DEFENSE SCHOOL HALF COMPLETED

Coordinator Tiffany Expresses Appreciation of Fine Attendance

The Civilian Defense Training School, in session at Manassas during the month of May, has now completed half of the scheduled course of study, with attendance holding right up to original enrollment. Coordinator Tiffany has expressed himself as highly gratified over the fine interest manifested by the classes and by the thoroughness of the instruction given.

Last Friday evening the session was held in the basement of G. Grace Methodist Church, the High School Gymnasium not being available and the class being too large for other meeting places. This session was devoted to continuation of the splendid demonstrations and instruction on First Aid which is being given by our fellow-Townsmen, Mr. Jack Stauff. Artificial respiration received the major attention and the class was given an opportunity to perform the vital emergency operation upon one another and to test skill in bandaging.

On Monday evening the session was devoted to gas masks and gas defense. The lecture was given by Mr. William F. Barbour, Acting Assistant Chief of the Alexandria Fire Department. Mr. Barbour is an expert on this subject and the facts which he so interestingly presented were of vital importance to civilian defense work. Samples of dangerous chemical agents used in war were uncorked and the whole class, with suitable precautions, was taught to recognize these poison gases by smell. The operation of various forms of gas masks was also demonstrated.

On Wednesday evening, May 13, the lecture was given by Capt. J. E. McDermott, of the State Police on the subject of War Traffic and Police Work. He exhibited types of black-out lights, which he believed would shortly become official and his discussion on the personal requirements of successful police officers and effective methods of making arrests properly, and of overcoming resistance, came from his own long and experience as well as from Defense regulations.

On Friday night of this week Capt. McDermott will continue his valuable instruction which, he says, will deal more specifically with War Traffic.

CAMP LEE BUYS BONDS

More than 9,000 soldiers rallied to Camp Lee's War Bond drive to subscribe for $267,000 worth during the first two weeks of the bond campaign. The 7th and 11th Regiments of the Quartermaster Replacement Training Center were the first to report 100% of their personnel signed. Capt. Joseph Weisman of the 11th Regiment, who purchased a $1,000 bond, received a laboriously printed letter from his young nephew saying he, too, was doing his bit to "slap the dirty Japs" by spending $2 a week for war bonds.

P. T. A. MEETINGS

Mr. R. Worth Peters, principal of Manassas Schools, will speak before the local Parent-Teacher Association at its final meeting of the school year on Thursday evening, May 21st at 7:45 P. M. in the high school auditorium. In his talk he will discuss the outline of courses of study and requirements for graduation, student activity in and out of school, and the proper use of recreation.

School Superintendent R. C. Haydon will round out this discussion by giving some high lights of the county educational set up.

This will be a highly important and most instructive session and all friends and members of the P. T. A. are cordially invited to attend.

The executive board members are requested to meet in the Benett Building on Tuesday afternoon, May 19th at 2:30 P. M.

GEORGE W. CLEM

George Washington Clem, son of the late John H. and Amanda McInturf Clem, was born February 22, 1889 and died in Alexandria Hospital after a short illness on April 30, 1942.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Blough of Manassas together with the Rev. Miller of Maures-town, Virginia in the little church-back home where the folks and friends of his early life gathered to offer their last respects. His remains were then laid to rest in the family cemetery amid the hills that his childish feet had climbed, having the following friends as his pallbearers: A. S. Robertson, Levi Nalls, J. T. L. Rollins, Rosier Swartz, Edward Clem and C. M. Dodson.

He leaves a widow who was Miss Gladys Lewin of Front Royal, Virginia and one son, besides a number of nephews and nieces to mourn his passing. He was the last survivor of the large family of which he was a member.

George was born in Shenandoah County near Seven Fountains in what is known as Powells Fort Valley, Virginia. He spent most of his life there but came to Prince William County in 1922 where he lived until his death. And thus we sadly note the passing from our midst of one more friend and neighbor who will live on in the memory of those who loved and knew him.

The uniforms are to be made at the State Penitentiary and the sooner all the measurements of all the 3,000 members of the VPF are sent in by the Company commanders, the sooner the members may drill in comfort.

Mrs. E. G. Parrish Completes Plans For May 23

New names on America's roll of honored dead give new meaning to the memorial poppy this year, Mrs. E. G. Parrish, Poppy Day Chairman of the local American Legion Auxiliary Unit, pointed out as she worked on final arrangements for the distribution of the little red flowers Saturday, May 23.

"Wearing a poppy is the individual way of honoring the men who have sacrificed their lives in the nation's service," said Mrs. Parrish. "Ever since the first World War the poppy has been worn in tribute to the men who gave their lives in that conflict. Now new names are being inscribed among America's heroic dead. The poppy is for them, too. It is a symbol of our sorrow and pride. It is a pledge that we will always remember them and serve on in the cause for which they died."

"The poppy springs from the blood and tears that are the price of victory—the price of freedom in this world of conquest and oppression. Again and again Americans have had to pay this price to win and maintain their existence as a free nation. When we wear the poppy this year we will be showing that we are not shrinking from paying that great price once more in order that we may pass on to Americans to come the heritage of a free America."

"As we honor those who give their lives, we should think, too, of those who sacrifice health and strength, and of the families left in need because a father or son has served his country. They are still within the reach of our help. Let us be generous in our contributions for the poppies. Every penny of the money given goes to support the work The American Legion and the Auxiliary are doing for the disabled and dependent families of the first World War and the present conflict."

The custom of wearing poppies in tribute to the dead sprang up spontaneously in the United States, England and the British Dominions at the close of the last war. The custom was inspired by the poem, "Flanders' Fields," which contains the lines:

"In Flanders' Fields the poppies blow, Between the crosses, row on row..."

Poppies were first worn in America in New York City on November 10, 1818, the day before the Armistice. They were adopted as the official memorial flower of The American Legion in 1920, and one of the first acts of the American Legion Auxiliary when it was organized in 1921 was to name the poppy as its memorial flower.

Poppy Day is observed in the United States on the Saturday before Memorial Day, when more than 13,000,000 of the little red flowers are worn by patriotic citizens. The poppies are made of crepe paper by disabled war veterans working in government hospitals and in poppy workrooms maintained by the Auxiliary. More than $1,000,000 is contributed annually to the welfare of the war's living victims by the wearers of the poppy.

This group of men who will supply themselves with rifle, ammunition, and some sort of uniform overall will not be required to drill nor be called on for riots or like service, but certain uniform training will be given them. The groups will be under the adjutant general's office and General Waller said today it was hoped that each county would be able to recruit fifty men and that the cities might also see fit to organize companies, one to every ten thousand persons.

CENTREVILLE

Rev. Tom Yrma preached at St. John's on Sunday morning.

Definite announcement has been made of the reopening of Christ Church at Chantilly. Rev. Mr. Valden is holding services on Sunday evenings, at 8 P. M.

A "Poverty Party" is being held at Mrs. Varnell Payne's on Saturday afternoon, beginning at 5 P. M. There will be prizes. This is under sponsorship of the Altar Guild, of St. John's.

Mrs. Irene Woltz has been confined to her home for several days but is out again. Her report as secretary of Centreville Ridge Chapter, UDC, was handed in by her little daughter at the 4th District Convention, at Manassas, on Saturday. It is reported that Georgia Mary "stole the show."

St. John's Guild had a well attended luncheon meeting at Mrs. Robey's on Thursday.

Mr. Harvey Nichols has moved into the new house built by his sister, Mrs. Ethel Nokes. Mrs. Nokes, herself, is spending week-ends at her new home erected some months ago.

Everyone is sorry to learn of the death of Professor William H. Richards, who was buried on Monday. He came here from his native land, Canada, many years ago, and had taken an active interest in church and community work. Sympathy is extended to his daughter, Miss Ruth.

Mrs. Lynn Byrne, who has been quite ill, is reported slowly improving. John Ewell, of near Bull Run, is quite ill with pneumonia.

Tuesday's blackout in Fairfax County was carried out at Centreville with fine precision and effectiveness. Many cars coming into the County were stopped and a few, while apparently trying to get out. The alarm reached Centreville two minutes after the radio had signaled black-out in Washington.

Mr. Claude Makely, Chief of Communications for Centreville, received the official signal and sounded the beginning of the alarm, to which was added by Mr. Lamb as his assistant, three shots of a cannon and the ringing of the century-old farm bell. The blackout became effective at approximately 11 P. M. and the all clear was sounded at 11:30.

America answers the call

MILLIONS UNDER ARMS—the fastest, hardest-hitting fighting machine the world has ever known! That is the goal, as America's youth rallies to the call . . . hurrying from farms, towns, and cities all the way from Maine to California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

There's Tom, from down the block . . . Bill, and George, and Jack, who left good jobs . . . your friends, neighbors, brothers, sons. They're going . . . going eagerly so that America, our free America, will remain forever free.

And YOU, who'd like to join them, and can't . . . what about you? You can help by working harder than ever before and by buying Bonds to the very limit of your powers.

So let's all answer the call with every last dime and dollar that we can, even if it means going without things . . . remembering that we will go without everything, including our cherished freedom, if the Axis is not crushed, now and for all time!

Dear Editor:

May 10, 1942

While a sailor sits in his camp on a week-end after a hard week of drill and work he has a lot of time to think. While I was thinking I wrote this poem I would love so much to have your paper publish it. I lived at Woodbridge, Va., just 20 miles from you, before I was called to the service. I have a brother who lives in Manassas and also a lot of friends. We take your paper at home so I would love to surprise my mother and friends by having this poem put in your paper. If you will do this for me I will be more than deeply grateful to you.

THE DEFEAT OF THE FOE

By Private Allen Bourne

I have a story to tell but don't know how,
It's about this war that's got to be ours.

We all had homes we loved so dear.
We all had things we cherished so near.

But, then came the Japs the cowardly
Foe,
Who had nothing at all and no plan to go.

He was so dirty so mean with his traps;
He struck out of the darkness and into our backs.

He will have his last turn before very long,
And when that day comes we will sing our song.

We will push our way through his Tokyo town.
We will send our men on leaps and bounds.

But ah, there will be our men, our buddies of war
That won't have the joy after this is War.

There is some of us that have to go,
And leave our friends for this awful Foe.

Then comes the day when we all meet again,
We will all meet in heaven with the Great Amen,

For God knows the way the best for us all,
Don't worry my Darling if I should fall.

When the Japs started this war, they said
It's In The Bag.

But before its over they will be Old Hogs.
They had their chance, they thought they were smart.

But I tell you men they were wrong from the start.

They laughed at us and said we were weak,
They said they could win in just a few weeks;

But look out Japs you are all washed up,
You can't win this war so you had better give up.

You have played your game very unfair,
And now this war is bound to be ours.

So I leave you with this a token of love,
I want see any of you in heaven above.

STANWYCK AND FONDA IN GAY HIT

If past performances are any criterion—and the past performances of Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda, together or separately, can be considered a fairly safe criterion—Columbia's "You Belong to Me" is heading for the kind of audience reaction which made such other hits as "The Awful Truth," "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" classics in screen comedy.

"You Belong to Me," Wesley Ruggles' new production opening Thursday and Friday, May 21-22 at the Pitts Theatre, stars Miss Stanwyck

SAFeway Homemakers' Guide

NUMBER 43 ★ Ways to make house-cleaning easier ★ Soaps and cleansers that save you money ★ How nutritious meals can be made attractive

Want to know some energy-saving house cleaning tricks?

These 11 house-cleaning suggestions from the files of the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau are all tested and re-tested to make Spring cleaning, and everyday cleaning a lot easier for you.

Painted walls and woodwork can be washed with mild, warm soapuds. Use up-and-down motion, on a small area at a time, with wall brush or sponge, rubbing just hard enough to remove dirt. Rinse well and quickly with clear water and rub dry with a soft, clean cloth lightly. Do ceiling first. Just be sure walls are washable and not calcimined.

Greasy woodwork is cleaned easier with a tablespoon of vinegar added to the rinse water. And remember window sills—both inside and out. Wax is good weather protection.

Wallpaper may or may not be washable. (If you're not sure, test a small area where it won't show.) Rub gently with a soft sponge and rather dry, thick suds, following directions for painted walls. Do washable window shades the same way. Don't roll up till dry.

Crayon or smudge marks can be gently rubbed off with light, even strokes of a rather dry crust of ryebread.

Cobwebs should be brushed upward with quick even strokes to avoid streaks. Wax floors twice yearly. Remove old wax and clean with benzine or gasoline. Rewax, polish; coat and polish again for an extra special job.

Clean other floors with soapy water. Rinse with clear water to which a little furniture polish has been added. Polish with the grain of the wood.

Water marks or rings on varnished surfaces may be treated by rubbing with a few drops of camphor on a damp cloth.

For ink spots on floors, wipe up ink as soon as possible, and rub with oxalic crystals. After a little while wash with soap and water; let dry and re-wax.

Ink stains on washable fabrics can be soaked in milk or buttermilk until until stain disappears. Then wash as usual. Treat rugs the same way, sponging the milk on and following with a light sponging of ammonia water to remove the milk fat. For ink on non-washable fabrics, place blotter under stain and apply carbon tetrachloride lightly. Treat as soon as possible.

And the best trick of all is a cleaning basket stocked with oiled dusters, soft cloths for polishing, liquid and paste wax, upholstery and spot cleaners, ammonia for glass, abrasive, soap, steel wool, a blunt knife, and heavy cotton or rubber gloves.

See this dictionary of salads in this week's Family Circle Magazine you'll find alphabetically arranged salad ideas for every-day meals. It's issued every Thursday, free at Safeway.

MARY LEARNS TO MAKE EATING MORE FUN

and Fonda. Said to possess all and more of the delightful distinguished their most recent comedy, "The Lady Eve," the new film has been praised as "a natural" for the brilliant talents of the players.

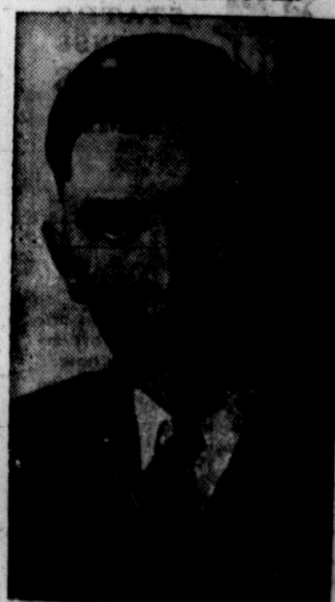

Miss Stanwyck is seen as a young woman doctor, seriously absorbed in her practice of medicine, who becomes the bride of a handsome young socialite. Mr. Fonda, as the love-crazy husband, is sufficiently why his bride won't stay for breakfast... but he fails to carry that understanding into practice. He wants to know, for example, why her patients all seem to be handsome young men, and he becomes inordinately jealous when he discovers every man in town is saying "ah" to his lovely bride. "You Belong to Me" has been called, by both press and public wherever it was shown, as the year's wildest, wittiest romantic whirlwind, a sparklingly racy riot which deftly interweaves love and laughter. Suspenseful situations, scintillant dialogue and sparkling portrayals contribute to audience applause.

GASOLINE TRAGEDY

Last week in West Virginia a tank-car of gasoline exploded and 18 cars of this vital fuel were burned. Each car contained around ten thousand gallons and the spectacular fire could be seen 15 miles away.

The accident, which occurred at Tolgate, West Va., emphasizes the dangers accompanying wholesale transportation of gasoline by rail through our many towns and villages, and explains why, in addition to reason of lower cost, tankers are largely used.

As sinkings continue it is probable that there will be more of these unfortunate accidents which may or may not, be due to sabotage.

Much gasoline trouble surely lies ahead, and it behooves all patriotic citizens to be patient and sacrificing in their attitude, because it is becoming increasingly evident that in due time there may, possibly be no gasoline at all for civilian use.

POISON GAS

Speaking before the Civilian Defense Training School Class in Manassas this week Mr. William F. Barbour, of the Alexandria Fire Department and expert on gas defense said that while the chances were remote that we would be sprayed with poison gas, yet he believed that gas warfare would burst out in Europe.

There is a growing belief throughout the civilized world that Germany will resort to such desperate measures as ultimate defeat stares Hitler in the face. It is possible that some new chemical agent will be used by the Huns which is not strictly a poison, but which nevertheless accomplishes its military purpose ruthlessly. Then Hitler would claim that any retaliation with poison gas would be inhuman.

Prime Minister Churchill gave stern warning this week that if Hitler uses gas against Russia, England is prepared in a large way to retaliate. So it is up to Adolph Hitler. The Allied Nations seem to be prepared for this eventuality.

MUSIC WEEK

Manassas has always had its devotees of the art of Music but perhaps never before was such a well rounded-out effort made to place music in the forefront at one special time, as in the case of Music Week, just passed.

The Woman's Club, through its individual members and a specialty appointed committee, went the limit in seeking cooperation from all organizations within their reach. Early in the week, there was a specialty prepared program at the State Vocational School. From then on until Friday evening when the Kiwanis Club had one of the finest programs of the year there was something doing at least once each day and sometimes two or three efforts to join in Music Week observance.

This has been a splendid example of what intensive organization and cooperation will do in a worthy project and we hope that the Woman's Club will resume the plan to make the public music conscious and thus further carry on the idea that music maintains morale.

THE CASE OF JOE LASH

The case of Mr. Joe Lash ought to be enough to lash the American people into greater alertness against the Communist branch of our ever-present Fifth Column.

Apparently so long as the Soviet Republic is our comrade in arms the American Government can do little or nothing officially against Communism, and seemingly we are going to an opposite extreme and almost, if not actually, are turning our national governmental machine over to the Communists.

The story of Mr. Lash ought to make us think. Here is seemingly a known affiliate with all sorts of Red activities. Declaring stoutly that he was not a member of the Communist Party he seems nevertheless definitely to have been associated with Red outfits denounced as Communist by the Dies Committee. He is apparently in college circles first as Chairman of a notorious "Association of Unemployed College Alumni," then he seems to have become Executive Secretary of the very obnoxious "American Student Union." He apparently then became a leader of the "American Youth Congress," the "Spanish Refugee Relief," the International Labor Defense, and the "American League for Peace and Democracy." In 1939 he appears in print as insuring the Dies Committee by bursting into a disrespectful little song as his distinguished friend, the First Lady of the Land looked on and smiled.

A few months ago he entered Mrs. Roosevelt's Civilian Defense set-up as a youth advisor. He seems to be contributor to that Red Magazine, "The New Masses," which has been barred the United States mails as seditious; a signer of the Oxford Pledge which promises not to support the United States in any war. Then the Draft Board got him.

His distinguished friend in the White House immediately tried unsuccessfully, according to reliable published information, to get him a place in the Naval Intelligence. She failed, but if such powerful influence is used to get known Reds in such vital places as Naval Intelligence, we have no way of knowing how successful similar efforts have been in other cases.

If it is possible to do so The Observer intends to follow the military career of Mr. Lash. We should not be at all surprised to discover that in due time he will turn up in some propaganda or publicity branch of the Army that has nothing to do with fighting, and much to do with directing the thoughts of youth.

SOME CORRECTIONS

Editor, Manassas Journal,
Dear Sir;

In reading the History of Prince William I notice there are some mistakes in regard to the Monroe place. Mann Page sold the place to William Condiff, who built the house in 1787. Condiff sold to Shaw and Shaw to Shirley. Do not know how long the different parties owned the place but Shirley sold to William Wallace Monroe in 1849 or 50, 161 acres.

The history has it John Monroe which is a mistake. William Wallace Monroe's oldest daughter, Susan, who is spoken of as a small girl would get up at night and give water to the soldiers. This is wrong. Susan, at the age of 19 years, (1861) was at Orkney Springs at school. She came home in June. The first of September her father took her back to school but it was decided best to close the school.

Her father took Susan to Rockingham, County with an aunt where she stayed more than a year before she could get home on account of the war conditions.

William Wallace Monroe died in 1867, but did not leave the place to his daughter, Susan. He left no will. The mother died in 1878. Everything was divided between all the heirs. Susan getting the house and land surrounding where she lived until 1919.

John P. Monroe, who is mentioned as joining the Army, Prince William Cavalry before he was of age, is correct, but he went back later to the same company, was captured at Point Lookout and died in prison. This name is on a large stone monument with many others on the Maryland side.

MY MOTHER

Two special holidays come in May
Mother's day and my Mother's birthday.

She is the Mother of seven,
And there is no better Mother in earth or heaven.

I believe that Mother's day
Means to her children young and old,
The blessed love of Mother
More valuable than gold.

There are lots and lots of Mother
Who're fine,
But none can take the place of mine.
To her children she's always proved true
No matter whether the sky was gray or blue.

The date for the celebration of the bi-centennial of Fairfax County, sponsored by the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce and primarily under the direction of the Supervisor of the Elementary Schools, Mr. James E.
Bauserman, has been set for May 21st, and will be held in the auditorium of the Fairfax High School, at eight o' clock, P. M.

This entertainment will consist of a series of pageants depicting the different events that have transpired since the founding of the County two hundred years ago.

Music will be furnished by the Glee Club of Fairfax High School, assisted by chubs from some of the other schools, under the direction of Mrs.
Nellie Mae Pettit.

A history of the County has been prepared from the founding in 1742, up to the present time, and will be read, as the different phases of the pageant are given.

Congressman Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke, Virginia, will be the guest speaker, and as Mr. Woodrum has an enviable reputation as a public speaker, those who do not avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him will have no one to blame except themselves.

PATRIOT'S MAP: PROUD HOME STATES OF 200 AMERICAN HEROES DECORATED SINCE PEARL HARBOR—Six months ago many people unwittingly cheered Hitler by declaring "American boys are growing soft." Those were the days when "Defense" was a big word. The map of the United States meanwhile has a new significance. Since December 7 more than 200 soldiers of the United States Army from all parts of the country have been decorated for valor, conspicuous gallantry in action and distinguished service. For instance, Florida boasts among her heroic sons one who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor; another, the Distinguished Service Cross, and still another, the Silver Star, and four won the Distinguished Flying Cross. The list is not complete because the home addresses of many of these brave men are not yet available, and those heroes living in Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippines are not included. Awards since April 25 are not indicated.

• Don't let improper cooking

Your gas range is ideally

Because of its flexible gas flame

So remember—

Cook vegetables in a small

UNCLE SAM IS CALLING FOR A Healthy Vigorous NATION!

AMERICA has put the spotlight on Vitality for Victory! All of us—in factories, on farms, in homes, offices and schools, need healthy bodies and steady nerves to do our jobs and win the victory. That's why a number of Government Agencies and other important trade and professional organizations are so widely supporting the "ENRICHED" Bread program as part of the greatest nation-wide nutrition campaign this country has ever known.

It's a proven fact that we all need to get more nutrition out of our food. The Bakers of Southern Bread realized this eight years ago. They were the first bakers in Dixie to introduce bread enriched with vitamins. This important trend has been steadily growing. Recently Government Agencies recommended ENRICHED bread as a powerful aid because it helps supply extra vitamins and minerals needed for proper nourishment. In quick cooperation with our Government the bakers of Southern Bread are now making not one—but three different ENRICHED loaves. And each loaf is immediately identified by the brand name "Southern" and the word "ENRICHED" on every wrapper.

THESE LOAVES
GIVE YOU EXTRA
HEALTH VALUE NOT FOUND IN ORDINARY BREAD

SOUTHERN ENRICHED BREAD IS A BASIC VICTORY FOOD

It looks and tastes the same as always. The price is unchanged. But Southern Bread in its new wrapper gives you a great extra value—it is ENRICHED with important-to-health B-vitamins and minerals as recommended by the National Research Council.

Bread is the food bargain of 1942 and Southern ENRICHED Bread is one of the best and cheapest sources of food energy your money can buy. Sold at better stores everywhere. Serve it today—and every day!

A Federal Government Nutrition Authority Says: "It is a patriotic duty to accept only white bread which carried the word 'Enriched' on the wrapper."

The Bakers of Southern Bread quickly cooperated with Government's recommendations—that's why all three styles of Southern Bread are "ENRICHED"!

COUNTY FARM BOARD PLANNING STEPS TO PREVENT REOCURENCE OF LOSSES AND HARDSHIPS FOLLOWING LAST WAR

FARM MEN AND WOMEN TO COOPERATE IN "KEEPING DOWN COST OF LIVING" PROGRAM

The Prince William County Board of Agriculture and U. S. D. A. War Board will meet at Manassas on May 29 to get general educational work under way to acquaint farmers with the government's program for holding down the cost of living and their part in this program.

The Government asks the help of every citizen in carrying through a program for general economic stabilization which will keep down the cost of living, reduce the call of civilians for scarce materials that must be used as war supplies, and speed the war effort. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard states "Farmers have everything to gain and nothing to lose such a program. Every farmer, who farmed during and after the last war remembers the disastrous results which followed spiraling of prices during the last war. Farmers will be particularly pleased to know that retail and wholesale prices are to be controlled before further advances occur in the cost of items which they must purchase for their homes and farms. In my opinion, farmers will give the President's program their full support."

Farmers and farm homemakers as consumers have a definite responsibility to see to it that they do not pay more than the lawful price for any commodity. Those who farmed during the last war remember how good it felt to watch farm prices soar. They also remember how it felt after the collapse to be caught with high priced cattle, land and equipment on which payments had to be completed when lower post war prices were being received for farm products. Thousands of farmers lost their homes and possessions because prices went up and then came down again. The purpose of the program being initiated by farm men and women throughout the country is to try to prevent the recurrence of losses and the hardships experienced by them after the last war.

Following the county meeting, a series of community and neighborhood meetings are being scheduled by the County Farm Board.

THE USE OF PORK LIVER

"Liver is rich in Vitamin A and the B vitamins. It has a high quality protein. Moreover, it contains the substance necessary to overcome anemia. Thus, in addition to its palatability, it can be classified as an important food," states Dr. I. C. Riggan, State Health Commissioner.

"Recently, in child feeding, physicians have suggested scraped raw liver. They emphasize, however, that it should be limited for this purpose to beef or calves liver. Raw pork liver should not be scraped for children. Incidentally, pork liver never should be eaten rare by anyone.

"Beef liver, lambs liver, pork and calves liver, as well as chicken and goose liver, all are good to eat. The different kinds vary somewhat in color, texture, size and weight. A uniform bright color, a fairly firm texture, and a fresh meat odor are indications of fresh liver. Livers from freshly killed animals have a more delicate flavor than those which have been stored for some time.

"The warning against the use of raw scraped liver or undercooked pork liver (which is equally applicable to all pork and pork products) is based upon the possibility that pork may be the carrier of the trichinae, a microscopic worm which, if taken into the human body by way of eating raw or undercooked pork or pork products from an infected animal, can cause trichinosis in man.

"It is impracticable to attempt to discover what pork carcasses do and what carcasses do not contain the trichinae. From a practical standpoint, there is little need for it. Through cooking of pork and pork products kills the trichinae if they happen to be in the meat, and makes it entirely safe for human consumption, and in no manner affects its palatability.

"Parenthetically, pork liver is gaining national importance because it contains even more iron than do the livers of other animals. In fact, it contains about three times as much as calves or beef. But, be sure it is cooked thoroughly.

★ Our Battlefields ★

By
Arthur H. Jennings, Past Historian
In Chf. S. C. V.

The Manassas Journal;

Dear Sir:

I submit this accompanying article on Manassas for your consideration. In the swirl of news of present day battles and disasters it is important that we do not lose sight entirely of our past history - and its great deeds. If you can use this material, do so on your own terms and as you feel able or disposed. I am only anxious to have the material preserved in some form that can be used later - most of this stuff has been dug out of widely scattered sources and some if it is original.

Manassas will inevitably be the scene of further fighting if by any evil chance our state is invaded - the terrain makes that final just as the lay of the land in the Argonne and Belgium has always doomed that land.

The North, since this field was the scene of two Confederate victories and two Federal defeats as always disregarded Manassas as a field to be memorialized. Either party, Republican and or democrats have been Yankee dominated and so aht South, at to history. But in the course of time it will come into its own in spite of the fact that the South being the conquered section of the country, has had its history written by the conqueror, as is inevitably the fate of the loser in war.

Yours truly,

Arthur H. Jennings,
Elks National Home,
Bedford, Virginia.

IF WE FIGHT AGAIN, HERE ARE OUR BATTLEFIELDS.
Will Hitler's Nazis Goosestep Here?

The bloody fields of Belgium, the Argonne and Waterloo are not without reason called the "cockpit of Europe." Nor can the battlefields of Northern Virginia be called the American cockpit for less reason.

From those times when earliest men fought, grouped in great armies down through Charlemagne, Napoleon, and the World War of the 1918 era, this cockpit of Europe saw armies drawn there (and drawn is the word to use) and fighting men struggle there and die. Likewise, as soon as this last great war started, the urge was on once more, and great armies concentrated on these fields - but the debacle scattered them.

In our own land, in our fratricidal struggle, from 1861 to 1865, armies were drawn to Manassas, the Wilderness, Fredericksburg and Cold Harbor, not once but twice each, and if we fight again on our own soil we must fight our enemies in this American cockpit.

The lay of the land, the roads, the course of the rivers, the twisting of the mountains, all make this so.

Will Hitler's hobbled Nazis trample the soil of Manassas? If he lands north and goes south, or if he lands south and goes north, it is inevitable. But granting that by merest chance he misses Manassas, he cannot also miss the Wilderness, or perhaps Fredericksburg. Of that we may be absolutely sure.

When McDowell in 1861 went to Manassas he did not choose the route - he was drawn there by forces beyond his control. These same forces had placed Beauregard and Johnston at Manassas to oppose him. Pope later cooled around and seasawed up and down and then fought at Manassas - he ran, too.

Grant when he came fresh from his Western victory at Vicksburg, knew he had to face Lee's army somewhere. He thought he would cross the Rappahannock, edge through the Wilderness and fight Lee somewhere in the open on the plains of Northern Virginia and force him back to Richmond. That's what he wanted but it was not what happened.

The Wilderness got him just as it had gotten Joe Hooker some months before, and the fight was there in its tangled thickets.

The anniversary of these and the fights at Manassas are upon us once more. The field is an interesting one. We live and breath war these days. It will do us no harm to look at these fields where war had been fought and where it must be fought again in all likelihood.

The battle of First Manassas as the South calls it or First Bull Run as the North prefers to term it occurred on July 21st 1861.

Blackburn's Ford Was A
Curtain Raiser

to this greater drama three days later. The contending forces were on either side of Bull Run, which was what we call a creek in this country. The Confederates stretched their lines along this creek for eight miles and defended seven fords. Blackburn's Ford was off to one side, some distance from where the main fight of the 21st took place. This initial struggle was only a sort of rehearsal for the real big battle to follow but it had some interesting points, especially about the deadly effect of the old fashion ammunition the Confederates used. A survivor of this fight, a member of the 11th Virginia Infantry, wrote home at the time some points about the skirmish.

"When we went to Blackburn's Ford we were on a level plain while just across the stream was a considerable bluff rising above our heads. Suddenly an enemy skirmish line appeared there and as we were totally without shelter there below them we felt that we would immediately be wiped out. We were armed with old muzzle loading muskets and buck and ball cartridges-cartridges containing a ball and three or four buckshot each. We had to bite off the paper end of the cartridge and then ram the charge home - this bit off end held the powder. After a little of this sort of loading and firing, especially on a hot day a man's face became as black as your hat. Well, we loaded up and blazed away at our enemy on top of the hill. Our men began to drop here and there but after awhile the fire on the hill top ceased and we gave a yell and rushed across the little stream and up the slope. We found the skirmish line lying there, victims of our old type ammunition which had proved enormously destructive. This line had advanced in threes - three men here and then a space and three men there and so on. They now lay on the ground in very much the same order, dead and wounded."

After this opening test the real battle came on in three days. This first battle of Manassas or Bull Run has about it some points not generally known and which are of some interest. It was the first time American men had faced each other in large bodies with deadly intent. This fight was largely between New York and Virginia for they made by far the greater number of regiments on the field. Virginia had on the field seven regiments of infantry and two of cavalry. New York opposed her with nineteen regiments of troops besides six batteries of artillery of the regular army and some marines. In addition the North has one regiment each from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Wisconsin and Pennsylvania had likewise one regiment each while Rhode Island, Minnesota and Ohio had two each while Massachusetts, Connecticut and Michigan were represented by three regiments each.

On the Southern side far off Arkansas had sent a regiment and so had Maryland. Georgia had two regiments and North Carolina, Alabama and Louisiana were there with three regiments each. South Carolina was runner - up with five regiments and the famed Hampton Legion and Mississippi was close up with five regiments. These troops were citizens of their various states, from the ordinary walks of life and not regulars. The fight raged in almost unbearable summer heat and the thick smoke made breathing difficult. The leaders led - McDowell, Beauregard and Johnston went into the thickest of the fights with their men. McDowell cheered on his men from the front ranks and Beauregard had a horse shot under him and a bullet clipped off the heel of his military boot. Johnston seized the colors of an Alabama regiment and went into the hottest fight at the head of the troops.

At this late day it is amusing and of interest to recall the story of Blind Tom, a negro prodigy of sixty years ago. Blind Tom was a musical genius; while weak minded and childish and without musical education he could play the most difficult classical music and when some one played a composition for him on the stage, Tom would at once reproduce it, with utter accuracy, even to any blunder that had by any chance been made. He would leap on his feet after each piece was rendered and lead the applause by clapping his hands vigorously. One of his noted pieces, played all over the country by request was his own composition called "The Battle of Manassas." Fifty years ago more people, about the country knew Blind Tom's "Battle of Manassas" than now know the most famous "Blues" that Gershwin ever wrote. In this piece Tom played Yankee Doodle with one hand and "Dixie with the other. He imitated the whistle of the train bringing reinforcements and called out loudly, "Here comes Kirby Smith." His imitations of the crash of musketry and roar of cannon was startlingly realistic and his piano rocked with the effort when the battle was raging the fiercest. The writer heard Blind Tom play this almost sixty years ago and can still recall the thrill of the performance.

Of outstanding interest now are the names of many of the famous men who then unknown, participated in this First Manassas fight. Beauregard and McDowell were or rather had been classmates at West Point and here they faced each other as opposing commanders. Among Northern men here were Burnside who was fated to ill luck at later Fredericksburg; Sherman, our first American Hun, who ravaged Georgia in his March -- and also the graceless creature, David Hunter, whose cowardly acts of wanton cruelty in his later raids through Virginia merited and received the scorn of his own officers. This Hunter, a renegade Virginian, was aptly chosen by the South Hating crew who were in power at Washington after the war and he was their headpiece to direct the military Board who legally murdered the ill fated Mrs. Surratt and also railroaded Pitts John Porter to unmerited rebuke and loss of rank for planted mistakes charged to him. On the Confederate side were of course Jackson who was to be baptised with his name of Stonewall here on this field by the dying Bee - this war name which will live as long as any name borne by a mortal. Here was Longstreet; Lee's "old war horse" when he got started fighting but whose stubborn slowness and jealousy was to delay Second Manassas and lose Gettysburg. Here were Hampton, late one of South Carolina's famous sons, second only to John C. Calhoun and here were Kirby Smith and A. P. Hill and also Joseph E. Johnston, commanding with Beauregard. The list is long and distinguished.

Uniforms at this initial fight of the war were varied and most confusing. They included the locally chosen dress uniforms of a hundred different militia companies - the regular uniform of the United States regulars and marines. There were Zouave caps and Garibaldi shirts, Scotch bonnets and wide felt hats-a regular comic opera assemblage in this furious Mardi Gras of family fighting on this hot July day.

On the side of the Henry House hill, John W. Daniel, a striding young officer, later a distinguished United States Senator, stood in his trim cadet uniform and fought a duel with an officer of the New York Fire Zouave-winged Daniel who fell but recovered to fight another day and receive a more dire wound.

Equally illustrative of this internecine fighting were the roaring cannon of the United States regulars replied to by the practice guns of the Virginia Military Institute and the later famous guns of the Botetourt Artillery. And when the gallant Northern officer Ricketts fell besides his guns on the Henry Hill it was the Confederate Beauregard who dismounted from his charging horse and kneeling by his side, offered sympathy.

The remarkable story of Wilbur McLean belongs to any human interest story of Manassas. This man and his family occupied a very good old Colonial home, near the field and the house was occupied by General Beauregard as headquarters. Early in the fight a cannon ball plunged into the dining room of the home and broke up the morning meal. The rage of battle was too much for McLean and he resolved to move to quieter quarters. His journeyings brought him finally to Appomattox Court House and he settled down there in the home which was four years later the scene of Lee's surrender to Grant. This in the very last act of the great drama the two armies drew up at his doorstep and he witnessed the close as he had seen the beginning of the great American Epic.

Jackson was wounded in the hand as he rode along the lines at the Henry House Hill where the fighting was fiercest. He had his hand raised up in that strange gesture, later to become so familiar to the troops, and as he held it aloft a bullet smashed through his flesh. He wound a handkerchief about the wound and refused to leave the field.

Jackson is described by General Douglas, in his wonderful book, "I Rode with Stonewall" as having apotheosized the Rebel Yell in this manner. It was in Northern Virginia when the corp was camped during a lull in fighting. Douglas says that in the early evening as quiet settled down over the camps there arose from the tents of the Stonewall Brigade, without apparent reason, spontaneously, the tumultuous shouting known as the Rebel Yell. From camp to camp the shouting proceeded - rising to a great crescendo and then slowly dying down. At its height Jackson emerged from his tent and walked across to a fence whereon he rested his arms as he gazed along the country side where his corp had encamped. He listened most attentively but without comment as the exultant sounds swept along for miles, issuing from thousands of throats. As it finally died down to a faint murmur he turned away and retraced his steps to his tent, saying quietly, as though speaking to himself, "That is the sweetest music I have ever heard."

Last summer a statue to Jackson was erected on the field of the Manassas fights. It is one of the few Southern statues or memorials there. The North has only a few to memorialize her boys but the battlefield itself is largely suggestive of its most stirring scenes. It has not been ruined by being made too much of a beautiful park - as is the fate of some other famous fields.

The Henry House stands as a museum and the Stone House stands near while the old Stone Bridge has been restored to suggest what it was in those torrid July days of 1861. There is a small cemetery erected or created by the Daughters of the Confederacy to inter bodies which are washed up by hard rains or ploughed up.

It is said the Valkyries watch being enacted they swoop down from their Valhalla and speed through the battle clouds over the fighting men, uttering their encouraging cries. When we think of what has transpired on the fields of Manassas in the fights there and the thousands of heroic men of both North and South who struggled and perished there may be sure that if Americans must stand once more upon these fields to battle for their homes and liberties, there will be no lack of warrior ghosts to hover above them and speed their efforts.

MORE GIRLS ENROLLING

Employment of women in War Industries is steadily increasing, it was revealed today by Carter W. Friend, Manager of the Alexandria and Arlington offices of the United States Employment Service. "70 young women between the ages of 18 and 24 are already in training at the Manassas State Vocational school for war jobs in the fields of radio, electricity, auto machines, machine shop, sheet metal, welding, and woodworking," said Mr. Friend. "This school can accommodate many more, and young women between 18 and 24 are urged to apply immediately," he added. Other training classes for war production jobs are also open to women.

During April, 1942, these offices assisted employers in filling 1,462 jobs, the highest monthly record ever recorded. Of these, 838 were men and 624 women. 791 were classified as regular placements for employment lasting over one month.

April activities increased the year's placement total to 4,362, showing an increase of about 1,100 over the figure reported for the same period last year.
