

LEGION URGES CONSCRIPTION

Gov. Price Criticized At Convention By Virginia Veterans

Picturing the nation as in a position of great peril, Representative Colgate W. Darden, Jr., told Virginia Legionnaires that "no surer method of making available the manpower for our defense can be found than in the selective service legislation now pending before Congress".

His address delivered at the opening general meeting of the annual Virginia Legion convention was quickly followed by the passage of a resolution endorsing compulsory military training and service as the best means of avoiding war.

Governor James H. Price came in for some chiding in the annual report of Department Commander E. Ralph James, of Hampton, for vetoing the so-called Legion-supervised Heller bill.

This bill would have prohibited the use of public buildings to persons advocating the overthrow of government by force or unlawful means. It directed custodians of such property to cooperate in carrying out provisions of the bill, and was disapproved largely on the ground that it would give these custodians unusual powers.

"In the statement which he (Governor Price) gave the press along with his veto message, he said such legislation was not needed in Virginia," James said. "His reason I cannot understand, for while we wanted only to prohibit the use of governmental-owned buildings for the purpose of advocating the overthrow of government by force and violence, which legislation he said was not needed, he within 60 days thereafter, by executive order, closed National Guard armories to all citizens of Virginia."

Among those who welcomed the Legionnaires were Rear Adm. Joseph K. Taussig, U. S. N. commandant of the Fifth Naval district, Brig. Gen. Frederick H. Smith, commanding officer of Fort Monroe; City Manager Charles B. Borland, and Gerould M. Rumble, spokesman for the Norfolk Association of Commerce.

After discounting the efforts of the United States over the past two decades to promote world peace, Representative Darden discussed world events starting with the invasion of China up through the collapse of France.

"We must," he declared, "have done with appeasement and retreat. Peace and security for our people lie in strength—overwhelming strength—not in weakness and petition for consideration at the hands of the most ruthless militarists of our age."

"Our hope of survival is in armed power based upon an industrial machine capable of supplying our needs in any emergency, no surer method of making available the manpower needed for our defense can be found than in the selective service legislation now pending before Congress."

CONSCRIPTION BILL PASSES SENATE

Late Wednesday evening the United States Senate passed the Conscription Bill by a vote of 58 to 31.

The age limits were fixed at 21 to 30 inclusive, and the period of peace-time military training one year.

The measure now goes to the house and despite substantial opposition will probably be passed within two weeks.

SEN. BYRD SAYS NATION MENACED

Virginia Solon Irked By Apparent Slowness Of Preparations

Declaring he was convinced that defense preparations were lagging to such an extent that "our national security is seriously menaced", Senator Byrd proposed the creation of a special Senate committee today to oversee the execution of the preparedness program.

Byrd, who had called previously for an explanation of delays in placing warplane orders, indicated he was not satisfied by a Defense Commission report to President Roosevelt that contracts were outstanding for 6,747 Army and Navy planes.

Robert W. Horton, information director for the commission, delivered the report of the White House earlier yesterday. He told reporters afterward that manufacturers had signed contracts for the planes and that they were "in the process of production". The total, Horton said, included some planes ordered with last year's funds, but not yet delivered, as well as those contracted for with funds which became available July 1.

Senator Byrd reiterated his contention that only 343 combat planes had been ordered in the last 100 days and that none of these could be delivered until 1941—some not until 1942. He attached letters from Secretaries Knox and Stimson which he said supported his assertions.

Saying that a statement given out at the White House had contained the language that orders were "in the works", the senator added in a statement of his own:

"What 'in the works' means I do not know. I do know, however, that the National Defense Advisory Committee clears contracts, which is not equivalent actually to making a firm contract."

"What the people of America today are concerned about is definite and constructive steps toward the early and quick preparation of our military defenses. I am convinced that these preparations of our military defenses. I am convinced that these preparations are lagging to the extent that our national security is seriously menaced. They want air-planes not 'on order' for delivery a year or so hence, but for delivery with promptness."

"It is not my purpose or intention to criticize any agency of the Government, but I do feel impelled to voice my protest against unreasonable delay in the acquisition of strategic military equipment, and to promise my utmost efforts to develop the cause for such delay so that remedial action can be taken."

"As fighting airplanes constitute one of the most important factors in our national defense, my attention was primarily directed to the weakness of our airplane defense when I ascertained that we have today less than 2,000 fighting airplanes, as large proportion of which is more than two years old, some being eight and nine years. It does not take an expert to say that maximum efficiency in front-line fighting cannot be expected to airplanes several years old."

THOUSANDS WILL VIEW CEREMONY

All In Readiness For Jackson Memorial Unveiling

With only the weather remaining an uncertain factor, everything is in complete readiness for the unveiling of the "Stonewall" Jackson monument on Saturday-afternoon. The State Highway Department is prepared, if necessary, to lay calcium chloride to take care of dust.

The State Conservation Commission has extended a thousand invitations to special guests, and a representative gathering of Virginians is expected.

Most prominent on the program are addresses by Governor Price and the eminent Southern historiologist, Dr. Douglas Freeman, of Richmond. Everyone will recall with pleasure the splendid way in which Dr. Freeman functioned at the 75th anniversary of the First Battle of Manassas held here in 1936.

The monument will be unveiled by Miss Julia Preston, a great granddaughter of the great Southern leader. The invocation will be by Right Reverend Henry St. George Tucker, Bishop of the Diocese of Virginia and presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

Music will be furnished by the Quantic Band. Former State Senator John W. Rust will preside. Mr. Rust was for years a trustee of the Henry Farm, and active in aiding to secure funds for the Jackson monument.

The Manassas Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy have charge of the decoration of the monument for the unveiling. The sculptor, Joseph F. Polla of New York, has performed a great work and the monument stands as a superb tribute to the valor and strength of this great Virginian.

MATTRESS MAKING PROGRAM STARTS NEXT WEEK

The mattress making program for Prince William County will be inaugurated September 4, under the direction of the county farm and home agent and the farm and home management supervisors of farm security.

Equipment for mattresses is being installed in the Brentsville Court House and work will begin on Wednesday, September 4.

Home Demonstration leaders, who are serving as volunteer leaders, received instructions last week from Miss Ruth Jamison, state house furnishings specialist from V. P. I., in mattress construction.

Cotton and ticking for this project is being furnished by the federal surplus commodities corp.

Under the plan any farm family with a gross cash income during 1939 of not more than $400.00 is eligible to get a mattress by furnishing four strong workers one day to make the mattress and by paying the nominal charge of fifty cents to cover the cost of needles, thread, etc. The finished mattress contains 50 lbs. cotton and 10 yards of ticking and is worth a much higher price.

This program has a two fold purpose to assist low income farm families in providing better living conditions, and at the same time help consume the surplus cotton.

Any farm family living in Prince William County interested in making a mattress should file application with any one of the following: Frank D. Cox, county agent; Miss Alice Webb, home dem. agent; Miss Leona Kline or Mr. W. D. Goodall, farm security; or Mrs. Marion Lewis, welfare office.

RAILROAD DINING CAR PATRONS CONSUME, EACH YEAR, ABOUT 24 MILLION EGGS, 9 MILLION POUNDS OF POTATOES, 2 MILLION POUNDS OF BUTTER, 1 1/2 MILLION ORANGES, 15 THOUSAND BARRELS OF APPLES, 3 1/2 MILLION QUARTS OF MILK AND CREAM, A MILLION LOAVES OF BREAD AND ABOUT 30 MILLION ROLLS.

TAXES TAKE ALMOST NINE CENTS OUT OF EVERY DOLLAR THE RAILROADS TAKE IN.

RAILROADS BUY AND USE MORE THAN 70,000 DIFFERENT COMMODITIES, RANGING FROM TOOTH PICKS TO BRIDGE TIMBERS, FROM STRAWBERRIES TO STEEL PAIS, FROM PINS TO LOCOMOTIVES.

VPS PLANS HUGE EXPENDITURES

Involves Construction of Supplementary Lines.

More than $6,000,000 will be expended by the Virginia Public Service Company and the Virginia Electric and Power Company on generating stations and transmission lines serving the strategic Hampton Roads area, with construction to begin immediately, it was announced recently by the State Corporation Commission, Richmond, Va.

M. J. O'Connell, president of the Virginia Public Service Company, stated today that the $6,000,000 program will involve the construction of a transmission line from Richmond to Newport News to supplement and add to the company's electric facilities at Hampton. The major expenditure, he stated, will be made by Virginia Electric and Power Company which will not only share in the construction of the Richmond-Newport News line but will erect new generating units at Norfolk, costing millions of dollars.

These construction projects, according to O'Connell, are in line with the National Defense program and are calculated to provide unlimited sources of power for the very important Hampton Roads area. He pointed out that in the case of his company, serving the Peninsula, where is located the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, Langley Field, N. A. C. A., and Fortress Monroe, electric power demands have been considerably increased through the Nation's preparedness activities.

"Although we recently installed additional boiler capacity at our Hampton generating station and have otherwise kept pace with the sudden, increased demands, we feel that more power is necessary. When the high-power transmission line is completed within the next few months, the Hampton Roads area will have practically unlimited power. Even if war should bring about a destruction of our Hampton generating station, power could be transmitted from almost any State in the Southeast."

The line will directly connect with the generating and transmission system of the Virginia Electric and Power Company. Since this company's transmission lines are tied-in with neighboring systems, power could be secured from the Appalachian Electric and Power Company, operating in Virginia and West Virginia, the Carolina Power and Light Company and the Duke Power Company, operating in North Carolina. This would be in addition to the power generated at the Virginia Public Service Company's steam and hydro generating stations located in Virginia and West Virginia.

The new line will begin at the Manchester sub-station in Richmond, follow East to the James River at Messer Road, then on to Newport News. It will be a 110,000 volt line and provide a potential capacity of 35,000 KW to the Hampton Roads area. Preliminary engineering work is already under way, O'Connell said.

The Virginia Public Service Company, in addition to areas in northern, central, western and southern Virginia, supplies electric, gas and traction services to Newport News, Hampton and Phoebus—one of the most strategic areas on the Atlantic Coast. Fortress Monroe at Old Point Comfort and Langley Field, on the outskirt of Hampton, guard the entrance to the Chesapeake Bay and the defense against any naval power seeking to attack Washington, Baltimore or Annapolis.

Located in this section is the nation's largest private shipyard where some of the biggest battleships of Uncle Sam's Navy have been built. Most of the Navy's airplane carriers were built there. The largest passenger ship ever constructed on this side of the Atlantic, the $17,500,000 "America" was completed there this year. On August 1, 1940, for the U. S. Navy alone, the shipyard had signed contracts for construction involving $250,065,000; contemplated were contracts for four airplane carriers and two cruisers for $210,470,000 or a grand total of $460,535,000—the largest contract total in the shipyard's history. It is said that private and Naval construction at this shipyard is greater today than it was in the last World War.

Adjacent to Langley Field are the N. A. C. A. laboratories—the only operation of its kind in the country. Here experiments are constantly going on—seeking ever new, ever improved means of making the airplanes better and still better. In mammoth wind tunnels, airplanes of actual size are subjected to every conceivable weather condition, every stress and strain minutely observed and accurately recorded.

In addition to the construction of the new transmission line, Mr. O'Connell said, his company is now bringing to completion a new $2,000,000 addition to its generating station at Alexandria. This will provide additional power to the rapidly developing area in Northern Virginia and supplement the company's other generating stations located in Virginia and West Virginia and thus further improve service to its more than 100,000 customers.

ANN SOTHERN AT PITT'S IN LATEST 'MAISIE' LAUGHS

A new romantic team that squabbles more than it romances, makes its first appearance in "Gold Rush Maisie", which comes Monday and Tuesday, September 2 and 3 to the Pitt's Theatre, with Ann Sothern and Lee Bowman as its battling duo.

Third in the popular series dealing with the adventures of the stranded showgirl, "Gold Rush Maisie" presents Miss Sothern in her familiar characterization, this time adrift in the midst of the Arizona desert when her old jalopy breaks down while she is en route to a cafe job. Bowman appears as Bill Anders, a handsome hermit and ranch owner who is happier the fewer people he sees. After he has given Maisie shelter for the night, she returns, much to his disgust, with a whole family of itinerant crop followers who are on the trail of a gold strike.

Slim Summerville adds to the comedy as Fred Gubbins, Bill's misanthropic hired man. Virginia Weidler is the fourth of the quartet of principals, as Jubilee Davis, daughter of the crop-following family and a devoted admirer of Maisie. Also featured are John Hamilton as Bert, the father, Mary Nash as Sarah, the mother, Scotty Beckett as Harold, Jubilee's brother, and Baby Quintanilla of "Forty Little Mothers" fame as the baby.

The attempts of the Davises and Maisie to find gold are crowned with temporary success, but assayers inform all the prospectors that their strike is virtually worthless as the ore is of too poor a grade to warrant mining. Then Maisie is forced to solve their problems all over again.

IRENE DUNNE AND GARY GRANT CO-STARRED

Ace talent and a streamlined story of modern marital entanglements mark the fast-paced, delightful comedy entertainment, "My Favorite Wife", which makes its local bow at the Pitt's Theatre, Thursday and Friday, September 5 and 6.

Re-united for the first time since their appearance in the memorable comedy hit, "The Awful Truth", Irene Dunne and Gary Grant are co-starred in "My Favorite Wife". The reunion also includes Leo McCarey, producer-director of "The Awful Truth", who guided the current production for RKO Radio.

Garson Kann, responsible for "Bachelor Mother", "The Great Man Votes" and "A Man to Remember", directed with Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick heading a notable supporting cast.

"My Favorite Wife", penned by Bella and Samuel Spewack, authors of "Boy Meets Girl" and "Clear All Wires", is described as a breezy, laugh-laden sophisticated comedy.

Miss Dunne, cast as Grant's wife, disappears when a scientific expedition for which she is the photographer is shipwrecked in the South Seas.

After seven years Grant has her declared legally dead and marries Gail Patrick.

Unfortunately, Irene is very much alive, and is rescued from the desert island with Scott, a handsome scientist with whom she has been marooned alone all this time. Se arrives home on the very night her husband embarks on his second honeymoon.

Chartering a plane, she flies to Yosemite to overtake the newlyweds. After she flabbergasts Grant with her appearance, "My Favorite Wife" attains dizzying heights of hilarity.

Irene tries to outwit Gail for the love of her husband. Grant grows frantic in his efforts to tell his bride the startling truth of Irene's return.

Gail can't understand her groom's sudden coolness. And when Grant learns of Irene's island mate, Scott, who now wants to marry Irene, the picture unrolls a series of spicy situations and scintillating moments unique to the screen which are climaxed by a whirlwind laugh-finish!

ALIEN REGISTRATION

Hon. Howard W. Smith, Representative of the Eighth District of Virginia in the Congress of the United States, encountered great opposition to his measure requiring the registration and finger-printing of all aliens in the country. Finally, however, the bill has become law and the required registration and finger-printing is beginning this week at the various post offices throughout the nation.

The heavy fight which was made against the law is itself an evidence of the need of such regulation, and now every alien should go to the most convenient Post Office and comply with the requirement. The information which he is obliged to give is confidential with the government, and if he is law abiding and has no intentions of abusing the hospitality of the country which is giving him refuge, there is absolutely nothing for him to fear.

If, however, he should choose to ignore the law, or think that the fact that he has begun the process of becoming an American citizen excuses him from compliance, he is likely to run into a great deal of trouble. Uncle Sam is all-suffering and super-patient in the matter of restraining un-American activities, but some situation might suddenly occur which would cause him to come to an end of his tolerance, and then it would be very unwise indeed for any un-registered foreigner, however good his intentions, to be running around without the knowledge of the Federal Government.

Fortunately we live in the area of United States having the lowest percentage of alien population; but we, and all other native citizens, have occasion to be very grateful to Howard W. Smith for his stern insistence that our country now have a protection which is mere routine elsewhere in the world.

FALLACY OF STATE AID

So many persons have a belief that state aid is a method by which the recipients get something for nothing, that the report of the Citizens' Public Expenditure Survey of New York will come somewhat as a shock.

This organization reports that 44 of the 62 counties in New York paid to the state in 1938, the year covered by the survey, more than they received in the form of state aid. Ten of the 44 counties made excess payments of a million or more. Analysis of state aid in other states would no doubt reveal a similar situation.

"County contributions to the state are made from state-collected taxes on inheritance, personal income, motor fuel, automobile licenses, alcoholic beverages, corporation, stock transfers and mortgages," says Mr. Franklin, chairman of the survey committee. "Part of these revenues are then redistributed proportionally among the counties as locally-shared taxes."

"State aid, on the other hand, is apportioned among counties on a theoretical basis of need, providing specific requirements established by the state are met by the county. Payments in state aid are made for highways, education, social welfare and health, and emergency relief."

No recent statement more factually proves the fallacy of state aid. Underneath that policy lies a form of the pernicious practice of hidden taxes. It covers the pill with a sugar coating of a return to the counties of varying sums which in 44 cases out of 62 in New York state are shown by this report to be less than is taken. The coating is too thin to make the pill palatable to those who have a true understanding of what is involved.

Dear Sirs:

I wish to thank you for the welcome which was given us in last week's edition of your paper.

The State Board of Education and the National Youth Administration are cooperating in training American boys for American jobs. It is likewise considered a fundamental part of training that they be taught their duties as citizens. Your acceptance of our young men and the administrative staff of the Manassas State Vocational School will help to impress upon them that they have a part to play in community life.

I speak for the school when I say we are glad to have the opportunity of working and living in Manassas. We shall execute every effort to develop and sustain an institution of which the community can be very proud.

Very truly yours,
A. E. Jakeman,
Director.

We wish to thank our various correspondents for sending their notes early this week.

NEW EXPENDITURES TO BE MADE BY PHONE COMPANY

Expenditures amounting to a little over $520,000 for the construction of telephone plant and installation of equipment in the state of Virginia were authorized by directors of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia at their regular meeting today, according to a statement by Robert C. McCann, vice president and general manager.

About $300,000 of the amount authorized will be spent for an addition to the Norfolk central office building, Mr. McCann announced. Construction of a fourth floor, the expansion of the present third floor, the installation of elevator service, and other building improvements are provided for in the approved plans, it was stated. The new space will be used to house the additional dial switching equipment, long distance switchboards, and associated central office apparatus needed to care for the rapid growth in the telephone system which is now taking place in Norfolk and the further growth expected in the near future.

About $98,000 will be spent for additional cable facilities in the west section of Richmond to care for steady growth in telephone service.

The remaining portion of the amount authorized will be spent in various sections of Virginia for the rearrangement and improvement of telephone facilities.

Mr. McCann said that to date about $6,500,000 have been authorized

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my darling son, Harvey L. Cornwell. Deep down in my heart lies a picture Of a dear one laid to rest In memory frame I will treasure it Because to me she was one of the best.

The depth of my sorrow no one can tell

For the loss of the one I love so well. While he sleeps his peaceful sleep His darling memory I shall always keep.

Deep in my heart dear Harvey Is a place kept just for you Not always shall the parting be For in God's hills so true When blinding tears shall cease to flow

I too may claim eternity And find my way to you. Devoted mother.

In memory of Janie C. Abel, who left us two years ago, August 21, 1938.

The fairest lilies are first to fall The sweetest first to fade

One of the dearest best of all At peaceful rest is laid Deep down in my heart lies a picture

Of a dear one laid to rest In memorioes frame I will put it Because to me she was one of the best. One who loved her as a sister.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Notice to the public hereby given that Lena B. Watson, of Dumfries, Virginia, trading as the "Mom and Pop Watson", intends to apply to the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board at its offices in the Central National Bank Building, Richmond, Virginia for transfer of retail license to sell beer for consumption on and off the premises, owned by Wright, of Dumfries, Virginia, located one mile and a half north of Dumfries, on east side of Jefferson Davis Highway, Prince William County, Virginia.

Mom and Pop Watson,
By T. L. WATSON,

WARDEN BECOMES DETECTIVE:

PROTECTS TURKEYS
Can a game warden become too good a detective? Perhaps that is what happened to one of the Game Commission's law enforcement officers, but the wild turkeys of Scott and Wise Counties are certainly enjoying added protection from poachers as a result of and of his sleuthing.

Some time ago a number of captivity-reared wild turkeys were released by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries on the High Knob Sanctuary, and, before the newly released birds became established in their new home, two were caught by three young men who were sure that their actions of the evening were unknown and that they had an airtight alibi. However, through the watchfulness of the local deputy game manager, employed by the U. S. Forest Service to patrol the sanctuary, and through some very clever detective work by game warden O'Neill, of Wise County, the surprised culprits were arrested, whereupon they confessed their guilt and were duly convicted and fined.

An incident which occurred a little later shows what effect such an arrest can have on other residents of the locality. A few of the released turkeys strayed off the sanctuary and were seen ranging occasionally with a flock of tame turkeys in nearby Scott County. Game warden Alley then went to the owner of the turkeys and made arrangements to have the farmer help him catch up the wild birds so that they could be taken back to the sanctuary where protection could be given them. On returning the next day, however, officer Alley found that the farmer had remembered the fate that had befallen the three "turkey catchers" just across the line in Wise County. Remembering the business-like way in which the offenders were tracked down, and fearing that he might in some way become involved in a similar situation, the farmer flatly refused to help in any way with the catching of the wild turkeys. It seems that no amount of persuasion could convince him that he should try to catch those turkeys, even though the warden was present to supervise the proceedings.

Most of the residents of Scott and Wise Counties have always been sympathetic toward the Game Commission's wildlife restoration program. Latest reports have it, however, that even those individuals who would not cooperate wholeheartedly in the program now at least have a whole-some respect for the efficiency of the men who enforce the game laws.

AVIATION AS A CAREER

The Flying Cadets of the Army Air Corps constitute a body of young men who are noted for their splendid character and excellent discipline.

The courses of instruction are very thorough and fully cover all the fundamental knowledge needed by military pilots. The course at present requires nine months, including three months elementary and three months basic training at civil flying schools under Army supervision. Three months advanced training is then had at an Army Air Corps Training Center. The instruction, in addition to the flying training, includes courses in navigation, meteorology, radio and other subjects allied with military aviation.

Flying Cadets upon graduation from the Air Corps Training Center are appointed second lieutenants in the Air Corps Reserve, receive their "wings" and the rating of pilot. They are then placed on extended active duty in a tactical squadron equipped with modern aircraft with the Regular Army Air Corps for a period of one year which may be extended from year to year. While on active duty they receive the same pay and allowances as an officer of similar grade in the Regular Army.

With the inevitable expansion of aviation, many positions will be available for graduates of the Air Corps Training Center in the various classes of civilian flying and with commercial companies. Graduate Flying cadets are also eligible to compete for commissions in the Regular Army Air Corps.

Unmarried citizens of the United States, not less than 20 nor more than 27 years of age, with two years college or equivalent education, of excellent character and sound physique, may make application to become flying cadets. Address inquiries to the Commanding General, Third Corps Area, Baltimore, Md.

NEW YORK EXPERT IN EYE-SIGHT COMING TO MANASSAS

M. Milton Talkin, M. D. whose work in the field of vision is proving such a blessing to persons with impaired sight.

To do one thing and do it well is Dr. Talkin's paramount object and forms the basis of his success in optics. For, he realized that no man can engage in a wide field of technical activity and attain expertness in every phase of it. Hence he determined to limit his field to practice in order that he might attain greater perfection therein. Optics is his chosen field and in that field he has built a reputation that extends into several states. In so far as the public is concerned optically, it is interested in two questions: Why is my vision defective? And what may I do to regain, in so far as this is possible, my diminished vision. Dr.

Talkin had the answer to these questions based upon scientific principles and backed by wide experience.

Although vision is one of our most treasured possessions, we treat it with little concern until signs of losing it appear. Then we become alarmed. The poignant question passes through the mind, "Is there danger of possible blindness?" There is only one prudent course. Check up on your vision from time to time. Don't gamble! Be certain.

Dr. M. Milton Talkin will be in Manassas on Monday, September 2nd, at Prince William Hotel, and he may be consulted between nine and five.

We wish to thank our various correspondents for sending their notes early this week.
