' State.

The athletic program included competitive contests between the cities in baseball, swimming, and track meets.

The Governor's Ball was held Friday night, Hi-Y girls from the adjoining towns being the guests of the boys.

On Saturday morning the Graduation exercises were held at which certificates of attendance, merit, and athletic awards were presented. Dr. Peters, president of Radford State Teachers' College, was the guest speaker.

The Old Dominion Boys' State was designed to teach the youth of Virginia the fundamentals of democratic government.

ginitia the fundamentals of democratic government.

The Virginia Department of the American Legion entered upon this program to develop a closer contact with boys, to promote Americanism and citizenship. Their program was well planned and well carried out, for they did install in the mind of every boy present the ideals of Americanism and good citizenship.

The American Legion of the Old Dominion should be congratulated upon their new contribution, which they so successfully carried into effect. Among the many things the American Legion has done and is doing for America this was and will be, perhaps, the most far-reaching and successful contribution they have made "For God and Country."

THE EFFECT OF ALCOHOL ON HUMAN LIFE

(A winning essay sponsored by the W.C.T.U.)

By Betty McMichael
(Nokesville High School)

Is alcohol injurious to the body? In the past there has been a division of opinion on this subject. Today, however, we live in an age of science, and we are substituting knowledge for guesswork. We know definitely that the use of alcohol causes sickness, shortens life, and lowers ones morals.

The alcohol habit grows similarly to the morphine habit. When it is taken in sufficient amounts to produce stupor or lose control of the body, a definite narcotic condition results and the usual activities can not be carried on. Alcohol has a much greater effect on one when it is consumed rapidly on an empty stomach. This is true because it is absorbed directly into the blood without undergoing digestive changes.

When alcohol is taken into the body, it dissolves the liquid which protects the nervous system, and it hydrates the cell material. These two actions have four effects on living tissue. First, because it is a narcotic, it quickly affects the nervous system. Second, it is detrimental to bodily functioning in that it slows down the action of the mind, the stomach, the liver, and other organs. Third, it is habit forming by creating a craving for itself. The greater the injury to the nervous system the more insistent the demand for it, and the weaker the will power in resistance. Fourth, it is protoplasmic poison for it affects the life germ so that it is not quite normal. This may show up only in a nervous and mental unbalance, or it may emphasize certain hereditary weaknesses.

The chief effects of alcohol, aside from those on the nervous system, are on the heart, the blood vessels, the lungs, the stomach, the liver, and the kidneys. These are the organs which supply the body with food and oxygen and dispose of its wastes. When these organs are affected, the results are extremely serious.

Alcohol often causes fatty degeneration and fibroid degeneration of certain of the tissues of these organs. In fatty degeneration little droplets of oil begin to collect within the cell. Gradually the living protoplasm of the cell is replaced by fat. When the cells of the gastric glands are changed in this way, they lose their power to secrete.

In fibroid degeneration there is an overgrowth of the connective tissue elements while the working cells degenerate and die. Often in the arteries the elastic muscle coat is not only changed to connective tissue, but lime is deposited in the walls also. These changes make "pipe-stem" arteries which are brittle, and often the opening in them is so narrowed that it is difficult for the blood to make its way through.

The use of alcohol also has a definite effect upon the digestion. The lining of the stomach and the intestines, known as the mucous membrane, is very delicate. It contains many cells which secrete the gastric juice and help to digest the food. When alcohol comes into contact with these cells, it prevents them from doing their normal work. The result is that the food is not thoroughly digested. Many people regard alcohol as a genuine remedy for indigestion. It is true that the sense of pain may be reduced with the use of alcohol, but this is because it exerts a numbing effect on the stomach nerves. Instead of being cured the mischief is often increased because digestion is retarded by a considerable amount of alcohol.

Another effect of alcohol is to enlarge the blood vessels in the skin. This causes a flushed skin, a feeling of warmth, and creates a false sensation of increased circulation. It sends more blood through the skin, and this causes a loss of heat.

The first effect of alcohol in small doses is to narcotize the cells of the highest level of the brain. This brain center is the seat of the highest mental functions—judgment, self control, sense of values, and self-criticism. This is, in fact, the only structural feature in our bodies which marks us from the beast. When one takes even moderate doses of alcohol, he is putting out of action in part or in whole the only part of his anatomy that is distinctly human.

Because alcohol causes one to seem lively and to talk more easily, it is commonly believed that it is a stimulant. This is a great mistake for it is a really a narcotic. It produces a seemingly stimulating effect by paralyzing the higher centers of the brain. This allows one to do and say things which his good sense ordinarily keeps him from doing and saying.

After taking a drink a man feels that his mind is working better and that his ideas come more easily. In reality his mind is slower and his ideas are less sensible than usual. adv.

The powers of his mind by which he judges these things have been deadened, however, and he is no longer capable of forming a correct opinion of his actions.

Various experiments show that the capacity to think clearly is greatly affected by even small quantities of alcohol. Typesetters who were given only a little over an ounce of alcohol a day did ten per cent less work and made twentyfive per cent more mistakes than on days when no alcohol was taken.

Because alcohol damages the brain it lowers the morals of an individual. Habitual drunkards lose their modesty and pride in personal appearance. All ambitions and high ideals are destroyed.

The part liquor plays in the homes contributes to juvenile delinquency. It tends to unfit the parents to maintain family discipline, and often leads directly to poverty and family dissension. Quarrelling in the home, poor homes which surround the children with bad environments, and neglect of schooling all have a part in causing youthful delinquency when parents are alcoholic.

Drink is the nurse of crime. An illustration of this is the case of a father who while under the influence of alcohol beat his four-year-old daughter to death while she cried, "Daddy, that's enough." Ordinarily he would never have done such a thing, but his senses had become so dulled by alcohol that he did not realize what he was doing. The normal man things before he acts. Alcohol makes the user act before he thinks, and the result is crime.

The mind is more sensitive than the body; therefore, a man may stagger in his mind long before he does in his feet. Scientists usually recognize three stages of intoxication. The first is the "Don't Care" stage. Judgment and self control are weakened. There is a loss of the sense of personal responsibility which causes a "don't care" attitude of mind as to what the individual says or does.

Second is the "Clumsy" stage. The sense perception is dulled and muscular coordination is weakened so that clumsiness takes the place of precision. This results in the loss of efficiency.

Third is the "Stupid" stage. The drinker sinks inert and nerveless into a heavy sleep which lasts until the alcohol taken has been oxidized.

The man who has taken alcohol usually feels that he is stronger and has more endurance. Actually he is mistaken as to his true condition. It gives, not strength, but only a feeling of strength to the muscles. It deadens the ability to feel fatigue, but does not relieve it. Probably the weakening effect of alcohol on the muscles is due chiefly to its interference with their control by the nervous system. The muscles work against each other, thus losing much of their power.

Helen Wills Moody once said, "In playing tennis one glass of beer or one cocktail is enough to impair coordination and balance. The precision that tennis demands makes total abstinence even from beer necessary." This is also true of other sports. "You can't win with alcohol" was the slogan often heard before the Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Besides having many direct effects on the body, alcohol indirectly causes various other ills. Alcohol weakens the resistance to diseases. In pneumonia, particularly the heavy drinker may be less able to throw off the disease because alcohol has depleted his bodily vigor. Factors rendering the drinker more susceptible to pneumonia are poor food, carelessness in observing the rules of health, and exposure to wet and chilling which may occur while under the influence of alcohol.

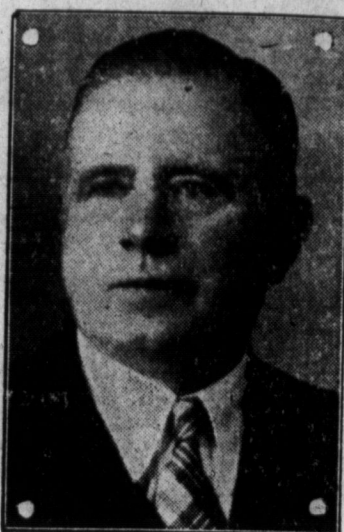

Alcohol is also the cause of many traffic accidents. Within two hours after drinking a pint of beer, one's eye span is greatly decreased. The range of vision straight ahead may be only as much as ten feet. This is about one-third of the usual range. Since the senses have been dulled the movements are much slower, and this also a great danger in driving.

In conclusion we find that alcohol is injurious to health, morals and efficiency.

MARLIN FISHING

Ocean City, Md., has become the greatest marlin fishing spot in the United States. More than a thousand of these great game fish of the ocean were landed in the blue waters off this resort last year. The marlin season will reach its peak within a few days and with big game fishing now listed as one of America's fastest growing sports devotees of the rod and reel have begun swarming down to the Maryland shore. The story of this now famous fishing spot and of how the big fish are caught there is told in an illustrated feature article by Walter McCallum, appearing in The Washington Star reality his mind is slower and his ideas are less sensible than usual. adv.

COLEMAN WARNS COUNTY OFFICIALS

Judge Frederick W. Coleman recently gave warning to sheriffs, constables and police officers that they are required to enforce the liquor laws of the state and said their resignations would be expected unless they were active in discharging their duty.

In his charge to a special grand jury in Caroline Circuit Court, Judge Coleman said: "There seems to be in the minds of some of the sheriffs, constables and police officers also that it is no part of their duties to disturb illicit distillers or interfere with unlawful sales and possession of ardent spirits. In this they are mistaken. It is as much the duty of sheriffs, constables and police officers to enforce these liquor laws as any other law."

"The sheriff is the chief law enforcing officer in the county and when he fails to be active and energetic in the discharge of his duties his usefulness is at an end," he said.

Judge Coleman declared: "There is much complaint that more 'moonshine' and 'monkey rum' is being manufactured and sold today than in the prohibition days, notwithstanding the A.B.C. liquor stores and the wine and beer saloons. Doubtless there is foundation for such complaint. This illicit business will continue as it did in the prohibition days unless the citizens cooperate with the enforcing officers in a determined effort to stamp out this illicit business."

Guiney's Depot, Caroline County, Va.

My dear Colonel — Yesterday I heard that Governor Letcher and your self were coming to visit the army, but the arrival of the cars without you doomed me to disappointment. I hope that you will come before long. Please give my kindest regards to the Governor, and remind him of his long standing promise to visit me. Col Linedi says he heard distant artillery, and others agree with him. The direction is towards Port Royal.

I have heard with great interest the reports of the Congressional Committee recommending the repeal of the law requiring the mails to be carried on the Sabbath, and I hope you will feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to urge its repeal. I do not see how a nation, that thus arrays itself by such a law against God's holy day, can expect to escape His Wrath.—The punishment of national sins must be confined to this world, as there is no nationality beyond the grave. For fifteen years I have refused to mail letters on Sunday, or to take them out of the office on that day, except since I came into the field; and, so far from having to regret my course, it has been a source of true enjoyment. I have never sustained loss in observing what God enjoins, and I am well satisfied that the law should be repealed at the earliest practical moment.

Please send me a copy of the Staff Bill, as I may have something to say respecting it in my letter to Colonel Miles.

Very truly, your friend,

"BRIDAL SUITE" AT PITTS' THEATRE, JULY 13-14

For the first time in her life Annabella sings in "Bridal Suite," the hilarious comedy, next Thursday and Friday, July 13-14, playing at the Pitts' Theatre. Not only that, but she accompanies herself upon the Swiss national instrument, the zither.

Charles P. Burton, expert on the zither and other stringed instruments, gave lessons to the French star. The zither is of Greek origin, he explained, being related to the lyre, and has become popular at German and Swiss festivals, particularly for accompanying yodeling songs.

She is heard in a French song, "When I Gave My Smile to You," with Robert Young who appears opposite her in the picture, joining in the chorus.

In "Bridal Suite," Annabella appears as a Swiss innkeeper who entertains her guests with her songs in the evening. Young is the black sheep playboy of an American family, whose mother, Billie Burke, has brought him to the Swiss resort so that she can obtain a certificate of amnesia for him from her pet psychiatrist, Walter Connolly, to explain his failure to show up at his own wedding.

PREPARING FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP REGATTA

The President's Cup Regatta Association, which is planning to hold its annual regatta on the Potomac River September 16-24, inclusive, announces as a mid-summer pre-regatta event, the "Gold Cup Royal Moonlight Sail," on Friday, July 26th, on the steamship "City of Washington" of the Wilson Line.

The event will mark the eighth annual river cruise arranged by the committee of sponsors of the Association, and will present an unusual number of features in keeping with certain old English customs on the river. Present-time interest in English royalty suggested the title of the cruise and it amusements to the committee which includes Harold Allen Long, Austin de Wilde, William J. McManus and others.

Posters and tickets for the "Gold Cup Royal Moonlight Sail" will be ready within the week, it is announced, and such features as a "Boat Dock Band," the "Old Custom Deck Show," a "Searchlight Tattoo," "Promenade and Main Deck Carnival" are included in the evening's entertainment.

Joh A. Remon is general chairman of the 1939 Regatta, with R. Lyman Sexton and Edward C. Baltz as vice-general chairmen. The Board of Directors of the President's Cup Regatta Association also includes James A. Councilor, C. Bache Gill, L. Gordon Leech, Thomas E. Lodge, B. M. McKelway, William C. Shelton, H. P. Somerville and R. S. Thomas. Robert V. Fleming is treasurer of the President's Cup Regatta Association.

WAR IN AUGUST?

There are alarming indications that the long-feared outbreak of hostilities in Europe will occur in August. The grounds for belief in this fearful prospect lie in the strength of the indications that Adolf Hitler's plans for the seizure of Danzig will mature and be put into effect next month, and that Germany is this time misjudging the determination of France and England to fight.

When Europe was on the brink of war last year the one fact that prevented hostilities was that Czechoslovakia did not feel strong enough to make an independent resistance. Had she been able to do so with any prospect of prolonging the conflict substantially, England and France would have unquestionably have eventually come to her aid. But Poland is willing to fight, whether aided by her powerful friends or not. The seizure of Danzig and the only outlet to the sea of a great nation, means its doom. Poland has vast military resources and fine patriotism and it is the universal belief, outside of Germany, that the Poles will resist the Nazi invasion. This unquestionably would precipitate the general conflict so greatly feared.

UNCLE SAM AS BANKER

The Government of the United States has invaded many fields of private enterprise, but none more conspicuously than the banking business. When one undertakes to enumerate the money lending agencies of the government, an astounding array of federal banking institutions appears. Financial statistics moreover, reveal the fact that no less than twelve billion dollars have been loaned through these official agencies. And significantly, the loans of private banking institutions have shrunk approximately twelve billion dollars within the same period. It is the inescapable fact, therefore, that government has taken this legitimate business from private enterprise.

The primary concern in Washington, is ostensibly to promote economic recovery. Why, then, should the government so markedly curtail the legitimate business of an industry vital to the economic life of the nation? The answer is not to be found in the alleged motive of making it easier for the man in the street to borrow money, because the collateral requirements of the various federal lending agencies are more severe than those of the local banks.

A more reasonable answer is to be found in the undeniable fact that all these federal banking agencies are liberal purchasers of government bonds, making it comparatively easy to expand the national debt to the present staggering total of over forty billion dollars. And, if the government banks are not absorbing federal securities as fast as the folks in Washington can devise ways and means of "spending our way to prosperity," it is only necessary to intimidate private business by such remarks from the highest source that a "breathing spell" is being allowed by dollar devaluation and other threats to the stability and safety of private investments, and the legitimate banks, State and National, are likewise impelled to absorb federal securities as the only available investment allowable under Treasury Department regulations.

It has mystified millions of citizens as to why the government invades and threatens private business, while ostensibly depending upon expansion of private employment to relieve the depression. If it is not a liberate policy to create and enlarge the market for the rapidly expanding issue of government securities, a more logical conclusion would be difficult envisage.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

We have been slow in reforming our method of celebrating our great national holiday the Fourth of July. It has too long been devoted to glorifying militarism. In my early days we boys saved our pennies for weeks ahead in order to be able to buy toy cannons, powder and paper soldiers with red-coats, with which we reproduced in our way the battles in 1776. An important and regrettable which "we licked the British" in feature of these celebrations was the accidents, in which not a few children lost their lives and multitudes were seriously injured. While our modern celebration is supposed to be "safe and sane," there is still much need of improvement.

Might we not put more idealism into the day and use it to educate our youth in the true principles of patriotism and in the question of a nation's best defense? We get a dramatic answer to this question in the story of the scent of Elijah. You will remember how he was accompanied to the banks of the river Jordan by his young friend Elisha. Suddenly the chariot and horses of fire swung down from the skies, and the older prophet stepped aboard. As the younger man gazed eagerly after his master who had thus been snatched away from him he cried, "My Father—my Father, the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof!" By this Elisha meant, "Thou hast been the true defender of Israel, of greater value to the nation than all the armies of the King with their chariots of iron and their war horses."

Elisha here states a principle which has been verified through all subsequent time, that the best defense of any nation lies in the character of its citizens. Jesus said, "They that take the sword shall perish by the sword." Napoleon corroborated the Lord's statement many years later in those words so often quoted, "Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne and I have founded empires. Upon what rested the creations of our genius? Upon force. Jesus founded His Kingdom on love, and today there are millions would die for Him."

We of the United States are a peace-loving people, and sincerely committed to the program which seeks the abandonment of war as a means of settling international difficulties. At the same time we are in constant danger of being carried off our feet by the war hysteria which has turned the old world into an armed camp.

We should be thankful that the whole new world, from the northern tip of Canada to the southern tip of South America, is becoming more and more aware of its destiny as the advocates of the good neighbor policy and the exemplars of "peace on earth and good will toward men." Our recent visit from the King and Queen of England has been a distinct contribution to the cause of international friendship.

However, the greatest factor in correcting present world evils is the good character of individual citizens. After all, the common people are the

Royal Visit Sharpens Interest in Old Quebec,
America's Only Walled City, Famed in History

THE recent landing of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England at old Quebec, the first time a reigning monarch has visited North America, has sharpened the general interest in one of North America's most interesting cities.

Perched atop Cape Diamond four hundred feet above the broad St. Lawrence with the blue haze of the Laurentian Mountains in the background, Quebec, with her ramparts, Norman gables and 16th century French atmosphere, is unique among cities. The stranger within her venerable gates (incidentally Quebec is the only walled city in the New World) could literally spend weeks in exploring this city and its environs. History and custom confront him at every turn.

In the city itself are ancient churches, such as Little Notre Dame des Victoires in the old French quarter, built to commemorate the defeat of one British fleet and the sinking of another, both sent to capture Quebec in 1690 and 1711. The Plains of Abraham where in 1759 General Wolfe and Montcalm fought the engagement which ended French dominion in North America. The Chateau Frontenac, world-famous hotel, built on the site of old Fort St. Louis, home of the French Intendants, or governors; the Governor's Garden, a secluded retreat where one can sit and watch the shipping on the busy river; the Ursuline Convent, home of the Ursuline Nuns; ancient Laval University; and the old Citadel, still an army post, which sheltered the royal couple on their first night ashore.

In Quebec's environs stands the Shrine of Ste Anne de Beaupre, noted for its healing miracles. Golfers try their skill on the sporty 18 hole course at Montmorency Falls which are higher than Niagara, while those interested in antiquity cross the river and visit the sleepy little Ile d'Orleans, untouched by modernism through centuries. The quiet countryside, which remains as French as Normandy itself, can best be studied on a leisurely motor trip or, better still, from a slow-moving horse-drawn caleche whose French-Canadian driver is a model guide and commentator.

Since moral character is the nation's largest asset, we cannot afford to allow religion to fall into decay. "Except the Lord keep the city the watchman watcheth in vain." The people of the United States are naturally religious. No atheist could ever be elected to the Presidency, for even those who are careless about their own personal religious duties do not trust a man who does not believe in God.

New York Fair Interest

In at least thirty-eight States banking institutions are now operating New York World's Fair 1939 Savings Clubs, organizations for depositors which induce them to save stipulated sums each week for a trip to the Fair next Spring.

This saving plan, announced just one year ago, has for its slogan, "Save Today to See the World of Tomorrow" and several banks have linked it to their Christmas and Vacation Clubs.

Telephone Cable Laid
To Serve Eastern Shore88-Pair Four-Mile Link Placed Between Sandy Point and Broad Creek

A new submarine telephone cable to supplement existing facilities serving the Eastern Shore of Maryland has just been completed, according to a statement made by officials of The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City. The project cost about $40,000.

The cable, which is four miles long, contains 88 pairs of telephone wires and stretches from Sandy Point on the Western Shore to Broad Creek on the Eastern Shore. The new cable will follow approximately the same route as the existing one and will provide facilities for 114 message circuits and two high quality broadcast circuits, which it is estimated will care for future circuit requirements until about 1960.

The cable has over the usual lead sheath a cushion of jute and a layer of steel armor wires to provide protection and weighs about 90 tons. It was laid in eight sections, each about 3,000 feet in length, from a specially equipped cable-laying ship, the "Liddy," sent down from New York to handle the job. After it was laid, the adjacent ends of the various sections were raised and spliced together through loading coils, which were specially designed for this project by the Bell Telephone Laboratories. The special armored cable itself was manufactured in the Western Electric Company's plant at Point Breeze, Maryland.

FOR COMMONWEALTH'S

ATTORNEY

To the Voters of Prince William County:

For the past fifteen months I have served you as Commonwealth's Attorney. When I was appointed by the Judge of the Circuit Court from the membership of the local bar to fill this position I felt personally gratified and have endeavored at all times since assuming this post to perform the duties incumbent upon the occupant without fear or favor, in the manner as dictated by my conscience.

At the very first I found the duties much more difficult than I anticipated but have become acquainted with them since my appointment. My aim has at all times been to serve the people of my county honestly and to the best of my ability.

I am sorry that I will not be able to visit every voter in person before the August Primary, but have been and will be prevented, owing to the fact that I have been and am engaged solely in performing the duties devolving upon the office.

If my record, while serving you, has met with your approval then I would greatly appreciate your support in the coming Primary. You know my capabilities in so far as this office is concerned from my record and I assure you, if elected, I shall continue to perform my duties in the manner that I have done while serving you as Commonwealth's Attorney.

Sincerely,
W. Hill Brown, Jr.

OCCOQUAN
AND VICINITY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Petellat, of Baltimore, Md., spent the holidays visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose J. Petellat, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bubb in Occoquan.

Mr. Herman F. Jennings, Occoquan's genial pharmacist, spent three days at Virginia Beach attending the Pharmaceutical Convention there. He reported having a very enjoyable time, and the good work being done by that Society. We were glad to see him back, for he is very much missed here when he spends a few days away on some business.

Mr. Harvey M. Janney, of Occoquan, entertained some of the ladies of the community at a Bridge-Luncheon on Friday, June 30th. Mrs. Janney enjoys entertaining parties of friends.

Messrs. French Fleming, Kenneth Dove, of Lorton, and B. W. Brunt and Austin Barbee and Thos. F. Joyce, of Occoquan, and Wade Davis, of Hoadly, attended the meeting of the Bankers Ass'n., at Nokesville on Tuesday, June 27th. There was a very large attendance, and an excellent dinner was served by the ladies of that community. After the dinner several speakers made talks. Matters of vital importance to the community, state and nation were discussed.

Mr. H. L. Mooney, of Occoquan, made a trip to South Carolina during the week-end to get a prisoner who had broken his parole and return him to the District of Columbia Penal Institutions. They can not get away with it if they break their parole, even though they may have employment as this particular prisoner had.

There passed from our midst a man who was loved by all who knew him, a good neighbor and a good citizen: Mr. Roy A. Marshall, of Lorton, Va., in his early thirties. He was laid to rest in the Marshall Cemetery on the Ox road, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. D. R. Calvert, of the Occoquan Methodist Church. Mr. Marshall leaves his wife and two children, also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Marshall, and two brothers.

Manassas, Va.,
P.O. Box 498,
Tele. 5-F-22FOR COMMISSIONER OF THE REVENUE
FAIRFAX COUNTY

Your vote and active support of his candidacy in the Democratic Primary to be held on August 1, 1939, is earnestly solicited.

His opponent has held this office for twenty years. There is no reason why his tenure of office should be extended for life. Feeling that a much younger man should take the office over at a time when burdens of the office are greatly increasing, Mr. Mackall has advanced his candidacy.

Mr. Mackall is 43 years old. He is married and has two sons. He is quite active in all civic matters of his community.

He was a soldier in France at the time his opponent was first named to office.

His experience is ample to justify the confidence of the voters. As an appraiser for a large realty firm, he has maintained an office for a number of years. His direct contact with many of the problems now confronting landowners and homeowners will make it possible for him not only to be of great assistance but assures his competency is the duties of assessment work.

Such an office as that of the Commissioner of the Revenue must be put on a progressive basis such as is required by the wealth and population of Fairfax County. He can greatly aid in much of the county's welfare in this province by seeing to it that such progress is put into the management of this important office.

Most important in the minds of many are equitable and just assessments for all. To that end Mr. Mackall pledges his best efforts.

In seeking the support of the voters, Mr. Mackall is quoted as follows: "My office, if I am elected, shall not be run for the benefit of the chosen few, but for all of the people. In selecting my deputies and other assistants I shall give first consideration to merit and efficiency. I consider that this office requires the full time of the Commissioner and his deputies, and other employees, and if elected, I shall see that the office is run on this basis. I am opposed to the idea of County officials appointing members of their own families as their deputies and assistants, believing that County offices should be more evenly distributed among the citizens of the County, and if elected to this office, I shall not employ members of my own family."

Mr. Mackall is being advanced by the progressive element of Fairfax County as a logical candidate to succeed the present Commissioner Revenue.

Douglas S. Mackall, Jr.

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty—an informed public makes an intelligent and effective electorate. We Americans are too prone to listen to the voice of the smooth advocate and swallow his sophistries and form our judgments and determine our votes by them. All lovers of our liberty should have open minds to get the whole truth and then shape his course accordingly. Now as never before is this necessary when democracy and liberty is threatened. The best way to safeguard our heritage is to attend Church. It stands for the highest and best. It will not mislead you. Come this Sunday.

"Sandy" happened to become a film celebrity because Universal studio needed a baby to play the new Bing Crosby-Jean Blondell picture, "East Side of Heaven," which opens at hall School house. Time, 8:30—11:00 a.m. daily.

Pitts Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, July 10-15.

When this news leaked out, hundreds of mothers stormed the studio portals. All carried babies. All but about 50 of the children were quickly eliminated. The others were given exhaustive screen tests.

Then Roy Henville, a Los Angeles milkman, entered the picture. It happened that one of Henville's customers was Charles Previn, Universal musical director. Henville left some pictures of his baby along with two quarts of milk, on Previn's doorstep one morning. Previn in turn showed the pictures to Director David Butler. An immediate test was arranged, with a contract quickly following.

That is how "Sandy" Henville became a film star, without knowing or caring what was happening. What really counted was the group of great big men who through the funniest motions for "Sandy's own particular amusement—whenever the camera was grinding. That is one way baby smiles are obtained on the screen.

Others in the cast of this film include Mischa Auer, Irene Hervey, C. Aubrey Smith, Jerome Cowan and Robert Kent.

GARDEN LOVERS' SHORT COURSE TO BE HELD AT VA. TECH

Many outstanding speakers have been obtained for the third annual Garden Lovers' Short Course, to be held at Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, August 1, 2 and 3, according to A. G. Smith, Jr., floriculturist with the Virginia Agricultural Extension Division.

The very evening will bring to the program Alfred C. Hottes, associate editor, Better Homes and Gardens magazine, who will speak on the topic, "The Gardener's Answer to Our Quest for Happiness." The program will close Thursday morning with a talk illustrated with color slides, by M. E. Bottomley, professor of landscape architecture, University of Cincinnati, on "The Front Yard—a Factor in the Community."

A third out-of-state speaker will be Mrs. Mamie Sue Evans, Sylva, North Carolina, who will talk about "Herbs for the Garden and Pantry."

From the ranks of noted gardeners within Virginia borders, Mr. Smith has listed on the program Wednesday morning:

"Garden Lovers' Part in Helping to Make Virginia Roadside the Most Beautiful in America," by H. J. Neale, landscape engineer, Virginia Department of Highways; "Garden Roses Illustrated with Color Slides," by Mrs. William Wayt Gibbs, of Staunton, chairman, rose test committee, Garden Club of Virginia; "Flower Arrangements," Mrs. Evelyn R. Dickinson, Woodstock; and "Life History of Some Fungi and Bacteria," by Dr. J. G. Harrar, department of biology, V.P.I.

Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Dickinson will discuss "Designing the Rose Garden." And Dr. T. Allen Kirk, president of the American Rose Society, and Dr. Harry I. Johnson, president of the Roanoke Rose Society, both of Roanoke, will conduct—for men only—"A Study of Roses and Other Plants of Interest to Men."

"Soil Management" from the flower gardening standpoint will be discussed Thursday morning by W. H. Byrne, agronomist, Virginia Agricultural Extension Division.

Other features of the short course are tours of the experimental rose plants, the Nature Trail and other points of interest, and an informal party as guests of the Blacksburg Garden Clubs, Wednesday evening.

THE WORLD AROUND US

By

O. J. Schuster

A MILLION AMERICANS will probably visit one or more of our fine national parks during the season. The experience thus gained is a realistic education, far more effective than is the dull academic routine carried on in the classrooms of our schools. The carefully selected ranger naturalists who serve as guides and instructors are not only first class teachers but also are friendly companions to the visitors who accompany them on hikes. The language of Mother Nature is an open book to these naturalists and many park visitors get their first lessons in this delightful and impressive language from the rangers who interpret some of its chapters to them.

CARLSBAD CAVERNS in New Mexico afford as awe-inspiring and instructive an experience as any the tourist is likely to have. In this vast underground world, hundreds of feet below the earth's surface, one travels thru halls and chambers of enormous proportions, their walls and ceilings and interiors decorated with sculptured forms more varied and impressive than are those of the finest art gallery in the world. Here grotesque and fantastic figures in this underworld give one the impression of being in the Hades of ancient Greece, and a little farther on one comes upon a veritable fairyland, beautiful as mind may fancy. At times the architecture suggests a massive cathedral built by superhuman power, enormous pillars extending from floor to ceiling a hundred feet overhead and dividing the space into something resembling nave, transept and choir. And then one may look for the crypt and, sure enough it is there as we look over the edge of the walk, a hundred feet down in the abyss below. And the guide tells us that a hundred feet below that crypt is another cavern as gigantic as the one we are in but only partially explored.

MOTHER NATURE CARVED this wonderland under the earth out of limestone, using only water as the agency with which she worked. Drip, drip, drop by drop the water dissolved the limestone, built the stalagmites that hang from ceilings like huge icicles, and the stalagmites rising from floors to meet them and form the gigantic pillars that support the roof. Looking at one of the most massive of these pillars and knowing that it took a whole century to add just one cubic inch to its huge bulk one wonders how many millions of years Mother Nature must have toiled patiently and persistently to sculpture this wonder. This knowledge makes one respect the rule which forbids the visitor carrying away with him even a tiny chip from the myriad structures he meets with in the seven-mile journey thru the caverns.

THREE HOURS AFTER ENTERING the caverns we arrive at a spacious chamber, brightly illuminated, a large restaurant where hot coffee and other drinks as well as variety of inviting foods are offered the hungry hikers. Tho we number between 12 and 13 hundred, there are seats and tables for everybody, even for those who have brought their own lunches. And there are booths where one may buy books and pamphlets giving the history of the caverns and how they were formed. An hour's rest and the stimulus of coffee and sandwiches makes us fit and eager for the rest of the journey thru this strange world which takes us more than 700 feet below the surface of the earth.

AN HOUR OR TWO LATER we arrive at the Rock of Ages and are invited to take seats in the spacious amphitheater. We are to be treated with a brief address by the superintendent of the caverns, Col. Thomas Bole, who is standing beside the Rock of Ages. It is a thought-provoking, inspiring talk, a fine and impressive sermon that brings us face to face with the Creative Power of the world around and above and below us and fills the thoughtful mind with reverence for and trust in "what God hath wrought." Near the end of the address we are told that all the lights would be switched off and that for 30 second we would be in absolute darkness, compared to which the darkest night experienced on the surface of the earth is like a fine twilight.

We were requested not to move or speak during the half minute of darkness. It was an impressive experience, trying to a few in the audience but I wished it had lasted at least two minutes. A faint glow in the east heralded the approach of dawn and at the same instant came the faint tones of a quartette singing Rock of Ages, the voices swelling in volume as the light in the east in brightness. An hour later we were back under the glowing sun of the New Mexico desert but that strange and fantastic world far remote from our everyday life will live in memory as long as life may last.

Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Woods had as their guests over the 4th, the former's brother, H. W. Woods, of Newport News, and also their nieces, Misses Sallie, Willie and Phyllis Hensley, of Norfolk. They all spent Monday on Skyline Drive.
