

Following the adjournment of the business session, a pleasant social hour was enjoyed during which the hostesses served delicious refreshments. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lewis Carper.

it strict cash payments. Cash and carry should literally mean what it says. If we begin with a 90-day credit, it is likely and probable that longer and more credit will be extended, so that the same conditions which existed in the last World War will be repeated.

The present law permits American ships to carry goods (even though declared contraband) to belligerent countries, excepting only manufactured implements of war.

It permits American traffic in combat zones, with the inevitable result, if continued, of the destruction of American lives and American property.

It permits the sale of goods (including products necessary to manufacture munitions) excepting manufactured implements of war, on any credit, long or short, that can be obtained by the purchasing nation.

The argument that has perhaps been stressed the most in opposition to the new neutrality legislation is that, if the United States changes the law at this time, it will be an unneutral act; that we should not alter the rules in the middle of the game. We should remember that America had nothing to do with the starting of this war. We had nothing to do with the game, the rules of which we are now told should not be changed, regardless of the emergencies that have since occurred.

To those who say that to change the law now that war has started is not sound policy and is unneutral, let us recall that before the war began notice was given by Congress, not that we would maintain the present law, but that we would postpone action until the next session of Congress. This was fair notice to all concerned that we might change the law. Furthermore, we do not owe any obligations on this point to any nation. No treaty rights are involved; not moral obligations are implied. We have the right to make our policy to meet war conditions in Europe in the interest of our peace. This is fortified by the fact that we propose to change it on the basis of our past experiences and our historic policy as to neutrality.

The fact is that if Congress refuses to change the existing law, by the same reasoning, we could be charged with an unneutral act, favoring those who benefit by the present law. Would it be neutral to ship arms and ammunition to Italy, as can now be done legally, and have such munitions re-transported to Germany when we cannot, under the present law, ship arms to Canada? Would it be neutral to ship to Russia, Germany's ally, as can now be done, but not to England; to ship arms to Japan, as can now be done, but not to France.

Under the legislation now proposed the United States will sell to every nation under exactly the same terms and conditions. The legislation authorizes sales to Germany, to England, to France and to Poland and, in fact, to all of the warring nations, or nations at peace. If Germany is unable to send her ships across the Atlantic, it is Germany's misfortune, just as it was the misfortune of England, France and Poland that the allies of Poland were unable to go to her rescue on land. It is no more our duty to deny to the British and French the naval advantage they enjoy than it is our duty to condemn the land advantage the Germans had in the subjugation and extinction of Poland.

In all this talk about the pending legislation being unneutral, let us remember that the text of the bill gives to every warring nation and to all nations in fact — to Germany, to England, to France, to Poland — exactly the same right to obtain supplies in this country, without discrimination or partiality, if payment is made here and the transportation is furnished to carry away the goods purchased.

It is argued by the opponents of the pending legislation that the manufacturer of munitions of war is immoral. If such is the case, it is equally immoral to manufacture munitions to be sold in time of peace which may be used in preparation of war. This is what the present law permits. If such is the case, it is likewise immoral to manufacture any implements designed to kill human beings, in the probability that implements of war will be put to such use.

If it is immoral to sell to a nation at war, it is equally so to sell to a nation at peace today but who may be at war tomorrow.

We may have full sympathy with the sentiment against manufacturing the agencies that kill human beings, yet in reality ruthless conquerors and dictators since the beginning of time have used the force of might to impose their will on those unprepared and unable to defend themselves.

The fact is that, stripped of all technicalities and rhetorical phrases the main issue presented to the American people in this legislation is whether we should forbid to nations who are at peace and preparing for war shipments of all arms and munitions as well as articles that go into such manufacture. If so by the same token, then the embargo should apply to all other articles that make it possible to prosecute a war on the part of the belligerent nations.

If this country desires to be isolationist and to have no commerce with any nation at war then the only logical step is legislation to prohibit to belligerent nations the shipment not only of manufactured implements of war but also all articles used directly or indirectly in the prosecution of war. Then to be consistent we should likewise embargo such shipments to other nations who are today at peace but are known to be preparing for war.

Food is a war essential. To carry the isolationist theory to the ultimate conclusion all goods contributing to the life of the individual citizens of warring nations, as well as all articles essential to the manufacture of arms, should be embargoed. No such proposal is made however by the opponents of the pending legislation.

Under the embargo provision of the present so-called neutrality law, any thing purchased on credit can be carried on American vessels to the belligerent nations except arms. Under this law we can sell metals and materials to make arms but not the arms themselves. We can sell cotton to make gun powder, we can sell copper tubing to make gun shells, but not the shells. The only difference is that if the implements are manufactured on American soil by American workmen their sale is prohibited under the existing law, whereas, if the parts are shipped separately and put together on foreign soil their shipment is allowed.

I have differed with the President on important domestic policies but I wholeheartedly give him my support in the essentials of his present foreign policies. I do not mean that all details of the proposed legislation are perfect. Some amendments may be wisely adopted, but I do say that the President is eminently right in urging the repeal of the law existing and substituting the cash and carry plan with the prohibition of American ships trading with belligerent nations and keeping American citizens out of combat zones.

Faithfully yours,
Harry F. Byrd.

THE
AROUND US

By
O. J. Schuster

FAULT-FINDING CRITICISM of one nation by another is an unfortunate trait in present international relations. It represents the war spirit, arouses bitterness between nations, just as criticizing a neighbor tends to create a family feud. Envy is often the motive prompting the adverse criticism, both international and interfamily. There is about as much intelligence and goodness in any one great people — Russians, French, Italians, Swedes, Germans, Chinese, Hindus, etc.—as in another. If we could only emphasize the good qualities instead of hurling mud and stones at governments and people we dislike the result would be not only world peace but cultural progress for ourselves.

PRESS AND RADIO PROPAGANDA shows how quickly the propagandists shift their personal dislikes and hatred from one nation to another. A few months ago the democracies were wooing Russia, calling Stalin a friend who was to help them rid the world of the terrible Hitler, the liar, the Big Devil who would wreck civilization. Now that Stalin is befriending Hitler, the propagandists are busy in a campaign to make Stalin the Star liar and Big Devil. Before me is a letter from a capable alumnus of the state teachers' college in which for years I was a member of the faculty. The author of this letter spent months in Russia studying its education, industry, and government. Here are a few of the conclusions at which this capable American arrived:

1. Conditions in Russia are not ideal but "great progress has been made over the conditions that prevailed under the tyrannical rule of the Czars."

2. "Everyone in Russia has a chance at education. From five to eight years of age is the kindergarten period; from 8 to 18 elementary and high school age; and if one is capable and desires higher education he receives a monthly stipend from the government of 200 rubles a month (about $40) as long as he does creditable work. If special or creative ability is apparent, a further and larger stipend is available to develop the talent."

3. The Russians "have no Sunday but some churches are still open and are attended by the old people. Every sixth day is rest day, coming regularly on the 6th, 12th, 18th, 24th, and 30th. They are allowed to accumulate property to some extent, are encouraged to save and the government borrows their money at from 2 to 4 per cent. However, there must be no attempt to exploit other people."

4. "At 55 years of age everyone is entitled to an old age pension. If he wishes to continue working at his regular wage, he may do so and he still is entitled to draw his pension and also have the interest on the money he has accumulated. Not so communistic, it seems to me."

5. Much is being done for the health and general welfare of the people by the Soviet in addition to education and old age pensions. Here the author cites clinics of various kinds and treatments, all entirely free, and he adds: "There are many women doctors—in fact 65 per cent of the doctors in Russia are women."

RUSSIA'S PRESENT GOVERNMENT has existed for only the last 22 years. Before November 7, 1917, the Russian people were mere serfs under a despotic government. They were illiterate, without hope of social and economic betterment. Today 180,000,000 are working hopefully, enthusiastically for the achievement of their ideals. Our ideals may be no more attractive to them than theirs are to us but, as this visitor to Russia assures us: "They are immensely proud of what they are accomplishing in education and industry."

THE AFRICAN GOVERNMENT, set up a century and a half ago, was something new in the world, an experiment. It was hated by the European governments, denounced as destructive of human values, of civilization itself. More than any other people, we should be tolerant of such experiments in government as are being made in Russia, Turkey, and other nations.

COLORED WOMAN
FATALLY BURNED

Flora Winston, a highly respected and most estimable colored woman of the Waterfall neighborhood, died of burns at her home last Tuesday evening, received while house cleaning. No one was in the room at the time to give aid. Calling for help, she wrapped bed clothes around her, and smothered the flames, Dr. Payne was called, but she was beyond human aid, and passed away in a few hours.

She will be greatly missed, not only by her family and friends, but by her white neighbors, who she so often graciously and willingly lent a helping hand and who will ever remember her kind and understanding heart. She is survived by her husband, Ruben Winston, and a large family of sons and daughters.

LINDBERG SHOCKS AMERICA

Young minds particularly, and the unsophisticated generally, associate exalted qualities of character with deeds of distinction. Thus for many years, Charles A. Lindberg has enjoyed enormous prestige, although there has been little to form an intimate picture of the character of the man, much in his private sorrow to elicit deep sympathy.

There have, at times been flashes of conduct which were difficult to understand in a man who has been honored beyond most individuals, such as deliberately splashing mud upon crowds assembled to do him honor, but nothing so revealing of personal character has occurred to compare with the two radio addresses recently delivered—the first puzzling to his admirers, and the one last week, which has come as a distinct shock to those who believe that greatness of character and of accomplishment are inseparable.

It is entirely justifiable for any American to urge that we take certain action, or refrain from certain action in the interest of maintaining neutrality. Either side may feel convinced that those who see otherwise are heading toward war, but with respect to the moral issues involved in the present European conflict, no one with a normal sense of right and wrong or at all imbued with Christian ideals could for a moment justify the lying intrigue and bloody aggressions of Adolph Hitler, aggravated as they now are by the unholy alliance with the grimy Stalin.

While other people live under the threat of war, here in Virginia we may save and have money for private use.

This friendly bank will afford you the best means of protecting your savings, and cordially invites you to join our ever enlarging circle of satisfied customers.

The Peoples National Bank of Manassas

Yet Charles A. Lindberg, the idol of American youth, would have us believe that this European conflict is merely a family quarrel among our friends; that this is not a war for democracy; that Canada has no right to fight for her Mother Country and that we should terminate the life-long friendship and unfortified border which has been the wonder of Europe.

To date Col. Lindberg enjoys the unenviable distinction of having dispersed the most insidious and harmful Pro-German propaganda that has been broadcast and published. It is known that he already has been decorated or honored in some way by the Hitler government, and certainly he deserves further recognition from Berlin. It is also generally accepted that he was unusually active at the time of the Munich Agreement last year, bringing to England or France the most discouraging accounts of the invincibility of the German air force.

All these circumstances lend weight to a growing conviction that Charles A. Lindberg is not a disinterested commentator on neutrality, but that he has an axe to grind, and that he is attempting to whet it very sharply, if not astutely, in behalf of ideologies which reflect no credit either upon his patriotism or his moral sense.

God forbid that we should have to enter this fearful struggle, but if we should be attacked, and have to fight for all that we hold dear, such a man, regardless of his prowess in aviation, should not be permitted to wear the uniform of the United States Army, and it might even be expedient, on his apparent record, to intern him in the interest of the national safety. A man of such low moral sense as to be unable to distinguish between the righteousness of the causes of the present European conflict, would not know what he was fighting for if we became involved.

MANASSAS LOSES

McFall again scored on one of those devastating end runs from the eleven yard line. Oler made the extra point through the center of the line. In the third period Skyles intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards for Warren's third touchdown. Saffel ran off-tackle for the extra point. Midway in the third quarter on a beautifully executed reverse Skyles again scored running through a large hole in the right side of Manassas's line. McFall's dropkick for the extra point was blocked. Roseberry halted Warren's last drive for the Manassas goal by intercepting a pass. After that the game belonged to Manassas.

Although McFall was the best back in the game Vetter made the most spectacular run. Catching a kick-off in the second period he ran 65 yards to the Warren 30. Both teams exhibited an exceptional brand of sportsmanship. All the penalties failed to total 50 yards.

'FOOD DETECTIVES'

A trailer rolls out of a basement garage of the Department of Agriculture in Washington and hitched to an automobile becomes a traveling laboratory. It is driven by a bacteriologist of the Food and Drug Administration, whose job it is to "cover" the crabmeat plants that dot the Atlantic seaboard all the way from the Chesapeake Bay region to Florida.

These operations of the traveling laboratory—and others, too—are described in an illustrated article scheduled for publication in the Washington Star of Sunday, October 22. The article gives a detailed account of the work of Uncle Sam's "food detectives" in protecting the Nation against outbreaks of food poisoning.

POPULAR COMEDIAN
DISCOVERS VOCAL
TRICK BEHIND CAMERAS

Originality characterizes the Gene Autry westerns, and that is one of the important reasons why the personable star is the screen's most popular cowboy today.

Gene's latest Republic picture, "Mountain Rhythm," which comes to the screen of the Pitts' Theatre starting Saturday, October 21, deals with the saving of valley ranchers from an unscrupulous land grabber, and a surprise element is introduced when the actor accomplishes this, not with the regulation cowboys, but with a band of hoboes.

The story opens with Gene and Smiley Burnette being called to the Pueblo Springs Valley to save Smiley's aunt and other ranchers from the possibility of Cavanaugh, a resort owner, purchasing public grazing grounds. Gene decides to round up all the cattle and sell them for the necessary cash to buy the land from the government, but Cavanaugh sends out rumors of a gold strike which cause every cowboy in the district to desert his employer. Just then, two hoboes, who have been befriended by Gene, learn of his plight, and round up dozens of their fellows. Under Gene's tutelage they prove to be swell cowpunchers and manhunters, eventually saving the land for the ranchers, and bringing Cavanaugh's gang to justice.

NATION GUARD INTENSIFIES
FIELD TRAINING

Intensified training for the Virginia National Guard was announced by Brigadier-General Samuel Gardner Waller this week.

Under instructions received from the National Guard Bureau of the War Department, he said, for the period from now until January 31, drills will be increased from one to two a week, though not exceeding eight per month, and seven additional days will be set aside for field training "at a time and location as may be determined by the corps area commander in conference with the State authorities."

The field training may be accomplished in periods of one, two or more days each, as the various States may decide, and organizations which "find it desirable to train for a continuous seven-day period are authorized to do so."

The National Guard Bureau said the field training should be accomplished in the vicinity of home stations if possible to save travel time. The intensified training, the instructions said, was ordered so that "the highest degree of efficiency may be attained."

QUIET TALKS ON RELIGION

BY
DR. JAMES T. MARSHALL

SHOULDER MEN

The seventh chapter of Numbers tells the story of the dedication of the first Jewish Tabernacle. Among the offerings presented on that day were six "covered wagons" with twelve oxen to draw them. Moses accepted them and handed them over to the priests and levites for use in the public service. It is interesting to note that the Israelites used covered wagons in their journey across the desert, inasmuch as such vehicles are associated in our minds with the journeys of those heroic persons who traversed our continent and became the founders of our great western states.

The priests who ministered in the tabernacle services were of varying rank. There were the high-ups who wore the best robes and monopolized the easiest tasks, and there were the little fellows who took were more humble and menial. The wagons were distributed among the aristocrats, who could ride in comfort when the tabernacle was taken down and carried from place to place.

But there was one group who got no wagons. "Unto the sons of Kohath he gave none; because the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them was that they should bear upon their shoulders." These were known as "the shoulder men," and they earned their title by trudging along the road carrying parts of the building or some of its furniture on their backs.

So it has ever been in this world. We may fitly divide all men into two classes. There are those who ride in wagons and those who go on foot; those that shirk and those that work; those that lean and those that lift. This is abundantly illustrated in secular and religious affairs. There are all too many who proceed on the theory that the world owes them a living, and dodge their rightful responsibilities.

There is no organization in which there are not selfish men who place personal advantage above the service of others. The Church is no exception. Any one who is familiar with a church roll knows that it contains much dead wood. To many people religion is a luxury. They are not unwilling to occupy a comfortable pew Sunday morning, specially if they can enjoy fine music and eloquent sermons; when you ask them to take part in some real church work they give you a long list of alibis. It is the devoted minority of professing Christians who bear the heat and the burden of the day. The Church is the only institution in the world which stands for the spiritual redemption of society. Its purpose is to bring deliverance to sin's captives, to bind up the broken-hearted and to set at liberty them that are bruised. This is a day when only religion but the common decencies of life are making their last stand against atheism and ruthlessness. Every person who is concerned about the future of political and religious freedom should give his unqualified allegiance to the Church of the Living God which is the pillar and ground of the truth.

The challenge is not to the lovers of ease, but to souls that are heroic and willing to counted as God's shoulder men.

Loud and long the Master calleth, Rich reward He offers free: Who will answer, gladly saying, Here am I; send me, send me

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Probation After Death" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October.

The Golden Text will be "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (James 1:12).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help. I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death." (Hosea 13:14 to second colon).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is deathless. Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death" (p. 487).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE RADIO PROGRAM

ANNUAL FIELD MASS AT AQUIA

Tenth Memorial Service To Be Held October 29.

"For Peace Among Nations," the tenth annual Field Mass will be offered in ancient Brent Cemetery at Aquia, Va., on Sunday morning, October 29, the "Feast of Christ the King" at eleven o'clock, with the Rev. Mr. Arthur J. Taylor, director for the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in Virginia, as celebrant. The Rev. Mr. Thomas E. O'Connell, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, Richmond, who spoke at the first Field Mass at the graves of these Catholic pioneers of the seventeenth century, will deliver the sermon of this tenth anniversary.

In the tranquility of the resting place of these Catholic settlers who came to Virginia with Giles Brent, his sisters, Margaret and Mary in 1647 seeking peace, crowds will gather from Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, and nearby Virginia cities to add their prayers for peace to those of Father Taylor's at the altar of Our Lord, "The Price of Peace," while he proceeds with Unbloody Sacrifice of the Mass.

As in former years, assisting as servers will be two volunteer members of the U. S. Marine Corps from Quantico, Va., and at the consecration of the Mass two Marine Buglers will sound echo taps. During the Mass music will be rendered by the Ladies choir of St. Peter's church, Richmond, under the direction of Mrs. Martin Anderson. Miss Mary Gill, of Richmond will again have charge of decoration the altar. Mrs. P. Jefferson Archer, chairman of the historical committee of the Catholic Woman's club, Richmond, whose interest and effort has contributed largely to the development of Aquia as a shrine of Catholic history, will head a large delegation of ladies attending from that organization. Benedictine Cadets will act as ushers. Members of all denominations are invited to attend.

Near the spot where this Mass for Peace will be celebrated once stood historic "Peace" the name of The Home Margaret Brent, pioneer Catholic woman and Suffragist. It was built for Margaret and her sister, Mary by their brother Giles Brent, Chief Ranger of Northern Neck. Here she conducted a school for Indian children. The King of the Piscataways had given into her care his little daughter Mary to be raised as her own child, and in years to come this little Indian Princess was to marry Giles and to become the mother of the Brents in Virginia. Of her, Eudora Ramsey Richardson writes: "Margaret Brent, as the first feminist in America, as the first woman of large business interest, as the only woman who served as executrix for a Colonial Governor, as the only administratrix of a Lord Proprietor's affairs and as the first lady of a manor in the colonies, was the most outstanding woman of the Colonial era." Here in the wilderness Margaret Brent labored with others to maintain this outpost of white civilization. After many hardships she died and is undoubtedly buried beside the other members of the family in Brent cemetery at Aquia.

Following Giles Brent as a leader of Aquia was his nephew, George Brent, who became King's Attorney General and a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses. Aquia prospered as a city and for a long time was an important seaport of Tidewater Virginia to whose wharf came ships from England and the Continent. Now, however its existence is only marked by some elegant tombs of the Brents and other citizens. A recent excavation within sight of the burying ground revealing a part of the foundation of old "Woodstock" the home of George Brent and the old well. (Verified in Virginia Magazine of History.)

For many years these graves at Aquia were lost in the thicket and underbrush until a hunter, by chance, discovered them. Then the late Archbishop Dennis J. O'Connell purchased the property for the Diocese of Richmond and appointed the late Rev. Mr. Walter J. Nott to develop it as a shrine of Catholic history. The great bronze Crucifix was raised on the highway nearby to call attention to the place of the first English Catholic settlement in Virginia with the cooperation of Mr. and Mrs. P. Jefferson Archer and the Historical Committee of the Catholic Woman's Club of Richmond. Its cost of over $10,000 was paid by voluntary subscriptions from all over the United States. Then Father Nott sought the aid of some descendants of the Brent family who enclosed the cemetery with a brick wall of Colonial design. Following Father Nott's death in 1932, priests of the Diocese under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Edward L. Stearns, rmon.

Vetter scored three times on long runs, Roseberry and Grady once each. Carl Oleyar did a fine job of blocking and the entire line did a good job.

The game was free of charge and heavy rooster. Don't forget the next as a result the team had a good home with Leesburg at Swavely Field.

erected the altar of Colonial design to his memory as a fitting place for the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass to be offered.

Research concerning Aquia continues and the actual existence once of a Catholic chapel there is proven from information recently received by Mrs. P. Jefferson Archer which was found in Maryland Archives and reads as follows:

"Md. Cal. of Wills, Vol. 2, p. 198 (abstract Will of Jane Green relict of Joshua Green of Stafford Co., Va., Dated 25th, November 1699. Names Sister-Mary Bent Sister - Martha Brent, Brother - Henry Brent.

Children of George and Mary Green Brent.

Catholicity had its beginning at Aquia, however, nearly a century before the coming of the Brents. In 1571 some Spanish Jesuit Missionaries landed at Aquia and built a log cabin chapel bringing Christianity to the Indians. They were: Luis de Quirosand Juan Baptista, Jesuit Priests; Gabriel Gomaz and Sancho Zeballos. Later they were brutally murdered by the Indians because of their Christian teachings. Into Virginia's soil the blood of the Spanish Martyrs seeped many many years before Captain John Smith and his sturdy followers landed at Jamestown. At Brent cemetery, again under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Edward L. Stephens, now Dean of the Virginia Missionary Fathers, the Catholic Students Mission Crusade of Virginia erected a granite shaft to their memory which bears a bronze plate carrying their names and a legend of their courage and glorious death for Christ.

Brent cemetery is located slightly east of the bronze crucifix on Route 1, between Fredericksburg and Washington. There will be ample free parking space for visitors at the cemetery grounds. A public address system will be used for the mass

JACK BENNY STARS IN GAY NEW FILM

America's undisputed king of comedy on the screen and on the air lanes, none other than Jack Benny, has the best of his screen career in the gay new comedy, "Man About Town," a big production abounding in hilarious gags, amorous nonsense, Petty Girls, new hit songs, sensational dancing by "Rochester" and the Merriell Abbott Dancers, and everything needed for ninety minutes of rib-rocking fun. Produced by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., the "Ziegfeld of Hollywood," directed by Mark Sandrich, it will be presented locally on Monday and Tuesday, October 23 and 24 at the Pitts' Theatre.

Co-starred with Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold, Jack plays the role of an American theatrical impresario who is planning to present a show in London. Miss Lamour plays the singing star of his troupe. Jack's in love with her, but she doesn't exactly reciprocate the feeling. Rotund Edward Arnold is cast as a far too busy business man whose wife encourages Jack to make her husband jealous. Jack, in turn, shows an interest in her in order to arouse jealousy in Dorothy's heart.

With a smoothly written story by Morrie Ryskind, author of such screen successes as "My Man Godfrey" and "Stage Door," the picture leaps from one hilarious situation to another. Jack constantly finding himself in situations adroitly designed to evoke every kind of laughter from a snicker to the heartiest of belly-laughs. Involved in these proceedings in important supporting roles are Binnie Barnes, as Edward Arnold's wife, Phil Harris, as an orchestra leader, Betty Grable as a chorus girl, "Rochester" as Jack's valet, E. E. Clive as a butler, and Matty Malneck and His Orchestra. And by the way, "Rochester," who makes his screen debut with his radio boss in this picture, comes through with two eccentric dance routines which are being rated as nothing sort of sensational.

Also very much present are twenty lissome Petty Girls, selected by artist George Petty to show moviegoers what his magazine Petty Girl should look like in the flesh. No Sultan of Turkey ever looked on a jaywalker beauty brigade than that which appears with Jack in the big harem sequence. Incidentally, in this sequence the Merriell Abbott Dancers do what are said to be the most amazing acrobatic routines ever seen on the screen.

CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN

Effectiveness of the Christmas Seals as a weapon in the war against tuberculosis today is being threatened by a multiplicity of seals with which the public is being bombarded, J. Vaughan Gary, president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, warned yesterday.

"Unaware of the damage they do, said Mr. Gary, "organizations and groups of various kinds, imitate and copy the Christmas Seals and send them out at Christmas and other times. Each new seal so distributed weakens the others and hastens the day when each will return but little more than the cost of production.

"No matter how meritorious may be the cause sponsored by those organizations which have picked up the seal idea," Mr. Gary emphasized, "the fact remains that the Christmas Seal, which originated 32 years ago, today is recognized as a power for the control of tuberculosis. Incidentally it is protected by copy right owned by the National Tuberculosis Association."

Backed by the National Tuberculosis Association, Mr. Gary said that his organization and all of its affiliated units throughout the State would use every proper means of preserving the integrity of the Christmas Seal, which has become the symbol of the constant campaign to control and cure tuberculosis.
